SAINT GEORGE'S DAY RECALLED

South Peterborough Church Had Patronal Services—Big Congregations.

SPECIAL SPEAKER.

St. George's Anglican church celebrated the anniversary of St. George's Day yesterday with special Patronal morning, afternoon and evening services. There were good attendances at all three services, with a specially large congregation at Evensong, when the speaker for the occasion was Rev. H. R. Mockridge, rector of All Hallows' church, Toronto. Included in the evening congregation was a representation of members of the Order of the Sons of England. As usual at St. George's, the Evensong service was fully choral, one of the features being the singing of the Patronal hymn.

Taking as his text an excerpt from the Epistle to the Phillippians: "I can do all things through Christ, who strengtheneth me," the reverend speaker referred to the many allusions in Holy Writ to fighting and warfare. In the Old Testament, the people warred against enemies of flesh and blood, while in the New Testament the fighting was against flesh and spirit both, warfare being spiritual as well as carnal.

Rev. Mr. Mockridge pointed out that while St. George was a soldier in the Roman army, he was also a soldier of the Lord. Of the many martyrs who suffered under the Diocletian persecution, two are most interesting to Englishmen, St. Alban, who was the first British martyr, and St. George, later the patron saint of England. Both were officers in the Roman army, and both suffered torture and death rather than deny the faith.

To fight and contend for the faith required courage of a high order, and this was possessed by Saint George. Followers of his example should be witnesses for the faith that was in them, whether at home or abroad, in the office or in the factory.

It is contended that faith of this sort, the type that gives up life rather than deny the faith, is super-human and impossible for moderns to emulate. This is true to a certain extent, but we must remember that we can "do all things through Christ, who strengthened us," and in the sanctifying grace of the regenerating baptism and the Eucharistic communion, the sanctified life becomes the super-human life.

SAYS STATEMENTS FALSE.

TORONTO, April 24 (Canadian Press)—Counsel for Col. Clarence Smith appealing his conviction and sentence on charges under the Bank Act finished his argument at 12.30 today in the appeal court. D. L. McCarthy, Crown Counsel, then started his reply.

The crown charges, said Mr. McCarthy, that false statements appeared in all annual reports made to the government in 1923. The contention was that the profit and loss account was absolutely false, that the statement of assets and liabilities were false.

CIADS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain—How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water fright after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

WORK ON CAVAN FARM DELAYED

Some Farmers Finished Seeding Before Storm—Others Not Yet Begun.

CROPS HEALTHY

CAVAN, April 23.—Spring work just now is at many different stages of progress.

A few farmers finished seeding before the snow came, others have some in, while more had not started to sow.

A few have some potatoes planted.

The snow still covers the ground, but where it is melting off, the wheat and grass are showing up a good green color.

The snow has sheltered and refreshed them, and has supplied much needed moisture.

Chickens and goslings are making their appearance on the farms and for a few days it seemed as though the weather was most unfavorable for them.

Truck Foundered.

A gasoline truck from Peterboro was stuck on the middle road for a couple of hours on Monday. The driver had to get a man with a team to help him out. He had turned off the beaten track to pass a rig and the snow was so deep that he got stuck.

The funeral of William Sutton, Trenton, for several years a resident of Cavan, residing on the farm now owned by Mr. Creighton Carr, was held on Wednesday from the home of his sister, Mrs. Hetherington at Bobcaygeon.

Turnkey At Cobourg.

Mr. Roy Hutchison, Cavan, has been appointed turnkey at Cobourg jail, taking the position left vacant by the death of the late Col. D. Sutton.

NORTHUMBERLAND LEAGUE MEETING

County Baseball Clubs to Assemble at Warkworth Next Week.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24. — Gordon Lapp, of Brighton, secretary-treasurer of the Northumberland Baseball League, announces that the annual meeting will be held at Warkworth, probably within a week. There was a rumor that the Brighton team intended to make a shift and to join the Bay of Quinte League, but Mr. Lapp says that they will remain in the old company.

Here in Campbellford it is understood that all of the eight teams that were in the League in 1923 will apply for membership again. These are: Brighton, Colborne, Roseneath, Orland, Warkworth, Harwood and Campbellford. Last year it was a six team league, as Harwood dropped out and Orland and Warkworth amalgamated.

It has been suggested by one of the former players in Campbellford that a double league be formed, as there are four teams in each of the two ridings in the county, at least there were two electoral divisions before the redistribution bill was passed.

Another rumor is that Frankford is ambitious to put a team in the league.

HASTINGS A.Y.P.A. CLOSING MEETING

Good Programme of Music, Readings and Contests Was Given.

HASTINGS, April 24.—The A.Y.P.A. of St. George's Anglican church held its closing meeting for the season on Monday. After opening with the singing of the National Anthem a few remarks were made by the chairman, Mr. W. P. Plant. The rector, Rev. W. A. Pippen, was called on for remarks. Mr. Cyril Blackbourn rendered vocally, "In the City Where Nobody Cares"; Mr. Alex. Shold gave a violin solo; Mrs. E. Radford sang "Little Old Lady", followed by a recitation by Miss Dora Hubbs; Mr. Blackbourn sang "Frank the Forrester"; Mr. C. B. Plant gave a recitation; Mrs. Rodford sang "A Pal of Mine Stole a Gal of Mine."

A contest called a Game of Knowledge, which was open to all present who wished to take part, was the next item on the program. This was pertaining to historic events of Hastings. This contest was won by Mr. A. B. German.

Refreshments were served at the close.

Personals.

Mr. D. Sullivan was in Toronto Sunday.

Mrs. R W. Johnson is visiting friends in Hamilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fry of Toronto are the guests of friends here.

Mr. Ernest Fairman has returned to his home in Campbellford after spending two months in Hastings.

OCEAN FREIGHT RATES KEPT UP

cess of rate-making by the North Atltantic Shipping Conference.

Col. Gear admitted that Americans predominated at meetings of the conference.

"Supposing the Canadian Committee want to change a rate they submit it to the Conference. If the Conference agrees, that becomes the rate. If not, it doesn't?" Mr. Symington asked.

"Yes," replied Col. Gear.

Mr. Symington asked the witness if it was a fact that one of the reasons for the formation of the Conference was that boats were being forced out of the St. Lawrence route.

"Some were forced out. Others would have been if the Conference had not been formed," was the reply.

Mr. Symington then asked Col. Gear to explain why there were more boats advertised by Steamship Companies as running on the St. Lawrence route prior to the formation of the Conference than at present.

Few Actual Sailings

Col. Gear replied that he would like to see the sailings of the ships prior to the Conference. A company might advertise a large number of ships but there might be comparatively few actual sailings.

Mr. Symington asked Col. Gear if he remembered a line of steamships known as the Reardon Smith Line which operated outside the Conference.

"Yes," replied the witness.

Met Competition

"Did not the Conference put on special reduced rates for five days in order to meet the competition of this line?" Mr. Symington asked.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Not necessarily," replied Col. Gear. He said that the conference never cut below this competition in quoting rates. He said that rates on cattle, grain and flour were not fixed by the Conference, but admitted that the Canadian Liner Committee fixed rates on the two latter commodities. Cattle rates were not fixed, he maintained.

Col. Gear expressed the opinion that a shipper had better security in case of damage to a cargo when dealing with a steamship line than a "tramp."

A discussion in regard to rates on flour then took place. Sir Henry Drayton asked what justification the steamship companies could furnish for a higher rate on Canadian than American flour from New York. If there were two bags of flour, one Canadian and one American, on the New York dock, was it not wrong that the former should pay a higher rate than the latter.

"We have stopped that, and it will stay stopped," Col. Gear replied.

OBITUARY.

JAMES McINTOSH

COBOURG, April 24.—Mr. and Mrs. David Fleming, Peterborough, were called here at the week end because of the death of the latter's father, Mr. James McIntosh, who passed away in his 78th year. Had Mr. McIntosh lived until May he would have passed the three-score and ten limit by the full eight years. A sad circumstance is that his was the fourth death in the home in a little over a year, two sons and a daughter having been called away. Surviving their father, is one son, James D. McIntosh, Cobourg, and three daughters, Mrs. David Fleming, Peterborough, and Misses Agnes and Margaret McIntosh at home, being the only survivors of a family of five sons and four daughters. He was predeceased by his wife about eight years ago. Mr. McIntosh was born in Inverneshire, Scotland, and when a boy came to Cobourg with his parents.

AMALGAMATION OF CANADA'S TWO RAILWAYS IS ADVOCATED IN HOUSE

Government, he could do better.

"You have just as much reason ——" "Take a chance," shouted several Conservative members, to the amusement of the House.

Mr. Jacobs thought a great deal too much talk was wasted on the budget. "The tariff we shall always have with us," he said. "It is impossible to run this country without it. But the tariff should primarily protect Canadian industries from competition from outside. What is the use of a tariff which will not protect?" His own views on the tariff were a matter of atmosphere, of geography—"yes, and of votes," he added when someone at his elbow suggested this.

The Railway Problem.

Mr. Jacobs then went on to discuss the Shaughnessy plan for the amalgamation of all Canadian railways. He approved it. The Government should not constitute itself a "maid of all work." Its job was to govern. Did anybody suppose that the Government could run a railway better than the C.P.R., which had almost the best railway line in the world?

W. D. Euler, of North Waterloo, interjected, "It is possible."

Somebody else added, "But not probable."

Mr. Jacobs did not believe that Government ownership of railways had ever been successful anywhere. An Australian tourist told him recently, that Australia's railways were in very bad shape.

O. R. Gould, of Assiniboia, said that on the contrary, an Australian visitor had spoken very highly of his home railways. The coaches had shower baths in them there.

Mr. Jacobs said "Perhaps. They have plenty of water in their stock."

Mr. Euler suggested that Mr. Jacobs go on to say what his Australian friend thought of the service in the Canadian National Railways.

Mr. Jacobs didn't remember, but on his own account, was willing to admit it was the best in the world. But it could afford to be because the Canadian Government was "paying the piper." The railways just said to the Dominion Treasury. "Send ten millions or fifteen millions and lo, Moses had struck the rock and the water gushed forth."

Want But One Line.

"We only want one line," stated Mr. Jacobs. He supported the merging of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, and thought it would be in the interests of the country, were the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to take over control of our National Railways, under a plan somewhat similar to the Shaughnessy one. For the Canadian National Railways to take over the Canadian Pacific, would be "like taking a healthy child, and putting it into bed with a sick child."

Mr. Jacobs believed that the temper of the people of this country favored a change in our railway policy, and the sooner something was done, the better. In reply to Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, he thought that the taking over of the present National systems at the time, by the former Government, had been necessary. "Half a dozen bucaneers walked away with all our money and left us holding the bag," he remarked.

Would Fix Rates.

Were such a scheme carried out, stated Mr. Jacobs in reply to a query from Robert Forke, Progressive leader, he favored the Railway Commission retaining the power to fix rates.

Speaking on immigration, Mr. Jacobs advocated the onen door, for every "white nerson who is able to earn a living."

Mr. Jacobs believed that about five per cent. per annum would be a reasonable immigration. That would mean 100 people would have to absorb five every year, and an annual immigration of 450,000.

Immigration should proceed in natural channels, and Mr. Jacobs was prepared to support any party in the House or any party outside the House trying to get it.

"The policy of the present Government in respect to immigration, is like the wisdom of God, it surpasseth all understanding," said Mr. Jacobs.

He deplored the fact that there was no commission on immigration, nor even a special committee of the House. There were such provisions for onions, cabbages and fish, but when it came to human beings, there was nobody to refer the question to.

His Immigration Policy.

Mr. Jacobs proceeded to outline a vigorous immigration policy, aimed to bring to Canada the people in European countries who naturally turned to the soil for their livelihood, and who had known such hardships that they would be willing to work very hard for a living. He thought Canada could afford to bring over some 400,000 of such immigrants to develop farm lands.

G. G. Coote (Progressive, MacLeod) asked if Mr. Jacobs could find work for such an army of immigrants.

Demoralized By Doles.

Mr. Jacobs insisted that there was no reason for anybody who wanted work to be out of work in Canada. The natural resources had been only scratched. As for the cases cited to show that immigrants were out of work, Mr. Jacobs frankly condemned the practice of bringing "victims of the dole" from London, Glasgow and Liverpool, whose chief qualifications were that they could speak English and because they were Britishers, thought they owned Canada. He did not wish to reflect on the British people as a whole, but only on the particular class he had referred to. There were plenty of Europeans to work, and all the more likely to make a success; because everything, including the language, was an obstacle to be surmounted. There was very little unemployment in Quebec. At any one time, not more than 500 to 1,000 people were out of work in Montreal.

Mr. Jacobs retorted it was from a source Mr. Meighen might consider inaccurate.

"I make no threats, nor utter any warnings," said Mr. Jacobs in conclusion, "but I wish to say that I cannot give my support to any party in this House which is not ready to carry out my policy of immigration, and I am ready to support any party which will adopt this policy."

John Pritchard (Progressive, Wellington North) asked how Mr. Jacobs would prevent people from drifting away from the farm, lured by the promise of short hours and high wages in the cities. Mr. Jacobs retorted that farmers should be prevented from selling their farms and going to the cities, and he added a reference to farmers who, "having failed to make a success of farming, get themselves elected to Parliament." As for the immigrants, he thought they should be allowed to go where they liked. If they found they were unemployed in the cities, they would in time find their way to the country, if they would honestly desire to get work and better themselves.

A "Jacob" Party.

Angus McDonald (Independent, Temiskaming) asked if the group who supported Mr. Jacobs' policy on immigration would be known in the House as the "Jacob party."

Mr. Jacobs drily observed that there once was a Jacob who had only twelve sons, but he went out into Egypt and made a success of it.

O. R. Gould stated that last year the Liberal member for St. Lawrence St. George, Mr. Marler, was "critical of the Government" on the budget. This year, however, Mr. Marler appeared "in the role of an apologist."

THE FOREST ASSET.

Did you ever stop to ask yourself how much the forests of Ontario mean to you as a citizen of this Province?

Perhaps you are among the many people who have failed to realize that our forests are vital to the economic future of Ontario in many ways.

Ontario's forest industry in pulp, paper and lumber has an investment of two hundred million dollars, directly employing thirty thousand persons, with an annual payroll of thirty-five million dollars.

This in some way affects every citizen.

Ontario's forest products have an annual value of over one hundred million dollars. A large portion is exported, a big factor in holding Ontario's trade balance on the right side.

Ontario's forests regulate thef flow of her rivers by conserving the moisture of snow and rain, protecting the watershed upon which our hydro-electric power is dependent.

They affect our climate, making it more moderate and equable.

They are a valuable asset in providing a national playground, bringing in millions of dollars through tourist traffic.

They are an asset, too, for health and strength.

It should not be necessary to plead for public support to protect such valuable property; yet public support is absolutely necessary if the forests, not only of Ontario but of the whole Dominion, are to be saved from the fires which every year burn up fifteen million dollars' worth of timber wealth.

THE KIWANIS MIMICS.

The Minstrel Show of the Peterboro Kiwanis Club, which is being held tonight and tomorrow night at the Grand Opera House, has as its most worthy objective the raising of funds for the Government farm at Bowmanville for under-privileged and delinquent boys.

The Kiwanis Clubs of Ontario have taken upon their shoulders the responsibility of paying for the erection of a number of the buildings which will go to make up the farm plant, this action having been taken at the request of the Ontario Government, which in launching the enterprise was anxious that it should not be operated as a purely Governmental affair.

The need of such a farm for delinquent boys, instead of sending youthful offenders to consort with older and hardened criminals, will be readily recognized, and the success of a similar effort made in the Province of Quebec augurs well for the Ontario enterprise.

In undertaking a portion of the financing the Kiwanis Club is doing a real work for the Province and on behalf of the under-privileged boys, and citizens of Peterboro who realize the value of this attempt to make useful and self-respecting citizens out of boys who might otherwise develop into criminals, will undoubtedly give the local branch every support.

Those who attend the Kiwanis Mimics are assured of a good night's fun, and the satisfaction that they are helping in a humanitarian effort of vital importance.

The Rotary Club, it is interesting to note, is setting the example by turning out at full strength to assist their sister organization.

THE KU KLUX KLAN.

The Ku Klux Klan has invaded Peterboro, it is announced, and preliminary steps have been taken to organize a branch in this city.

The Examiner has on more than one occasion given its opinion of the Klan.

No matter what its stated alms may be, the organization is founded on religious and racial intolerance, and on that ground alone deserves the condemnation of every right-thinking Canadian.

However, if Peterbor people want to ally themselves with such a body that is their privilege; so long as it observes the law of the land the Klan is not likely to be interfered with by anybody.

There is no scarcity of secret societies in this country, and no pressing demand for another—yet it may be that the night shirt trappings of the K. K. K. will have an appeal for some people who dote on mummeries of that nature.

If they can get a thrill out of such foolishness and are satisfied to operate as an ordinary secret society that is their business—but they might as well understand now as later on that if they want to go further than that and attempt to take the law into their own hands that it will be the business of the police as well.

Peterboro has got along very nicely without the Ku Klux Klan, and the Examiner would have been quite satisfied to have left it in the country where it originated; somehow it does not seem to dovetail with British fair play and justice.

BEER PERMITS.

The Premier has hastened to deny the charge that there will be patronage in the distribution of 4.4 beer permits, and has declared that the recommendations of Liberal and Farmer members in regard to this matter will receive consideration.

The aim of the Government is, declares Mr. Ferguson, to make sure that the handling of the new beer is entrusted to responsible parties.

Much will, therefore, depend upon the good judgment of the various members, for the danger is obvious that a man who puts political consideration first may not be as careful as he might be about the character of the applicant for permits.

So far as Peterboro is concerned, the Examiner feels confident that Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., can be counted upon to see that those who receive permits for the sale of 4.4 beer will not only have the necessary accommodation, but will be responsible persons in whom confidence can be put.

So far as the standard hotels in his constituency go the member for West Peterboro is likely to recommend that they all be given permits, but we will be surprised if he goes much further than that in his recommendations.

The law allows the beverage to be sold in properly conducted restaurants, and it is possible that where these are operated by British citizens that some permits may be granted if applications are made, but the member for West Peterboro is sufficiently alert to the condition to be very careful about the issuing of permits to anybody else.

There are some people who seem to think that the new beer will be sold as promiscuously as lemonade, but Mr. Bradburn, if the Examiner sizes him up correctly, has very different ideas about the subject, and will not hesitate to turn down applications when he believes the public interest is at stake.

CRIME NEWS.

A unique experiment is being made by a newspaper publisher in one of the mid-western States of the southern Republic, says the Hamilton Spectator. At the request of a woman's club he is confining all news pertaining to crime and criminals to the second page of his newspaper, except when a crime story is of such news value that it demands a start on the front page.

It will seem to the average newspaper reader that such a method of "playing down" crime stories is but another method of featuring this class of news.

Perusers of the crime are provided with eight columns of crookedness and violence at one gulp.

It is a page that will doubtless have an especial appeal to impressionable children, to safeguard the morals of whom the experiment is being made.

There is but one practicable method of "playing down" crime news and that is to confine the crime stories to such bald facts as are fit to print.

Our American cousins are now paying the penalty for the glorification of the criminal class, but it is worthy of note that the few Canadian newspapers whose cloth has been cut according to the American pattern have not found a ready market.

The more interesting he makes it the better editor he is.

The editor of the crime page in the newspaper to which reference has been made is not likely to throw away a gruesome murder story to make room for a yarn about infractions of the parking bylaw.

On his page every day will go the peppiest articles in the grist turned over to him, and the natural result will be what the good ladies of the social service committee didn't intend should come into existence—a "horror page."

"GET RID OF CANADIAN NATIONAL."

The Border Cities Star has come frankly over to the position that the only thing to be done with the Canadian National Railways is to hand them over to the Canadian Pacific.

Says the Star:

"From Eastern sources comes a well-defined rumor that within five or six months a definite proposition for the actual amalgamation of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National railways will be made. It is further stated that the proposition—emanating, of course, from the C. P.R.—will be of such a nature that the Canadian people will have no hesitancy in accepting it. If this is true, it is good news indeed—news that will be extremely welcome to a public very, very tired of paying railway deficits and discerning no end to the drain on the national purse as long as present arrangements are continued.

"The Toronto Globe sees important advantages to be gained in the event that Sir Henry Thornton and Mr. E. W. Beatty are able to get together in their announced intention of eliminating many of the costly duplications that now feature the operation of the two great railway systems. The suggested plan does not go far enough. That savings can be made in this way goes without saying. Points of duplication can be seen on every hand. Eliminating them with fairness to both roads and while still retaining the competitive idea would be a difficult task. If accomplished it would mean economy, but the Canadian National millstone would still be hanging about the necks of the Canadian people.

"The Border Cities Star has come to the conclusion that there is only one thing to be done with the Canadian National and that is to get rid of it—so far as the public treasury and public responsibility are concerned. The Canadian Pacific Railway offers the only way out. It is not positive, of course, that the Canadian Pacific is willing to take over the Canadian National and assume the obligations that would be necessary in the event of such a deal being made. We do know, though, that the late Lord Shaughnessy put forward a plan along these lines four years ago. It was not accepted, but there are reasons for believing that the present heads of the Canadian Pacific are ready to discuss a proposition now. As the Star pointed out the other day, however, a more generous plan than that suggested by Lord Shaughnessy would be necessary in order to secure public acceptance of the proposition.

"The Globe says that it was a sound public instinct which refused to entertain the idea of the absorption of the Canadian National lines in a railway monopoly in private hands. 'If there were to be one system,' the Globe adds, 'the Canadian people would prefer that it be owned, operated and controlled as a national enterprise.' Conditions—and public sentiment—have undergone a great change in the last four years. The Globe may not appreciate the fact, but it is true nevertheless. The Canadian people were deeply interested in the great Canadian National experiment. They were proud of the fact that the nation owned and operated one of the world's greatest railway systems. They are still proud of the fact and proud of the railway itself, with the far-reaching improvements that have been wrought by Sir Henry Thornton, but—and it is a large 'but'—they have been regretfully forced to the conclusion that Canada cannot afford to continue the experiment. It is draining the country dry from a financial standpoint. It is eating up the total amount collected by our overburdening income tax, and more. It is keeping Canada poor. It is cutting down Canadian opportunity and discouraging Canadian enterprise as well as foreign capital. It is, indirectly, responsible in no small measure for driving thousands of our best young Canadians to the United States. That is the Canadian National situation today. We regret it, we wish the situation were otherwise, but nothing is to be gained by attempting to dodge the facts."

Wise and Otherwise.

Perhaps Babe Ruth, the baseball player, fainted in a Pullman car washroom because he found some soap there.

With Henry Ford making airplanes, it will be even harder to keep a good man down.

And, if the farmers all buy Henry Ford's airplanes, stealing watermelons will become very dangerous.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, April 23.—Loads of nice handyweight butchers sold readily this morning at $7.50 and $7.60 a cwt. and others just lacking a little finish at $7.25 a cwt. The only butchers with a poor market were bullocks over 1,100 lbs. each. These were not good enough for export and were not wanted by the abattoirs except at sharp cut from the price of the good handyweights. Rogers & Maybee were buyers of a few steers at $8, heifers from $7.25 to $7.75, bulls $4.75 to $5.50 and choice export cows at $7 a cwt. These they are carrying till next Tuesday.

The trade in butchers' cows was exceptionally good and the best made $6 to $6.50 a cwt. Good medium cows were $5 to $5.50 a cwt.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, April 23. — This morning's receipts were insignificant, being 11 cars, 19 cattle, 90 calves, 262 hogs and 646 sheep and lambs. A couple of steers for export sold at $7.75 a cwt. and one at $8. Good butchers' cows brought $5.75 a cwt.

For four nice weight butchers $8 a cwt. was paid and other good butchers sold at $7.40 and $7.60 a cwt. These prices were fully steady with the best of the week. The stocker trade is decidedly dull and several loads are being held by the specialists. One load of short-keeps was shipped out at a cost of $7 a cwt.

Calves are not too strong at the week end. No choice ones were in today and good mediums brought 9 to 10 cents. One bunch of good common calves sold at 7¾ cents.

A large shipment of around 640 Western lambs featured this market this morning. They were a nice even bunch, fed at Calgary, and will be divided among the packing houses after resting up at about 15 cents a pound. Three extra choice spring lambs sold $18 each. These were over 60 lbs. each. One good butcher's sheep sold at 9 cents a pound.

The packers are discussing a $12 a cwt. f.o.b. price for hogs but those in today are bringing $12.25 a cwt.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 23.—General rains in the southwest together with indications of additional moisture over that section did a good deal to bring about lower prices today for wheat. The market closed unsteady at 2 to 2 1-4 cents net decline; May $1.53 1-4 to $1.53 1-2, and July $1.41 to $1.41 1-4 a 3-8 cent advance, and provisions showing setbacks that varied from 15 to 30 cents.

Wheat market weakness due to rains benefitting the winter crop in the southwest was accentuated by the fact that Liverpool quotations failed to reflect yesterday's sharp advance in prices on this side of the Atlantic. Furthermore, export business today in this country was small, only about 200,000 bushels. Domestic demand for flour was also described as slack.

STERLING RATES

Sterling demand $4.80.

Sterling cables $4.80 3-8.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, April 23.—A fairly active business continues to be done in fresh eggs. It is reported Toronto bought 6 cars of Western eggs costing extras 29, firsts 27, seconds 25 f.o.b. Winnipeg. The freight on these would cost about 3 cents per dozen.

Toronto—Unchanged.

Montreal—Market steady. Dealers report paying extras 30, firsts 29, seconds 27. Jobbing, extras 34, firsts 31, seconds 30. The poultry outlook is favorable.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 23.—There was some demand from foreign buyers for Canadian grain here today and sales of a few loads of oats were reported for May loading, but apart from this the market was quiet. New York exporters were in the market for No. 2 and No. 3 Canadian Western oats on spot, but as there was none offering wants could not be filled. Sales of odd loads of No. 2 feed oats were made at one cent per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f., Montreal. The domestic trade in oats was inactive but prices were unchanged.

The demand for baled hay showed no improvement and the market was quiet with a steady undertone, car lots of good No. 2 Timothy hay being quoted at $14 to $15 per ton, No. 3 Timothy hay at $11 to $12 per tone, and clover mixed hay at $10.50 to $11 per ton, f.o.b., cars here.

There was no further change in the condition of the local egg situation owing to the fact that the competition for supplies throughout the country is keen and prices continue to be fairly well maintained, therefore spot values rule steady. The demand from grocers and other dealers for supplies to meet immediate wants was fair and a moderately active business was done in a wholesale jobbing way. The receipts were 2,467 cases, as against 2,476 for the same day last week, and 4,065 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The trade in potatoes in a wholesale way continues very quiet and the market was without any new feature to note, car lots of No. 1 Green Mountains being nominally quoted at 70 to 75 cents per bag, Quebec varieties at 60 to 65 cents per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, ex-track.

Butter Market Steady.

The receipts of butter were 930 packages, as against 244 for the same day last week, and 982 for the corresponding day a year ago. A very firm feeling prevailed in the market and prices were fully maintained. The volume of business was larger, there being an improved demand from local buyers for supplies to meet immediate wants, and there was also an enquiry from the United States buyers for both held and fresh-made creamery which resulted in some sales being made and at the same time cleaning up the market pretty well of all the available supply of the latter goods.

The receipts of cheese were 1,007 boxes, as compared with 406 for the same day last week, and 307 for the corresponding day a year ago. A feature of this trade has been the demand that developed from foreign buyers for supplies, and some business was done in this direction for shipment by the first vessels sailing from this port. The trade on spot was quiet and the undertone to the market continues easy. The market is reported to be glutted with Quebec 20-lb. cheese, and sales were made at 16 to 17 cents per lb.

Beans were steady at $2.70 per bushel.

Mrs. Petrie's bail was fixed at $6,000, but she has not yet produced it, and therefore remains in custody

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

"What did you say, dear?" she gasped. "There's such a racket in the room that I can scarcely hear your voice."

"I said," he repeated slowly. "I said that the man I saw leaving this house the other afternoon is standing over there by the door. . . . How did you ever happen to ask him here tonight . . . a man who had sold us a few lampshades? Or is he a friend of yours?"

Every word Dick said fell on Glory's heart like a hammer blow.

. . . Still she could find no answer.

* * *

She had had no idea that Dick had seen Wayburn's face when he had met him leaving the house the other day!

. . . How could she ever explain to Dick that she had lied to him when she had said that Wayburn was a decorator calling about the lampshades?

. . . How could she tell him the truth? That Wayburn really was an actor, who had had no business to be in Dick's house that day making love to Dick's wife!

. . . Well, she just couldn't! And that was all there was to it!

No. The only way out was to bluff it through! . . . To tell another lie to cover the first one! . . . And that ought to be easy enough.

* * *

"You're seeing things, Dicky!" she cried. "You're lit. . . . That isn't my lampshade man or anybody like him! That's Stanley Wayburn, who played here in stock all last winter. Don't you remember him? . . . You're cuckoo! Just plain cuckoo! . . . I'll have to cut off your drinks tonight, I can see that!"

She left him. Dizzily she threaded her way through the dancers to Wayburn's side.

The air in the hot rooms was heavy with the smell of perfume and alcohol. It made her giddy.

"How nice of you to come!" Glory smiled up at Wayburn. He took her hand. The hard pressure of his palm thrilled her, somehow. . . . She felt as if he had taken her in his arms.

The pearls on Glory's breast stirred as she sighed deeply.

"Come along," she said. "I want you to meet my husband."

Together they went back to Dick's corner. He was in a brown study.

"Dick," Glory said, "I want you to know an old friend of mine, Stanley Wayburn. You've heard of him, of course. . . . Some day Stan is going to back the Barrymore brothers right off the boards. . . . Come out into the dining room, Stan, and I'll give you a drink while nobody's looking."

Dick watched them as they went.

Glory could feel his angry eyes upon her.

* * *

There was a sick, shaky feeling at the pit of her stomach.

She was terribly afraid that Dick knew now that she had lied. . . .

She was sure that he suspected that Wayburn and the "lampshade man" were one and the same person!

Suddenly something she had heard her grandmother say long ago flashed into her mind. . . . "You can lock up from a thief, but you can't lock up from a liar!"

On one end of the long table in the dining room was a huge punch bowl filled with iced fruit-juice and gin.

Gloria filled two glasses with the bitter-sweet stuff.

"I call this my Indian Guide cocktail because it'll lead you astray, Stan!" she cried recklessly. And drained her glass.

Then Gloria went on in a low tone.

"Whatever you do, don't pay any attention to me, tonight!" she said.

Stan raised his eyebrows. "Why not?" he asked.

"Because I have the most jealous husband in the world," Gloria answered. "And he saw you leaving the house the other day . . . or thinks he did. Here comes Myra Gail! Give her a thrill . . . she's not having a very gay time."

Mrs. Gail trailed into the room. Behind one hand she hid a tiny yawn.

"Myra, dear," Glory said loudly, "here's a nice little boy friend for you! Mr. Wayburn's just been telling me that he's dying to meet you. . . ."

* * *

Gloria's head was going around and around. There was a singing in her ears. She knew she had had too much to drink. Much too much!

Gloria started up the stairs. She wanted just one thing in the world . . . to lie down on her own bed and go to sleep!

But the stairs seemed to be made of rubber. She couldn't stand on them.

"Here, eat a blotter!" came Bill Hough's voice. "It'll soak up some of the gin you've been drinking. . . . Better sober up, old girl, before Dick sees you!"

But Gloria pushed Bill and his sandwiches away.

She swayed into the living-room. The jazz band was playing "Oh, Peter!" But nobody was dancing.

Gloria crossed the room to them.

"Sit down here!" she ordered. "Gloria, you've had too much to drink. Make her sit down, Jim!" *

But Gloria drifted away. The room seemed to be filled with golden fog. . . . She was very warm and dizzy. She reeled a little.

"I may have had too much to drink, but I'm still going good!" she said to the world at large.

"You certainly are!" It was Dick's voice. He and Lola Hough seemed to swim before her eyes.

"Here, take her out into the kitchen, Lola," Glory heard Dick say, "and tell Maggie to give her some strong black coffee. See if you can sober her up. . . . If Myra Gail and the rest of the women see her like this they'll tell it all over town tomorrow!"

* * *

The next thing Gloria knew she was sitting in her own white kitchen. She didn't know how she had got there.

Through the golden fog she could see Maggie cutting sandwiches.

"I'd always heard that women smoked and drank," Gloria heard Maggie say to Mrs. Hough, "but I never expected to see it! . . . Not in Mr. Dick's house, anyway!"

She cut bread viciously.

"It's not so much the drink itself . . . It's the way drink makes folks act . . . especially women folks!" snorted Maggie. "Look at yourself, right this minute, Mrs. Gregory, ma'am! . . . and that Mrs. Gail in the dining room! Her that's so cold butter wouldn't melt in her mouth! . . . Well, go and take a look at her now, if you think she's so prim."

"No, no, dear!" she pleaded. "Don't go now. Wait until you've had your coffee . . ."

But Glory had torn herself away.

Someone had turned out the lights. The dining room was in half darkness.

Glory gave a little moan. She put out one hand and turned on the hall lights.

Instantly the pair in the alcove sprang apart. Glory laughed bitterly.

"Well, Stan, you certainly are a fast worker!" she said. "You'll pardon me for spoiling your clubby little party, won't you? . . . You see, I'm afraid to go around in the dark."

Gloria walked shakily to the buffet. She drank another cocktail.

She wanted to cry. But instead she instead she turned out the lights again and walked out of the room.

ADVOCATES MUSIC IN THE FACTORIES

Medical Officer Says It Would Be a Paying Proposition.

Dr. Robertson Darwen, medical officer to the Blackburn Mill Managers' Association, in England, is one of the latest advocates of music in industrial establishments. Speaking the other day to the association, he said: "Ten minutes' music an hour has a definite psychological effect upon the worker, bracing him to his task and increasing his output in quantity and quality. "I am convinced," he declared, "that the introduction of music into the mills would prove a paying proposition."

DISCUSS POWER OPEN MEETING

R. R. Hall, K.C., to Address Chamber of Commerce—Robert Hicks Present.

ALL INVITED.

An open meeting of the Chamber of Commerce will be held on Tuesday evening next, April 28, at 8 o'clock, in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, which will be of particular interest to all citizens.

The subject for consideration will be that of the local power situation, and R. R. Hall will give an address. Robert Hicks, chairman of the Utilities Commission, will also attend, and present various phases of the problem.

It is generally believed, officials of the Chamber of Commerce say, that in a few years the municipalities of the Central Ontario Power System will have a market for all available economical developments, unless other sources of supply are available.

The subject of discussion will no doubt take this phase into consideration, and all citizens interested in the future of this city as a manufacturing centre will do well to be present.

SMITH UNAWARE OF BANK FACTS

QUESTION OF DUTY.

TORONTO, April 24—In the appeal of Col. Clarence Smith, Home Bank director, against his conviction and sentence by County Judge Coatsworth, in the high court Thursday afternoon A. C. McMaster, counsel for the appelant, took up several of the big accounts of the bank which he declared his client had no knowledge of. He said that the evidence showed that Col. Smith was not at any of the board meetings at which Howe Sound Pulp and Paper company accounts were discussed. In other accounts Col. Smith had given instructions that reports be made. Justice Magee commented on this stating that giving instructions to look into an account but forgetting or overlooking following it up would not clear a director of negligence. Mr. McMaster declared that oCl. Smith had trusted the general manager to deal with the special reports.

"He didn't give evidence that he had trusted the general manager," commented Justice Ferguson. Mr. McMaster held that there should be no prejudice against a man who did not give evidence on his own behalf. Justice Magee said that juries and also judges were bound to take an unfavorable inference when a prisoner did not testify on his own behalf. Justice Ferguson added that the appeal court had held that the inference was the proper thing to take and quoted an appeal court judgment "that the judge was entitled to draw an unfavorable inference when a prisoner did not give evidence in his own behalf."

Mr. McMaster argued that from the evidence it was proved that when Col. Smith did know of something wrong that his conduct had been all that could have been required of any director. Justice Ferguson agreed that this was a big point in favor of Col. Smith and also that he had "done nothing wrong locally."

Branch Not Inspected

Argument was then heard on the inspection of the branches of the bank including the Toronto branch from which all the big loans were made. The court was informed that there never had been an inspection of the Toronto office and the chief inspector had been prevented from making an inspection of Toronto office by the general manager of the bank. Justice Ferguson thought that the fact that no inspector's report had ever reached the board of directors should have roused the suspicion of the directors because the inspector was an appointee of the board. "If the board had got the reports of the inspector then these things which ruined the bank could not have happened," he said.

Inspector In Dark

Mr. McMaster argued that the inspector might not know any more than the assistant general manager who had no suspicions because much was kept back from him by the general manager and the president. Chief Justice Mulock said that the annual statement to the government showed that the "usual inspecion of the branches" had been made. "That is right because there were never any inspections," he added.

It was pointed out that the various reports had gone to the general manager and not to the board of directors. These included reports from branches and on loans made by the bank. "Then every director would have to read all these documents to find out what was wrong with the bank," commented Justice Hodgins. Mr. McMaster agreed.

HANDEL'S CHORUSES WERE SMALL CHOIRS

Performance in Aid of London Hospital Had Twenty-three Singers.

The performances one now hears of Handel's oratorios are totally different from those he himself heard. It is likely, indeed, that when he wrote his great choruses he had no idea of their ever being sung by hundreds of voices. In his day, the only chorus of voices he had available was no larger than that of a small choir of today. It seems almost incredible, but it is a fact, that at the performances of "The Messiah," "Israel in Egypt," etc., given under his own direction, Handel's great outbursts of choral tone were provided by a score or so of voices. It is on record that the last performance of "The Messiah," which Handel was advertised to direct in London, for the benefit of the Foundling Hospital (he died before the date of the concert) the singers, including principals, numbered twenty-three, while the instrumentalists numbered thirty-three.

DOUBLE LIABILITY OF HOME BANK INVESTORS NOT PRINTED IN SIZE OF TYPE REQUIRED BY THE ACT

WAS A PROMOTER

E. A. Partridge Contends All Shares Sold to Prairie Patrons Are Void.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., April 24—(By Canadian Press) — Attacking the legality of every Home Bank share sold on the prairies, E. A. Partridge, Sintaluta, became the centre of the storm that raged around the Ontario Bank Commission Thursday with its dozen witnesses and assembly of shareholders and depositors in the defunct concern.

Partridge's contention is that every share sold on the application blanks supplied the prairie patrons is void because these blanks failed to state on their face the provision of the Banking Act that such documents shall bear in a certain size type the fact that double liability is provided for those who invested. It was the first time this defense has been injected into the contention before the Ontario Commission The witness had other defenses which he insists must be employed to protect the Western shareholders. Chiefly the alleged statement of Col. Mason to the Grain Growers' Company at the time that organization became the vendor of the bank stock. Partridge said he was a director of the Grain Growers at the time, and Mason told the Board that the stock was worth 133 because the accumulated reserve gave it this borrowing value, and that the concern was sound and a desirable investment.

Relied On Bank Officers

"But, in fact," the witness said, "at that very time such was not the case and the Grain Growers' investigation before they undertook to become the vendors of these shares, failed to disclose the true condition and we Grain Grower directors bought and sold these securities and advised our members to invest in them, relying upon the representations of the bank officers made to us at the time."

Partridge was a member of the Grain Growers' committee commissioned to travel over the West, encourage the sale of stock to members and urge the location of branch banks. He performed this service without compensation, he maintained, securing a branch in his home town of Sintaluta, where several hundred thousand dollars was lost by his friends who deposited their money and invested in stock. He said he paid up in full on two shares at the time and ten per cent on five more on the 133 basis.

Reserve Was Impaired

He claimed misrepresentation and explained: "At the time Col. Mason came to Winnipeg and made his statement that resulted in the Grain Growers' agreement to become the sole vendors of the stock on the prairies, the Home Bank did not have the legal reserve that would make its shares reasonably worth this premium or justify the claims of Mason. Then, too, its reserve was impaired by reason of the Home Bank taking over the affairs of a moribund Trust and Loan Co. In 1910 I called on Mason in Toronto to obtain relief from paying the balance due on five shares, and he told me it would not be necessary for me to make further payments. I was never asked for further payments until the failure. I received dividends and notices of the bank annual meetings and statements but never notice of allotment of my shares."

The Commission returned to Winnipeg last night. No further sessions will be held in the West. The solictor travelling with the Commission for the shareholders said the point made by Partridge was an important one and he could not say whether it was as a part of the general defense thus far stated or not but if not it would be looked into.

Rural Witnesses

Ten witnesses were heard at the concluding session, most of them farmers. Some of them did not claim misrepresentation at the time they purchased the stock but the majority did. Some had paid in full and others but ten per cent. All claimed, however, as a defense of the double liability clause, that the shares were in fact not worth 133 at the time they were purchased because of the Banks' condition.

BANKER IS DEAD.

Sir Augustus Nanton Passed Away at 8.30 This Morning.

TORONTO, April 24.—(Canadian Press).—Sir Augustus Nanton, president of the Dominion Bank and prominent Canadian financier, died at 8.30 this morning. He had been ill for some months, his condition becoming critical a week ago when five physicians, after consultation, announced that hope for his recovery had been abandoned.

"Clothes last longer when washed properly"—

"Some women actually rub holes in clothes trying to get them clean with harsh, ordinary laundry soaps, which are only half soap anyway. No wonder they say, 'Washing is so wearing on clothes'.

"The easiest way I've found to wash clothes—easiest on clothes and easiest on myself—is by using Sunlight Soap. No boiling or hard rubbing is needed—the pure Sunlight suds penetrate through and through each fabric, loosening dirt and dissolving grease spots. Then in rinsing, all dirt and soapy matter just runs away.

"And as every bit of Sunlight is pure, cleansing soap, it lathers generously, does not fade anything washable and is far more economical. Sunlight keeps your hands nice and soft. Levers, Toronto make it."

YOUNG LADIES MISSION BAND

GOOD PROGRAMME.

BRIGHTON, April 23.— On Tuesday evening, the Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the Methodist church held its monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry Powell. The meeting was opened with the president, Miss Solomon in the chair, with a hymn, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and the roll called. After the Easter offering was taken Mrs. Edwards offered a prayer of thanks. The treasurer then gave her report, which showed that there was on hand $102 at the close of the year, which was $10 above last year's earnings. Miss Irene Sandford was appointed to act as the delegate at the annual meeting of the Bay of Quinte branch to be held in King street and Simcoe street Methodist churches, Oshawa, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, June 2, 3 and 4. As Mrs. Powell had the programme for this meeting she now took charge. Miss Vera Greenfield gave the chapter entitled "Vacation Days" of the book of Chinese Lanterns which is the study book for the Circle. Miss Frances Solomon gave an instrumental and Miss Nora Hennessy read a couple of letters from missionaries.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 23.—S. J. Dolman, of Rear Street, opened last night a large package which he had received from France, the package containing the wooden cross which was erected over the grave of his son, Lieutenant Garnet Victor Dolman one of the young men from Campbellford who answered the call to military service in the Great War and who never came back. The cross awakens memories of the sacrifice made by one of the town's best known young men, and of the heroic end of a life that was full of promise.

Known in Peterboro.

The late Lieut. Dolman was a graduate of Campbellford High School, and taught school for six months in Dummer Township. He was in the Peterboro Collegiate Institute training for a university career, mechanical engineering being his choice as a profession, when the war broke out. After training at Cobourg, Kingston and Valcartier he went overseas with a special draft of officers, sailing from Halifax in October, 1917, being at that time only 20 years old.

Killed at Hill 60.

It was at Hill 60 in the Lens district that Lieut. Dolman met his death on July 30th, 1917. It was the evening before one of the fierce battles of the war, and Lieut. Dolman was commanding a party of 100 men belonging to the 3rd Regiment of Toronto, and who were engaged in moving ammunition to the front line in preparation for the engagement which was expected on the following day. Lieut. Dolman, with Thomas Aldin Eaton, a cousin of the late Sir John Eaton, of Toronto, and Private McIntyre, were in an exposed position, the remainder of the party being under cover. A shell dropped close to them, and in the explosion all three men were killed instantly. They were buried side by side in a communal cemetery, a white cross being erected over the grave of each, these three being shown in a photograph which Mr. Dolman received of his son's grave some time ago.

Replaced By Marble.

Some two years ago residents of Canada who had lost relatives in the war, were notified that it was proposed to replace the white crosses with marble monuments, and offering to send the crosses to this country, free of cost, to all who would make application for them. The relatives were also offered the privilege of putting an inscription on the new memorial, but were informed that this must be brief, as the space was limited after the official date was cut into the stone. Mr. Dolman availed himself of both offers, and after two years the cross reached him. It stand about six feet in height; one foot had been planted in what was evidently soil of red clay. The white paint is badly weather stained, but the black letters of the inscription show no sign of fading.

At the top appears the familiar funereal initials, R.I.P. between the words Third Canadian on one side and Battalion on the other, and then the inscription, "In memory of Lt. Garnet Victor Dolman, killed in action 30/7/17; Toronto Regiment, Third Canadian.

A large photograph of Lieut. Dolman is among the collection of pictures of the students who went from the Collegiate Institute in Peterboro, and who are now resting in France.

Mr. Dolman says that he will probably have the cross set up in the family plot in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, in which are buried the lieutenant's grandfather and a young nephew. It is the only memento of the kind that has come to Campbellford all the way from the cemeteries in France, where so many Canadians lie buried.

Mission Band Concert

The Mission Band of the Methodist Church held their annual sale and concert on Monday evening and had a very successful evening, both in financial results and in the excellence of the programme which reflected a great deal of credit on children and on those who trained them. The sale was held from 7 to 8 o'clock and at the latter hour the concert was held. This concert was especially important in that it was the debut of several little boys and girls who will in the course of time take the place of leaders in the Church activities. Rev. C. S. Reddick occupied the chair very acceptably. The following is the programme: Prayer; Chorus, "Bobolink," little girls; Chairman's Remarks, Piano duet, Evelyn Grant and Helen Reddick (each 7 years old); Recitation, Miriam Brown (5 years old); Solo, Isabelle Brown (5 years old; Piano Solo and Song, Earl Robinson (5 years old); Recitation, Aileen Myles (5 years old); Duet, May and Emily Payne (8 and 6 years old); Piano solo, Marjorie Scriver; Boys' Chorus, "Little Billy Bushytail; Solo, Phyllis Charlton; Missionary Exercise, "Little Lights," by 20 children with opening recitation by Robert Spence; Piano Solo, Mildred Purdy; Recitation, Elton Myles; Duet, Eva and Jack Hendren; Recitation, Aileen Brown; Dialogue, "How Some Little Dolls Came to go as Missionaries," 4 little girls; Solo, Thelma Hendren; Recitation, Mildred Root; Girls' Chorus "Spring in the Orchard"; Solo, Frances Fairbairn; Recitation, Hannah Webster; Piano Trio, Zetta Nixon, Margaret Richardson and Marion Wagar; God Save the King.

HOME BANK APPEAL.

Counsel Says Smith Did His Duty as Director, in Ignorance.

TORONTO, April 24. —(Canadian Press).—A. G. McMaster, K.C., counsel for Col. C. N. R. HOTELS LOSING MONEY

Sir Henry Thornton Says They Are Necessary— Dining Cars, Too.

OTTAWA, April 24. (Canadian Press).—When continuing his evidence yesterday before House Committee on Railway and Shipping, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, told of the loss sustained throughout operation of a string of hotels. Last year, the company's ten hotels had a revenue of $1,795,279 and expended $2,032,939, to which must be added taxes totalling $60,278. The hotels, however, said Sir Henry, were necessary adjuncts to the railway traffic. The president also declared there was no profit in the dining car system, but this also was a necessary adjunct to the railway business.

SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL IS OBJECT CAMPBELLFORD I.O.D.E. CONCERT

Splendid Entertainment Well Patronized and of High Order.

MIDNIGHT PHANTASY.

Tableau Showed Past and Present in Costumery and Dancing.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24—Members of the Campbellford branch of the I.O.D.E. scored another triumph last night in the concert which they held in the auditorium of the High School, the large attendance showing the interest that people had in the object of the entertainment — the raising of money for a memorial to the young men who lost their lives overseas. The fund which this society has been able to accumulate for this purpose by hard work was considerably augmented as a result of last night's function although the trust on hand is still for short of the objective aimed at. The programme, which was contributed by well known local artists assisted by the Northumberland Regiment Band, was of a high order and every number was encored.

Compliments the I.O.D.E.

Major J. M. Bygott, who presided, complimented the members of the I O.D.E. on the work that has been accomplished here by the local branch and in a wider field by the organization as a whole. If there is any society that should be appreciated by the returned men it is the I.O.D.E. for what it had done for the men in the field both in the lats war and that in South Africa. The Major gave a brief sketch of the origin and growth of the organization and bespoke for the local branch the sympathy and co-operation of the citizens in the task which they had taken up, the raisin of a suitable memorial to the men who had gone to the front and never returned.

A Bachelor's Reverie.

One of the most ambitious and artistic numbers on the programme was the clever illustrating by Dr. O. C. Watson and 16 young ladies, of a metrical story read by A. J. Jenkins, describing the plight of a bachelor. Dr. Watson, in his easy chair, arrayed in smoking jacket, reading a newspaper, and solacing himself with a pipe, built on the lines of a churchwarden, represented the ideal bachelor to perfection. Slumber overcame him, and as he slept he dreamed of the young ladies whom he had known in the past, and who passed before him in ghostly but dazzling procession. Every type of the modern girl was represented in the parade but each had been turned down in the past by the bachelor, who was at last beginning to realize the error of his ways. Now his blandishments and his attempts to win them over were treated with scorn. At last there came one vision, arrayed in wedding attire, and the bachelor brought to his knees, finally met his fate and fulfilled his destiny.

A Midnight Phantasy.

An animated tableau was cleverly acted by Misses Helen Wood and Evelyn Irwin, the latter representing a feminine type of the days when limp skirts were as fashionable as short skirts are to-day, and when the graceful minuet was the only dance allowed in cultured society. By contrast Miss Wood appeared as the more vigorous modern girl in contemporary costume, and who made of dancing more of a physical exercise than her companion. The audience insisted that the number be repeated by the clever young artists.

"Lest We Forget."

Rev. G. C. Clarke, who since coming to town, has won a place among the most popular soloists, rendered Kipling's "Recessional," and as he reached the last, first the curtain was rolled back and Mrs. George Nicol and J. M. Ferris were seen in a striking tableau, Mrs. Nicol representing "Peace" and Mr. Ferris as an armed warrior, standing for warfare. Both actors in this impressive picture stood as motionless as wax figures, not only through the first presentation but also while the encore was given.

The Soloists.

The other soloists on the program were Mrs. Fred de F. Free and Herb Leonard, both favorites with a Campbellford audience, and assured of a hearty reception every time they appear on the concert stage. Mrs. Free sang "Softly Awakes My Heart" and "Wert Thou a Slave," as her programme numbers, and responded to an encore after each. Mr. Leonard, who was in excellent voice, rendered "The Bedouin Love Song" and "The Song that Reached My Heart," as an encore.

Mrs. Bell, Reader.

Mrs. J. H. Bell, well-known elocutionist, gave two readings, one dealing with an incident of British valor and the other, a comical account of the fate of a man to whom the gates of Paradise were closed, because on his own admission he had been married twice on earth and fools are barred from the celestial regions.

Violin Selections.

Cecil Searles may not be a resident of town, but he appears so often at entertainments here that he has come to be regarded as a local artist, and none is more popular. He gave four violin selections in his usual exquisite style.

The Band's Programme.

The band's programme consisted of the following selections: "United Empire," "Jungle Queen," "Charge to Victory," and "Songs of Erin." In the last number a cornet solo by C. W. Smith, "The Last Rose of Summer," was one of the finest performances of the evening.

Miss Gertrude Maynard played the accompaniments for Mrs. Free and for Mr. Clark, and Bandmaster Pearson accompanied Mr. Leonard and Mr. Searles on the piano.

After the concert the younger members of the audience spent a pleasant time in dancing.

Chairman Bygott, on behalf of the members of the I.O.D.E., thanked those who had contributed the programme and the audience for their generous patronage.

BEAUTY SPOT OF CAMPBELLFORD WILL BE HIGH SCHOOL GROUNDS

CADETS DRILLING

CAMPBELLFORD April 24. — The interior of the High School is all that care and good taste can make it and the members of the Board of Education have set out to bring the grounds up to the same high standard. Last season a good deal of work was done on the Market Street side when the grounds there were made as smooth as a bowling green and grass seed was sown.

The grounds on the other side of the building are now being levelled and when the whole is completed the students will have a playground second to none in Ontario.

The Board of Education will make over to the town a roadway that will extend from Ranney Street to meet a continuation of Booth Street near William Thain's property. A desirable lot for building purposes near this point will be offered for sale by the Board.

J. R. Wilkinson last season was given a contract to set out a row of evergreen trees on the Booth Street side. Some of these trees died but these have all been replaced this spring by Mr. Wilkinson at his own expense.

Maple trees have been planted along the Market and Ranney Street sides at short distances apart and no effort will be spared to make the High School ground the beauty spot of Campbellford, a public park where the citizens may go to enjoy an airing.

The High School Cadets are drilling regularly in order to get in form for their annual inspection when they will appear in their new uniforms.

WHEELING, W. NO COMPETITION.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 24—During a recess in the presentation of the picture, "The Sea Hawk," at the Regent Theatre last night Capt. Hyland made a brief address to the audience, dealing with certain rumors that have been current during the past week. The captain said that it had been reported that because the price of admission to "The Sea Hawk" had been set at 25 cents for last night and 50 cents for the remaining two nights of the week it had been reported that he had cut the price to compete with the concert given in the High School Auditorium by the I.O.D.E.

Capt. Hyland disclaimed any such intention. The date and price for the picture had been set before he know that the I.O.D.E. intended to give a concert, both dates and prices having been arranged by the company that owns the film. The regular price for admission to "The Sea Hawk" is 50 and 75 cents. Capt. Hyland thought these rates too high for Campbellford and urged the company to grant a reduction. The best terms he was able to secure was a half price for the opening night and 50 cents for the balance of the engagement. When these arrangements were made he had no thought of competitic with any other entertainment.

Events last night demonstrated the fact that there were enough people in Campbellford at patronize both entertainments as the theatre and the I.O.D.E. alike had capacity houses.

GLOOMY DEAN DISCUSSES EVILS OF THE OLD AND NEW WORLDS

Says Divorce Statistics in U. S. Are Dark Stain on Civilization.

BIRTH CONTROL.

Theory of Regulating Population Admitted in Principle, He Declares.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 24 (Canadian Press) — After stating that as a guest of this country he could not see his way clear to criticize American institutions, the Very Rev. William Ralph Inge yesterday afternoon declared, during the course of a lecture, that "the statistics on divorce in America are a dark stain on a civilized country."

"The most important of social evils in England," he said, "are betting and gambling which have a more potent influence in ruining man than alcohol, which ruins only a few. The second great evil is immorality. Marriage has become nothing more than an institution which lasts only as long as momentary passion."

The dean also touched on birth control, declaring that "as soon as the state undertakes to keep all its citizens alive, the theory of regulating population has been admitted in principle."

H. Nazimok Pleads Guilty to Having False, Unjust Balance.

SERIOUS CASE

H. Nazimok, fish dealer, was summoned yesterday for having, it was alleged, a dead load spring balance in his possession for trade which was false and unjust. He pleaded guilty to the charge. District Inspector F. Davey Diamond, representing the Department of Trade and Commerce, informed the Court that Senior Inspector Hart of this city was on duty at the market on Saturday, March 28, and found the defendant using the scale which he seized.

Inspector Hart found the scale to be weighing four ounces against the purchaser at two pounds, the error increasing to eight ounces at seven pounds. The magistrate took a serious view of the case and fined Nazimok twenty dollars and costs or in defeaut of payment, 10 days in jail.

The first public dispensary was established in Egypt about 4600 B. C. The attendant received the equivalent of about $500 a year, which was five times the amount then paid a skilled laborer.

One of Crew of a Small Freighter Fond in Lake Erie.

DIED OF EXPOSURE.

ST. THOMAS, April 24.—(Canadian Press).—All doubt as to the fate of the little gasoline freighter, Ada May Bell, of Port Stanley, with its crew of four, which left Cleveland early on Sunday morning, and was scheduled to arrive back some time the same day, were set at rest last night when a message was received from Cleveland that the body of George Knaggs, of Windsor, had been picked up by a fishing tug. Other members of the crew were Frank Payne, of Port Stanley, engineer of the boat, and Bert Butcher also of Port Stanley, owner of the craft, and a man from Cleveland.

The body of Knaggs was picked up about 35 miles north of Cleveland.

The lifeless victim of the storm's fury was taken to the morgue at Cleveland and there identified. He was not drowned, but died of exposure and exhaustion. A life-belt encircled Knaggs' body. Search is being made for the bodies of the others.

HUGE FLOCKS OF MIGRANT WATER FOWL STOP AT RICE LAKE FOR REFRESHMENTS

WILD GEESE SEEN.

BAILIEBORO, April 23—In years here have not been as many wild ducks noticed on Rice Lake during the spring of the year as there is this spring. Huge flocks can be seen daily feeling in the rice beds.

During the past couple of weeks large flocks of wild geese have been noticed flying northward. Some of the residents who have taken the trouble to count them state, that they consist of over fifty birds to the flock.

Quite a number of the farmers of this district who have already succeeded in having more than half of their spring sowing completed, were somewhat amazed to awaken on Sunday morning and look upon a white landscape again. About fourteen inches of snow fell on the level, and many of the snow banks were piled as high as three and four feet deep. It is said that between Sunday and Monday more than 24 cars had to be drawn out at a point on the provincial highway just south of this village. Tuesday, the snow has begun to disappear, but it is leaving the roads in a muddy condition, and the road gangs are doing their utmost by using both drag and shovel to dry the highway up again. On Monday, although the villagers had placed their snow shovels away in the attics until next winter, they found that it was quite necessary to bring them out once again and work up a little arm exercise in shovelling off the sidewalks.

The farmers do not expect to be able to resume work on the land again before Thursday or Friday; many however took advantage of the snow, got their bob-sleighs out and hauled out manure onto the land.

Trapping Season Ends.

The trappers throughout this district lifted their traps on Monday and Tuesday. They all claim that the muskrat season was short this year, and not nearly so many rats have been caught this year as have been caught in previous years. The reason for this poor catch is unknown; some state that the Rice Lake muskat is getting scarce, while others say that this has merely been a short season. The price received for the pelts in the majority of cases was from $1.75 to $2.05.

Several of the trappers were fortunate in catching an occasional coon and mink in their rat traps.

TOY SYMPHONY AT MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK, April 23. — The Musicale, held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, under the auspices of St. Thomas' Church, was well attended and proved a most enjoyable occasion.

Considering that the event had been twice postponed owing to illness and other causes, the success achieved when the programme was finally presented was most encouraging to those in charge. Mrs. (Canon) Allen had the entire responsibility of training those taking part locally, the appreciation shown by the audience amply repaying her for the weeks of labor involved.

Probably the most unique number was Romberg's "Toy Symphony," which opened the second part of the programme. Mrs. Allen first heard this selection when her home was in England, the leading artists of the day persenting it in Exeter Hall, and bringing it into popular favor almost immediately.

A. J. Fallis, M.P.P., was chairman; the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, being prevented by ill health from being present. In his opening remarks, Mr. Fallis referred to the size of the parish, and the work devolving upon the rector in consequence, and asked that this fact, with the rector's advancing years, be taken into consideration when his aid and counsel are required by the congregations.

Vocal duets by Messrs. Claire Winslow and Thomas McCamus were unavoidably omitted owing to the former's illness, which also kept his mother, Mrs. L. H. Winslow, from taking part. Miss D. Murray and Miss M. Collins kindly gave extra selections to make up for these numbers on the programme.

The various items were as follows:

Piano duet, Mrs. Allen and Miss M. Collins.

Solo, "Come, Come Away," by Miss Daisy Murray, of Peterboro.

Piano Solo, by Miss Mabel McCarthy.

Piano Solo, by Miss Gwen. Hutchison.

Song, "That Old Gang of Mine," by Mr. F. Wells.

Piano Duet, by Misses M. Collins and Hazel Armstrong.

Musical Recitation, "A Violin Solo," by Miss G. Gray.

Solo, "The Lassie That Loves Me Still,' by Miss Murray.

Encore, "Apples on a Lilac Tree."

Intermission.

"Toy Symphony"—Mrs. Allen, conductor; accompanists, Misses M. Collins and Ada Attwooll; Instruments used: Mrs. Hilton, cuckoo; Misses G. Norton, G. Gray and Pearl Lamb, nachtigalls; Miss M. B. Turner, wachtel; Miss Kathleen Fowler, trommell; Miss. G. Harkness, schnaife; Miss May Attwool, triangle.

Piano Solo, by Miss M. Collins.

Solo, "Tan Tivy," by Miss Murray.

Piano Duet, by Mrs. Allen and Miss Collins.

Piano Solo, by Miss Mamie Collins.

Solo, "I Passed by Your Window," by Miss Murray.

Encore, "Friend of Mine."

God Save the King.

Miss Dixon of Toronto is the guest of Mrs. C. M. Westmacott this week.

The many friends of Rev. Canon Allen will regret to learn that his health is somewhat impaired at present owing to overwork, and a rest from pastoral duties is necessary for a time. Mr. Allen did not take any of the services in the parish on Sunday.

Rev. M. G. B. and Mrs. Williams motored to Toronto on Tuesday and will remain until the end of the week.

Mrs. D. Sutton and son, Louis, of Cobourg, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Sutton, Fallis Line.

Miss D. Murray, of Peterboro, who sang at the Musicale held at Mrs. C. M. Wastmacott's on Tuesday evening, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilkinson while in town.

KILLED 3,000,000 RATS

LONDON, April 24—It is estimated that more than 3,000,000 rats were killed in London last year during a campaign against the rodents. Municipal rat-catchers receive a shilling for each rat caught.

One of the latest relics received by the Tennessee State Museum is an old-fashioned wooden lock from the first-house occupied by Andrew Jackson, when he came to Tennessee.

EXTEND SYSTEM OF POSTAL INSURANCE

Parcels to Germany By Mail Can Now Be Insured.

The system of Insurance of Parcels sent by Post is developing successfully, more than 2,800,000 parcels having been insured during the past year ended 31st March, 1924, and the amount of Insurance fees being approximately $140,000.00.

The Insurance system was extended in June, 1923, to the United States; in November 1923 to Great Britain and Ireland, and on April 1st, 1925, to Germany and St. Vincent, these extensions of the service being much appreciated by the mailing public.

The rates for insurance of parcel post to Canada and United States are:

3c for Insurance not exceeding $5.00.

6c for Insurance to $25.

12c for Insurance to $50.

30c for Insurance exceeding $50, but not over $100.

For the other above mentioned countries the 3c and 6c fees do not apply. The schedule of insurance fees will be as follows:

Negotiations are being conducted with other countries with the view of a more general adoption of the system, in this way giving the public a protection previously lacking.

It takes healthy gums to keep healthy teeth

Bleeding gums are Nature's first warning of Pyorrhea. Then they begin to recede, lose that rich, pink color. Disease-breeding poisons collect in pus pockets and often drain through the entire system.

If used in time and used consistently, Forhan's will prevent Pyorrhea, or check its progress—something ordinary tooth pastes are powerless to do. It contains just the right proportion of Forhan's Astringent (as used by the dental profession in the treatment of Pyorrhea). It is safe, efficient and pleasant tasting. Even if you don't care to discontinue your favorite dentifrice, at least start using Forhan's once a day.

Forhan's is more than a tooth paste; it checks Pyorrhea. Thousands have found it beneficial for years. For your own sake ask for and get Forhan's For the Gums. At all druggists, 35c and 60c in tubes.

Whites of Eyes Tinged With Yellow? Muddy Complexion? Your Liver is Out of Order!

Mrs. Wm. Bourque, Fox Creek, N. B., writes: "I have been troubled with my liver for a long time, and was so bad I could not do any work. I had severe pains in my stomach that were so bad, at times, I could hardly stand them. My tongue became coated; I had a bad taste in my mouth, especially in the morning; the whites of my eyes were tinged with yellow, and I had a muddy complexion.

I had read a great deal about MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS. so decided I would try a vial, and after taking three of them I was greatly improved and felt more like living, and I can now do my own work without any trouble."

JUGO SLAVS ASK FOR APOLOGY

Mobilizing Forces on the Bulgarian Frontier and Threaten Intervention.

MINISTER INSULTED.

BERLIN, April 24 (Canadian Press)—A Vienna report last night indicates a rupture of relations between Jugo Slavia and Bulgaria. The Belgrade Government announced that it would demand an apology from Premier Tzankoff for slurs upon its ambassador in Sofia by the Bulgarian Minister of the Interior. Further the Jugo Slav Government sees a menace in Bulgarian border warfare and demands that peace be restored. Indications last night are that the Jugo Slav Government contemplates intervention if its demands are not satisfied.

An immediate breaking diplomatic relations is threatened and the air is thick with rumors that the Jugo Slavs are not averse to a martial expedition against Bulgaria at a time when she is weakened by dissension.

The fact is established that Serbian (Jugo-Slav) troops are mobilized on the borders for war time emergencies.

STATEMENT OF LABOR MEMBERS

Article in London Herald Says Hostilities Are Imminent in Balkans.

JUGO-SLAVS AROUSED.

LONDON, April 24. — The Herald, the organ of the Labor party, this morning prints a two column statement made by Josiah C. Wedgwood, W. Mackinder and P. D. Malone, members of Parliament, who were in Sofia at the time of the explosion of the bomb in a cathedral, and who subsequently made an investigation into the Bulgarian situation.

The statement says that Charles S. Wilson, the United States minister in Sofia, W. A. F. Erskine, British minister, and the missionaries, were doing all that was possible to stop "the ferocious reprisals against the Communists."

The statement adds that "Tzankoff, the Bulgarian Premier terror is now producing a series of reactions in Jugo Slavia, which are gravely significant.

"The scarcely suppressed enmity between the two governments appears to be on the point of open expression."

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

ABOUT WOMEN.

Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—I was reading the letter in the Examiner of the 17th inst. about women signed "Justice." Yes, I am sorry to say, there are many of that sort, but, thank goodness, there are a lot of good wives, too. If a person going to get married, knowing very well that she can't or will not get her husband's meals for him when he goes to work for his hard earnings to keep the home together, then she is no woman, and the man is a fool to stand for it. I am glad to say I am one of the lucky ones. Her ambition is her home.

Women love men whom the tailors have made
And their name to a bank-book attached,
But a friend has no motive but brotherly love
Though your clothes may be ragged or patched.

A woman will love you forever so long
And then ask you to make her your wife,
But a friend has no motive but brotherly love
And would remain by your side all his life.

Women! Women! You are all very nice
And at times you are our comfort and joy,
But I love a true friend who will stick to the end
And say, "Give me your hand, Old Boy!"

Thank you, Mr. Editor, I remain,
Yours,
J. GATES,
101 Auburn street.

SAYS IT'S GOD'S TIME.

Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Regarding daylight saving, which is the prevailing question today, I, as a farmer, am positively opposed to it, and I have yet to meet the farmer that is not opposed to it.

Just think of anyone possessing common sense trying to alter or change sun's time—change the time that God has set!

If you city people are clamoring for the refreshing early morning air, simply get up an hour earlier. No one cares, no one will stop you. And go to bed an hour earlier. Instead of going elsewhere, go to bed.

If you quit work at five or six o'clock and have supper over at seven, you certainly should be able to get enough rest and sleep between that and morning—if its sleep you want.

My wife and I rise at five in the morning and work until dark. Have you the nerve to tell us to rise at four o'clock? Show me the man that would ask a woman to rise at four in the morning and I'll show you a beast?

I agree with "J. O. C." I do not agree with "Shop Assistant."

Does "Shop Assistant" realize how many hours per day a farmer works to produce bread for you?

Holiday! What is a holiday? Something we farmers know nothing about. We are not talking about Christmas and New Year's. Just daylight saving we are discussing.

Regarding your half holiday during July and August, I don't think very many object to that. It only effects one day a week—not every hour in the day and every day in the week.

Come, come, "Shop Assistant"! Let us be friends; but we want God's time, not devil's time.

FARMER.

Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—We have had several letters, mostly from farmers, on this daylight saving question; but we have yet to be told what the farmer loses in adopting the measure. In every country where this measure has been discussed the only strong opposition has come from the farming community. Yet when challenged as to what they lose they cannot state their reasons or loss, which gives others the idea that it is pure selfishness or "dog in the manger business" with them.

In most of their letters they resort to threats of boycott and intimidation, such as buying from the mail order houses. I expect it is meant to keep the business men of Peterboro from voting for it.

But does the farmer really imagine that he is the mainstay of the merchant of the city? If he does, he has some more thinks coming. That threat could work both ways, and in choosing which trade the merchant would rather have, I think he would rather rely on the working men of the city.

Supposing the city men ordered from the mail order houses; or supposing that he purchased his vegetables and farm produce from the storekeeper in the city and left the farmers market alone; and no doubt he would be in pocket by doing so, as the storekeeper has to buy good, sound goods to re-sell, knowing that he can be always found if things are not right, and most of their goods are imported from other districts. But the farmer is like a Will-o'-the-Wisp; you may get him again when he double-crosses or you may not, and he demands the same price as the storekeeper for inferior goods.

No, Mr. Farmer, you will buy where you always bought, where your dollar and cents count most, and quality does not matter. It is the hard cash that counts with you at all times—something that you have and can hold.

Then, again, what has the farmer to say in managing the city anyway? Who elects our Aldermen—the city taxpayer or the farmer? We could hold the big stick over the Aldermen and threaten to leave them at home next year; but why stoop to such a childish way of doing things, or should I say the farmers' way?

Did we not give the farmer a chance for four years to run the Province, and look at the mess he made of things—and we alone know the cost? Do they not at present hold the balance of power in the Dominion Government, and look at the result? Will they ever get enough sense to go back and sit down? As an instance of poor business, they supply it themselves. What man will leave the last hour of the day to do shopping in? Suppose he is delayed in one store longer than he anticipated and found another store closed where he wanted to do business in, it would only mean another trip to town. Poor business, bad foresight and loss of time brought on by himself—but blame daylight saving for it.

We have had quite enough rule from the democratic farmer, and it is about time that it was stopped. It costs too much by far.

Yours,
FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING.

MARBLES AGAIN.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—"Brother" replied to my letter in a very foolish way. He says why deprive children of the pleasure of playing marbles. I say because they gamble with marbles, and they are the seed of gambling with cards, race-horses and stocks. If 'Brother' saw what I have seen when chubby little hands and hands of boys from eleven to fourteen clutching marbles and boasting of their winnings and of their being sharp enough to do other boys out of them, I think he would see that little as marbles are they are the seeds which bring forth bad fruit. I have met young people who had acquired a taste for gambling which is worse than a taste for liquor, and they told me that marbles first taught them the pleasure of playing for something besides the game or sport. They soon learned to make a business of it, and often traded off their big winnings in alleys and marbles for knives and straps, and in one case for a good dog, and in another for a .22 gun. Mothers know that their young sons come home boasting of their games or mourning their losses, and when the mothers could not or would not furnish cash, the boys would sell their own possessions even to little gift necktie pins to get marbles so as to have another go and another chance. All our talk about education and religion is wasted if we at the other end are training up a nation of gamblers. Some boys are good and strong, but some are not, and the strong must be sacrificed for the weak and marbles must be prohibited if we would save our boys. Boys have told me that their passion for pool came that way. Pool is like marbles. It is played with round balls, and marbles make boys want to play for something, and they begin to play pool by putting up a cent and then five cents and then ten and the passion becomes so strong that when they get bigger they want something for nothing, and the excitement of it, and it was at marbles that they learned to love the excitement which is worse than the lust of strong drink. It is sure ruin. Hoping "Brother" will join us prohibitionists and help to stop, by force, all such fun, if fun it is. —I remain,

SISTER.

MORE MARBLES.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—The attack made by "Sister" on marbles has my entire sympathy. Methodists years ago wanted to be good and yet wanted to play cards, so they invented Lost Heir. Our Church took shelter behind a name. We were often charged with playing cards and being hypocrites about it as well. In excuse I can only say it was marbles that did it.

PRESBYTERIANS HELD MEETING

Non-Concurring Body Considers Union With Centreville Congregation.

MANY PRESENT

MILLBROOK, April 23 — The non-concurring members of the Grace Pesbyterian church held a well attended meeting on Tuesday at 2.30 in the church, Mr. W. T. A. Deyell presiding.

The meeting was called to consider arrangements for carrying on the church services after union is cosummated on June 10th. As this congregation voted three to one against entering the United church, definite action is necessary in relation to future plans.

Several members were present at Tuesday's meetin gwho have not been in the habit of attending the regular congregational meetings in years past, and evidently all are keenly interested in the present situation.

A committee was appointed to meet a similar committee from the Presbyterian church, Centreville, at as early a date as can possibly be arranged to consider a union of the two congregations once the United Church becomes an accomplished fact. Members serving on this committee include: Messrs. W. T. A. Deyell, C. Thorndyke, J. Steele, Alex Hunter, George Coulter, Harry Ball, J. H. Paul, Jas. Lancashire, John Miller, J. D. Armstrong, Mrs. John Miller, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell, and Mrs. W. J. E. Gillott.

Young People Meet.

There was an unusually good attendance at the Young Peoples' League on Monday evening, the meeting being under the missionary committee, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, vice-president, occupying the chair.

For some months past the Indian work throughout the Dominion has been the subject of study at the monthly missionary meetings, and much interesting information has been gained.

A review of the material covered was taken up on Monday evening, the map of the Dominion, with stations, Indian reserves, hospitals, etc. marked distinctly, helped to make the situation clearer, and fix names and facts firmly in mind.

A reading by Jean Burnham, on "The Master's Cause", was much enjoyed. Fees for the Forward Movement are now due as the year closes this month.

The local League promises one hundred dollars annually toward the salary of Rev. E. Hibbard, of West China, who represents the Sunday Schools and Young Peoples' Societies of the Peterborough district on the foreign field.

The annual election of officers will take place next Monday evening, and all heads of departments are expected to have reports covering the year's work ready to present when called for.

Woman's Auxiliary Met .

The Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian church held its April meeting in the church parlors, the president, Mrs. (Rev.) G. S. Gervan, in the chair.

The secretary, Mrs. J. P. Eakins, had charge of the preparation for the programme, and the first half was particularly suited to the Easter season. A responsive service was used effectively, the hymns and prayers being in full accord with the subject of the resurrection of our Lord and all contributing to the atmosphere of joyful worship which should characterize Christian gatherings at Eastertide.

"Fifteen Excuses for not being Active in Mission Work," read by as many members, and each effectively answered by a Scripture verse, gave opportunity for a number to take part, and was a most thought-provoking exercise. Probably none of those present will be likely to put forward any of the pretexts for not giving assistance in this branch of Christian activity for some time, at least.

Miss Kennedy took up the chapter in the study book, "The Island Beautiful," the information on Korea growing in interest each month, and leaving the members to added desire for further light on amazing growth of Christian missions in this part of the Far East.

Personals.

Mrs. J. R. Eakins, who has been spending a week with her sister, Mrs. J. Fitzgerald, Toronto, has returned home. Mrs. E. Whyte, who has been in the city for some weeks, will probably return early next week.

Mrs. (Rev.) W. Johnston of Toronto, is the guest of Mrs. S. Eakins, Sr. Mrs. Johnston's husband, the late Rev. W. Johnston, was pastor of the Presbyterian church here for over twenty years, preceding Rev. Dr. Lee, now of Thorold.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Grassett, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith, Misses Gladys and Muriel Smith, were in Peterborough on Monday to see Julia Arthur in "Saint Joan" at the Grand. Mr. G. W. Sayles drove the party in to the city in his car.

Mrs. L. Larmer left for Frobisher, Sask., on Monday, being called west owing to the illness of her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Howe, and daughter, Peggy, who spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Nattrass, returned to the city by motor on Monday.

HEN FEEDS DOG.

LOUGHBOROUGH, Eng., April 24. — Little wonder that Peto, a bird-dog belonging to a farmer here, shows partiality to one hen. Almost every day the hen goes into the dog's kennel, lays an egg, and then the dog eats it—shell and all!

LADIES' AID KEEP THEIR OFFICERS

Miss Webster Continues as President at Lakefield.

JANETVILLE, April 23.—The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church has had an excellent year. Early in the season they shingled the church at a cost of between two and three hundred dollars, and they will shortly decorate the auditorium of the building.

Personals.

Miss Bone of Wingham, teacher of the Continuation School, and Miss Richardson, of Tweed, teacher of North Janetville Public School, have returned from their Easter holidays, and resumed work Monday.

Miss Gray, of Millbrook, returned Monday.

The many friends of Miss Richardson, public school teacher in Peterboro, were pleased to have her back for a few days during her Easter vacation.

Mr. James Fanning, of North Manvers, has been seriously ill, but is slowly recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Magill have both been ill, but are slowly recovering.

Rev. Mr. Ross will attend the jubilee to be held at Grace Methodist Church, Trenton, on Sunday and Tuesday, April 26 and 28. As the church was rebuilt during Mr. Ross' pastorate, he will give some reminiscences on that occasion.

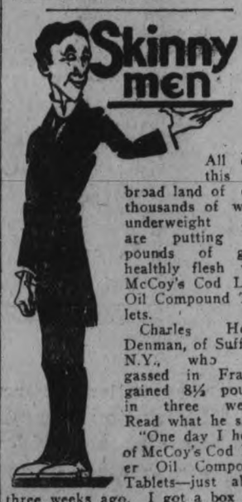
Skinny men



All over this big broad land of ours thousands of weak, underweight men are putting on pounds of good healthly flesh with McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets.

Charles Henry Denman, of Suffern, N.Y., who was gassed in France, gained 8½ pounds in three weeks. Read what he says:

"One day I heard of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—just about three weeks ago. I got a box and started to take them. Since then I have taken two more boxes, all but 16 tablets.

The result is wonderful—never since I was gassed have I been so strong and felt so good. I have already gained 8½ pounds.

ASSOCIATE PASTOR.

Brockville Methodists Invite Presbyterian-Unionist Minister.

BROCKVILLE, April 24. — Because of what it describes as an embarrassing situation in connection with church union, by which a considerable number of Presbyterian ministers are left temporarily without charges, the quarterly official board of Wall Street Methodist church has extended an invitation to Rev. R. M. Hamilton to remain as its associate pastor for the first ecclesiastical year of the United Church, subject to the sanction of the Settlement committee. Rev. Mr. Hamilton left the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church here when it voted itself out of the United church and since then he has been acting as associate pastor of the Methodist church.

EXPORTERS TO PAY THE TAX ON POWER

Government's Explanation of Detail in New Impost.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Two questions respecting the tax on the exportation of power asked by Sir Henry Drayton were answered in the House of Commons Thursday. Sir Henry asked:

(1) Under the regulations of the government, will the tax on the export of electrical power be placed on the exporter, or will such export be made illegal unless paid by the importer?

The answer given by Hon. A. Low, was:

"The exporter will pay the tax."

The answer was given as: "No."

TURKEYS CAN BE RAISED EASILY

Proper Soil and Regular Feeding Are Necessary To Success.

Turkey raising is not the difficult matter that many believe it to be, writes Mr. A. G. Taylor of the Poultry Division, Dominion Experimental Farms, who itemizes the essentials to success in this line of poultry keeping as follows: Well drained soil; free range, well developed, healthy, unrelated breeding stock; and palatable foods properly and regularly fed.

The birds are not confined to houses and for winter nights require only the shelter of a straw-barn or closed-in shed. Nor is the feeding an expensive matter. Turkeys, especially the Bronze, which is our largest and most popular breed, are great foragers and gather much of their food from the fields. Altogether there is little labor required in keeping a flock; a small initial investment will provide a suitable start; and the market for dressed turkeys is good both at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

A bulletin written by Mr. Taylor entitled "Turkeys—Their Care and Management" (No. 46, New Series) is now in the press. In it are to be found a discussion of breeds; practical directions for successfully managing a flock; and notes on the prevention and cure of disease. Copies will be sent free on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

IT'S A BANDOLEER NECKLACE

The new bandoleer necklace is being introduced in New York by Constance Delanoy, one of this season's most popular debutantes and Junior Leaguers. It is worn in the over-the-shoulder and under-the-arm fashion that originated back in Directoire days, and is decidedly new.

MILK BOTTLES GIVE CONCERN

Vendors' Property Used as Containers For Preserves and Kerosene.

BAD BUSINESS.

It has usually been assumed that the unpretentious milk bottle was solely used by vendors for the purpose of containing the lacteal fluid, but recent investigation has proved that such a conclusion was incorrectly drawn. Many ingenious citizens use them for a variety of other purposes, regardless of the fact that milk bottles are the property of the dealer.

Those in charge of milk dealing concerns here say that the upkeep of a flock of milk bottles is their greatest source of worry. G. A. Gillespie stated that he has known of cases where more than a hundred milk bottles, the property of various dealers, have been found in a vacated dwelling.

One lady had an auction sale of household effects, among which was a considerable quantity of canned fruit and vegetables. The greater part of the preserve was neatly done up in milk bottles.

Not only are the bottles retained for use by unthinking individuals, but they are returned after having been used as containers for kerosene, gasoline and even paint. This taint is very difficult to remove. In the whirling spray method the bottles pass in cases and are washed individually and it it is almost impossible to detect bottles which have been used for this purpose.

On the other hand, if the bottles are washed collectively in a vat the taint passes from one bottle to the remainder. This necessitates a special cleansing with a soda solution, and does not tend to improve the dealer's place of mind.

A little thought on the part of the customers would greatly amend matters, and they would benefit directly by more efficient service rendered.

The use of illuminating gas for street lighting in the country originated in Baltimore in 1821. The first electric arc light on a street appeared in New York in 1881.

One the most interesting sessions of the Morning Musicale Club was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. G. N. Gordon, Hunter Street, with a good attendance. The morning was devoted to the study of the composer, Claude Debussy. An outline of his life and description of his work was given by Miss Florence Edwards. Debussy revolutionized, in his day, existing ideas of musical rules, theory and harmony, acting as a sort of Cubist in the musical line. His compositions, which are very popular at the present time, were not so well liked during his lifetime. Selections from Suite Four, "Berganese," were played by Mrs. Ernest Greene; Mrs. N. D. Buchanan played "The Minstrel," Miss L. Hurley the second "Arabesque." Miss Marion Adams 'Reflets d'Eau' and "The Cathedral," and Miss Florence Scott sang, in French, "Les Cloches," and a recitative, "Aria de Mia," from "L'Enfant Prodigue."

YOUR BIRTHDAY

FRIDAY, April 24.—If to-day is your birthday, you will have the knack of making the most attractive clothes at remarkably low cost. You will be able to trim a hat like a professional milliner without any special training. You will be able to make over old clothes into gay, stylish costumes that will be the envy of your friends. If a man, you will really like to do all sorts of things around your home, and it will be one of the most attractive in your neighborhood.

In Parisians Society of the sixteenth century, it was impolite for the guest or host to look at a timepiece. Unique watches from which he time could be ascertained without taking them out of the pocket were made. At each hour mark was a small cup of spice. The society man found the hour hand, rubbed his hand on the spice underneath it, and then tasted the spice to tell the time.

CHILLS BRING ILLNESS.

This Season of Year is Particularly Dangerous—Safeguard Health.

Chills and fever are not so common as they once were ,thanks to the fight against the malaria mosquito.

However, many acute diseases begin with a chill, and are followed with fever. The fever subsides after a time, and is followed by a second chill. The doctor usually prescribes a dose of quinine.

Reaction during the chill should be promoted by application of hot bottles or hot water bags at the feet and under the arms, covering the patient with warm flannels and giving warm drinks, such as hot lemonade and hot milk.

Stimulants should not be given without the doctor's permission.

When the fever comes on, ice and cold water may be given. A cooling laxative usually is ordered, as citrate of magnesia.

The body may be sponged if the temperature is very high. A cloth, wet in alcohol, and bound on the forehead, will help to relieve the headache. It should be kept wet without removing it from the head.

When the fever decreases the patient perspires profusely. Then the body should be dried from time to time, a flannel night dress put on, the room darkened and the sufferer put to bed.

IT DIDN'T TAKE.

BARBER DECIDES WOMEN'S STYLES

"Shall I have it bobbed or shingled?" That is the first question the barber is usually asked, when a lady enters his shop. The lady may be sixteen or she may be a hundred—though ladies never grow more than twenty-one— but she wants either one or the other. One barber in this city tells The Examiner that the lady usually decides, after much persuasion on the part of himself, to have it bobbed until she finds what "hubby" thinks of it, or if she is an unmarried girl she would like to know what her boy friend thinks of it. It is doubtful whether she considers the opinion of those people at all. However, three weeks later, she usually "jazzes" into the same shop, with much more agility than on her previous entrance, and asks in a very commanding manner to have her hair shingled. By the way, the straight semi-shingle seems to be the most popular around Peterborough and the more daring flappers ask for the boyish shingle, but not too boyish. Others want to show the contour of the head without having the hair on the back of the head in unequal lengths. Then again, others don't know what they want, and the poor barber has to undergo trials similar to the henpecked husband. If he gets the hair too short, he is called a "dumbell" by the flapper, and if he leaves the hair too long, he is accused of charging money for nothing.

When a man asks for a hair cut he usually has a good idea of what he is going to look like, but when a woman climbs into the chair, she has not the least conception of what she is going to look like, and if the results are not good, back to that barber she never goes, but tries another, until she finds one that suits her.

Want the Best.

It has been the experience with barbers that women will pay for the goods. They want the very best haircut available, and who can blame them for that? One young lady was heard to remark in a local parlour that she had had a terrible time with her hair since coming to Peterborough. The question might be asked does she mean that the barbers do not come up to the mark in her estimation of what barbers should be, or was she referring to the climatic conditions in this part of the country?

Then comes the time-worn question, "Bobbed hair is going out, is it not?" "So are false teeth!" replied one barber, and he is single, too. Judging from the tone in which it was said, he approves of the fashion.

As far as Peterborough is concerned, bobbed or shingled hair is here to stay, for a long time anyway. Local hair dressers say that one third of their trade is done among ladies, who declare that it is a great convenience, and is much more sanitary than the long tresses.

TRAINING YOUR DOG

This is the third of a series telling how to train dogs to do tricks. Cut it and save.

When the dog is from six to eight months old and you have taught him to obey your commands, you can start him on his first tricks such as sitting up, rolling over and jumping.

These tricks are simple, but they must be taught effectively in order to prepare the dog for the most difficult ones to follow.

Fasten a lead string through the hoop. Now hold the hoop close to the ground and call the dog through the hoop.

Repeat until the dog has become accustomed to walking through the hoop. Then you can raise the hoop two or three feet and call upon the dog to jump through it. This trick should be mastered by the dog in a few days, but it is always best to start his routine each day with jumping in order to inject life and pep into his work.

Teaching Him to Sit Up.

To start the dog on sitting-up practice, grasp his front feet and place him in a sitting position in a coner, so that he will be supported.

Hold his head up and tap his front feet until he keeps them in a good position. Repeat this exercise numerous times during the day until he becomes thoroughly acquainted with the trick.

Now take him out of the corner and place him in a sitting position on the floor and tap his front feet until he raises them from the floor.

Never coax him by feeding tidbits. Bad habits are formed by dogs as well as persons.

It will take a month of training to teach the dog these tricks correctly. Be patient, and after each lesson give him freedom to play or he will become tired from all work and no play.

Proper Practice Time.

Never work a dog after his meal. Give his food time to digest before calling upon him for physical exertion.

The best time to set aside for his training period is during the forenoon after he has had a good night's rest.

MARY FAVORED AS NAME FOR LOCAL GIRLS

William Leads in Boys' Names During First Months of Year.

COMPLETE LIST.

Christian names like styles, have periods of popularity, and if the first three months of this year are a guide in Peterboro, William promises to be the favorite name among the male sex for 1925. From an assortment of sixty-two names in the local register of births, William carries off the honors by representing four different babies born since the first of the year. Gordon, Joseph, Kenneth and Robert each represent three different children, while names representing two different babies are Reginald, Thomas, James, Harold, Philip, Albert, Richard, Donold, and Henry. The most unusual names are Douglas, Domenico, Daniel, Charles, Norman, John, Roy, Arthur, Biaggio, Orville, George, Jarvis, Ronald, Lorne, Andrew, Mellson, Wesley, Anthony, Alexander, Raymond, Delbert, Vincent, Leonard, Claude, Chester, Alfred, Frederick, Meryl.

If you would have your baby girl in fashion in 1925, call her Mary, as that promises to be the favored name, six different girls being called by this name to date. Next in popularity come Helen and Margaret, each honoring four babies. Elizabeth and Ruth come next in line, representing three girls each. Agnes, Doris, Jean, Kathleen and the rather unusual name of Shirley, are used on two occasions each. Then come what must be the rather exclusive names of Hyathine, Verla, Annette, Gwendolyn, Veronica, Dorothy, Hazel, Laura, Mine, Viola, Geraldine, Lillian, Rosamond, Florence, Muriel, Betty, Anna, Dora, Vera, Gloria, Marie, Ida, Olga, Fein, Doris, Imelda, Catharine, Marion, Eva, Barbara, Beatrice, Betty, and Pauline, all very pretty names but representing only one baby girl each.

It is noticed that some people like to spell Margaret, Marguerite, and Phillip with one "l" only, according to their fancy.

It is interesting to note the meaning of some of the most common names. For instance, William means protector, Kenneth a leader, and Robert, famous.

A boy must be 17 to enlist in the navy, and between the ages of 17 and 21 he must have the consent of his parents before he will be accepted.

Chief George Gimblett and Frank Styles Present Proposition.

PENSION FUND.

A meeting of the fire, water and light committee was held at the City Buildings last evening to go into the matter of a proposition to get out a history of the fire department from its earliest days until the present time.

The history is to be written by Mr. F. H. Dobbin and printed in book form, with advertisements from the different manufacturers and retailers of the city, the net receipts from the publication to be used to form a nucleus for a pension fund for the fire brigade.

The book would probably run to 175 pages, and would sell for $1.00 per copy.

It was suggested by Alderman Jones that in view of the centennial year of the city and the Old Boys' Reunion next year it was an opportune time for such a publication.

Alderman Hancock expressed the opinion that if the council made any agreements the city would be liable if any losses were incurred. Alderman Denne, who was in the gallery, expressed the same opinion as Alderman Hancock. Alderman Greene asked what incentive there was for a retailer to put an advertisement in the book. The Mayor, who supported the proposal said that there was really no great advertising value but the sympathetic appeal of helping the fire brigade's pension fund was the strong point. He stated that he would really describe it as representation rather than advertising in the book.

An Insurance Fund.

The purpose of the fund proposed to be raised is to provide for disabled or superannuated firemen. At present there is about $128 in the fund, it is said, and it was estimated the revenue from the book would be about $1,200.

It was estimated that a substantial amount of advertising could be sold. It was felt that contributions could be secured more on the sympathetic basis than on the advertising basis. It was also said that advertisements from several firms in Toronto and other cities who supply goods to the fire department which was carried.

Alderman Denne said that he would rather give the money to the fund directly without any space in any books. He said that conditions didn't warrant the proposal and Aldermen Crowe and Greene agreed with him.

The general feeling of the committee was that the city would be held responsible if they endorsed the publication. Finally Alderman Greene made his motion that the city take no action in the matter at the present time and Alderman Hancock seconded the motion, which was carried.

Suggest Field Day.

Arising out of the discussion was the suggestion from several of the alderman that a field day be held and small souvenir booklets be printed to make a start on a pension fund. Alderman Denne is strongly in favor of taking out a group insurance policy on the firemen who are not now protected in any way as, it is said, they do not come under the Compensation Act.

Chief Gimblett was also present and spoke on the subject. He stated he had it in mind for some time and that the Toronto and Hamilton Firemen's Pension Funds were instituted in a similar manner. From the publication of a book of the same kind $75,000.00 was realized in Hamilton and in Toronto a proportionate amount and Peterborough was one of the few cities, if not the only city, in the Province without a pension fund for its firemen.

DIXIE MINSTRELS.

(By Jeannette).

The "Dixie Minstrels" from East City presented another of their successful shows in the auditorium of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum last evening, with a well-filled hall. The audience enjoyed to the utmost the clever skits of the players, the antics of the end men and the songs, dances and instrumental numbers which sent the entertainment along at a snappy rate. Applause greeted every solo selection, and much merriment was caused by the quips of the blackface sextette which adorned the tips of the circle ranged on the stage. Mr. Hugh Lush was as excellent as usual in his role of interlocutor.

An atmosphere of great good fellowship and enjoyment of their own fun pervaded the whole show, which was in the capable hands of Mr. Ed. Leonard. Rev. J. Power acts as patron.

The songs were tuneful and well sung, the music was good, with a five-piece orchestral accompaniment, and the chorus work for the various vocal solos was in exceptionally fine voice. The end men added much to the enjoyment of the entertainment, Mr. George Wesley, with a serious black visage and tasty costume which included a bright red and green coat and full orange bloomers, being particularly funny.

The vocal solos, with choral refrains, were as follows: "Roses of Picardy," by Joseph Minicolo; "You Made Me Care," by Joseph Clancy; "Out of the Dusk to You," by Martin Guerin; "Hey, Fellow, Bring Your Umbrella," by 'Frenchy' Holland; "I Want You," by Maurice Leonard; "In a Wonderful World of our Own," by Emo Leonard; 'Liza,' by George Wesley; "Dapper Dan," by Ed. Leonard; "My Dear Soul," by Joseph Clancy; "In Memory Lane," by John Holland; "Life is What You Make It," by Urban Brady; "Bill Green," by F. McMahon, and "Bells of the Sea," by Ed. Leonard.

George Wesley had a comedy bit, in his mysterious tale of the beautiful maiden and the stormy night, and the oil tanks in East City, a skit that aroused much enthusiasm in his audience, and also gave, with H. Lush's assistance, a humorous "soldier" selection.

Dave Quinlan got plenty of applause for an eccentric soft shoe dance with a buck and wing encore, and also danced, with George Wesley, a clog to the tune of "Three O'Clock in the Morning." Miss Dorothy Quinlan played for this dance, and Mr. Frank Clarke, in a "hired man" suit of overalls and speckled red tie, with an inky black counterance, played banjo accompaniment for Mr. Quinlan's solo number, the picked strings providing an ideal background for the performer's splendid footwork.

Messrs. Frank Clark and Jerry Loescher gave a banjo and mandolin duett that brought repeated applause and an encore for a pleased audience.

Joseph Minicolo's cornet selections, "Absent," with an encore in "The End of a Perfect Day," were much enjoyed, and a jazz orchestra quintette gave a series of numbers that brought down the house. They sang "Doole-doo-doo" with ukulele accompaniment, gave 'Pretty Soon' with the banjos, and then followed up their versatile programme with several jazz orchestra selections, played with banjos, piano, violin and traps. These boys play well, and seemed to get just as much enjoyment out of their snappy music as did their hearers.

The programme concluded with a choral rendition of "You Can Take Me Away from Dixie, but you can't take Dixie from Me," and a few words from Mr. Lush, announcing the production in the fall of a big minstrel show, under direction of E. Leonard, with assistance from himself and Messrs. F. Clark and G. Wesley.

End men in black face and comic costumes were Messrs. George Wesley, Dave Quinlan, Jack Sullivan, Ferman Holland, Ed. Leonard and Frank McMahon. The jazz orchestra members were E. McCormick, C. Downer, J. McCormick, H. Vinette and A. Smith. In the chorus: Ray O'Brien, Roy Walsh, Cecil Perdue, James Brooks, Michael Clancy, John Madden, Tom Kelly, Ed. Vinette, H. Ralph, Basil Clancy and Wm. Walsh.

The orchestra was composed of J. Minicola, cornet; P. O'Toole violin; Paul Koster, saxaphone, and J. Whaley, traps. In the absence of the pianist, Mr. A. Weatherhead, through illness, Earl Armstrong played piano accompaniments.

Ed. Leonard was director, Bob Gilman stage manager, with Rupert Brady as assistant; J. McCabe and H. Lush were "make up" specialists. L. Walsh and J. Perdue acted as ushers, and Messrs. J. Garvey and P. Devlin sold tickets.

PARKING BY-LAW ISN'T APPROVED

Suggestions Made by Motorists That "No Parking" Signs Are Needed.

UP TO O.ML.

General approval is voiced on the street of Alderman J. O| Fife's criticism of the pres ut parking by-law. Alderman Fife contends that a by-law of this nature should define where cars must not be parked, instead of limiting the places where they may be parked.

On Tuesday night, The Examiner is informed, a large number of cars were ranged along Water Street on both sides at the intersection of Hunter, and also along Hunter Street, while the owners were taking in some function or other. The numbers of these cars were taken, The Examiner is informed, and the owners are wondering what the result will be.

Everyone interviewed today realized the necessity for laws governing parking, but all agreed that the places for parking should be clearly designated, or better still, the places were parking is forbidden should be marked. One man suggested that "No Parking" and "Parking 10 Minutes" signs would clear up all the confusion and make visiting in the city a pleasure rather than a constant fear of unwittingly breaking a by-law. It would be possible to mark the pavement with white strips, and stencil the sign on the edge of the sidewalk. The "Safety" signs painted by the Kiwanis club early last year are still visible and these parking signs would only require painting once a season. Light poles might also be used, making the whole scheme inexpensive, it is suggested.

Another motorist suggests that the proper body to take up this matter is the local branch of the Ontario Motor League, it being conversant with the needs of motorists.

"You ought to see Billy's now, Dad. It looks five years' old! And it runs so hard! Billy's hardly using it at all."

"Is that so, Jack?"

"Yes. And look at my C.C.M. See how smooth and bright the enamel is. And look how the nickel sparkles. You'd think my C.C.M. was new this season. Ride up to the corner and back, Dad, and see how easy it runs. My C.C.M. cost a little more than Billy's, but you should be proud of your judgment in buying it, Dad."

"You mean your judgment, don't you, Jack? You kept telling me how much better a C.C.M. was. You were so eager to have a C.C.M. that I didn't like to disappoint you. And I'm certainly glad I got you your choice."

KU KLUX KLAN TO COME HERE IF ENCOURAGED

Organizer in Peterboro Gathering Recruits for Invisible Empire.

CITIZENS LAUGH

It is siad there has been this week an organizer in Peterborough seeking to form a local branch of the Ku Klux Klan, and it is understood that there will be an organization meeting on Sunday next. Many men who are already members of two world-wide organizations have been approached as possible members.

While previous rumors have circulated in Peterborough as to the existence of this organization, this is the first time that anything definite has been learned of the activities of the legions of the "Invisible Empire". There seems to be no doubt, from information gathered today, that a strong attempt is being made to bring Peterborough within the bounds of the organization.

In its search for confirmation of the report, The Examiner encountered a prominent member of both the Masonic and Orange orders, who had definite knowledge of the work of the Ku Klux Klan organizer. This man said he had very strong objections to the institution of such a society. "Peterborough is over-organized now", he said, "and should call a halt in imitating larger centres where a different set of men can be obtained for every new scheme, together with plenty of material to work on. We have fraternal societies of all kinds doing practically the same work. And not very long ago there was someone here to organize "The Lions' Club"."

This gentleman poiated out that often societies are manned by the same men, to their impoverishment in time and money. Because there is not enough work to go around, time and energy are frequently given where they are not required, since the institution is here and the members feel they have to function.

Money for U. S.

The Examiner's informant said he understood the proposition in connection with the Ku Klux Klan is that the organizer collects fees which will go to United States. Members are being solicited from other fraternal societies, and if the organization succeeds the city will be loaded with "an organization we do not want and are not interested in, and we shall be poorer in pocket." This will work to the detriment of the societies already in being, he thinks, such as the Masonic Order, the Orange Order, the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, the Canadian Order of Odd Fellows, the Ancient Order of Foresters, Independent Order of Foresters, Knights of Maccabees, Sons of England, Woodmen of the World, Knights of Pythias, and the half dozen fraternal societies in the city.

Not Illegal

It is not, The Examiner learned illegal for the Ku Klux Klan to organize here or anywhere in Canada, as a branch of the United States Klan. In the event, however, of masked parades it is likely that the police would take a hand. All of the regalia except the cloth that hides the face, may probably be used without offending Canadian law.

Most of those approached on the matter treated the coming here of the Ku Klux Klan as a huge joke. Not one of the twenty or more interviewed took the matter as seriously as the Klan is taken in United States, and the impression given was that even if the fiery cross threw its glare tonight from Armour Hill there would be more laughter than apprehension, and more ridicule than encouragement.

SEA IS DESTROYING HELIGOLAND ISLAND

Erosion is Wearing Isle Away in Large Chunks at a Time.

HAMBURG, April 24.— (Associated Press.)— The shores of the island of Heligoland are caving in with startling rapidity. For years the sea has been steadily encroaching on this little island, and all that was left of the bathing beach has been almost completely claimed by the sea as its own. Recently a huge slice of approximately 3,000 cubic yards plunged into the sea with a terrific roar.

The villa of a prominent Berlin banker, just completed, is now seriously imperilled, while an adjoining building is being torn down. A solitary garden pavilion hangs on the verge of the precipice as though at any moment it might drop into the depths below.

As the erosions of the waves have of late produced a number of deep crevices in the rocks, it has been found necessary to close the public road over the cliffs.

WHY DAYLIGHT SAVING IS BAD FOR THE FARMER

Examiner's Country Readers Explain Their Reasons for Opposition.

REPLY TO "PROGRESS"

To the Editor of the Farm Page:

Lettters on daylight saving are supposed to be short, but when you give two columns to three letters favoring it, you can't, in fairness, refuse a longer one from the other side, though I have written before.

A sufficient number have expressed opinions from our standpoint, and what I have to say is regarding a letter signed "Progress." City people pretend to deplore the friction betwen town and country, but it rests with people like "Progress" to widen the breach. He says the farmers may be dropped out of the consideration altogether, which about sums up the attitude of too many city people have. The farmers are handy animals to have around to do the heavier work, which is necessary to feed the rest, but it is best just to ignore them an keep them in their places. They are an ignorant class, don't you know! They are not supposed to know much, but I'll venture to say we have a better grasp of world affairs than the majority of town citizens. It is true the standard is lowering and it is men like "Progress" who are responsible. At every turn they belittle the farmer. If he comes to town in a suit of overalls, patched, baggy, soiled with contact with mother earth under a broiling sun, he is sneered at. If he dons a decent suit with a white collar, his swarthy skin is likened to "boiled lobster served on a white platter." Its' true! I've heard it! Let one of you city men climb into a pair of those overalls and see if you will look half as much a man. The farmers of this country are becoming a class like European peasantry. The reason is that no self-respecting man wants to take up work which is the butt of jokers, and an object of ridicule. True, they should have enough respect for their work to command the respect of others. But a farmer is retiring by nature sensitive, and inclined to take the place given him by the rest of the world.

It is not true that farmers want men to work fourteen hours a day at low wages. In town an inexperienced man starts at a low figure and expects a raise when he has worked for a while. Out here, the man with no experience expects full wages. One who is any use gets, at least, thirty-five a month, his board and room, for which he would pay seven dollars a wek in town, his washing and a place in the family circle. His presence isn't congenial but we have to put up with it. Roughly speaking he gets sixty-five dollars a month. He has not one cent invested, is at no loss if the crops fail. At the end of the year he usually has more than the farmer. It is not unreasonable for a farmer to expect the hired man to work as long hours as he does. But the man doesn't do it, unless a rare kind. In town the "boss" leaves early and the helpers finish up—out here the helper quits and the "boss" does the finishing.

"Progress" says there is no such thing as an altruistic farmer. How about himself? If he was not going to benefit by it would he be so keen for it? It is wonderful how much attention the poor working man and worn out shop girl gets at times like these. If its only more daylight and pure air you want, suppose you get up some morning at daylight and get your fresh air before you go to work. You'll feel more like working then. But then, you'll say, I'll not get off any earlier at night. No, but you'll be getting the air in the morning when it's pure instead of at night when it isn't.

If you want real enjoyment from your motoring go out some morning into the country where the dew is fresh on the trees, covering up the dust of last night's speeding cars; where the moisture laden cobweb, linking the fence rails is each a tiny rainbow, and, above all, if it's fresh air you want, get out of your closed car and brcathe it before it becomes full of dust from the roads and smoke from the city. As a matter of fact, it isn't fresh air you want. It is a longer evening to spend on the roads. If the worn out girls and boys in town spent their evening hours to better advantage we would have more sympathy for them. You can scarcely travel without finding cars parked along the roadsides, the occupants enjoying the glorious night air, I suppose!

The farmers had enough altruism about us to put up with daylight saving when we had it before. It was hailed as a war measure for increasing production or saving coal or some such bunk. Now when you known how hard the farmers' days are, have you any right to put inconveniences in his way Of course, we shall have to deal largely where we always have. I want to say here that we would do so more cheerfully if the merchants would cater to our wants as well as the mail order houses do. In some stores I have been handed a heavy basket of groceries at the door, and left to carry it to the car myself I also haul a box weighing thirty-five pounds through a swing door which I had to hold open with my foot, while three young men, with hats on one side and cigarettes glued to their lower lips, looked on.

When the merchants learn to have more respect for the farmers' trade, they will get more of it.

THREE YOUTHS ARE SHOT DEAD

Eight Others Wounded in Street Shooting Affray in Paris.

PERFECT AMBUSH.

PARIS, April 24 (Canadian Press).—Three youths were killed and eight wounded in a shooting affray which occurred as they were leaving a meeting of the National Republican League in the Rue d'Amremont last night. Police attracted by the firing, caught two men, alleged to be Communists, with pistols in their hands. One claimed that he had not fired, and another that he shot in self defence. Police Prefect Morain, who investigated the affair, declared that it was a perfectly prepared ambush, the attackers hiding behind a street car and opening fire on the ill-fated youths. The two men held by the police gave names of Joseph Bernardon and Paul Clert. They are said to have had relations with Communists.

LIFE INSURANCE A GREAT FORCE

George H. Harris Explains Value and Work of Insurance.

JOINT MEETING.

"Make a sacrifice to-day for future happiness, security and independence for those who are dearer to you than your own life." This is the message of life insurance as voiced by George H. Harris, supervisor of the field service bureau of the Sun Life Assurance Company, to a combined meeting of the Kiwanis Club and the Life Underwriters' Association at noon to-day. Mr. Harris drew attention to the connection between the work of the Kiwanis Club in helping underprivileged children and the work of life insurance. The life insurance agent is trying to prevent what the Kiwanis Clubs are endeavoring to cure.

Over one and a half millions of dollars worth of insurance is being written in Canada every day, he said. The companies gather together the small savings of the people and redistribute them into earning channels. These funds support industry and government and help to give employment to those that contributed them, bringing prosperity to the Dominion.

The great fault of the people of North America is extravagance. The need is thrift. The only assets that millions of men have are their insurance policies. There is great hope for the future, said Mr. Harris, because the young unmarried men are taking out policies on their lives. These men will not develop into exploiters, and a policy is a certificate of good character. People realize their responsibilities with regard to life insurance. Men of wealth are taking policies to pay succession duties to the government. Poor men are taking policies to protect their families.

None Ever Failed.

No life insurance company in Canada has ever failed to pay all that it had promised to pay. This is a statement, said Mr. Harris, that can be made of no other line of business.

One thousand married men died yesterday, said Mr. Harris, and another thousand men are dying today in North America. Three hundred and seventy thousand married men died last year and not nearly 50 per cent. of them left life insurance. He asked those present to picture the happiest homes they knew and imagine what would happen if the head of the family were taken away. Sentiment is the biggest factor in life insurance, and this means securing the comfort of one's dependents.

The meeting was under the joint chairmanship of Charles Cook, president of the Kiwanis Club, and I. P. MacNabb, president of the Life Underwriters' Association. At the conclusion of Mr. Harris' address a hearty vote of thanks was moved by Kiwanian Joseph Wearing and seconded by W. Boulton, of the Confederation Life.

"Si" Perkins, director of the Minstrel Mimics, was present and made a short address, urging the Kiwanians to sell the few tickets still unsold so that a full house would be realized for both performances. It was announced that the Rotary Club had taken a block of tickets, and a vote of thanks will be tendered them for their co-operation. The secretary was instructed to write the John B. Rogers' Producing Company to express the gratitude and appreciation of the club for the services of Mr. Perkins, who was personally thanked for his efforts.

J. F. H. Wallace and W. S. Penny, of the Sun Life Company, made a few remarks before Mr. Harris spoke.

PRINCE AS POET ABOARD REPULSE

Wales Breaks Into Verse When Neptune Brings Daughter to Deck.

LONDON, April 24. — The verse which the Prince of Wales wrote on the battle cruiser Repulse, as the warship bearing him down the African coast from Legos, crossed the Equator yesterday, finally has made its way to land.

Catching the spirit of the festal occasion when Father Neptune during the ceremony presented an address offering to the Prince the hand of his daughter, a green-gowned sailor, with a fighting face. The prince responded with a verse, missing from yesterday's despatch. The verse made available to-day, reads:

"I thank you for your kind suggestion,
About your beautiful Princess.
But may I ask you just one question,
Where in h—— did she get that dress?
But in spite of all I am forced to spurn her,
Though your offer makes me proud.
Yes, my King, I must return her—
Pets on board are not allowed.

REFUSE WRIT.

Scott Must Die in 90 Days Unless Pardoned By Governor.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., April 24.—(Canadian Press.) — The Illinois Supreme Court to-day denied the petition of Russell Scott, of Toronto, former Canadian promoter, for a writ supersedeas.

The effect of the Supreme Court action will be that he must hang after the ninety day reprieve, granted him by Governor Small, expires, unless the Governor commutes his sentence. Scott was convicted of the murder of Joseph Maurer, drug clerk at Chicago.

CONSTRUCT ROUYN LINE.

Canadian National to Proceed at Once, Thornton Says To-day.

OTTAWA, April 24 (Canadian Press) — The Canadian National Railway is to proceed at once with construction of its line from the transcontinental to Rouyn.

In making this annoucement today, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C.N.R., referred to the statement of Premier Ferguson of Ontario that the C.N.R. had inspired Quebec's opposition to the T. and N. O. extension into Rouyn.

"What Premier Ferguson says," Sir Henry said, "is correct as to the understanding in regard to the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario railway buildig to Rouyn, and the C.N.R. building south to that district from a point on the transcontinental, but by no stretch of the imagination does that fact furnish even a suspicion that the C. N. R. placed ay obstacle in the way of the extension of the T. & N. O. to Rouyn.

Advertisers throughout Canada and in the United States will welcome the 1925 edition of McKim's Directory of Canadian Publications which has just been issued.

McKim's Directory of Canadian Publications is accepted as a reliable source of information on Canadian publications and, as well as consulted for Canadian geographical and statistical particulars. Since the first edition was published, each succeeding issue has shown an improvement over the previous one.

"Shakespeare and I" Says G. B. Shaw in Toast

STRATFORD-ON - AVON, England, April 24 (United News).—Shakespeare and Shaw have written plays of the proper length, George Bernard Shaw intimated when speaking at a luncheon commemorating the 361st anniversary of the great bard's birth.

Shaw proposed a toast to Shakespeare which was drunk in pure, clear water, and then remarked on the length of plays. "The correct length for a play," he observed, "is three and one-half hours—the length that Shakespeare and I use. A shorter play does not give proper value. If the theatre is to be kept alive, plays must be produced exercising moral judgment. The drama should be an instrument for purification and criticism of our current morality, and therefore our spiritual problem."

DEMPSEY "KNOCKED OUT"

Indigestion Sends Champion to Bed in New York.

NEW YORK, April 24. —Indigestion scored a knockout over Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, shortly after he arrived here Thursday from a journey across the continent with his wife, former Estelle Taylor, motion picture actress. Medical attendance was found unnecessary, but the champion went to bed at his hotel, it was said.

The attack came after Dempsey had announced that he had not deserted the ring, as had been reported many times. He also explained that the "rift" between him and his manager, Jack Kearns, was a myth.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

While getting behind the club in the forward swing will not be anything new in golf, perhaps an understanding of how it is done by the golfer will be something new among average players. In the back swing the clubhead leads in the sense that the hands "lead" the clubhead to the top. The body merely follows. The idea is to keep clubhead and body together — what is called unison of action. During this action the weight transfers to the right leg, so that the left leg, at the top of the back swing, hangs limp and somewhat loose. At the turn the club must reverse its direction completely, so here it must have a bit of time. At the turn, you merely let the club turn with you as you turn your shoulders—your body—back toward the ball. The club is "behind" in this action. It merely drags along. In tomorrow's action I will try to explain the point at which the club passes from being back of you to where you are back of it.

TAUGHT ON THE FLY!

The Bear Cats have announced their intention of entering a team in the juvenile series. The personnel of their squad is unknown but if they live up to their name the other teams are due for a tough struggle.

One of the leading baseball managers of the city says that the grounds question is what holds some men back from managing teams. The officials of the various teams of the City League have had to dig down to pay ground rents or caretaker's fees. The feeling seems to be that the younger teams who draw very little, if any gate money, should not be called upon to pay for grounds, as it is in the interests of the city to provide facilities for healthy recreation. In this connection the Board of Education has been approached with regard to the use of the King Edward School grounds.

The East Peterborough League will hold its annual meeting next week. It is expected that this league will operate as usual this year.

The Cognawaga A.C. will be back with a strong lineup this year. Last year they were in the playoff but were beaten out by Mackey's.

The Curve Lake Indians are ready to start at any tiem and have high hopes of winning the championship this year. They are backing a midget team to develop their young players and hope to enter it in the City League if a midget series is operated.

The Keene boys have not yet taken any active interest but will likely get busy when the spring work is done. They will have very much the same team as last year.

It is thought that Lakefield and George street will be back in the league again. Bob Mackey is not in the city at all times but the team will likely operate again to try and hold the cup.

If any teams wish to enter this Intermediate League they should get in touch with the secretary, C. E. Curtis at the City Hall or 197 Rubidge street.

Kingston now has a "dark horse" in the line of a new right-hand pitcher. He is supposed to be one that the Kingston fans have seen before, and is a pitcher of no mean repute. It has the fans guessing anyway.—Kingston Standard.

If the gentleman referred to has been in Kingston since January 1, it looks funny that the fans should still be guessing.

SHEFFIELD ARE ENGLISH HOPES AGAINST WALES

PLAY AT WEMBLEY.

Host of Fans Expected to See Sheffield United and Cardiff City.

LONDON, April 24. — The English cup, emblem of supreme honors in the British football world, will reach its final play off on Saturday, when it is expected anything between one hundred thousand and one hunderd and fifty thousand fans will throng the great stadium at Wembley to witness the battle which brings Cardiff face to face with Sheffield United in the last great test.

An international flavor has been contributed to Saturday's engagement and incidentally England is confronted with the menace of seeing the trophy taken out of the country for the first time in its history.

Should Cardiff succeed in getting the better of he "blades" the cup will sojourn for a time on "foreign soil." England pins strong faith to Sheffield; Wales is equally as confident that the city will come home with honors thick upon them. Additional piquancy is given to the game inasmuch as it is the fifieth contest—the jubilee year in point of actual encounters, of the English cup competition.

Form on Paper.

Soccer enthusiasts for weeks past have been engrossed in "weighing up" form, but little assistance is vouchsafed them from a study of the records of the respective clubs in their league contests, nor does the atmosphere become clearer by examination of what they have already accomplished in the cup fight. In league company neither the "blades" nor Cardiff City have shown up with any particular brilliancy this season, until a few weeks ago Sheffield were giving their supporters many anxious moments as to whether they might even be able to escape relegation, but the "Blades" rallied well and they and the Welshmen are travelling along in each other's company, rather worse than midway down the league. Notwithstanding the splendid calibre of both teams, Sheffield United having such stalwarts as Gillespie and Tunstall, while Cardiff boast men of the type of Veenor, Nicholson, the two Davies and Beadles, neither aggregation seems to have been able to use these players to the best advantage, although just lately Cardiff have revealed distinct signs of coming back strongly. Their league fixtures have been well fought out, and it was only last Saturday that they travelled to Hudders field with a deplorably weakened team and drew with the league leaders. Cardiff supplied three men in last Saturday's international game, and also were a couple more of their regulars, due to injuries. The fans naturally conclude that a team that can serve up surprises of this sort are worth watching.

Sheffield United on the other hand have not given such signal demonstrations of themselves as potential cup winners. Their recent league games have not been so well contested, but whether this has been due to their desire to hold something in reserve for the bigger game or not, remains to be seen. At all events, opinion is divided here on the prospects of the cup result and the general conclusion is non-committal — it is anybody's game.

Use Regular Team.

Not improbably both Sheffield and Cardiff will field the same elevens that have brought them thus far in the competition. Cardiff may have some difficulty and it is a problem whether Beadles will be able to take his place at inside-left.

It is expected that Cardiff will have to rely a great deal on the resource of Keenor and Hardy in the intermediate line to check Tunstall and Gillespie, both of whom usually manage to get through a prodigious amount of work. The Cardiff defence has always been good, both Nelson and Blair presenting a formidable screen in front of Farquharson, while in the front line Nicholson has as a rule had good support from his wings. Whether Nicholson will play or not is another question; it is a toss up between him and Len Davies. In any case the Cardiff forwards will have their work cut out for, against a trio like Pantling, King and Green, who will probably constitute Sheffield's half back line, they will find themselves faced with players who are the last word in resourcefulness and opportunism.

The probable line-up:

Sheffield United: Sutcliffe, (goal); Cook and Milton (backs); Pantling, King and Green, (half backs); Mercer, Sharpy, Johnson, Gillespie and Tunstall (forwards.)

Cardiff City: Farquharson (goal), Nelson and Blair (backs); Wake, Keenor and Hardy (half backs); Lawson, Gill, Nicholson (or Len Davies), Beadles and V. Davies (forwards.)

Rescue crews from adjoining mines brought up three men alive from the thousand-foot level, but say the line below that level is full of poisonous gases and practically impenetrable.

BRAZIL PLANS FOR ELECTION

Would Choose Man to Work For Harmony at Home.

By U. GRANT KEENER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

RIO DE JANEIRO, April 22. — (United Press.)—The successor to President Arthur. Bernardes of Brazil may be chosen in the elections on March 1st, 1926, without a presidential campaign preceding the elections.

Although as a usual thing the presidential campaign in Brazil is well under way as early as 18 months before the date of elections, so far no candidates have been presented and it is regarded as quite possible that there will be no campaign at all preceding the elections, due to the rather unsettled political situation of the country.

Among those favoring elections without an active campaign is Senator Alfredo Ellis, descendent of American families who came to Brazil shortly after the American Civil War and a strong political figure. Senator Ellis in an interview stated:

"For Brazil, for her progress and for her future, it wuold be best not to carry on a campaign for next year's elections. The future president should be chosen by sincere accord of the will of all currents of opinion, in order that he may arrive at the Cattete (Brazil's Presidential Mansion) ready to carry out a programme of rehabilitation of our credit abroad and ready to work for harmony amongst our republican family. To carry out such programme he must come with the support of the whole nation."

AT THE CAPITOL

"SEVEN CHANCES."

"Seven Chances," with Buster Keaton as the comedian, is the farcial feature at the Capitol Theatre for the last three days of this week. The frozen faced comedian, as he is called, is at his best in the entanglements which beset "Seven Chances."

It is the story of a young New York broker who receives a bequest of $7,000,000, on condition that he get married before seven o'clock on his twenty-seventh birthday, which happens to be the day on which the notification of the bequest reaches him. He immediately gets busy in characteristic fashion which muddles up most of his day's arrangements. He has a regular girl, Mary, and a proposal of marriage to her has been on his mind for many long days, but has put it off ffrom time to time until the desperate moment reaches him when he must marry or forfeit the fortune. In his practice of the proposal Mary overhears him and all seems to be running smoothly until he tells her he must marry someone and it might as well be her. Mary spurns him and he is compelled to look elsewhere for a bride. In a restaurant scene he has the choice of many damsels and later, in a church, where the harassed young man falls asleep, he is pursued by bevies of women of all sizes and colors in answer to an advertisement inserted in the daily press by his attorney. The hazards of a youth who seeks a bride while the clock slowly winds up the hours of his probation period are funny in the extreme, and the audience chuckles constantly through a series of laughable incidents. The final moments, when the hero is making his way down a hillside, followed by an avalanche of stones, is a perilous interlude. He arrives just in the nick of time, when all hope seems lost, to marry his first love.

The comedy that accompanies the feature rounds out an evening devoted entirely to laughs. It is a Ben Turpin cross-eyed affair, with the puzzled gentleman mixed up in a hilarious romance.—Jeannette.

Cross-word puzzle fans will like "The Right Word," the one-act comedy whose action centres around the solving of a crossword puzzle, and which forms an added attraction to the regular programme at the Capitol Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 27th, 28th and 29th, with Wednesday matinee.

One of the interesting features of the play, which precedes the feature picture, is the musical interludes. Miss Mathilde Masson, who is the heroine of "The Right Word," will sing, and Llonel Chapman, another member of the cast, will play Hawaiian guitar selections.

AT THE ROYAL

GIBSON'S LATEST PACKS ROYAL TO THE DOORS

Good Story Woven About the Great Pendleton Round-up.

Seats were at a premium last night at the Royal where one of the best outdoor western productions that it has been our good fortune to see, was flashed on the screen. Anyone who cannot get enthusiastic about "Let 'Er Buck" had better see a doctor.

Cowboys ,cowgirls, Indians, oldtime drivers of horse pulled stages and others possessing vital knowledge of western habits, customs and sports to a total number of close to 1,000 to say nothing of outlaw horses. Then, there are big hornsteers and such that hada part in the making of Charles Wellington Furlong's novel, "Let 'Er Buck,"

Hoot Gibson, the star long ago Hoot convinced motion picture patrons that he is the real stuff as a cowboy. He has shown time and again that he had ride 'em straight u pas well as give a pleasing character portrayal. But in this case Hoot apparently cast discretion aside and rode right into the centre of a carnival of the most desperate, hazardous, thrilling sports ever held —nothing less than the biggest Round-Up, where the best cowboys in all the land were competing for honors.

Hoot established a precedent for a motion picture actor, which he previously established back in 1912 in the same arena. When that original three-day program had been completed, he rode out again with the honor of all around champion as his reward. Hoot Gibson was a tophand long before he thought of motion picture cameras.

"Let 'Er Buck," was filmed at Pendleton, Oregon last year while that city's famous Annual Round-Up was in progress. The story of the picture was adapted from Chas. Wellington Furlong's novel. The story hinges on certain of the programmed events. Having such a colorful atmosphere, Edward Sedgwick, the director, took every advantage of the unusual occasion and the result is that the picture really furnishes two fine entertainments in one. There is the story which is good, and is told by a cast of sterling screen players, and there is the atmosphere supplied by the real thing in western atmosphere at its most exciting period, thanks to director Ed Sedgwick.

Marian Nixon has the part of the daughter of the Texas cattleman for whom Hoot worked. She is the cause of his romantic troubles. Josie Sedgwick plays the part of the woman ranch owner.

TWO SHOWS SATURDAY NIGHT AT ROYAL—7 & 9

Owing to the popularity of the Western picture "Let 'Er Buck," and the unusual demand for seats two performances will be given on Saturday night at 7 and 9. The Royal Orchestra will play for both performances.

MIDNIGHT MOLLY FOR — ROYAL ON MONDAY IS CLEVER CROOK DRAMA

Crook melodrama of a high order, spinning along to a sensational climax which leaves the audience tense with emotion and moist-eyed with the spirit of sacrifice, "Midnight Molly," starring Evelyn Brent, comes to the Royal Theatre Monday. As in the previous pcitures, the star is very capably supported. In this instance, John Dillon, Bruce Gordon, Leon Bary and John Gough shine above others. Lloyd Ingraham directed the picture, and proves particularly well fitted to get the greatest possible effect from a rattling story. The production is well mounted and attests the ability of everyone connected with it.

AT THE REGENT

DOROTHY DEVORE IS COMEDY GRADUATE.

Comedy training develops tragediennes as nothing else can do, according to Hugo Ballin, director of Metro-Goldwyn's "The Prairie Wife," now showing at the Regent Theatre.

"I would rather direct a comedienne who had never played serious parts than an experienced tragedienne who had never played comedy," Ballin says.

This is his explanation: "In all comedy, good or bad, there is a certain amount of tragedy. The highest comedy is that which is superimposed on tragedy and sorrow. This is evidenced by the work of Chaplin and Keaton."

The latest comedienne to make the step to drama is Dorothy Devore, who plays the leading feminine role in "The Prairie Wife." It is Miss Devore's first work in serious film stories, and though the part has a great deal of comedy in it, is essentially a dramatic one.

Mr. Ballin was highly pleased with her work, and predicts she will achieve fully as great success as her predecessors who have deserted comedy for other work.

OBITUARY.

MRS. SUSANNA O'BRIEN

The funeral of the late Mrs. Susanna O'Brien, 77 George Street, widow of the late Michael O'Brien was held this morning from her late residence to St. Peter's Cathedral, thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

In the presence of a large number of friends and relatives of the deceased, including pupils from the three Catholic schools of the city, a pontifical high mass was celebrated by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, nephew of Mrs. O'Brien, assisted by honorary deacons Rev. Fathers J. McAuley and Garvey, Rev. P. Butler, deacon, and Rev. James McGuire, sub deacon. Rev. P. Costello was assisting priest, and Rev. J. Finn, master of ceremonies. Priests present in the sanctuary were Rt. Rev. Monsignor McColl, Rev. P. J. McGuire, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, and Rev. C. J. Moloney.

Many beautiful floral and spiritual tributes were received by the family of the deceased lady.

The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, who took his text from Romans 6-8: "If we be dead with Christ, we believe we shall live also together with Christ." The speaker referred to the long Christian life of the deceased, and to the fact that in death is victory.

MRS. SARAH THEXTON.

The death of Mrs. Sarah Thexton, 614 Reid street, occurred on Thursday evening at Nicholls Hospital, after a brief illness.

The funeral will take place from the residence of J. J. Cocks, 7 Bennett street, on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Funeral service at St. Andrew's church at 2.30, thence to Little Lake cemetery for interment, Rev. Mr. Gordon officiating.

RADIO ADDRESS TO ENGINEERS

W. B. Cottnell Tells of Development and Scope of Science.

EXPLAINS SETS.

The Engineers were entertained last night by a very instructive talk on Radio, presented by W. B. Cartmel, radio engineer for the Northern Electric, and at one time connected with the Canadian General Electric Co., of this city.

The chairman, P. L. Allison, in his peliminary remarks recalled having prophesied the present popularity of radio when he first heard the subject mentioned several years ago.

Mr. Cartmel, prior to the delivery of his lecture, tuned in on a number of stations. WEAF was broadcasting the Thomas Orchestra, which was presenting music of a high quality. The flexibility of the set was demonstrated by the number of stations registered.

Describes Hook-up.

Mr.Cartmel then proceeded with his immediate topic—Radio Receiving Sets—and assisted by lantern slides, gave a scientific explanation of radio reception. The principles were outlined at first on a simple hook-up, which became more complicated as distance and variety of wave lengths were considered.

The first illustration explained the dispersal of ether waves after having been set in motion by a special oscillatory contrivance.

The waves travelled in all directions, growing weaker as the distance increased, and in order to pick them up again special sets adjusted to the distance and wave length are necessary.

Mr. Cartmel spoke of the part played by the vacuum tubes in long distance telephony. They were first used as early as 1912 for stepping up the current and there use in radio is of a similar nature, hence the higher efficiency of the multi-tube set.

The various methods of tuning were discussed and the merits and deficiencies considered. The principles embodied in the Heterodyne and Neutrodyne sets were technically explained.

On the conclusion of the address the meeting was thrown open for discussion, after which Mr. Cartmel tuned in on a number of the better stations.

The set used by Mr. Cartmel was a six-tube super-Hetrodyne equipped with a loop aerial, a ... cone loud speaker. This type of speaker was new to most of those present. It consisted of a double diaphragm containing a rotating dynamo. It was explained that the outer circumference of the cone transmitted the deeper tones, even those notes of the pipe organ in the lower register being reproduced perfectly.

Around The City.

On the wall of the store being renovated on George street was uncovered yesterday the ame "R. N. Jones." Speculation is rife as to whether this is the present alderman.

NEW LIGHT.

An indication of the improvement programme now being carried on by the Parks Committee is in evidence on the corner of Hunter and Burnham. The ground is being levelled and will be seeded down, adding in time, greatly to the appearance of that corner.

It will of course be necessary in the near future to improve the grounds surrounding James Stevenson Park but this will come in due time.

A post, formerly in front of the Utilities Commission building, will be erected in the middle of the plot, Mr. Henderson states, and the added light will improve conditions there.

CANCELLATION OF GOVERNMENT'S LOANS TO C. N. R. IS PROPOSED BY PROGRESSIVE MEMBER OF HOUSE

C. W. Stewart, of Humbolt, Suggests Nationalization of the C.P.R. as Rail Remedy.

AGAINST BUDGET.

Conservative Criticizes Government For Failure to Ratify the Australian Treaty.

OTTAWA, April 25. — (Canadian Press).—Resuming his speech on the budget in the House of Commons Friday, C. W. Stewart (Progressive, Humbodlt) said he would vote against it. Neither could he support the Drayton amendment. The latter he compared with the thick gauze curtain used on the stage. As long as a fierce light was kept on it, it looked very nice, and you saw nothing beyond. Behind the Drayton amendment, when the light was switched off, was revealed not lower taxation, but "the barren rocks of extra tariff imposition."

Mr. Stewart thought it would be a good thing to nationalize the Canadian Pacific Railway, and amalgamate it with the Canadian National, but before that ideal could be achieved it was still possible to do much for the present National roads. He would have them revalued and recapitalized, writing off the amount of the current balance-sheet deficit. Or Canada might cancel the Government loans, chargeable against the road, or even all the monumental indebtedness which was grouped under the heading of "Dominion of Canada account."

Mr. Stewart referred to the report of Dr. Tory on the question of long term credits, and urged that the Government could no longer justify itself in delaying to take up a scheme of this nature for the assistance of farmers.

Spread War Debt.

J. F. Fafard (Liberal, L'Islet) said that economy cries from the Conservatives were in very bad taste, as that party had spent millions daily in extravagance during their administration. It was not wise to force taxpayers to-day in these times of hardship, but instead, the war debt should be spread out over a long period of years. He supported tariff for revenue purposes. In replying to Conservative arguments that the tariff changes of last year had closed factories, he said that on the contrary new factories were opening up throughout Canada.

Canada's tariff should be fashioned to meet the requirements of the Dominion, not copied from the United States. That country had a tariff to meet its own needs. Mr. Fafard thought the Conservative opposition exaggerated the prosperity the United States was supposed to enjoy.

He urged further development of the Quebec harbor. It was not a local but a national project. He also thought the Canadian Government should do more for forest preservation.

Chides Marler.

L. J. Ladner (Conservative, Vancouver Centre) stated that a couple of days ago, the House had listened to a speech from Mr. Marler (Liberal St. Lawrence-St. George), delivered with the "superiority of authority as though he were lecturing children." Mr. Marler had criticized the remarks of certain Conservative speakers with respect to the budget, but Mr. Marler "himself brought confusion into the debate and was inaccurate in statements he had made." The assertions made by Conservative members were correct. Mr. Ladner believed that the Acting Minister of Finance should have submitted an exact statement showing the full indebtedness of the railways to the Government.

Mr. Ladner felt that some action must be taken by the Government to eliminate wasteful competition, and useless duplication with respect to the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways. It should take steps to bring about a co-operation in service between these systems, and the present competition was "useless, senseless and fruitless." The whole responsibility rested with the Government, for lack of action and lack of initiative. The remedy of the present situation could not be brought about by a merger, but by co-operation of service.

Relief in Protection.

Mr. Ladner emphasized the value of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine ships to British Columbia trade, and referred to the management of the line as "active and aggressive." Taxation, he said, if it was not lightened, would be extremely disastrous to the country. The future industrial development of Canada was threatened by the burden of taxation. The Government was lacking in strength and virility in not finding a solution for the taxation problem Protection, he said, would bring relief.

Mr. Ladner favored the Australian treaty. It would, for one thing, benefit the salmon industry, and the failure of the Government to ratify the treaty, would probably deprive the Canadian salmon industry of a market in Australia. "If they do not want the treaty, they should say they do not want it." It was the old question of vaccilation on the part of the Government.

Canada should not allow the entry of Orientals into British Columbia.

Wisconsin Senate Votes For Referendum On Beer

MADISON, Wis., April 25.—"Wets" won a victory in the Wisconsin Senate with the adoption of a resolution for a referendum in the general election next year on modification of the Volstead act to legalize the sale and manfuacture of 2.75 per cent beer. The bill passed, 19 to 13.

Indications are that Assembly will concur. In that case "wets" and "drys" will launch Statewide campaigns on the beer issue and candidates for United State Senator, the Houses and State offices will be asked to take a stand.

Governor Blaine went over to the "wets" some time ago and will run for United States Senator as a liberal. Senator Lenroot has been a "dry." His friends are urging him to come out for beer.

NEW BEDFORD FELT TREMORS

Earth Readjusting Its Crust Shook the Massachusetts Littoral.

NOISE OF THUNDER.

BOSTON, April 25, — (Canadian Press). — South-Eastern Massachusetts, including Cape Cod, the islands of Martha's Vineyard, and Nantucket, was shaken early yesterday by a slight earthquake, thought by Prof. K. F. Mather, Harvard seismologist, to have been caused by a readjustment of the earth's crust along the northern shore of Long Island Sound. The tremors, lasting from ten to thirty seconds, were felt as far northward as Boston and as far west as Worcester. The shock was faintly recorded on the seismograph at Harvard College, Cambridge, at 2.56 a.m., approximately the time the tremors were reported elsewhere.

In the vicinity of New Bedford, along the coast of Buzzard Bay, the tremors were reported to have been accompanied by a rumbling sound as of thunder or a quarry blast. Dishes and window panes rattled. Many persons were awakened by the trembling.

The shock, the third to jar Massachusetts since early in January, was felt in varying degrees along Cape Cod and was reported distinctly felt in Worcester, Middleboro and the vicinity of Brockton. Night police officers in Boston said that they felt the shock. In all instances the tremors were noticed at about 3 a.m.

COMEDIAN DEAD AFTER PARTY IN TORONTO HOTEL

Doctor Believes Injuries Probably Due to Fall on Stairs.

AT KING EDWARD.

Fay Bainter Gave Party to Celebrate Company's First Anniversary.

TORONTO, April 25.—Cause of the death of Carl Lynn, actor, of the "Dream Girl" company, was sought by Chief Coroner Dr. G. W. Graham and a jury at the inquest Friday afternoon. Lynn died at the Wellesley Hospital, after being found unconscious on Thursday morning after a party given by Miss Fay Bainter, star of "the Dream Girl," to celebrate its first anniversary.

The gloomy morgue had an unusual audience when a group of theatrical pepole filled the benches of the spectators. Miss Fay Bainter, Walter Woolf and others of "The Dream Girl" and Sissie and Blake of "The Chocolate Dandies" company at the Princess, were among those present.

Miss Bainter was gowned demurely in a black dress trimmed with blue, and a little black hat.

The stage folk listened with the closest attention to the drama in real life unfolded before them, to the swearing in of the jury and the address of the coroner.

Before the evidence was begun all those summoned as witnesses were excluded from the room.

Must Probe Possible Drinking.

Dr. Graham said that the inquest had been ordered to enquire into the death of Lynn, who had died from head injuries received on Thursay morning.

"Lynn, who was an actor," said the crown, "was playing wth a company at the Royal Alexandra, and was staying at the King Edward hotel, took part in a party given by the officials in charge of the Dream Girl theatrical troupe, late Wednesday night or Thursday morning. This was a masquerade party in celebration of some anniversary. The party broke up between three and four o'clock Thursday morning. Lynn was escorted to his room by the manager of the company. He was found later lying unconscious on the stairway of the fire escape. I might explain that this is an enclosed stairway within the building, constructed of steel. He was found lying unconscious with head injuries. He was removed to the Wellesley hospital under the care of Dr. Elliott.

"I am informed that Lynn had been drinking. The question of drink enters into this. I suppose it is your duty to determine whether Lynn was drinking, and whether liquor was provided by the hotel or opera troupe.

Never Regained Consciousness.

Dr. J. E. Elliott, who attended Lynn, called as the first witness, told how he had received a telephone message from the hotel, and that he had sent his assistant, Dr. Phillips, there. He saw Lynn at the Wellesley hospital. "There was a hole in the scalp behind the ear," he said. "This was a wound running diagonally. Then there was a second jagged wound. There was pressure on the brain. An X-ray confirmed this."

"From your examination what would you say that Lynn had been drinking?" asked the crown.

"I presume both whiskey and beer," replied the doctor.

"He never regained consciousness," he continued. "In the operation no anesthetic was used and he showed no signs of pain. He was a stout man ,200 or 250 pounds, about six feet tall."

CITY MANUFACTURERS BELIEVE BUSINESS IS ON UPWARD TREND AND PROSPERITY WILL FOLLOW

Second Day of Examiner Investigation Shows Increasing Optimism and More Roseate Hue For Future of the City and Dominion as Business Mends.

GRADUAL INCREASE PERCEPTIBLE.

Continuing the investigation dealing with local business prospects, it was discovered that the outlook for the immediate future assumes an increased roseate hue. Some few of the manufacturers remain pessimistic but the majority believe that industry is on the upward trend.

Robert Abbott, manager of the Canadian Rayhestos, states that though the yearly progress has been slight, nevertheless, it has been certain. The output of the factory has been greatly increased, but due to competition from the American manufacturers, the sales value of the products have decreased. Because of the production basis under which the American firms are operated, as well as the fact that there are no tariff restrictions, the Canadian Raybestos have been forced to sell at lower rates than should be necessary.

Mr. Abbott states that the plant of which he is manager, is capable of handling the entire Canadian business in that line.

Unstable Conditions.

W. R. Breyfogle, general manager of the De Laval, said that business was like a slide on sanded ice. All was serene on the clean portions but where the sand was scattered progress was inclined to be of an uncertain character. He attributed this state of affairs to a lack of confidence on the part of the buyer.

This uncertainty was due, he said, to the unstable conditions governing the markets of raw materials.

Mr. Breyfogle recalled the fact that the motor and steel industries of the States had been chosen as barometers of prosperity. It was impossible, he said, to draw conclusions regarding general business with those industries as standards, because it is a fact that they are being operated at the expense of every other industrial enterprise.

"The situation locally," Mr. Breyfogle continued, "is tense, as competition from European centres has robbed us of legitimate business. Machines manufactured in the old lands are produced on low wage scales, which this company cannot, and would not attempt to equal."

Mr. Breyfogle is hopeful that certain re-adjustments will be made, which will much improve current affairs.

Somewhat Pessimistic.

L. H. Bond, manager of the Auburn, affiliated with Canadian Woollens, offers the following statement. He says:

"I am somewhat pessimistic as to the conditions of business for the coming fall season. This is due to the recent slight decline in raw stock which makes buyers of woollen merchandise very slow in placing their orders.

"Combined with this is the fact that the low tariff has flooded the country with woollen merchandise so that it puts manufacturers in Canada in a position such that it is almost impossible to compete."

Mr. Bond also remarked that this condition might be owing to the fact that "Old Country" people clung to their desire for home-produced goods and bought them in preference to the articles manufactured in Canada.

Business Good.

W. A. Richardson, manager of the Peterborough Canoe Co., finds that business for the ensuing year is good. During their usual slack winter season his employees were kept busy on a new sideline of skiis and toboggans.

Mr. Richardson finds that his business is on a gradual increase, and that next year there will be greater expansion, especially in the newly adopted lines.

KILLED FATHER TO SAVE MOTHER

Thirteen Year Old Boy Sobs Out Story and is Released.

DIDSURY, Alta., April 25 (Canadian Press).—One hour after 13-year-old Harold Braun had sobbed out the story of how he had killed his half-crazed father with an axe in order to save his mother, who was being beaten into unconsciousness. The coroner's jury which met in this little northern town on Friday to enquire into the circumstances surrounding the death of Edward Franklin Braun, returned a verdict of "justifiable homicide." The verdict may automatically cut off any further proceedings that might have been taken against the boy, and although no official statement was issued by the attorney-general's department, it was said unofficially that a murder charge will not be laid against the boy. The 13-year-old boy gave no sign of emotion but two big tears rolled down his cheeks and with the remark of "Gee, won't Mamma be glad I don't have to go to jail," he walked out of the room straight into the arms of his mother.

Fishing On His Fifteenth Birthday, Boy Is Drowned

LINDSAY, April 25 (Special to The Examiner).—A sad drowning accident occured at Minden on Thursday, when James Snell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Snell of the village went to his death in the Minden River.

It was the little fellow's 15th birthday. In company with his sister he went to the river to fish, and while sitting on the high bank, his fishing rod broke. He reached out for the portion in the river, lost his balance and was swept away by the swift water. His body was found fifteen minutes later. All efforts at resuscitation were unavailing.

MINERS ESCAPE FIRE IN TUNNEL BY OWN EFFORT

Fourteen Men Trapped in Hecla Mine Rescued Late on Friday.

OPERATED PUMPS.

Extinguished the Blaze That Formed Barrier —Station 2,000 Feet Down Destroyed.

WALLACE, Idaho, April 25.—The fourteen miners entrapped last Thursday night by a fire in the lower working of the Hecla Mine at Burke (seven miles from here) were rescued alive late yesterday.

A rescue crew which went into the mine found that the entrapped miners using a pump which was in the tunnel, had so successfully battled the flames in the mine that they had them extinguished.

H. R. Uhtoff, an old time miner, who directed the fire fighting operations beneath the ground, said last night:

"Shortly after the fire broke out, the men in the Star tunnel were informed by the smoke fumes which rolled into the workings. We saw at once that it was impossible to go to the mouth of the tunnel, so we moved back. About one o'clock this morning we succeeded in getting the pump into operation."

"We found in a short time that we would be able to get the fire under control. The station on the 2,000 foot level was destroyed."

ONTARIO MUNICIPALITIES WOULD BE SADDLED WITH THE WHOLE COST OF POWER PROJECT, BECK SHOWS

Chairman of Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission Emphasizes "Inherent Injustice" of Funding Plan Suggested By O. E. Fleming, of Deep Waterways Association.

CONSUMERS PAY COST OF CANAL.

New York State Would Get Power at One-third of Cost to Ontario—Quebec Bear No Share in Expense of Improving St. Lawrence.

TORONTO, April 25.—(Canadian Press).—Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, issued a pamphlet on Friday with a view to retuting proposals made in a printed leaflet last year by O. E. Fleming, president of the Canadian Deep Waterways and Power Association, entitled "The St. Lawrence Route and How to Finance It." The matter at issue involves the respective rights of the Dominion and the Province of Ontario on the Hydro power question. Sir Adam Beck at present is in the Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, recovering from illness.

The Canadian Deep Waterways and Power Association, in the leaflet issued by Mr. Fleming, advocated the development of the St. Lawrence route as an international work (as recommended by the International Waterways Commission) by the Governments of the United States and Canada, but urged that part of the power developed on the Canadian section should be sold to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission at cost for distribtuion in Ontario.

The Association also advocated the development of the water power and the construction of the undertaking under the supervision of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Government of Canada, so far as related to the Canadian side of the question.

Pay Whole Cost.

"If we take into consideration," the Fleming leaflet says, "the saving that will be made, $88,200,000, by reason of the Governments of the United States and Canada guaranteeing the bonds on the project, thereby saving the difference in the interest rate between 3½ per cent. and 5½ per cent., the people of Ontario—the power users—can well afford to pay the full cost of the whole project: in other words, absorb as part of the cost of the power the cost also of the canal system, they would then get the power cheaper than it would cost them if it were developed by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario on a bond issue of 5½ per cent."

Sir Adam Beck's pamphlet in reply to the Fleming leaflet is entitled "Uniust and Harmful Proposals Published by Authority of an Organization Known as the Canadian Deep Waterways and Power Association, Under the Chairmanship of C. E. Fleming, Examined and Exposed."

Sir Adam states that the Canadian Deep Waterways and Power Association does not represent the cooperating electrical municipalities of Ontario. He affirms the rights of these municipalities to develop their water power in the international portion of the St. Lawrence River, and he challenges Mr. Fleming's statements.

Unjust Proposal.

With reference to Mr. Fleming's statement that "the people of Ontario—the power users—can well afford to pay the full cost of the whole project; in other words, absorb as part of the cost of power the cost also of the canal system." Sir Adam says that such a programme of employing the water power assets of the Province of Ontario in the St. Lawrence River to pay for the whole cost of improvement of the river for navigation could scarcely be more unjust. He says: "Mr. Fleming's treatment of the subject shows a lamentable failure to understand the elemental financial equities involved and displays a surprisng ignorance of even simple financial computations."

According to Mr. Fleming's figures Sir Adam points out, the expenditure necessitated by Ontario's portion of the power development is about $57,500,000, but that under Mr. Fleming's plan Ontario power users are to pay, in addition, the whole cost of the canal system, which is $137,000,000, "making the total cost to be borne by Ontario power users over 325 per cent." of the rightful amount.

Inequities of Scheme.

Sir Adam epitomizes Mr. Fleming's proposals as follows:

"Thus the shippers—including the Western farmers—of the United States and Canada are, according to Mr. Fleming, to get their canal system free of all charges; New York State, for a development of equal size, is to get its power development at less than one-third of the cost to Ontario; the people of Quebec are to bear no portion whatever of the cost of improvement for navigation even in their own province, although their share of the developed St. Lawrence power will eventually be much greater than that of Ontario; and all these advantages to others simply because, according to Mr. Fleming, the people of Ontario can well afford to pay. . . ."

"Mr. Fleming does not attempt to explain and justify this astonishing proposal on any grounds of equity as among the various interested parties—instead, he advances a ridiculous calculation setting forth a proposed method of finance by which he claims no less than $176,000,000 may be saved in connection with a $252,000,000 project."

Sir Adam states that about four-fifths of this assumed saving is dependent on Mr. Fleming's untenable assumption that the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission would construct for the Government of the United States, New York State and the Dominion of Canada, their portions of the development both as regards navigation and power.

"In stead of effecting a saving in the cost of power to the people of Ontario," Sir Adam continues, "Mr. Fleming's proposals would involve an additional cost of from $80,000,000 to $200,000,000.

Menace to Ontario.

"Under the guise, then, of giving the Canadian people a development of the St. Lawrence River for navigation at 'no cost,' a programme is advocated by the Canadian Deep Waterways and Power Association which is inherently unjust and financially unsound in all essential elements. I submit that it is a serious menace for Ontario municipalities to have such statements spread broadcast. It also tends seriously to befog the real St. Lawrence power issues involved."

Sir Adam stresses the readiness of the municipalities of Ontario to co-operate to the fullest extent possible to secure the early development of the St. Lawrence. Provincial plans already have been submitted to the Dominion Government, he points out.

With reference to the suggestion made by Mr. Fleming that "in order to remove any possible source of contention that may constitute an argument or excuse for delay," the municipalities might be willing to consider some adjustment respecting Canada's share of the cost of works and channel improvements at the proposed Morrisburg development amounting to some $10,000,000, or possibly $12,000,000, Sir Adam says:

"It must be obvious to all interested that there is a radical difference between the possibility of any such concession and the unjust imposition of $137,000,000, and all the entailed losses, which Mr. Fleming would like to see saddled on the users of electricity in the Province of Ontario."

FIRST OFFICIAL VISIT TO PARIS IN SEVEN YEARS

King George and Queen Mary Called on President Doumergue Yesterday.

HONORED DEAD.

PARIS, April 25. — (Canadian Press.)—King George V and Queen Mary, of Britain, making their first official visit to Paris since 1918, had a brief but busy time here yesterday. They were returning from the Mediterranean, where the King went in March by physicians' orders, after an attack of influenza.

The King and Queen arrived at 10.45 and left for London at 3 o'clock amidst a verbal hailstorm and the cheers of the members of the British colony and about five hundred Parisians massed at the Porte Maillot Station.

The Royal visitors had lunch with President Doumergue at the Elysee Palace after which they drove to the Arc De Triomphe, where the King placed a wreath upon the tomb of the unknown warrior. Sympathetic cheers came from the crowd as the King saluted the shot-torn flag of the regiment which furnished the guard of honor at the tomb.

The King received a return call of President Doumergue at the British Embassy, where both took tea together and talked in an intimate and friendly fashion until time for the King to leave.

ONE MORE ADDED TO THE LONG LIST

Quebec Man Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. L. Thiboutot used them for pains in his kidneys and found them very satisfactory.

St. Pamphile, Que., April 24. —(Special.)—Mr. L. Thiboutot, a well-known and respected resident here is a sworn friend of Dodd's Kidney Pills. He has tried them and found them good.

"Your Dodd's Kidney Pills have given me complete satisfaction." Mr. Thiboutot states. "For three months I have taken them regularly. I am very pleased with them because the pains in my kidneys, from which I was suffering, have completely disappeared."

That Mr. Thiboutot's trouble came from the kidneys is evidenced by the relief he got from Dodd's Kidney Pills. When the kidneys become clogged or out of order, the circulation becomes sluggish, the impurities are not strained out of the blood and the result is weariness and lack of energy all over the body. This condition is not only disagreeable but dangerous as well. The impurities in the blood are the seeds of disease.

INQUEST HELD ON DEATH OF ACTOR

Carl Linn Died of Fractured Skull in Fall After Party.

TORONTO, April 25.—(Canadian Press).—Eighteen witnesses were examined yesterday before Chief Coroner Dr. George W. Graham and a jury inquiring into the death of Carl Linn, member of the cast of "The Dream Girl," playing at a local Theatre this week. Linn died at Wellesley Hospital on Thursday night, following a party given by Miss Fay Bainter, star of the company, at a local hotel. Linn's death was due to a fractured skull, sustained when he is supposed to have fallen down a flight of stars in the hotel early on Thursday morning.

Testimony was given by Miss Bainter and by Sissle and Blake, colored entertainers. At the request of the Crown Attorney, Eric Armour, an adjournment was made until 11 o'clock this morning, when the Crown will endeavor to ascertain the source from which the beer served at the party was obtained and whether it was the usual temperance beverage. Evidence was given that Linn sufered from dizzy spells.

THE GUMPS—THE WISE OLD OWL

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL WILL ADVERTISE FOR A WATCHMAN TO ASSIST THE CHIEF OF POLICE

Chief Will Do Day Work and Assistant the Night Patrol.

NOT BINDING.

Tenders Will Be Received, But Need Not Be Accepted.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 25.—At a special meeting of the Town Council last night, with every member present, it was decided, on motion of Councillors Kingston and Abernethy, to have the Police Committee to advertise for an assistant to Chief Brown, who sent in a request to that effect at the last regular session. This does not commit the Council to the actually appointing of a night constable as the motion contains a provision that the lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted, but six of the nine members supported the motion both by argument and votes, the three opposed to it being Mayor Meyers and Councillors Cole and Moore.

The Committee's Report.

Reeve Davidson and Councillor Southworth compose the Police Committee to which Councillor Moore had been added at the last regular meeting, for the purpose of dealing with Chief Brown's request for an assistant. The committee brought in a report recommending that the request be granted. The reasons given for taking this stand were that one man could not properly look after the police work of the town. If an assistant is appointed the Chief can devote all his time to day work and can look after the enforcement of the by-laws, a work which is now performed by A. J. Beavis, who receives $25 a month, but who is willing to retire.

Town Losing Money.

The report goes on to say that the town is losing money under the present arrangement. Hawkers and transient traders now ply their trade in the daytime, when they know that there is no officer on duty, without paying any license fee. Bootleggers, too, can operate if there is only one constable to watch them. Altogether, the report concludes with a day and night man the town can get more satisfactory results.

Praises Chief Brown.

Mayor Meyers said that he was convinced that Chief Brown is a first-class officer, one whom it would be difficult, if not impossible, to replace for the same money. Still the Mayor believed, the town cannot afford another constable. Campbellford is one of the most peaceful places in Ontario and one policeman should be sufficient. A policeman is required at night more than at any other time, and that is when the best man should be on duty.

Other Opinions.

Councillor Kingston thought that the appointing of another policeman would pay. Chief Brown had given the town good service, and if he were to quit things would soon be as bad as they ever were before.

Councillor Southworth contended that the poll tax, dog tag and various license fees, now uncollected, could be saved to the town if Chief Brown had a chance to get around in the daytime.

Councillor Abernethy, whose business keeps him on the streets the greater part of the day, argued that a day man is required to enforce the traffic by-laws and for other duties that he cannot perform if he is kept up all night.

Councillor Moore agreed with Mayor Meyers that the town cannot afford to pay out any more money for police service.

Mayor Meyers said that Chief Brown complains that he has no proper place in which to lock up a prisoner. The Mayor believed that if this condition were remedied that the Chief would be better satisfied with his position.

Councillor Wiggins thought the town should not tie itself up in a contract with a new man for one year, and suggested that the proposed change be given a six months' trial. This idea met with approval, and it was further stated that all policemen are now engaged subject to a month's notice.

The motion of Councillors Kingston and Abernethy was then put, and Reeve Davidson, Deputy-Reeve Palliser, Councillors Kingston, Wiggins, Southworth and Abernethy voted in the affirmative. The Mayor declared the motion carried without calling for the negative vote.

Children's Playgrounds.

Deputy-Reeve Palliser brought up a matter which he has had in mind for some time, but which he was not able to present to the Council before on account of absence through illness, the laying out of playgrounds for children. He suggested one on each side of the river, the grounds to be fitted up being in the rear of the building that by courtesy is called a jail and the plot of land behind the Armouries. He also advocated a free camping ground for visiting autoists as one of the best means of advertising Campbellford.

C. Montgomery appeared before Council to ask that the lot behind the Armouries be fitted up as a place where girls could play softball, and this brought up the question of other improvements in and around the building which the town has leased from the Government as a home for the local Militia Company. Major J. M. Bygott says the company will keep the front lawn in order if the town will fence the Tice Street side to prevent pedestrians from cutting the corner.

Now that a sewer has been put in on Sebastopol Street, it is suggested that the town put in a branch connecting it and the building.

Deputy-Reeve Palliser and Councillors Wiggins and Cole were appointed a committee to look into these matters and a report will be submitted at the May meeting.

W. Bidgood was on hand with a couple of witnesses to press his claim for $40 for lumber borrowed by the sewer construction gang and which he claims was not returned.

Reeve Davidson moved that as Mr. Bidgood did not appear to know the exact value of the lumber, that he be paid $15. This motion was seconded by Councillor Southworth and carried.

Mr. Bidgood left the room declaring that he would not accept that sum in settlement.

Fixing the Streets.

Nearly two hours were spent in discussing street work. Councillor Cole, who is chairman of the Committee on Roads and Bridges, said that between six and seven thousand yards of crushed stone would be required on the streets this year. Street Foreman Robert Fox offers to supply a crusher and to lay the stone down on the streets for 93 cents a yard, if given a five-year contract, the town to supply nothing but the raw material.

Councillor Moore presented figures to show that if the town bought a crusher and did this work the cost would be $104.08 a yard.

Councillor Kingston was opposed to the idea of a long contract, as new material for paving was being introduced and might be used here, and for that all that is needed is a steam roller. He would like to see some paving done on Front Street this year.

Finally it was decided to have the Committee on Roads and Bridges ascertain upon what terms a roller and crusher, new or used, can be purchased and whether a roller could not be hired from the county when needed.

Second Street Sewer.

Work on the second street sewer will commence when the sewer on the west side is completed. It was decided to build this sewer by day labor. The proposed sewer on Market Street will not run through rock, and as the digging will be easy it was decided to advertise for tenders, these to be opened on June 1st.

No Outsiders Need Apply.

It was decided to give employment on the sewers only to married men who have their families here and to bar young fellows who drift in from the country or from other towns.

The Council adjourned at midnight.

WHAT THE COUNCIL DID

Instructed Police Committee to advertise for an assistant for Police Chief Brown.

Appointed a special committee to deal with question of a playground for children on each side of the river.

Settled for $15, bill of W. Bidgood, who claimed $40 for lumber loaned to the town.

Authorized committee on roads and bridges to get information as to the cost of a stone crusher and a steam roller, new or used.

Decided to proceed with sewer construction work on Second street, when sewer on west side is completed.

Agreed to employ married householders only on sewer work and to bar young men from outside the corporation.

MET IN WARKWORTH.

CAMPBELLFORD, pril 25. — J. Nelson Stone, president, and A. J. Meyers, secretary of the Liberal Association of Northumberland County, were in Cobourg attending an informal gathering of some of the leading Liberals in the county. It was decided to hold a convention at Warkworth in the second or third week of June to select a candidate for the next Federal election.

Praise for Committee.

The committee of management for the I.O.D.E. concert Thursday night, consisted of Mesdames R. W. Scott, Earl Greig, F. J. Smith and J. A. Stewart. The success of the entertainment was largely due to the energy of these ladies, both in arranging the programme and in drilling the actors in their different roles.

Tendered a Shower.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Moore, who were married on Monday, on their return from a bridal trip, were tendered a shower on Thursday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barrie. Many beautiful and useful gifts were received by the young couple. There was a large number of guests present from Campbellford and Percy Township, and dancing was indulged in until an early hour. Mr. and Mrs. Moore leave next week for their home near Warkworth.

PROTESTS USE OF HIGH SCHOOL AS PUBLIC HALL

Captain Hyland, Owner of Regent Theatre, Will Apply For Injunction.

CITES SCHOOL ACT.

Will First Send Letter to the School Board, Calling Attention to Act.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 25—Trouble that has been brewing here for some time has reached a crisis. Capt. Hyland, proprietor of the Regent Theatre, engaged a lawyer yesterday to take steps to enjoin the Board of Education from renting the auditorium of the High School as a public hall.

Before the completion of the High School the Regent Theatre was the only building in town where dances and large public meetings could be held but since the Board of Education decided to rent the Auditorium for public meetings, dances and acrd parties the old order has been changed.

Capt. Hyland this week sent for and received a legal opinion from Toronto which cites the section of the school law dealing with this question. The statute says that a Board of Education can permit the use of any part of a school building for educational purposes so long as this does not interefere with the regular school work. The party or parties so using the building shall be required to pay only the actual cost, including the heating, lights and extra janitor work. The Board, however, the Act adds, has no right to rent the building to a company or society for a fixed sum in competition with any public hall in the same town.

Retains Mr. MacColl

Capt. Hylan yesterday retained N. Alex. MacColl to carry this matter before the Board of Education and as it is his desire to have an amicable settlement the first step in the proceedure will be a letter to Major J. M. Bygott, chairman of the Board, calling attention to the statute governing such matters. The next regular meeting of the Board will be held on Thursday evening of next week.

Board Had Advice

When the question of renting the Auditorium for dancing parties first came up last summer, J. L. Hoover, who was a trustee in 1924, wrote the Minister of Education asking if this could be legally done. In reply he received a brief statement to the effect that if the revenue derived from renting the auditorium was applied to the maintenance of the school, the law would be observed both in letter and in spirit. A regular schedule of charges for the various classes of entertainments was drawn up.

Cites Other Cases.

Captain Hyland cites parallel cases that have been disposed of in other cities. In St. Thomas an attempt to hold a school dance in the Collegiate Institute failed as it was held that such an entertainment was barred by the act. In Hamilton legal action brought to a conclusion the system in existence here and the same result was reached in St. Catharines. Renfrew has a new Collegiate but all attempts to hold dances and other secular entertainments have failed, the board refusing the use of the auditorium for any such purposes.

Captain Hyland says too that the auditorium is not so constructed as to comply with the law governing buildings where public meetings are held as there are no fire exits and the chairs are not fastened to the floor. He says that he has been made to comply with the law in every respect and sees no reason why competitors should be immune.

So far the Board of Education has derived a rent of over $20 from the rent of the auditorium.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL

Next to a native, born son of Campbellford the best type of citizen it is conceded is the one who settles here from Warkworth, or any part of Percy Township for that matter. It has always been taken as an evidence of intelligence on the part of such aliens that in looking for a new field with wider opportunities they deserted their native heath and settled in a real live burg. There is a large number of such adopted sons here, and they are all reputable citizens, active in the life of the community and all doing well in their business ventures.

Walter S. Wiggins is one of these naturalized Campbellfordites. He was born in Warkworth, not so many years ago, in which town his father was in business, and in the vicinity of which his maternal grandfather, the late John Closson, was one of the earliest pioneers, settling as he did in Percy Township over 100 years ago, where he was engaged in the carriage making and blacksmith trade.

Mr. Wiggins entered business life in Campbellford when he was old enough to branch out for himself and has been successful from the beginning, gradually extending the scope of his operations. He takes a prominent part in the social life of the town, is president of the Curling Club, a member of the Bowling Club and of the Masonic Order. He was elected a member of the Town Council in 1921 and 1922, but the following year lost out in a three-corner contest for the Deputy-Reeveship, a combination that has spelled reverse for so many men aside altogether from their merits. He remained in private life until this year, when his friends brought him out again and stood by him faithfully at the polls.

Mr. Wiggins is young and full of energy. He has faith in the future of his adopted town, has a share of the legitimate ambition which animates any good citizens, and those who know him best are satisfied that he will go still higher in public life.

BECK NOT BETTER.

Sir Adam Will Not Be Able to Leave Hospital For Month.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 25 (Canadian Press) — It is not expected that Sir Adam Beck will be able to leave the Johns Hopkins Hospital for another month or six weeks. He is still in bed and his physicians have arranged for a fourth blood transfusion within the next week. It is expected there will be a fifth transfusion within the week following.

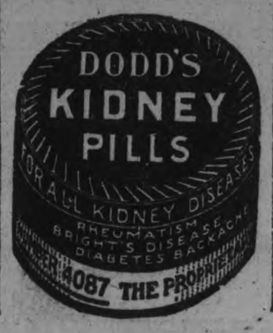
Dr. Elliott described the stairway as having steel plates at one part of it, and on one part of them a slight elevated part of it like a nipple, and when he examined it closely with a flash light he found blood traces on it and bits of hair.

Says No Liquor At Party.

"Absolutely false," declared Mr. P. Hunt, manager of the King Edward Hotel, when told of reports that "The Dream Girl" celebration was a "wet" party. "I gave strict instructions that no liquor whatever was to be taken into the party by the members, and Miss Fay Bainter gave similar instructions. To make sure that nothing of the kind was done I sent up an assistant manager and in the report he left for me he said that the party was perfectly orderly.

"The party began at 12.30 with supper," Mr. Hunt continued, "and it was over by 3.15, so that there was no time for extravagant revelry. Miss Bainter was most anxious that liquor should be banned and I know that every member of the company knew and respected her wishes. Many stories have been circulated regarding the death of Lynn which we know to be erroneous. He left the party quite early—long before it was over—and he apparently visited other rooms in the hotel, for he was seen by the night watchman between four and five o'clock. The night watchman spoke to him and Lynn said he was going along to his room. He could not have gone to his room at once for the watchman descended the same stairs on which he was afterwards found lying dead.

"The statement made that two people obtained bottles of liquor at the party was untrue. There was no liquor for them to have. It is possible they visited professional friends in other rooms of the hotel and obtained supplies from them. We try our hardest to prevent liquor being taken to rooms, but of course we cannot cut out the practice altogether. If guests get rowdy we ask them to leave—that is all there is to it."



On through to the kitchen, and then to a shelf where always a cookie jar stands. I peered in the jar—then I took one myself. 'Twas missed by some wee little hands.

THAT $60,000 FINE.

There is a ontroversy between the city of Toronto and the Province as to which should receive the $60,000 fine paid by Ameilius Jarvis as part of his sentence.

Technically as the law stands, Toronto has a claim to the fine, because it was imposed and paid in that city where the offence was committed and the case heard.

Morally, however, the Queen City has no earthly right to a cent of the $60,000, and should not receive any portion of the fine.

The Province was the loser by the transaction in question, Provincial officers investigated the case and made the arrests and the prosecution was directed by the Attorney-General, and on those grounds the title of the Province is clear.

There are times, of course, when Toronto appears to think she is the whole of Ontario, but in this particular case the rest of the Province is not likely to watch undisturbed the attempt of one municipality to grab a sum of money that from a common-sense viewpoint belongs to Ontario generally.

If possession is 99 per cent. of the law, the Province is on a good footing, inasmuch as the $60,000 cheque is now in the hands of the Provincial Treasurer.

THE CAPE BRETON STRIKE.

Meanwhile these men are brother Canadians, the women are sisters of our mothers and wives, and the little children are our peculiar care, says the Montreal Star in discussing the Cape Breton strike, the blame for which it places upon the shoulders of the officials of the United Mine Workers of America. The political aspect of the strike must be laid aside. We must think in terms of bread and meat and milk tickets, and not in terms of U. M. W. regulations or of the demands of strikers. It is too dear a price to pay for political victory to injure permanently the health of hundreds of men and womes, to endanger the lives of thousands of children and to embitter a whole section with the seeds of class hatred.

Whatever may have been the motives of the strike or the neglect of the officials, Canada must unite in organizing relief for these distressed families. The charitable must open up their purse strings and the whole machinery of relief must be put into motion. There must be no skimping of funds. The call for action is urgent and immediate, and the names of the organizations behind the appeal now issued is an earnest of the determination with which Canada will tackle the problem. French and English, Catholic and Protestant are united on common ground. The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada and the Canadian Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers endorse the appeal.

There is one name absent—the Gentlemen of Indianapolis. Their millions are not available.

FIGHTING AGAINST DIPHTHERIA.

The Examiner earnestly commends the attention of the parents of local school children to the communication elsewhere in this issue from Dr. A. W. McPherson, the School Medical Officer, in which that official announces another campaign to immunize school children against diphtheria.

Last year some 500 children were tested, and those found to be susceptible to the dread disease—about 75 per cent., Dr. McPherson reports—were inoculated with toxin anti-toxin, with the result that the 500 can be pronounced as practically imnune against diphtheria.

The authorities now propose to widen the circle of immunization by treating as many more pupils as possible, and as the process is a simple one with no disturbing after-effects and the work is done free of any charges, it is hoped that many parents will avail themselves of this chance to protect their children against a disease that is of a most dangerous character.

Last year when a similar campaign was held some parents foolishly allowed themselves to be influenced by the propaganda set up by a few people who apparently considered themselves as knowing more about the subject than the medical profession, and as a result refused to permit their children to be tested and innoculated.

That was a misfortune, not only so far as the individual children were concerned, but also for the community, for it is obvious that the more school pupils are made immune to diphtheria the less danger there is of an epidemic of the disease.

In the general interest it is to be hoped that the majority of the school children not yet tested will be dealt with next week, and that the city will have the assurance that a very large percentage of the pupils of the local schools are protected against diphtheria.

HOPE AT LAST.

The press campaign throughout the country at the waste of time caused by long-winded speeches in the House of Commons is apparently beginning to bear fruit.

It is now announced that a special committee of the House has under consideration a rule which will limit all speeches to thirty minutes, except the speeches of leaders, who will be given more leeway.

An exception would also be made in the case of a motion of non-confidence, when the mover would not be limited, nor the Minister speaking in reply.

Regardless of political affiliations, the people of this country will be behind such a reform to a man.

The electors are "fed up" with the present Budget debate, and with what is entailed in the time consumed in getting-nowhere talk.

They know exactly what will happen—because they have seen it happen so often.

They know that when the debate finally terminates the members will become restine, anxious to get home, and that consequently a lot of important public business will be galloped through in the last few days of the session.

This has been the case year after year, and the public has grown tired both of footing the bills for weeks of useless Budget speeches and of watching the last-minute rush which gives little or no time for the proper consideration of business that matters.

The Budget was brought down a month ago yesterday, on March 24th, and the end of the debate is not yet in sight.

By all means let the House approve the 30-minute limit, as in its own interest and that of the country

A TRAGEDY OF THE SEA.

Some of the passengers on board the White Star liner Homeric have been loud in their criticism of Captain John Roberts of that steamer because he failed to make "a heroic effort" to save the crew of the Japanese freighter Raifuku Maru when she foundered off Nova Scotia last Tuesday.

The record of Capt. Roberts in the Gallipoli campaign and his 40 years' service are sufficient guarantee that if he did not save any lives it was because the circumstances were such that rescue was impossible.

He raced his ship seventy miles through a terrific gale with a tremendously high sea running when the sinking steamer's S.O.S. signals were picked up—and then was unable to save the crew of the Raifuku Maru because it was impossible to lower lifeboats, and because he could not approach the Japanese steamer closely on account of the danger to his own vessel.

Had he had only himself to think of Captain Roberts might have taken a chance, but he was in command of one of the largest liners in the world, with the lives of hundreds of seamen and passengers depending upon his judgment, and to attempt to come to close quarters with a 55-mile-an-hour gale blowing would have been to run the risk of a terrible disaster—a risk that he was not justified in taking.

It must have been heart-breaking for the captain and crew of the Homeric that a rescue could not be effected—and the criticism of a few passenger ignorant of the real facts will be only a pin-prick as compared with the regret that will be felt by the Homeric's complement.

THE GREAT ADVENTURE.

Possibly by May 15, almost certainly before the Queen's Birthday, we will—those of us who like "stronger waters"—have tasted and delivered judgment upon 4.4. There seems to be some uncertainty about the date, and from the number of times the Premier and the Provincial Treasurer and the Provincial Secretary have been questioned and their replies quoted in news despatches there seems to be quite a bit of anxiety about it. But not later than May 24 will have been launched an experiment in Ontario the results of which can hardly be foreseen. The die-hard prohibitionists say it is a blow at their cause, that it is evil, a political vote-catcher when taken in connection with the Redistribution Act. Those who call themselves moderationists—the large class out of sympathy with the O. T. A. as we have known it for several years—declare that it is a real temperance measure in that it will cut down the consumption of hard liquor, and that it forces the bootlegger to look outside the Province for his prey.

Getting down to the great question of the hour, it is said that 4.4 is about the same as pre-war United States beers, lighter than those served over the bars in Ontario in the old days, but not hard to take. All agree that it is vastly different from the common drink in Quebec. But the brewers say little about it and the laymen may be all wrong.

Turning to the question of revenue, fairly big questions arise. When the Legislature received the report of the Board of License Commissioners for 1924 there were some interesting things brought out. It was shown that in dollars and cents the sale of beer, ale and stout was not more than six or seven per cent. of the total liquor business done by the Province. The total sales last year amounted to $5,028,747. Net profit of the Commission was $867,-700, or 17.44 per cent. The cost of stock and of doing business was thus $4,160,976. From its net profits the Commission turned over to the Treasurer of the Province $850,000. But that same liquor handled by the Province for the benefit of the sick, and which helped Ontario's taxpayers to the extent of $850,000, paid to the Dominion Treasury the sum of $2,198,-786.99—far more than twice as much as Ontario made out of it. In fact, over half of the cost went to the Dominion. In five years Ontario's share has amounted to less than three and a half millions of dollars.

This benefit to the Federal Government came from customs, excise and sales tax. Every bit of hard liquor imported or manufactured pays a sweet old tax to the Canadian Treasury.

Now comes 4.4. Will it really greatly curtail the sale of hard liquor? Is it going to bring about "real temperance," end the sway of the bootlegger, increase the revenue of the Province? If it does, the Dominion Treasury is going to suffer.

But then the bootlegger and the man who was caught with a "crock" paid almost $800,000 to the Province or municipalities in fines last year, almost $80,000 worth of liquor was confiscated, and motor cars seized by enforcement officers were sold for over $5,000. Will the new beer tax make this up when the new beer has chased the bootlegger out of Ontario and changed Ontario's taste?

Perhaps there are experts who have figured up what is going to happen to the satisfaction of the Provincial Government, but the average man is probably just wondering, with his chief interest centered on the quality and taste of that 4.4.

And just by the way—that's a tough name to give it. There should be a special name coined for the new brew. Its present title sounds too much like a scientist's discovery, and it's reminiscent of war. All who were in France and those who read detailed stories of the Great War will remember "Heinie's" 4.5. It was a treacherous, nasty thing. And that statement that 4.4 is like the American pre-war beer—it was a fairly general belief that the U. S. beer produced those determined singing clubs and bay windows.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

S. W. Jacobs, M.P., wants to flood Canada with immigrants. Getting them in might be much easier than putting them to work, however.

There is a variety to Ontario climate that California hasn't a chance in the world to emulate.

Some people seem to fear that the kick about patronage will be the only kick the 4.4 beer will present.

Even those who don't believe in saving daylight can see the advantage of saving the forests.

Day by day, in every way, the speeches at Ottawa are getting longer and longer.

Wise and Otherwise.

The report is out that a well-known popular song writer will marry. It serves him right.

We heard a man say, "Let's go fishing. I haven't had a drink since Christmas."

Our guess at the prohibition trouble is the people are full because the jails are not.

Maybe if a ghost leads a real nice life he becomes a human when he dies, who knows.

Women are real nice people, but sometimes we think they haven't a bit more sense than men.

Sometimes those who think they are making love are making a mistake.

This is the time of the year a man is too sick to work but still well enough to go fishing.

STERLING RATES

Sterling demand, $4.80⅝.
Sterling cables, $4.81.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, April 24. — (Canadian Press).—The condition of the egg market is steady owing to the fact that the competition for supplies throughout the country is kept and prices continue to be well maintained. It is reported the basis for storing in Montreal is 2 cents per dozen higher than at this time last year, and some dealers consider it too high and are doing comparatively no storing, while others consider values good and are storing freely. A number of sales are reported for export of chickens at 36 and 38 cents delivered London.

Toronto jobbing specials 34, extras 32, firsts 30, seconds 27.

Montreal unchanged. Quebec jobbing extras 34 to 35, firsts 31 to 32, seconds 29½ to 30.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, April 24.—(Canadian Press).—Rainy weather, beneficial to growing wheat, led to fresh downturns in price to-day for that cereal, and so likewise did reports that additional wheat was being shipped from Duluth to Chicago. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to one cent lower, May 1.52¼ to 1.53 3-4 and July 1.40½ to 1.40 3-4, and provisions 5 to 30 cents decline.

Continuance of good rains, especially in the south-west, knocked one of the chief props out from under the wheat market, and with only a limited export demand apparent the incentives for general buying were reduced to a maximum, excepting, however, the notable strength of sterling exchange. Meanwhile, estimates were current that world stocks of wheat are at approximately the same total as a year ago, when prices were much lower. Besides, downturns in quotations at Liverpool tended to promote selling here, and it was pointed out that May delivery at Liverpool had gone to the widest discount yet as compared with July.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, April 24.—(Canadian Press).—The demand from the United Kingdom for Canadian Western oats on the Montreal market today was steady, and as cables in some cases were stronger at an advance of 1½d per quarter, some sales of No. 2 grade were made for May shipment, but the trade in wheat and barley was reported slow. An easier feeling developed in the ocean freight market, and rates to Liverpool, London and Manchester were reduced another 3d per quarter with engagements of 25 to 30 loads of heavy grain late on Thursday to London at 2s per quarter and oats at 1s 9d per quarter, while the rates to all other ports were unchanged.

The feature of the domestic grain market was the improved demand from exporters for Canadian Western oats and sales of some fair-sized lots of No. 2 feed were made at 1 1-8 cents to 1¼ cents per bushel over the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f., Montreal. There was also a better demand from local buyers for other grades and on the whole a moderate amount of business was transacted.

Egg Market Steady.

A steady feeling prevailed in the local market for eggs and prices showed no important change owing to the fact that dealers generally are now storing for future requirements, and therefore the surplus supplies coming forward are being well taken care of and have no pressure on the market. The trade in a wholesale jobbing way was fairly active, there being a steady demand for small lots to meet actual wants. The receipts were 3,804 cases, as compared with 2,959 for the same day last week, and 3,710 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The demand for potatoes showed no improvement and the trade in car load lots was slow, but there was some demand for broken lots to meet actual wants and sales of No. 1 Green Mountain were made at 70c to 75c per bag, and Quebec varieties at 60c to 65c per bag of 90 lbs in bulk, ex-track.

Butter Prices Firm.

The receipts of butter were 446 packages, as compared with 444 for the same day last week, and 1,477 for the corresponding day a year ago. There were no special features in the trade to note, prices being firmly maintained with a fair amount of business passing and in consequence stocks of held creamery are being steadily reduced, with the result that the carry-over into the new season will be much smaller than was generally expected a month ago. The demand from local buyers for small lots to meet actual wants was steady and there was also further enquiry from outside sources for supplies.

The receipts of cheese were 853 boxes, as against 578 for the same day last week, and 221 for the corresponding day a year ago. An easy feeling prevails in the market, but there was no actual change in prices to note. It was reported that some further business was done over the cable, but the trading between houses on spot was quiet and the market on the whole was inactive, with Western No. 1 white and colored fodder made goods quoted at 18 3-4 per lb., and No. 2 grades at 17 3-4c per lb., with Quebec 20-lb. cheese at 16c to 17c per lb.

Beans remained at 2.70 per bushel.

COPS MUST LIVE IN CITY, SAYS HAMILTON CHIEF

A score or more members of the Hamilton police force are affected by an order by Chief of Police Coulter that every policeman must reside in the city. Chief Coulter's reasons for this edict are that persons receiving remuneration from municipality should pay their taxes to that municipality, and that every policeman should be within easy reach at all times. He contends officers living outside the city are beyond reach when off duty.

There are many policemen who have moved on to the mountain just outside the city limits for the sake of economy. They will have several months to make their arrangements to return to the city.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

She'd show Stanley Wayburn that she wasn't jealous!

She'd show him that it meant nothing to her how many times he might kiss Myra Gail . . . or any other woman!

. . . What was he in her life, anyway?

Nothing but a third-rate actor who happened to look like Valentino!

. . . And yet, somehow, the sight of him kissing Myra Gail had spoiled Gloria's whole evening. . . .

Someone laid a hand on her bare arm. Glory turned.

Stan!

"Look here, Russet!" he said, "what are you so sore about? You told me to give your sad-eyed friend a thrill, and I did my best to give her one."

"I'll say you did!" Gloria answered. "And anyway, I'm not sore about it. I dare say you've kissed hundreds of women. . . . Why should I worry about your kissing Myra Gail?"

She went back into the kitchen.

"I'll have that coffee now, please," she said to Maggie, "and then let's serve supper. I'm sick and tired of this party, anyway!"

She drank her coffee. May and Jim came in. Jim was carrying two cocktail glasses.

May drank the content of both, daintily.

"I drink to Married Life!" she cried. "Scrappy days!"

May was a kitchen drinker. Dr. John, her husband, had forbidden her to drink. So May had to have her cocktails when he was out of sight.

"I wish to goodness some kind patient would send in a hurry call for my hubby," May said now. "It cramps my style terribly to have him around at parties. . . . He's so afraid I might happen to have a good time! Go, hunt him up, Glory, and dance with him, while I have my little drink in peace!"

Glory went. She found Dr. John and Lola Hough sitting on the stairs talking about Lola's babies.

"You haven't danced with me all evening, Dr. Johnny," Glory pouted.

Instantly the doctor was on his feet. He put his arms around Gloria, but she slipped out of them.

She crumpled up in a heap on the floor!

Glory lay there without moving. . . .

But she seemed to be going around and around . . . and around. There was a sound like rushing wind in her ears.

Above it she heard Myra Gail's high voice.

"Our hostess seems to have passed out of the picture," she was saying. "I thought she was drinking more than she could stand!"

Then Gloria felt Dick's arms around her.

Without opening her eyes she knew they were Dick's arms. Strong as steel. . . .

"She'll be all right in a minute . . . she was a bit dizzy," Glory heard Dr. John's kind voice. "I tell you, Dick, these girls shouldn't drink! They can't get away with it. Nobody can!"

. . . "Good-night, Sappho!" the girl heard Bill Hough call in his clownish way. And she knew that Dick was carrying her upstairs.

* * *

She tried to tell him so. But she was too tired. . . . If only the sick feeling in her stomach would go away! Ugh!

* * *

What a ghastly party!

And what a fool she had made of herself!

If only she hadn't asked Stan Wayburn to come!

For Glory knew that if she hadn't been so up set about Wayburn and Myra, she would never have taken those last two cocktails, and then fainted!

. . . That was the effect Wayburn had always upon her . . . to make her do wild, reckless things that she didn't want to do! Things that she was ashamed of afterward!

Dick was worth 10 Stanley Wayburns. . . . And yet Dick couldn't make her glow and tremble by simply clasping her hand, as Stan could!

. . . And Gloria wondered if she would care if she came upon Dick kissing another woman.

She supposed she would. . . . She wasn't sure. But then Dick wouldn't do such a thing!

There floated up to her sounds of the merrymaking downstairs.

The jazz band was playing "Tea for Two" again.

Someone was singing it in a husky tenor. . . . Stan Wayburn's voice!

"Nobody near us,

"To see us, or hear us. . . ."

* * *

Gloria clenched her little hands. The nails bit into her palms.

. . . In her mind's eye she could see Myra Gail watching Stan with her, long gray eyes. And Stan, no doubt was singing the love-sick words straight at her!

. . . Well, Gloria made up her mind she'd soon put a stop to that!

"Dick!" she called sharply. Her mind was almost clear again.

"Well," he answered. He standing looking out of the window.

"Don't you think you ought to go down to our guests?" Glory asked. "Tell Maggie to serve supper right away. Then they'll go home. I'm so tired of the noise I could die! . . . Get rid of them all, please!"

Dick came over to her. He sat down on the edge of the bed.

"Glory," he said harshly, "I'm going to ask you a question. And I want the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth! Get me?"

Glory nodded. She held her breath.

"This fellow Wayburn. . . . How long have you known him?"

"Oh, a couple of years. I used to have a sort of kid's crush on him," Glory answered.

"And you still have?" Dick asked. "You still have a crush on him?"

Glory closed her eyes.

"I wouldn't answer your foolish question!" she said. "Look here, Dick Gregory, what do you think you're doing . . . giving me the third degree?"

Dick set his square jaw. Suddenly he seized Glory in those flexible steel hands of his. He shook her.

"Answer me!" he said. "You are in love with him, aren't you?"

Glory gave a little scream.

"Oh, you're hurting me!" she cried.

Dick loosened his hold. There were white marks on the pale-rose flesh of her arm where his fingers had pressed.

Instantly he was all tenderness.

"Darling I did hurt you! I'm sorry," he said.

Glory leaned back on the pillows and closed her burning eyes. Dick stroked her hair back from her damp forehead.

He looked at the dress Gloria had worn that night, as it lay across the back of a chair. He wondered what staggering sum she had paid for it.

. . . Well, when the bill came in he would pay it cheerfully, no matter what it was!

For, after all, she was his only reason for working and making money. Without her . . . well, Dick couldn't picture life without Gloria!

* * *

There was a knock on the door. Then Maggie's troubled voice.

"Mr. Dick," she called. "Shall I serve supper or not? The company seems to be leaving. Something's happened. You'd better come downstairs!"

Glory opened her eyes.

"There, you see!" she cried. "I told you to go downstairs and get that wild crowd out of the house before the whole party went blooey! . . . What's happened, Maggie?"

But Maggie had followed Dick downstairs.

Gloria crept out of bed. Her head swam. But she went out into the hall to listen.

Below there was a babble of voices. The front door slammed.

Then she heard someone running up the stairs toward her. . . It was Lola Hough. She was crying.

"What in the world is the matter down there? What's happened?" Glory whispered. She drew Lola into her bedroom and closed the

She was much more interested in the outcome of her party than in Lola's tears just now.

"Oh, it was jtist me and my crazy jealousy!" Lola sobbed. She had sunk down upon the floor beside Glory's dressing table. "You know . . . you know Bill's always been wild about May Seymour! And she doesn't give a snap of her fingers about him! . . . Well, he was trying to kiss her behind the curtains in your sunroom, and I saw him. . . . And I guess I lost my head. . . ." Her voice ended in a burst of sobbing.

"What did you do when you lost your head?" Glory asked coldly.

She had no sympathy for this shabby woman who did not know how to hold her husband. . . . It was her own fault if he made love to women who had sense enough to take care of their looks . . . to keep their "pep" and style!

"Oh, I bawled him out in front of everybody," Lola replied dismally. "I bawled the whole crowd out! . . . I 'said my soul' about these drinking parties! . . . Somebody's husband and somebody else's wife making love in dark corners! Everybody getting pie-eyed and spoony!"

* * *

Lola stopped to wipe her eyes. Then she went on.

"What fun married people get out of petting parties like these I fail to see!" she cried. "To me they're horrors!"

Glory drew in her breath. When she spoke her voice tinkled like ice in a glass.

"Well, Lola," she said, sarcastically, "I'm glad you enjoyed my party."

Lola stood up, and began to brush her hair before the mirror.

"Oh, I know I've made you angry, Glory," she said. "But I've reached the point where I don't care what people think of me! . . . Bill's just driving me crazy. He's never at home! He hardly ever gives me a cent for the house! I'm up to my eyes in debt. . . . And then when we go out any place where May Seymour is, he drinks and makes a fool of himself over her. . . ."

"And what does May do? She snaps her fingers at him!" Glory broke in. "And that's why he's in love with her . . . because she doesn't care whether he lives or dies! . . . O, can't you see, Lola, that the way to make Bill love you is to treat him like a doormat?"

. . . Lola looked at her, wide-eyed.

"A jazz palace!" Glory told her. "You show your husband a good time at home . . . and he won't wander all over town looking for it somewhere else! Show a little pep, Lola! . . . Go out and buy yourself a face massage and some new clothes . . . and make Bill foot the bills!"

But Lola shook her head.

"You don't know Bill," she said. "He never pays for anything!"

* * *

Glory looked at her.

Lola's hair was faded. Her mouth drooped. Her sallow skin was innocent of powder. . . . And she had worn that same foulard dress to every party for the last two years!

She was beaten . . . whipped. Life had passed her by.

Well, that was what Life did to you if you let it!

. . . And just let Dick try to keep from her . . . from Gloria Gordon Gregory . . . the things that were coming to her! The attention! The clothes! The good times!

She'd be no Lola Hough to sit by and cry! Not this year . . . or any other!

* * *

The door opened. Dick came in.

"Well, everybody's gone," he said. Then he turned to Lola.

"Bill's waiting to drive you home. I'll take you downstairs." Dick's voice dropped to a whisper, "Don't say a word to him. He's sore as a pup!"

KEEP HOME MARKETFOR MANUFACTURER AND ASSURE FAIR PRICES TO CONSUMER FEATURES OF PATTERSON TARIFF PLAN

Winnipeg Business Man Proposes Solution of Canadian Industrial and Mercantile Problems—Appoint Tariff Commissioner to Supervise the Operation of the Scheme.

MAINTAIN PRESENT SELLING PRICES.

Plan Contemplates Advantages to Both Manufacturer and Consumer—Minister of Customs the Final Authority.

TORONTO, April 25—The "Patterson Tariff Plan" was made public today by its sponsor, H. K. Patterson, Winnipeg business man, who announces he has given years of study to the subject from a national angle. His proposals are endorsed by Ralph Connable of Toronto, well known Canada manager of a chain of retail stores, who recently announced his retirement from business to enter Canadian politics with the purpose of working toward increased purchasing power for the Canadian consumer's dollar.

In recommending the Patterson plan to the Canadian public Mr. Connable says in part as follows: "The prosperity of Canada hinges on two factors, namely to increase payrolls and a greater purchasing power for the dollar. Both of these objects can be attained within a short time after this Pattrson plan is put into effect.

"By his plan 80 per cent. of goods similar to those manufactured in Canada will be positively barred from other countries, and there can be absolutely no advance in the selling price of any article of Canadian product. In fact the present selling price of Canadian manufacture will be gradually reduced.

"In connection with this there should not be a noticeable decrease in customs revenue on foreign goods."

A Practical Solution

Mr. Connable goes on to say that the plan as presented by Mr. Patterson in simply a crude outline of the idea which has already been pronounced by leaders in both political parties, outstanding characters among the consumers, especially in the prairie provinces, as well as the heads of manufacturing corporations, as being a practical solution of the problems that confront Canada today, especialy regarding unemployment.

Mr. Patterson's plan, even in this incomplete form, runs into several thousand words, and what follows is a summary only of some of the more salient points:

(1) The plan must be satisfactory to consumer and manufacturer alike. The consumer does not want to pay more than the present prices but "the manufacturer must have protection against foreign importations which today are killing Canadian industries." Therefore, says Mr. Patterson, he would prohibit Canadian manufacturers increasing their present selling price, but would increase their output by eliminating 80 per cent of foreign competition, giving the mpractically all the Canadian market, which would mean lower costs on account of big production, and a fair profit, permitting them to put in up-to-date plants and thus be able to bid for export business.

A Tariff Commissioner

Mr. Patterson suggests trying the plan out at once on two or three industries that need protection most, other groups being taken in progressively. Machinery to be set up would be appointment by the Dominion Government of a Tariff Commissioner, a man of mark above and beyond all outside influence, with whom would be associated in an advisory capacity one representative of the consumers and one of the manufacturers, with the Minister of Customs as final arbitrator. The Tarriff Commissioner would have power to change the tariff without notice and be given control over selling prices, and to examine the books of all manufacturers receiving protection.

"In the past," says Mr. Patterson, "the Canadian manufacturers, it is claimed, have raised the selling prices in Canada on Canadian goods to a point almost equal to the price of the imported article. This could not happen under my plan, as the penalty would be so severe in case the manufacturer broke faith with the Commissioner that it would put them out of business—penalty being the elimination of all duties on imported goods in that line."

(2) The Commissioner would grant the right to manufacturers to raise their Canadian selling prices to meet rise in wages and raw material, but they must alternately submit to a reduction if these are reduced.

(3) The Commissioner would, wherever possible ,allow raw material not produced in Canada to come in free.

Would Mark Prices

"I am confident," says Mr. Patterson, "that 99 per cent of the retail merchants are honest, but to prevent the unscrupulous retailer from charging higher prices for Canadian goods than the price set by the manufacturer, I would recommend that all Canadian manufacturers stamp his goods wherever possible not only with his name but the retail selling price."

Mr. Patterson proposes penalties of fining or jailing for infringement by retailers of the manufacturer's "fair prices." He says — "I would suggest a law being made to prevent any retailer in Canada from raising the price that a Canadian manufacturer sets as a fair price on his goods, and make the penalty in the first instance a severe fine, and in the second a jail sentence of at least six months. This would prevent an unscrupulous Canadian retailer from attempting to charge as much for the Canadian manufactured article as the consumer would have to pay if he insisted upon buying imported goods."

There should be a selling differential as between east and west to cover the long haul either way, according to the plan.

Something Necessary

"I hold no brief for the Canadian manufacturers," says Mr. Patterson. "I am a Canadian, first, last and always. I have seen with my own eyes a large number of manufacturing plants in Canada, and I feel if something is not done to protect our industries, we might as well egt out of the manufacturing business and settle down to farming, lumbering, mining and fishing as in the early 70's, for the way we are heading means that the United States and foreign manufacturers will supply the demands of Canada, and force the larger percentage of Canadian manufacturers out of business."

MYSTERY OF "THE HOUSE OF DEATH" BAFFLED BEST BRAINS OF SCOTLAND YARD FORCES

Stolid London Policemen Stumbled Upon Carnival of Death in Cottage Surrounded by Its Emblems — Pathologists, Poison Experts and Dectives Knock Fruitlessly on the Door of Death—House Saw High Jinks.

A Corner of the House of Death, with grounds surrounding it, showing the forgotten graves and the unsightly litter. Inset is John Selwyn Foster, with arrow pointing to room in which his body was found.

(By Milton Bronner.)

London, April 25.—They came knockin for admittance to the House of Death, two sturdy commonplace London policemen, and their only answer was the echo of their knocking. They were surrounded by death—the relics of it in the shape of an old graveyard, the charnel-house reminders of it in old human bones carelessly thrown into dusty boxes. And then they broken in the door, they stumbled right into a carnival of death.

Huddled in a dead, inert heap on the floor lay the poisoned body of John Selwyn Foster, 21.

Half hanging in a dirty cupboard was the gas-asphyxiated body of Granville Cooke, 53.

And immediately all the machinery of Scotland Yard, its best detectives, its poison experts, its pathologists were set to work to learn whether:

Cooke and Foster died accidentally;

Cook and Foster died by suicide pact;

Cooke killed Foster and then committed suicide.

And the deeper the police dug into the mystery, the deeper it became.

Take the scene. Years ago it was a graveyard attached to the old church of St. George the Martyr in Handel Street, King's Cross. The place was bought by Dr. Thomas Cooke, a brilliant anatomist, whose learning was so great that he was allowed to run the only private school of anatomy in Great Britain.

Everything succeeded for Dr. Cooke. He biult a college on part of the graveyard site. Near it he erected a four-room cottage. Students flocked to his lectures. He married a handsome French countess. He had a son, Granville, who was good looking and clever. The boy was educated here and at Bonn University, Germany.

One day Dr. Cooke dropped dead of heart failure while lecturing. His college was closed. The place was given over to the bats and the mice. And then Granville Cooke came to it and took possession. Sometimes he stayed away for lengthy periods. Continental journeys, he told inquisitive neighbors.

Fact was, his absences were caused by imprisonment in British jails. Five times he was convicted of fraud or theft.

One was a peculiarly mean case. He wrote verses commemorative of Britain's dead in the war and he had them peddled in the neighborhood of the great cenotaph in Whitehall that Britain raised to its dead. It was given out that the proceeds would go to St. Dunstan's institution for blinded soldiers. Instead, Cooke pocketed the money.

He made utter wreck of his life.

He once scribbled on the wall of the Death House:

"Give me a girl that will put her arms around your neck and kiss you, that will run for your shoes and put them on your feet when you come in tired with wet boots, that will fetch your packet of cigarettes and strike a match to light them for you, that will do everything save flirt with other fellows, and will pray beside you when you go to bed."

And the man who wrote this pious wish had a good wife and a brave son, and couldn't keep them. And he married another good girl and couldn't keep her, either. Also he made lots of money honestly and couldn't keep it.

Right after he left the German university he made over $20,000 out of a patented tire. The money flowed through his spendthrift fingers. Then he invented a patented steel grip for bicycle tires and got $50,000 for it, plus $2,500 a year. That also went away.

Each time he came out of prison he managed to conceal his shame from his neighbors. When his affairs prospered, he appeared in fine clothes in swell west end restaurants. When he was broke, he peddled his own verses from door to door. In the last down of his ups and downs he met John Selwyn Foster.

The younger man came from a prosperous north of England family. But he, too, had been a ne'er-do-well. He had served a term in jail for fraud and then came to London and lived the life of a young man about town when in funds, and as a race horse tout when broke.

Foster came to live with Cooke in the Death House. Here they drank and held high jinks. And here they quarreled over a matter of money. Foster had a reversionary interest in his father's estate. He had signed a paper deeding over certain rights to Cooke. But the latter learned he had given a similar paper to somebody else.

In the some 450 documents written by Cooke, that the police impounded, there was a bill that Cooke had rendered Foster for board and lodging at the four-room cottage, the Death House. They had quarreled over this.

And in Cooke's papers there were many verses. They quarreled over these, too, because Foster ridiculed the pious tone adopted by the jail bird when he became a poet.

They they came to the end of their resources. When found dead there were not more than 35 cents between them and starvation.

And so isolated is the Death House in the very heart of tumultuous, gigantic London, that their dead bodies might have lain there rotting for months had it not been for a workman to whom they owed money for a job. He came day after day knocking at the door and getting no reply. Then he notified became also the House of Mystery, the police and the House of Death

OBITUARY.

FRANCIS SULLIVAN.

(Contributed.)

On Saturday afternoon, April 18, occurred the death of Francis Sullivan at the advanced age of 86, one time a resident of Ennismore, Ont. He was born and raised in Ennismore, being a son of the late Patrick and Mary Sullivan, who were among the first pioneers of the township, coming over in the Peter Robinson emigration in the sailing vessels of long ago, and settled on a homestead where Francis, one of a large family, was born. They have all passed to the great beyond, but one remaining brother, Eugene of Chicago, also at an advanced age.

Francis, with his brothers, helped his father clear the land, which was then a vast wilderness, and the only way of communication was a blaze on the trees of the forests for a guide. Now this farm is among the best cleared and under the best cultivating conditions of any farm in the township, and the old Sullivan home on the hill, built out of the hewn logs of the original forests, still stands in good condition as a memorial of long ago. He was married when a young man to Mary Hickson, daughter of the late Richard and Bridget Hickson, also among the early pioneers. To this union five children were born, namely, Eugene of Acton, Richard of Huntsville, Patrick of Detroit, Johanna of Chicago and Frank of Cheboygan, Mich., with whom he made his home for the past twenty-five years and where he passed away. The family left Ennismore thirty-five years ago, where his wife was laid to rest. They moved to Cheboygan when the family were still young, going there in the lumbering days and where he worked in the old water mill for a time.

In politics he was a staunch Democrat, always supporting his party by his vote and any influence he could give in that line. He was a devoted Roman Catholic, and his funeral, which took place Monday morning at 9.30 from St. Mary's Church, was largely attended, interment being made in Calvary Cemetery.

Will you sacrifice a LITTLE to help the work of those who sacrifice MUCH?

"Self-denial will prove your love for Christ"

—was the last message of Mrs. William Booth, the mother of the Salvation Army, to the great organization which is doing and has done so much in the past for wayward, sin-burdened, suffering humanity.

Self-denial is the very foundation of Salvation Army service. Because of the life-long devoted self-denial of the Salvation Army people, their work goes on and goes far. They ask little for themselves—they give everything.

That is why a dollar put into Salvation Army work does a hundred cents' worth of good. The money is not paid out in high salaries, nor in extravagant expenses. It all goes into the work of:—

Spreading Christianity, Feeding the Starving,
Caring for Orphans, Helping Prisoners,
Healing the Sick, Caring for their Families,
Helping Wayward Girls, Bringing Hope and Cheer to the Down and Out.

The work of the Salvation Army is one long record of unselfish sacrifice in the service of others.

BULGARIA AFLAME.

Tension Is High and Other Governments Worry Over Outcome.

LONDON, April 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Although no further developments on a large scale have been reported from Bulgaria during the past twenty-four hours, despatches make it clear that the situtation is one of great tension and causing much anxiety to the governments of other countries as to Bulgaria itself. The administration of Premier Tzankoff still holds the upper hand, according to the latest reports, but news reaching London is not sufficient to justify a prediction as to whether the government can maintain it.

The extent and severity of the measures the government has employed, and is employing, to down its enemies, are the subject of conflicting reports.

Moreover, it is common knowledge everywhere that Dodge Brothers product is dependable. One-eighth of the total weight of the car consists of chrome vanadium steel—the toughest and most enduring steel that can be used in motor car construction. This is exceptional. It goes far to explain why Dodge Brothers Touring Car stands up so many years under the hardest usage.

Canadians Had the Touch Of Wellington In Attack

LONDON, April 26.— The Canadian Officers and Men, had the Wellington touch, the touch of a man who never lost an English gun which he did not recover. What Wellington did in the Pyrennes, the Canadians did on the flattest plain in Europe. Within four hours they turned around and advanced. They endured every sort of difficulty, mental or mechanical. They met men terribly sick, half blind and weak in the limbs from the fumes let loose by the Germans. They had to face shrapnel, rifle and machine gun fire in a country absolutely defenseless. They were wounded by every sort of engine, by bayonet, by gas, by bits of metal of every shape and size, but they charged home against all the rules of war as understood in the German text books.

WAR VETERANS' PARADE RECALLS PETERBOROUGH'S BRAVE PART IN THE SECOND BATTLE OF YPRES

First Canadian Contingent Held the Line to Ypres and the Sea.

FEARFUL ODDS.

Peterbrough war veterans will tomorrow honor the memory of their comrades who fell in the epic struggle on April 22, 1915 that saved Ypres from the menacing German army in what has since been called "The Second Battle of Ypres."

In this encounter the Peterborough volunteers had a great deal of the credit, fighting gallantly in the 2nd Battalion and in other units.

Following a heavy bombardment the enemy attacked behind a screen of poison as that decimated the French colonial forces on the flank and left open the way to Ypres—a vital point then in the line of communication of the British armies.

Falling back and extending their line to cover the greater frontage thrust upon them the Canadians took the places of the routed French colonials and held the line. Choked by the gas, they dipped handkerchiefs and rags in pools of water and spread them over their faces. Eyes were blinded and limbs benumbed but they fought on and came out covered with glory; bringing with them all their guns.

Then the tidings drifted into Canada, little by little. First came rumor, then dread certainty confirmed by the brief official telegrams that merely gave a loved one's name and "Killed in Action."

Peterborough first heard of the death at the head of his company of Major G. W. Bennett. Then one by one other reports came in until that sad tale had merged into the next battle, and so until the end of the war.

It was a heroic hour for Peterborough's sons and for Peterborough's mothers and fathers, and should not lightly be forgotten. Tomorrow's parade is the soldiers' way of remembering their comrades' sacrifices, and they invite all citizens who remember with gratitude and wonder the gallantry of St. Julien to join with them at St. Luke's Church.

A despatch from Campbellford a few days ago told of the receipt there of a wooden cross, white painted, with black letters that told of one "Killed in Action." No greater tribute was ever written, no finer epitaph ever set up than this simple statement.

Peterborough remembers—Peterborough people can never forget—the bravery of her sons "Killed in Action" on the fateful day ten years ago when with Canada's first contingent they barred the way to Ypres and the sea.

Tomorrow's memorial service at St. Luke's Church should take on something of that spirit, those participating following that Via Dolorosa to the triumphal sacrifice.

Looking Back Ten Years To the Day After Ypres

LONDON, Eng., April 23.—(Special Cable to The Examiner)—The War Office today gave out the following official report.

The fighting for the ground into which the Germans penetrated between Steenstraate and Langemarck still continues. The loss of this part of the line laid bare the left of the Canadian Division which was forced to fall back in order to keep in touch with the right of the neighboring troops.

In the rear of the latter had been 4 Canadian 4.7 inch guns which thus passes into the hands of the enemy. But some hours later the Canadians made a most brilliant and successful advance, recapturing these guns. The Canadians had many casualties, but their gallantry and determination undoubtedly saved the situation. Their conduct has been magnificent throughout.

INSURANCE MEN RENDER PUBLIC GREAT SERVICE

Should, Therefore, Be Possessed of Sense of Dignity in Their Profession.

CONFERENCE ENDS.

George Harris Sketches Character of the Successful Salesman.

"Every insurance salesman has a potential capacity for success and prosperity limited only by such limitations as the Almighty has placed on him or which he has placed on himself. There are no limitations placed on him by the type of business he is in or by the need of the public for the commodity he is selling."

With this statement as a text George H. Harris of the Sun Life Assurance Company last night expounded to the company's Central Ontario agents what was needed for success in their profession. In beginning his address Mr. Harris said that he had always had a great sympathy for salesmen, so much, in fact, that he had many times bought things that were of no use to him. A company is known to the public by its agents and salesmen and to be successful there are certain things they must have to meet people.

The first thing Mr. Harris mentioned was education and knowledge of what they are selling. At the same time this is not the important thing or the actuary would be the most successful salesman, which was rarely true. Other points are more important than knowledge of facts and figures.

Knowledge of human nature was stressed by Mr. Harris as an important point. He urged his hearers to stand on their dignity as members of a great profession and not to put up with the contempt which many people entertain for the life insurance salesman. In selling a policy they were, of course, doing most good for the policy holder but they were doing themselves good.

The cultivation of a natural manner was also mentioned. The forced geniality was a hindrance. The affable man who was always ready with a smile and a joke was not always successful at selling. Many times, such men become so tangled up in explaining their policy that their wit and good fellowship fail them. The development of one own particular personality is more important.

A man had once observed a large number of salesmen so that he could catalogue the physical characteristics of the successful men and pick out men when he needed them by their physical characteristics. He found, said Mr. Harris, that there was no common basis, either physical or mental for all these successful salesmen but one thing they all had was a faculty for making themselves liked by others. Some of the most successful salesmen are men without any great physical appearance but the person to whom one of them is talking has the feeling that nothing matters to the agent except the prospect's own interest.

Courage Necessary.

Courage is another necessary quality. Mr. Harris said he liked to think of the oak tree which is always larger on the exposed side than on the sheltered side and thrusts out its branches straight into the wind instead of up in the line of least resistance.

Salesmanship had been described as the art of saying things that cannot be objected to. No agreement was ever reached through argument and agreement is what is necessary. Persuasion and guidance so gentle that the prospect does not know he is being led are more effective. The faculty of always thinking kind and pleasant things helps in this.

Imagination, seeing what the claim cheque meant to the prospect in old age or to the widow in the hour of her bereavement, is a great help in selling insurance, said Mr. Harris.

The insurance man meets all classes from the heads of great corporations to the diggers of trenches, and has very little common ground with many of them but a capacity for getting down to the fundamentals of life will be of great use. The instinct of the father, of whatever walk in life is to protect the little ones and the insurance man who brings to him the responsibility for the care of the dependent little ones can sell his policy.

And Finally Industry.

Work and inspiration were the last points brought out by Mr. Harris. Work, skilled and informed, is the product of the information and experience gathered all through the years both before and after entry into the insurance business. Inspiration is furnished by the knowledge that this is one of the greatest businesses in the world, one that had its greatest advance at the time that the men of the world were united in the greatest struggle the world has ever known, when the instinct for self-preservation and the preservation of loved ones was so strong that men of all ranks flocked to take out policies.

Manager's Thanks.

J. F. H. Wallace, manager of the Central Ontario division, was the chairman of the meeting which followed a banquet in the Empress Hotel, and brought the third annual conference to a close. After Mr. Harris had finished his address Mr. Wallace expressed his thanks to the field and office staffs of the division for the loyal co-operation they had given him in the past year. He expressed regret that some of the force were unable through illness or other causes to attend the conference and thanked those who had helped to make it a success.

The toast to the ladies was proposed by F. W. Wells who spoke of the pleasure it was to have the ladies present and the joy they were to the hearts of the men. Miss Ackison responded on behalf of the ladies, thanking Mr. Wells for his complimentary remarks and reminding the men that protection for the wives was one of the most powerful arguments for life insurance.

The toast to the company was proposed by A. M. Platt, of Picton. He mentioned the great strides made by the company in its fifty years of existence and the manner in which it helped the country. This toast was responded to by E. Stuart Penny, inspector of agencies, who thanked Mr. Platt for his reference to the greatness of the company and spoke of the traditions and loyalty to be found among all its employees.

The agents and their ladies were entertained by Messrs. Hugh Lush and Kimmel. Mr. Lush, with his cartoons and rapid-fire monologue of jokes in which he mentioned most of those present received prolonged applause at the end of his most interesting entertainment. Mr. Kimmel was heartily encored after his first solo, sung in splendid voice. Charles Sedgwick acted as accompanist and also provided music for a little informal dance at the close, which was much appreciated by those present.

GROCERS DON'T RUSH TO SELL STRONGER BEER

Peterboro Firms Nearly All Oppose Idea of Store Sale.

ARE EMPHATIC

Lofty Principle and Practical Business Have Similar Ideas.

The new beer is brewing more than a foam at the present time. By present indications, its advent will be hailed with decidedly mixed feelings in various sections of the communities in which it will be sold, and when it makes its bow to the Province about May 15th, it will find a cold reception; in fact, it will have no reception at all from many Peterborough grocers.

The majority of a number interviewed by an Examiner representative yesterday afternoon, gave an emphatic answer in the negative to the enquiry as to whether they would store and sell the 4.4 beverage which, by its opponents, is declared to have a decided kick and, by its friends, to be absolutely innocuous.

A decided and almost vicious "No" was the answer in several places, while other merchants admitted to being on the fence with regard to the question. The high altitude of temperance principle and strong conviction was quite sincerely manifested by some, while others admitted frankly that expediency would govern their future action with regard to the drink that cheers and, according to its admirers, does not inebriate.

How They Stand.

Messrs. E. F. Mason and P. Hamilton, of "Hamilton's" Simcoe Street store, returned equally emphatic negatives to the enquiry as to whether they would consider handling the new beer.

Other replies in the negative were those of the P. S. White store, J. E. Lillico and T. J. Braund, north-end grocer. If the other grocers refused to handle it, J. Juby would also fall in line with them. The Dominion Stores would probably take their initiative from the parent branch in Toronto, and H. J. Boyle, who thinks grocers should not be considered as handlers of the beverage, has not yet decided just what he would do. This same attitude is taken by W. J. Grady of the Claraday south-end store, and J. C. Sullivan of the East City grocers. J. Geraghty, of the Fitzpatrick & Geraghty west-end grocers, returned a negative answer to the question.

Never Can Tell.

"You never can tell with people," said one cautious gentleman, with a "watching how the cat will jump" attitude. "If the women buyers didn't want us to handle it, they might boycott us." Another man, with an objection, probably, to mixing solids and liquids, said the idea of having grocers handle the beer was nonsensical, as they had not been in the habit of selling the two per cent. variety. Then why saddle them with stronger stuff? A contrary opinion was voiced by one who recalled the good old days when groceries and liquid refreshments of a high alcoholic content might be handily purchased in the same establishment.

In one neighbourhood, when the vote was being taken on this subject, several citizens conceived the idea of petitioning the Council to allow a particular grocer who was, in former years, a careful and conscientious vendor of liquor, the particular privilege of handling the new beer.

The sale of the beer in a grocery establishment would not have the effect of making the store a loafing and gathering-place for its devotees, as some grocers fear, since the sale by grocers is solely for home consumption. Another who says that standard hotels should have the sole selling rights, and cannot see much profit to the grocer in the handling, unless the beverege was sold at 10 cents a glass, is misinformed on the Act on the same grounds. Grocers are not permitted by the amendment to sell by the glass.

One man, pursuing the "watchful waiting" policy, would like to see the beverage tried out on his fellow-creatures before deciding. If it is intoxicating, he will have nothing to do with it, but if it proves to be practically harmless, and has a little revenue attached to it, he will handle it.

One grocer regards the advent of the new beer as an opening of the door of public drunkenness, and sees "the curse of the open bar upon us again."

Another man is seriously considering the starting of a petition to be considered by every grocer in the city, refusing to sell the new beer, and says "its sale would be a disgrace to the grocery business."

It requires more than 25 years for light to travel from the star Vega to the earth.

MEN AND HORSES

How closely related is man to the more intelligent of the animals is seen in many of the ailments to which both are prone and the remedies to which they answer.

Doctors and veterinarians are oftentimes surprised to learn of the similarity of their methods of handling the ailments of man and beast.

Sprains, burns, scalds, scratches and many other minor injuries, many everyday ailments, too in men and animals take the same course, and both answer immediately to the same treatment—Absorbine Jr.

Absorbine was first discovered by a very close student of the horse, W. F. Young, and by him, devoted to its cause. Its very exceptional benefits, however, were promptly seized upon for the human race and, in a milder form, the preparation is sold all over the continent today as Absorbine Jr. It is used for men, women and children everywhere as a positive germicide—a germ killer—and a prompt and certain healer of all hurts. It is useful not only for all the purposes served by ordinary liniments and embrocations, but as a mouth-wash and for anything else where a germicide is needed. Don't wait until you need it. Tonic Treatment for Indigestion

Dr. William's Pink Pills

They Give New Vitality---and more

When the stomach is feeble and food lies in it undigested, the poisonous gases distend the walls of the stomach and cause serious interference with the other organs, especially with the action of the heart and lungs. These poisonous gases have other ill effects. They are absorbed by the blood and so weaken and corrupt it as to cause aches in remote parts of the body and the formation of unhealthy tissue everywhere. Experience shows that these troubles vanish just as soon as the stomach is made strong enough to digest the food. In other words, it needs a tonic that will enable it to do the work of changing the food into nourishment. The tonic used ought to be one that will agree with the most delicate stomach and this is exactly what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do.

Here is a bit of convincing proof given by Mrs. Chas. Ladner, Ellerslie, P.E.I., who says:—"For some years I was a sufferer from stomach trouble. Everything I ate caused distress, sour stomach, and belching. I could not eat meat or potatoes, and I grew weak and very nervous. No medicine seemed to help me until I was persuaded to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and these simply worked wonders. I took the pills faithfully for a couple of months, by which time every symptom of the trouble had disappeared, and there has not since been the slightest symptom of stomach trouble. No wonder I praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CHURCHES UNITE AT GARDEN HILL

Methodists and Presbyterians Will Form One Strong Congregation.

MILLBROOK, April 24—A congregational meeting was held in St. Enoch's Presbyterian church, Garden Hill, on Wednesday evening, for the purpose of considering the resolution passed by the Board of Managers, and Session, of this church, and by the Quarterly Board of the Methodist churches of the Canton circuit, regarding the future of the latter churches, and their relation to the Presbyterian church at Garden Hill.

The meeting was well attended, and was presided over by the pastor, Rev. G. S. Gervan.

On motion, St. Enoch's church invited the local Methodist church to join in forming a union congregation, using the Presbyterian church for purposes of worship.

This was agreed to by the Methodist body, and arrangements were made to have the trustees apply to the next Conference for permission to dispose of the local church property and use the money for renovating and putting in first class order the Presbyterian church, and building an up-to-date closed in shed.

The resolutions were all agreed to, and it was further decided to begin holding union services next Sunday, both the pastors, Rev. Mr. Gervan, of Millbrook, and Rev. H. A. Bunt, of Canton, to be present, thus making the worshippers from the Methodist congregation feel more at home.

Union services will continue until after June 10th, under the charge of both pastors, when another minister will be called as Mr. Gervan and Mr. Bunt will be leaving for other fields.

Rev. Mr. Bremner, of Cobourg, will preach at next Sunday's services.

The two local congregations raised nearly one thousand dollars last year, the amount stated for the current year being seven hundred dollars. The circuit, which will form a strong union charge, will pay a salary of $1,800.00.

When the recent vote was taken, St. Enoch's church, by a substantial majority, decided to go with the Presbyterian church into the United Church of Canada on June 10th.

Both unionists and anti-unionists, as well as representatives from the Methodist congregation, were present at Wednesday's meeting.

Presbyterians Meet

Following a preliminary meeting, held two weeks previously, a second congregational meeting convened at the Presbyterian church, Centreville, on Wednesday evening with a representative gathering of both unionists and anti-unionists in attendance.

Mr. D. N. Dodds acted as chairman, and after opening devotional exercises, and attention to some matters of routine business, the resolution from the non-concurring members of the Millbrook congregation, asking that a committee be appointed to meet their committee regarding linking up the two congregations after June 10th, was read.

On motion, the members of the Session, the Board of Managers, and three ladies were appointed to confer with the committee from Grace church, Millbrook. This meeting will be held on Thursday, April 30, when some definite action will probably be taken.

On motion, a hearty invitation was extended to the union members of the congregation to remain with the Continuing Presbyterian church after June 10th. A similar motion, by Messrs. L. C. Russell and C. C. Gardiner, was passed at the recent meeting held in Grace church, Millbrook, on Tuesday of this week, under the auspices of the anti-union members of the congregation. Both the Centreville and Millbrook congregations, by large majorities, voted some weeks ago to remain with the Continuing Presbyterian church rather than enter the United Church of Canada after June 10th. Rev. Mr. Gervan and Mr. McConnachie resigned when the result of the vote was made known, but are remaining with their respective charges until union is consummated.

Seeding Finished

Mr. Harold Tate, 4th line, Cavan, completed seeding operations on his farm before the snow storm. Messrs. W. W. Brown and G. Bonner, neighbors of Mr. Tate, are also nearly finished, and would have been done early this week had the storm not intervened.

Mr. Tate reports that he never saw the soil work up better than it did this year. The barley which he planted two weeks ago is already showing above the ground.

The frosts of the last two weeks, or more, apparently killed out some of the fall wheat on low, wet ground, but on the whole this crop is looking exceptionally well. The clover also is in good condition.

The snow, far from doing any harm, gave a supply of needed moisture, and helped the fall wheat considerably. It is even noted that some of the fields which are well drained are quite dry on top already since the snow has melted and left them unprotected once more. More moisture would be welcomed in the near future.

Practically all farmers in this vicinity are seeding and ploughing, the season being from ten days to two weeks ahead of last year.

According to a recent bulletin issued by the O.A.C., Guelph, the earlier grain is in the better the harvest both as to quality and quantity. This fact has been established by a series of experiments covering a number of years. Subsequent snow, and other unfavorable weather conditions, did not prevent results, in the case of fields seeded early, exceeding those where grain was put in at a later date when danger of a return of winter weather seemed past.

Creamery Opened

The Millbrook Creamery, A. E. Jeffrey, proprietor, has been opened and is now in operation. Mr. Jeffery recently purchased the old Dominion Hotel property from J. Crocker, and has had it put in up-to-date condition to carry on his creamery business. His track is now on the road gathering cream, making the third in this vicinity—the Lindsay Creamery Company, and the Bowes Company, of Toronto, being the other two.

Personals

Mrs. I. M. Mattrass left this week for Connersville, Indianapolis, and will make an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. B. F. Ware. Mr. Mattrass accompanied her as far as Toronto.

The usual Thursday afternoon half holiday will be observed by the merchants of Millbrook during May, June, July, August and September, beginning May 7th. Wednesday evenings the stores will remain open during the same period.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Harrington motored to Toronto on Saturday, and were held up on the return trip owing to the snowstorm.

Miss Mary Kells, who has been with her niece, Mrs. (Dr.) Brand, of Toronto, for the past few weeks, returned to her home here on Wednesday. Mrs. Brand accompanied her aunt from the city.

Miss Jean Stinson, who spent the Easter holidays with her aunt, Mrs. H. Johnston, and her grandmother, Mrs. A. Stinson, Janetville, has returned home. Councillor and Mrs. P. Stinson motored to Janetville on Saturday and found some difficulty in returning home Monday afternoon owing to the snowstorm.

FARM WORK ADVANCED

Seeding Nearly Finished at Bonar Law—Much Alfalfa Sown.

BONAR LAW, April 25.—The farmers are having quite an anxious time as seeding was well under way. Some would have been done sowing this week. However, the snow will be a help to the fall grain and seeding.

The Farmers' Club shipped veal calves from Bonar Law on Tuesday. A good price was paid, so a number have shipped their calves and are sending their milk to the factory.

There seems to be a great demand for work horses in this locality and the price asked for an ordinary horse is so high that the farmers don't care to purchase.

A lot of farmers are seeding alfalfa this year, having had their land sown to sweet clover for the past few years. They are expecting a good catch of alfalfa. Sweet clover has been a great help to this section, it bringing abundant crops on land that before was of little value. It is used a lot for pasture and where plenty of salt is fed to the cattle there is little if any danger of bloat

There is a great quantity of potoes in the district and they are of first class quality. No complaints of rot have been heard of. The price is small, so no one has sold any as yet. There haven't been any buyers around and the farmers are too busy to pay much attention to the spud these days and the cool weather has prevented sprouting.

Personals.

Mrs. John S. McKeown, who has been quite ill for the past three weeks, was taken to Campbellford on Saturday to the home of her father, Mr. J. Meiklejohn. Mrs. McKeown is suffering a nervous breakdown and is under medical care.

Mrs. Fred McKeown is quite ill with la gripre.

Thomas Prest was busy Friday with the grader on the 12th Line and has greatly improved the road.

Miss Laura McKeown has returned to her school at Beaver Creek, after spending the holidays at her home on the 12th Line.

Bartholomew Stiles left for Toronto on Wednesday.

The 12th Line school opened on Monday with fourteen pupils present. There are thirty-three on the roll. But owing to the condition of the roads a large number were absent.

ANNUAL MEETING

Young People's League of Omemee Elected New Officers for 1925.

OMEMEE, April 25 — Monday night was citizenship night in the Young Peoples' League, as well as the annual election of officers. The meeting was in charge of the Citizenship Department and was ably presided over by Vernon Lang. The scripture reading was given by Harold Lang and the following excellent address on "Citizenship" by J. Widdis, principal of the Public School. Miss Reta Kennedy rendered a pretty solo, during the evening. Before entering on the election by secret ballot of the officers for 1925, the league on request of the pastor, decided to purchase a ball and bat for the young folk of the Mission Band, who in return promise to make a name for themselves during the summer months.

During the year the League contributed one hundred dollars to the support of Mr. Howard Veals, missionary in China, as well as fifteen dollars to the Quarterly Official Board and the same amount to the Trustee Board. They also contributed half to the purchase of new Canadian Hymnals for the church and the treasurer's report shows a tidy balance of $127 in the treasury.

COBOURG COUNCIL RENTS PAVILION

Popular Dancing Resort Leased to R. A. Patterson for the Season.

COBOURG, April 25.—There has been considerable speculation here as to who would have the business of the pavilion at Victoria Park, Cobourg's lakefront summer resort, for the 1925 season. The council on Monday night received tenders from C.C. Allen, Toronto, for $1400, three tenders from W. H. Forbes, Cobourg, one of which was for $1200 with no condition; one from R. A. Patterson, who had charge last year, for $1500; and one from W. G. Scopes, Cobourg. The council adjourned and after some discussion Mr. Patterson's tender was accepted. The rental is $1500 for the 1925 summer season and the pavilion will be opened for dancing as soon as weather conditions permit. It adjoins the baseball diamond at Victoria Park.

Many Excursions.

Whether 4-4 has anything to do with it or not an unusually large number of excursions are booked from Rochester to Cobourg for this summer. It begins to look as if nearly every day will be excursion day and that the big car ferries will have a busy season catering to the passenger trade. If only the long discussed auto transit service between Rochester and Cobourg would materialize the summer tourist trade here and throughout the Kawartha Lakes district, would be much benefited. The furnished summer residences in Cobourg, are being quickly leased for the summer season, and it looks as if the 1925 tourist trade will be a big one.

GROCER PAYS $100 FOR HIS EXTRACT SALES

Louis Mendelsohn, London, Ont., grocer, failed to keep a record of the amount of lemon extract he sold. That oversight cost him a fine of $100 and costs. It was charged that Louis was mixing ginger ale and lemon extract into something with a powerful kick. None of the mixture could be found, but there were sacks of empty extract bottles.

Lemon extract has 84.92 per cent. proof spirits, which is somewhat higher than permitted by the temperance act which is now 4.4 per cent.

This Car Cost a Widow $10,000

HER husband was a young business man of good prospects. He believed in living more carefully than his wife did, having business instincts and principles which she lacked.

'I would sooner put the money it would cost me to run a car into life insurance", said he. "I could get a good big endowment policy with the money running a car will cost us every year.

"The Jones's have a big new car", she replied. "Everybody we know has a car."

That was three years ago. She has her car. It is still a fairly good car. She would like to sell it for $200. Her husband was right. A $10,000 Mutual Life policy would have been a far better investment. But it's too late, now.

Are you carrying the amount of life insurance you should? Talk it over with our agent.

AGED LIBERAL STARTED YOUNG

Subscribed to the Party Organ at the Age of Eleven.

VOTED FOR MAYBEE

(By Staff Reporter.)

BRIGHTON, April 25.—Talking about the aged voters in Warkworth, Colborne and other places, Brighton wishes to advance the claims to distinction of Thomas Bidwell Pate, who is 75 years old. If he lacks the years that have been attained by some of the others, it can at least be said of him that he started earlier in life to make himself familiar with the political principles that he has cherished ever since. He was only 11 years old when he became a subscriber to the party organ, paying for it out of his own allowance of pocket money. He was at that time living on his father's farm, a few miles from here.

Through good and evil, reports Mr. Pate, on reaching his majority, voted the Liberal ticket up to the time that he was 75 years old. Then he broke all precedent by casting a Conservative ballot, but the change was not due to any lapse in faith, but was only a family affair.

Mr. Pate's only daughter is married to Mr. E. Maybee, M.P. of Northumberland County. When Mr. Maybee was nominated for the Dominion Parliament blood proved stronger than political ties, and Mr. Pate supported him at the polls. This he did without prejudice or forfeiting his previous standing. He still regards himself as a Liberal despite this solitary defection.

Since the death of his wife Mr. Pate has sold his farm and made his home at the Claredon Hotel, where he is well known by the regular guests and travelling public. He has lived at the hotel under four landlords.

NO CHURCH SERVICES

Burnbrae and Rylestone Were Blockaded by Sunday's Storm.

BURNBRAE, April 25.—Due to the snowstorm, there were no services held at Burnbrae and Rylstone on Sunday last.

On Monday evening the Young People's Guild visited with the young people of St. Andrew's of Stirling. Owing to bad roads, the attendance was small, only about forty making the trip. Everyone reported an enjoyable evening.

A numbe of Burnbrae residents attended the funeral of the late Wm. Meiklejohn on Tuesday last. The deceased was well and favorably known to many Burnbrae people, who join in extending their sympathy to the sorrowing relatives.

Some of the local dairymen were present at the meeting held in the Council Chambers, Campbellford, on Tuesday. Geo. Barr gave several useful pointers on the production of first-grade cheese.

Several Burnbrae young people attended the shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barnum on Wednesday evening. The event was held at the home of the bride's father, Mr. Wm. Forde.

Mrs. J. P. Haig has returned from Kingston, where she was undergoing medical treatment.

WILL BEAUTIFY MEMORIAL PLOT

Worthy Object Undertaken By Young People's Club of Keene.

NOW AN EYESORE.

KEENE, April 24.—At a meeting held on Tuesday evening, the Young People's Club decided to hold a dance on Friday, May 1, to supply funds for the fixing up of the memorial lot in Keene. There is a most beautiful monument erected to the memory of those who died in Flanders for libery, but since that time it has been neglected and has become an eyesore instead of a beautiful spot. It is on the main corner of the village. The Young People's Club have undertaken to beautify this spot and also to build a concrete promenade. The support of the people of Keene is bespoken for this worthy cause which is the least thing that can be done to honor the memory of those who did not come back.

Tenders will be let in the near future for the concrete promenade and one for the laying out of the lawn and flower beds.

There are still a few cases of mumps in Keene and vicinity.

Spring work is again in full swing after the snowstorm on Sunday.

PRESENTATION ON ANNIVERSARY DATE

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scates Celebrate Silver Wedding.

Thursday night a number of members of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church gathered to make a presentation to one of the members, Mrs. Charles Scates, on the occasion of the silver wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Scates. The following address was read by Mrs. Vollans and the presentation was made by Mrs. Collis:

Dear Friend:

We ,the members of St. John's Women's Friendly Bible Class, have met here tonight to offer you our heartiest congratulations on the 25th anniversary of your wedding. We have always found you one of our most willing workers, ready to lend a hand in every worthy cause, and each one of us feels proud to call you Friend, and as a slight token of our love and esteem, we ask you to accept this small gift, trusting you and Mr. Scates will be spared for many more years of happiness.

From your sincere friends and well wishers,,

The members of St. John's W.F.B.C.

At the close of a very social evening refreshments were served.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—Will you allow me to suggest to my brethren and sisters of The United Church of Canada that it would be a nice thing to offer Rev. Robert Pogue the pastorate at George street for the next term. George street will go into the U.C. June 10th and Mr. Pogue has as much claim upon it as anybody else and I think more. It would be a reward for his loss of his pulpit. The pulpit becomes vacant then.

BIG LOAF FOR CELEBRATION

Peterboro Baker Will Bake Loaf to Feed Three Hundred.

GUESS ON WEIGHT

DOURO, April 25.—John F. Grady of Peterboro is going to bake the largest loaf of bread ever baked in Peterboro for the re-union celebration. This giant loaf will be of sufficient size that when cut up it would serve lunch to two hundred to three hundred people. To each person entering the museum during the week's celebration a ticket will be issued, entitling the holder to a guess on the weight of the loaf. To the person whose guess is nearest to the correct weight a prize of a hundred weight of flour will be given; to the second highest, fifty pounds of flour, and to the third, twenty-five pounds, or the equivalent of each prize will be paid in cash if winner prefers. The loaf will later be cut up and served to the old boys present.

A report comes of a party of old boys coming from Lansing, bringing tents, who will camp while here. This method of attending should provide a great outing.

Fruitman Down Street May Attract Flies—How About Your Yard

"Talking of house flies and foods" remarked Mr. Mann, "do you remember that fruit store we saw down on Main street last fall"

"Well, if that fellow starts out this season as he did the last, by leaving his fruit uncovered to catch all the dust and all the filth and flies, I am going to call upon the board of health and see if something can not be done.

"A man who doesn't know anything about caring for the health of his customers, should be taught. And if he cares nothing about the health of his c ustomers, he should be run out of business."

"All right, go after him," encouraged Mrs. Mann.

"But I think, if I were you, I would have our backyard cleaned up of all the old tin cans. Rain water in tin cans is a good place for breeding mosquitoes.

"Also that old stable, heaped full of rubibsh, is a good place for flies to breed."

"All right," replied Mr. Mann. "I'll arrange to have that done before another week, at the most."

THEY MARRY TO FIGHT IN PEACE.

A strange love idyl touched the heart of Judge F. Onion of San Antonio, Tex., and brought remission of fines to a young couple who married to establish a legal right to quarrel without interference.

They had fought blithely for weeks, each convinced the opinions of the other were beneath contempt. The more they fought, the more they sought each other. Then they encountered each other on the street and the battle was renewed with vigor. They became so noisy a policeman arrested them for creating a disturbance, and each was fined $10 by Judge Onion.

Their mutual grievance brought love. Each felt there had been an unwarranted official intrusion on a private vendetta. They discovered each had the same point of view on police interference. The obvious answer was matrimony.

The following morning they again appeared before Judge Onion and told him they had just been married.

"When we quarrel now, judge, it will be in our own rooms and we won't be disturbing anybody," said the bride. "Incidentally that $20 you took from us in fines would help quite a lot in setting up housekeeping."

The judge remitted the fines.

"We Got Exercise at the Woodpile"

Mr. J. W. Russ, Soda Lake, Alta. writes:—"I suffered from indigestion and very bad kidneys. Everything I ate hurt me so that at last I was forced to live on bread and milk. Two boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills made me a strong and able man once more, eating anything I want and enjoying it."

INDIGESTION is the great bug-bear of the modern business and professional man.

If we had the old woodpile to tussle with we might keep the liver active without using medicine.

But we neglect to take exercise and the best substitute is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They arouse the action of liver, kidneys and bowels and entirely overcome indigestion, constipation, biliousness, backache and similar derangements.

You can prove this to your own satisfaction with a single box of this popular medicine.

CONTROL OF SHIPPING WOULD BE DETRIMENTAL TO CANADA'S TRADE PRESENT RATES NOT PROFITABLE

William I. Gear, of Robert Reford Company, Hesitates to Contemplate the Result.

EVIDENCE ENDED.

Says Grain Rates Only Few Cents Higher Than in 1914.

OTTAWA, April 25. — The placing of a subsidized line of ten steamers on the North Atlantic, with rates controlled by the Government, and working in conjunction with the Canadian Government merchant marine outside of the conference, would precipitate a situation which would be "damnable for Canada."

This was the declaration of Wm. I. Gear, vice-president of the Robt. Reford Company, who concluded his evidence before the special Parliamentary committee on ocean rates, last evening. Col. Gear was questioned by J. T. Shaw, of Calgary, a member of the committee, in regard to effect of the contract between the Government and Sir William Petersen on the shipping situation. Assuming that the ten vessels of the Petersen line worked in conjunction with vessels of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, and charged Government-controlled rates the conference lines of steamships might either decide to withdraw from the Canadian trade, or might reduce their rates to those of the subsidized line. The result would be destruction of the St. Lawrence trade, Col. Gear said.

"We would have to meet rates, and the final result would be general demoralization," Col. Gear declared. He asserted that the reduction of rates in Canada would force a reduction in the United States, because Chicago shippers would demand such a reduction. Finally, the United States shipping board would be called into action to adopt regulations which would interfere with free traffic. 'I would hate to contemplate conditions which would result," Col. Gear said in summarizing his views.

Desire Goodwill.

While admitting that no shippers "sat in" at the North Atlantic conference, Col. Gear said that representations of shippers were given the most careful consideration when the rates were made. "Our object is to satisfy shippers if possible," the witness said. "Without their good will we would go broke." He maintained that operations of steamship companies in Canada in the past two years had resulted in loss.

W. T. Marlow, general foreign freight agent of the C. P. R., who followed Col. Gear, stated that the Canadian Government merchant marine "sat in" at the North Atlantic conference until quite recently.

"Did it ever sit in at the Pacific Coast conference?" asked Hon. W. H. Stevens of Vancouver.

"Until recently, I think," the witness said.

"They only listen in now—they don't sit in"—interjected William Duff, of Lunenburg.

To Examine Accounts.

Before adjournment the question of production of voyage accounts by the steamship companies was again discussed. The appointment of G. Scott of Montreal, to assist the committee in investigating the accounts of the companies, was moved by F. Rinfret, of St. James, Montreal, and seconded by J. T. Shaw of Calgary, was carried unanimously.

It was subsequently moved and carried that the voyage accounts be open to members of the committee, and to R. Symington, the government counsel. The information obtained was to be regarded as confidential as between lines, and not communicated to the public.

The committee adjourned until Tuesday afternoon at 2.30.

Why Unprofitable Rate.

William Duff, of Lunenburg, questioned Col. Gear as to why they fixed a rate which according to their statement, was unprofitable.

Mr .Duff said that he would like to be shown that the steamship companies had been making a loss.

Col. Gear: "I am sure that when you see the accounts, or when they are seen by the auditor, you will be satisfied. I want to say that while there has been a 25 per cent. increase in rates, the 25 per cent. increase is not applied to our main products. The grain rate, which is the backbone of Canada, was not last year more than a few cents. higher than in 1914. The farmers of Canada have absolutely no complaint to make so far as comparative rates are concerned. We will prove to you, I hope to your satisfaction, that the loss has been made."

Mr. Duff: "You say that these steamers have lost money?"

"Yes."

Replying to a further question, Col Gear described the factors which entered into the making of a rate, based on the unit of a full ship cargo.

Mr. Duff: "What I want to know is, why as business men, you are fixing rates on which you lose money?"

"Because we are living in hopes with the rate conditions that a better demand for cargo will obtain."

"That is not sound."

"It may not be sound but it is what we are doing."

Replying to the chairman, Col. Gear estimated that a rate of 25 shillings per cubic ton for a full cargo should be obtained to break even. That would be exclusive of depreciation.

Mr. Symington: "A full cargo both ways?"

"No; one way."

Not Fixed in New York.

Col. Gear was questioned as to the meetings held to fix the grain rates. He insisted that the rates were not fixed in New York. The rate fixed in Canada would not likely correspond with the rate fixed in New York.

"Does it generally?" asked Dr. McKay, of Renfrew.

"No."

Col. Gear declared that fluctuations in the price of wheat had no effect on the rate charged by the companies. The rate on grains was controlled by the demand for space.

CHIROPRACTORS TO STUDY ACT

Are Opposed to Bringing Up Test Case on Recent Legislation.

MET THURSDAY

TORONTO, April 25.—Protesting at the Government's action in enacting legislation depriving them of the right to designate themselves as doctors and subjecting them to the discipline of a Board of Regents, more than three hundred chiropractors from Toronto and outside points gathered at the Toronto Chiropractic College at Yonge and Charles Streets on Thursday. Both members and non-members of the Chiropractors' Association of Ontario were present and took part in the proceedings, all making it apparent that they were by no means ready to submit to the legislation without a fight.

Certain of those present advocated the raising of funds with which to make a test case on the amendment to the Medical Act forbidding them to place a doctor's sign on their doors. These, however, were the more belligerent minority. The majority favored a concentration upon the new Drugless Practitioners' Act under which a Board of Regents comprised of five persons to be chosen by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council will be granted unlimited powers in formulating rules for the supervision of the chiropractors. The advanced minority swung in line with the others and it was unanimously decided that a committee be appointed to co-operate with the Drugless Physicians' Association in obtaining representation upon the board to be appointed. The committee chosen was as follows: R. D. Nimmo, I. S. Clubine, R. A. Macrae of Dundas, L. W. Lawrence of St. Mary's, and H. A. Langford of Owen Sound.

At the morning session, past and present students of the Toronto College of Chiropractic formed an Alumni with the following officers: Chairman, C. M. Lawrence; Secretary, A. B. Farmer; Executive, D. V. Hoskins Toronto; H. O. Langford, Owen Sound C. M. Lawrence, St. Mary's; G. C. Lamont, Mount Dennis; R. D. Nimmo Toronto.

The resignation of the association's President, Oscar M. Hodson, was received at the meeting and was followed by the election of I. S. Clubine in his place, and G. C. Lamont of Mount Dennis as an additional member of the Board of Executives.

YOUR GARDEN

THE HOUSE FOUNDATION PLANTING.

How bare, unhomelike and uncompromising is the house with its often very ugly foundation showing. A good planting of flowering shrubs will hide, at least partially, this ugliness and soften the hard outlines where it rises from the ground. Shrubs so placed tie the house to the grounds; that is, they connect the building with the trees and shrubs on the lawn and provide an harmonious setting.

Having decided that a foundation planting is necessary, how should the home owner set about planning and planting one? In the first place, unless the foundation and the building be very ugly there is no need to completely obscure them. Mass the shrubs about the entrance or entrances and continue along to the corners of the building where necessary. The groups in the planting should vary in height and width. That is, a single line of shrubs or shrubs all of one height, like a hedge, should be avoided. As a general rule, the height and width should be increased at the entrance and at the corners. This should not be done monotonously, however.

Use a pleasing variety of shrubs, but not with too great a contrast in foliage or flowers. The large leaves and blooms of Hardy Hydrangeas, for instance, do not blend well among smaller leaved shrubs, and seldom look well. Do not attempt to plant everything that tempts you in the nurseryman's catalogue or you will only succeed in developing a museum. Choose rather more shrubs of a few of those that suit your conditions best. The number of varieties will, of course, depend on the size of the place.

For full development in maturity large shrubs as the Tartarian Honeysuckle and Lilacs should be planted six or eight feet apart; medium shrubs as Van Houtte's Spiraea (Bridal Wreath) four to five feet, and low-growing shrubs as Anthony Waterer Spiraea one and a half to three feet. They may be planted half these distances, but should be thinned before they crowd. If they are not thinned in time they will become spindly or leggy very quickly.

Shrubs should never be planted in rows except for hedges, but should be staggered with great care to avoid straight lines anywhere. No three shrubs should form a straight line, although it will be difficult to avoid doing so in large plantings. Always start to plant a group of shrubs from the back and work forward. This will gave an irregular, natural and pleasing front to the foundation planting.

Care should be taken to choose shrubs of suitable height and width, taking care to avoid blocking windows. Also, here and there groups of decidedly low shrubs may be used in front of the tall ones to face down the planting and give variety.

When planting against a north wall a special selection should be chosen. All varieties of Philadelphus (Mock Orange), Dogwoods and Barberries will do very well. The Japanese Barberry, Hemlock, Snowberry, Coralberry, Sweet Flowering Raspberry, Kerria, Aralia (in warm sections), Sweet Pepper Bush and the Hydrangea (Hills of Snow), are excellent for such locations. Extra care by way of fertilizing may be necessary, in especially dark corners, and also more severe pruning back to produce a twiggy growth.

Also when planting against a verandah or wall it is advisable to lean the shrub just a little towards the building rather than away from it, as the tendency will be for the shrub to grow towards the light.

TELL-TALE-TRACKS

I took up the trail of some wee little tracks, that lead from the yard to the door. I followed them inward, these bold muddy facts, and they hied for the living-room floor.

All over the carpet, in circles they went, with always some mud left behind. I knew, right away, what the trail really meant, but the tracker I vowed I would find.

Sealed! to protect McLaughlin-Buick performance

McLaughlin-Buick Chassis is sealed. Iron and steel housings protect the operation of all driving parts —seal them in to safeguard McLaughlin-Buick performance.

Some cars have some of this protection, but only McLaughlin-Buick has a wall of defense continuous from front to rear against dirt, stones, water and loss of lubricant. McLaughlin-Buick's close co-ordination of driving units and McLaughlin-Buick's torque tube drive make possible this important improvement.

We are holding a special exhibition of the Sealed Chassis all this week. Come in and see why McLaughlin-Buick performance is so consistently good. Why McLaughlin-Buick parts so seldom need replacement. And why McLaughlin-Buick owners are saved so many of the ordinary repair and lubricating annoyances.

Here are the vital points at which McLaughlin-Buick engineering provides this extra protection:

1. Fan Hub—Fan bearing totally enclosed—lubricated by its own gear pump.
2. Motor — Steel cover keeps water from short circuiting spark plugs. Steel cover over valve-in-head mechanism keeps dust out, oil in.
3. Starter-Generator — Delco single-unit starter-generator completely housed in single housing. Starting gears housed with fly wheel.
4. Fly Wheel — Completely housed. Starting teeth protected from road damage and accumulation of mud and dirt.
5. Clutch — Multiple disc—completely housed.
6. Transmission — Completely protected. Shifting mechanism holes sealed.
7. Universal Joint — Completely encased in ball joint—lubricated automatically from transmission.
8. Propeller Shaft — McLaughlin-Buick's third member drive, which is a torque tube, completely encloses the propeller shaft. Road dirt cannot work from the shaft into the universal joint or rear axle.
9. Rear Axle—Floating type, totally enclosed in rear axle housing.

SCOTLAND TO HAVE WORLD'S LONGEST SUSPENSION BRIDGE

Country-wide reconstruction of roads and bridges in Great Britain finds its peak in a scheme, which has received the approval of the Ministry of Transport, for the building of the largest suspension bridge in the world across the Firth of Forth in Scotland. The proposed road bridge, to stand close to the famous cantilever railroad bridge, is to be built in two great spans of 2,400 feet each, a figure which far exceeds the largest single span of any existing bridge of suspension or other type. The largest existing single span is the 1,800-foot cantilevered span of the new Quebec Bridge, the two main 1,710-foot spans of the old cantilever bridge across the Firth of Forth rank second, the 1,600-foot suspension span of New York's Williamsburg Bridge takes third place and Brooklyn Bridge's centre span of 1,595 feet follows. The Philadelphia-Camden Bridge, under construction, will have a span of 1,686 feet.

Although the proposed Scottish bridge is to be one of the world's greatest bridges, it is hardly possible to dogmatize on a subject as varied as the world's bridges sufficiently to give it an unqualified first place. There are too many aspects to the subject of bridges. New York is pre-eminently the city of great bridges, its Hell Gate bridge is unquestionably first among bridges of the arch type. Its Manhattan Bridge is said to be first in point of carrying capacity. The twenty-mile trestle across Salt Lake in Utah possibly ranks as the longest bridge in the world.

In a family as large and as varied as that of the world's bridges it is hardly possible to describe the proposed Scottish bridge as more than the largest of its type, and even here it is necessary to mention a qualifying circumstance. At present it exists only on paper, and among other suspension bridges that exist on paper it is far exceeded by Gustav Lindenthal's great North River bridge in New York with its enormous span of 3,200 feet, and by C. E. Fowler's proposed bridge across San Francisco Bay to Oakland. The proposed Scottish bridge differs from these two proposed bridges, however, in that the capital to build it is already available. While Lindenthal's and Fowler's bridges are waiting on capital, the $20,000,000 necessary to put up the Scottish bridge is already in sight, and Scottish authorities are urging that its construction be proceeded with immediately. At present the preliminary survey is beginning at an estimated cost of $50,000, the Ministry of Transport having agreed to pay 75 per cent. of the survey cost, the other 25 per cent. to be borne by the local authorities in Scotland.

Like New York's East River bridges the Scottish bridge is to be built high enough to permit the largest battleships to pass beneath it. It is to cross the Firth of Forth just below the British naval base at Rosyth, as Brooklyn Bridge crosses the East River just below Brooklyn navy yard. Several thousand Americans who served in the Sixth Battle Squadron (the American squadron) of the Grand Fleet during the war know that stretch of the Firth of Forth rather well. To this day their memories of the war, from the dullness of the North Sea to the liveliness of Princes Street in Edinburgh, are arched over by the great cantilever railroad bridge across the Forth.

For months on end the American battleships cruised into and out of the Firth of Forth, and when the war ended it was into the Forth that they helped escort the German fleet for internment.

One thing which will occur to all of them in connection with the news that a road bridge is being planned across the Forth is the effect it will necessarily have on the appearance of the existing railroad bridge. The present bridge looks very British. It has the look of enormous strength, which the British like in a great bridge, rather than the light, gossamer appearance of Brooklyn Bridge. In its British way, however, it is an exceedingly beautiful bridge and Englishmen fear that the building of the new suspension road bridge close to it will completely destroy the beauty of the old bridge.

Link in Highway System.

When completed, the new bridge is to be a link in one of the national highways that the Ministry of Transport is working out in conjunction with local authorities throughout the country. The $20,000,000 which it is planned to spend on it is to avoid the forty-mile detour which the road now makes in entering and leaving Edinburgh. The little Forth is negligible as a river, but its firth (the word is akin to the Norwegian "fjord" and means an arm of the sea) cuts off Edinburgh from the north of Scotland. The river itself is only sixty-six miles long, but so crooked that the direct distance from its source to the head of its firth is only thirty miles. Its firth from Stirling to the North Sea is forty-eight miles long, its width varying from a half mile at Kincardine to six and a half miles at Leith, the port of Edinburgh, and seventeen miles at May Island, a solitary rock with a light on it which flashes over the North Sea. Just above Leith it suddenly narrows to a mile and a half at Queensferry, and here the great cantilever railroad bridge spans it, carrying the double track of what is now the London, Midland & Scottish Railway across from Edinburgh to the Fifeshire side. There has been a ferry here for years and it still exists, but the bulk of the road traffic has made the forty-mile detour from Edinburgh to Stirling in order to reach the Fifeshire side.

As long as all road traffic was horse-drawn neither the ferry nor the detour mattered much, nor did the narrow stone bridge which still stands at Stirling. But the motor has revolutionized road traffic and has developed it to a point at which it rivals the railroad.

Radio Flashes

WASHINGTON, April 25.—Confidential transmission of news by radio is expected to be one of the most important topics under discussion at the coming international communications conference to be held here in September.

It will be a revival of the same question which maintained interest at the last international conference at Berne, Switzerland, last June.

Twenty-five national and international news agencies were represented at that conference. These proposed the following measures:

Means for secret transmission of news. Limiting the receiving range of all private stations. Adoption of a ciphering and deciphering system by governments and news broadcasters. Severe penalties for violation of the secrecy of radio news messages.

Besides these restrictions, the news agencies last year sought to limit general broadcasters to the transmission of news only when furnished by a "recognized" news agency.

Although no action has been taken on these regulations, something toward a definite line of action is expected to result from the coming international conference in Washington. Radio engineers have practically completed a system of codifying and decodifying radio messages so that only the transmitter and those licensed to receive the messages could understand them.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company has revoked its earlier denial that it has a system by which radio messages, or even concerts, could be "hashed up" and then "unhashed" for the information and entertainment of only those who have hired special apparatus for the purpose.

The coming conference may be called upon to draw up a universal radio news system that would not interfere with other methods of broadcasting and at the same time would be free from interference.

STRANGER THAN FICTION

By M. B. LEVICK.

At first he wondered why the room was so dark. His consciousness swung this way and that for a moment to get bearings, as it does when one is awakened from a nightmare. Maybe there was news of a victory; was that why the bells had been ringing? He listened, and now there were no bells, but only the memory of a ringing. It was that way when he was a boy and got knocked out in a scuffle. Maybe it was time to get up. His head felt as if he had been drunk. Had he been drunk?

He started to sit up and a sharp pain caught him. Suddenly the picture came into focus before him. He had been knocked out, just like that time when he was a youngster. He had come down to the cellar of the storehouse with his commissary blank in his hand, and then something had happened. It must have been an explosion. He remembered: like a clap of thunder ten feet off, so loud you couldn't hear it, but only knew it happened. So he was not in bed, after all.

It was nice to lie there a moment before getting up. All at once he thought of his mother. Was it just this army storehouse that blew up, or the whole town? He must go back to his mother. He blinked, but it was still so black he could not see. Well, there would be a chink of light somewhere. He would find the stairs. Maybe it would be a job to get out, but he had to make haste to find his mother.

When he sat up his head struck something! He felt a box. His hand ranged over it, traced lettering burnt into the wood with an iron. He mused dully, fingering the burnt lines. It was so funny. The box was sticking out from a pile somehow; it might be loose. The lettering he partly made out. Tinned meat. He brightened a bit; if help were slow, at any rate he wouldn't miss dinner. He laughed at the thought. He would put it on his inventory blank: "One tin of meat, consumed in the course of duty." They couldn't say anything to that.

He crept from under the box and groped for the wall. Either way would lead to the stairs. Better creep; no use whacking your head. He advanced on all fours, feeling ahead, then stopped with head raised. He sniffed in the blackness. Was that smoke? Terror struck him like a knife. He scrambled on, fumbling; he touched the lowermost step, cried out, rose and started to climb. A bit of wood touched his breast. He put out his arms, caressing surfaces like a blind man. The stairway was choked solid.

He sat down on the top. "Well," he said aloud, "I've got to wait for them." He decided there was smoke; he decided there was none. Fifty times he weighed the question. Smoke, at least, would show there was an inlet. "They're slow," he said, listening. There was no sound at all, absolute silence worse than the dark. He leaped up, shouting, and shrank back from his clamor. "I dont like this," he said out loud. The words reverberated from the foundation's rock wall. He sniffed again.

He began to measure, slowly. So many foot-lengths this way, so many that. Did the lines cross? He laid marks, feeling inch by inch. He measured the space where he could creep. He felt the upset heap of boxes. If he strained his eyes the boxes became faint shadows in the blackness. He pictured them by touch, reading the branded marks. Then he laughed, all cheerful. He would play a joke; while he was waiting he would count all the boxes he could, and have his inventory ready when they came for him. The chief clerk would open his pop eyes and say, "Well, you are a fine fellow!" He could hear them laugh; tinned meat, so many; bottled water, officers' mess, so many.

He found a piece of rock and broke open a box. By and by he would take a nap. He was annoyed because he could not see to bandage his fingers, and the box bruised them. At every few blows he paused; were those sounds the sappers? Or echoes?

As he ate, his fingers opened and the tin fell. Everything inside him turned to ice except his heart. His breath stopped. Suppose they weren't coming! He gasped and wiped his forehead with his sleeve. He laughed very loud, for it was good to hear the sound.

* * *

There were now seventeen dents in the stick of wood which was his calendar. Did he make two in one day, or one in two? Well, it was something. On the day there were seventeen a new fear came. What if there were not food enough? He did not ask himself enough for what, but merely enough. How far back did the tiers of boxes go? It was just a feeling as that night he jumped awake, thinking he had touched a rat, when his hand had merely brushed his growing beard. Save, eat less! They must be near now. He cursed them as he listened. Then he wheeled and ran. He struck the wall full tilt.

* * *

Of the day of the twenty-ninth dent his thoughts were floating. They seemed like thistledown in sunshine. He thought of how he was knocked about as a lad and of the war, the commissary, the pop-eyed superior. Then he saw his mother by the window in the kitchen and he smelled the warm odors of what she was cooking. It was all clear in the blackness. His throat choked; he threw himself on an empty box, with both hands pound it like a drum. He cried out without being able to help it.

Presently he fell to weeping. The tears stung his eyes. He wondered if crazy men feel pain. When he lay at peace he said quite dispassionately and not as if it were a question, "Suppose this lasts for months!" What a joke! If they came in time—but there is no time in black silence. How disgusted with themselves they would be when they found him dead. It would be nice to be dead. That would be a revenge on them, all right.

* * *

Something naked lay on the moist packed earth. Before it two dots glowed in a darker shadow. Man and rat peered at each other. The rat whisked a bit and squeaked. The man answered it, squeaking just as the rat did. Thus they talked for a long time.

* * *

The theme of the man walled up to starve was used by Poe in "The Cask of Amontillado" and by Balsac in "La Grande Breteche." A radiogram from Berlin a few days ago told of a Russian commissary employe who was found at Vilna after ten years in the cellar of a warehouse that had been wrecked by an explosion. He could not see nor hear nor speak. He died three days after the rescue and was buried with military honors.

RAMSAY M'DONALD IS LOOKING AHEAD

Former British Premier Expects Young Tories to Join Labor.

FAITH INCREASED

Extremists Are Spreading Gospel of Agitation to Provoke Strikes.

By EDWIN W. HULLINGER.

In the opinion of J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor Party and former Prime Minister, the Labor Party will continue to grow steadily, receiving its largest accession of members from the younger men of the Unionist Party rather than from the eclipsed Liberal Party. Meanwhile the Labor Party remains as devoted to socialism as ever; and, in expectation of forming a Government some day in the future, is busy working out details of nationalization projects which it expects to apply as soon as it gains a majority in the House of Commons.

"Strange as it may seem," said Mr. MacDonald in the first interview he has given since resuming the office of leader of the Opposition, "the group with whom I think we have the greatest affinity is the young men's faction in the Unionist Party—the men of 30 and under. Their ideas are closer to ours, and it is from this quarter that we are likely to receive our greatest body of secessionists." Mr. MacDonald made it clear that British Labor intended vigorously to oppose Bolshevism and Bolshevist methods, and definitely challenged Moscow's self-proclaimed leadership of the world Socialist movement.

"British labor," he declared, "is firmly opposed to revolution and to attempts to change the present order through violence. We believe that social advance must be a process of evolution, a changing of human nature as well as a transformation of the external form of society. We realize that a radical change in the external form—an attempt to step suddenly far in advance of the evolution of the human element—cannot fail to be disastrous. Russia's experience has demonstrated that. The two processes must go on together, and a change in one involves a change in the other."

Mr. MacDonald said he believed the Socialist movement throughout Europe was now beginning to swing away from the Marxian doctrines of the Third International in Moscow and adjust itself to a policy of "practical realism," and that Continental Socialists realized the impracticability, if not impossibility, of a "world revolution."

Fa' Increased, Says MacDonald.

Mr. MacDonald thought, however, that this abandonment of the revolutionary aim had been accompanied by an increased faith in the ultimate applicability of socialism, introduced "bit by bit."

Coming immediately after the return of the British Labor mission from its tour of inspection in Russia, and at a moment when the Labor Party is reorganizing its reduced forces in Parliament, the Labor leader's declaration assumes particular importance. Commenting on the Prime Minister's recent speech in the House of Commons, in which he invited labor to co-operate in a program of industrial conciliation, Mr. MacDonald characterized it as "childish" and "Utopian."

Although British labor, according to Mr. MacDonald, "will take a central course, straight ahead," he said that this might not preclude some ruffling of the situation through the efforts of the small Communist element in England during the next few years. The extremists, he said, were secretly spreading through trade unionism and organizing nuclei of agitation, with the hope of fomenting strikes. These groups were extremely aggressive, he said, and "are making a great deal of noise, noise entirely out of proportion to their strength or influence." But he felt that the mass of British labor would remain calm.

For another reason, however, Mr. MacDonald was not too optimistic regarding England's immediate industrial and economic future. He feared that a number of difficult years were ahead.

"It will depend," he said, "on the international situation and the way Britain's foreign policy is handled. England's internal prosperity rests upon the stability of Europe. Until international equilibrium is restored and our markets and buyers regain their solvency, we cannot hope to prosper. Foreign affairs are a matter of life and death to us."

And judging from the recent trend of things, Mr. MacDonald professed to see little light in this sphere. "I think they are going to make a mess of the foreign policy," he said.

Mr. MacDonald spoke feelingly of the so-called extreme left problem in England. He rapped the "disciples of Lenin."

"We don't want to have anything to do with the extremists," he said. "We have read them out of our party. When they try to work their way in among us, we put down our heads and horn them out. They are—and quite logically from their point of view—opposed to parliamentary principles. Their aim is to stir up industrial trouble with the hope of making the situation so bad that the masses will rise in despair."

Mr. MacDonald affirmed that while consecrated to constitutional methods, British Labor was definitely socialistic. He said the British Socialists were utilizing the present lull to work out in detail a concrete plan for the socialization of the country.

Stand by Nationalization.

The manner and order of application would depend upon the exigencies of the moment.

"We are working on a plan for the nationalization of finances, railways, mines, &c.," he said. "But which of the measures we should apply first, if we got the chance, I cannot say. But I can say that the next time Labor takes over the Government, it will take definite steps toward nationalization."

Mr. MacDonald does not expect a great deal of change in party groupings for the time being. He predicted that the Liberal Party "would continue picking up the crumbs thrown down by the other parties, all the while trying to gain for itself a chair at the feast." But he prophesied that "it would not succeed in getting up at the table; would only go on picking up crumbs as it is doing now."

LEARN HOW TO WALK PROPERLY

Well, now that you have learned how to carry yourself, the next thing you need to know is how to walk. I mean by that how to use your feet," said Mr. Mann's physical director.

"Once you have managed to get a well poised body, you want to be sure of well directed feet.

"Such troubles as weak foot and flat foot are more prevalent among women than men. It isn't altogether the arch, as many think, but a general weakened condition of the leg muscles that support the arch.

"Faulty standing and yalking can easily turn weak feet into flat feet.

"A good exercise for strengthening the leg muscles is to rise upon the toes from 15 to 30 times each morning.

"People who toe out place a greater strain upon the arches of their feet than those who toe in. Persons who continuously toe out should try just as persistently to toe in and, in addition to the exercises, will soon be greatly benefitted.

JUNIOR PUPILS STUDIO RECITAL

FRIENDS PRESENT.

A number of the junior pupils of Miss Mathilde Masson gave a pretty studio recital at the Conservatory of Music last evening, with a good attendance of their parents and friends. The small girls who took part, little graduates of the Myers method of musical training for children, who are now continuing their piano work, played very well, showing excellent attention to rhythm, phrasing and expression in their various selections. Frances Dawson played the 'Intrata' by Bach, Krogmann's "Vesper Bells," and a waltz by Carl Heins; Mary Brooks played a Sonatina by Bach, "The First Sorrow" by Schumann, and "Rondo," by Charles Bennee, and Marjorie Bowler played the Bach "Intrata," Dick Slater's "Narcissus," and "The Wanderer's Retreat," by Carl Heins. Vocal numbers were given by Frances Dawson, 'A Wasted Crust,' Dorothy Cooney, "The Merry Little Men," and a pantomimic vocal duett, "I Don't Want To Play in your yard," by Ilene Bowler and Dorothy Cooney.

DANCE AND EUCHRE.

Vimy Ridge L. O. B. A. Had Splendidly Attended Affair.

Vimy Ridge Lodge L.O.B.A. held a very successful and well-attended euchre party and dance in Victoria Hall last evening, with over a hundred and fifty people at the tables and on the dance floor. Music was provided by Bell's orchestra. Card prizes were won by Mesdames Simpson and B. Moore, and Messrs. H. Gilbert and A. Moscrop. Mrs. F. GOOD MANNERS

Since no one but a fairly intimate friend is ever asked to fill a place at dinner, this invitation is always telephoned. Merely say, "Can you do me the favor to fill a place at dinner tonight?" The one who received the invitation is rather bound by the rules of good manners to accept if possible.

STUDY A CHILD TO TRAIN HIM

Cannot Be Judged by Adult Standards—No Rules Given.

REAL PROFESSION

BY JULIA WADE ABBOT

"Why do my children act that way?" Every mother asks herself this question many times a week. She does not realize that most of the near-naughty things her boys and girls do and say are charcteristic of childhood. Virtually every child passes through certain definite stages.

It is the mother's responsibility to recognize these stages and handle them correctly. You cannot train your child correctly until you understand him thoroughly.

When your boy came to you the other day with the wonderful tale of some impossible adventure, were you shocked? Did you accuse him of lying to you and punish him accordingly? Every child with an imagination loves to make up stories. He instinctively wanders from reality into a land of his own invention. Properly directed imagination can be one of the greatest forces in your child's life. Only, you must differentiate between it and the lie that is designed to secure something the child wants.

It is easy to forget that you were ever young yourself. Perhaps you are constantly annoyed by things your children or your neighbor's children do. Yet they are acting as you acted a few years ago, in the perfectly natural, normal way for children.

You cannot judge them by adult standards. Children have thoughts and feeling, yet some parents fail to realize this. If they care for their child's body—feed him, clothe him, see that he gets the proper sleep—they think they have done their duty.

Child training must take account of the individual. No two children are alike and treatment which is applicable to one must be entirely changed for another. There can, therefore be no correspondence course in the proper training of children.

Instead of learning a set of rules, parents must study child psychology and then apply it to the behavior of their own children. Above all, a parent must remember that children are children.

When our schools and colleges awake to the importance of parenthood, we shall have practical courses in parent training. Parenthood is the greatest profession in the world. We spend years training for other professions, then why not for this?

Messrs. Leon Frazer, J. J. Duffus and Alderman N. Phelan have returned home after attending the inaugural meeting of the Ontario Tourists' Association in Toronto yesterday.

A very pretty afternoon tea was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. R. S. Hall, 543 Gilmour street, with an attendance of nearly one hundred ladies. The guests were received by Mrs. Hall, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Redner, and her sister, Mrs. Ketcheson, of Belleville. The rooms were decorated with a profusion of lovely pink roses, and the tea table was charmingly centred with a large basket of roses and arranged with pink candles in silver candleabra. Mrs. F. L. Robinson poured tea and Mrs. W. H. Bradburn cut the ices. Tea room assistants were Mrs. B. B. Gillespie, Mrs. L. J. LeClair, Mrs. C. Lacheur and Mrs. J. Marsh. Guests were ushered to the dining room by Miss L. E. Hall. Little Catherine Corkery made a dainty door attendant.

EGGS 24 CENTS.

This morning's warm sun gave a languid air to the farmers' market. Buying was not exceptionally brisk, the crowd circulating in slow style about the various stalls, and congregating in bunches in the upstair hall.

On the open market a small black horse harnessed to a light rig, was eating hay while the sun shone. In industrious, silent fashion, he helped himself liberally to a nearby load, while his owner gossiped, unnoticing.

Little collie pups could be purchased for a dollar or two dollars. Little pigs in a crate were $16 a pair.

Potatoes were 70 and 75c a bag, "whatever you can get," as one man phrased it. Parsnips and carrots and beets were 25c a peck.

The fish men had a busy time with "three pounds for a quarter," competing in the lower entry with the "bananas at forty cents a dozen" cry of the fruit dealer.

Fruit and flower slips were a noticeable commodity on the open market. Strawberry slips were 65c for a hundred, goosebery canes 20c apiece, and raspberry canes 2c each. Rhubarb roots in bunches were 20c. Onion tops guaranteed to sprout out into fresh green onions next spring, were 20c a quart.

Lilac sprigs were 10c a root, Canterbury bells, three for a quarter, gaillardias 10c each, perennial phlox 15c, and Sweet William roots three for two bits.

Honey in pails on the open market was 10c a pound for the light amber, and 14c for the clover.

In the basket section, butter and eggs were plentiful, the former selling from 35c to 38c a pound, the latter at 24 and 25c a dozen.

Cream was 30c a pint. Chickens were 28c to 31c a pound. One woman had a small quantity of maple syrup at 70c a quart.

WIDE CHOKER POPULAR

The wide choker of fur, fastened on the side with a wide satin bow, is very practical for wear with the new spring coats that have the mannish collar line.

GINGHAM COAT

A stunning coat is made of India gingham in yellow, green and red plaid, and it has reverses and a lining of yellow linen. Obviously, it is for country wear.

SOFT WOVEN TWEEDS

Tweeds, particularly the very soft weaves in very delicate shades are liked for spring coats and jumper dresses.

COLOR IT NEW WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Beautiful home dyeing and tinting is guaranteed with Diamond Dyes. Just dip in cold water to tint soft, delicate shades, or boil to dye rich, permanent colors. Each 15-cent package contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint lingerie, silks, ribbons, skirts, waists, dresses, coats, stockings, sweaters, draperies coverings, hangings, everything new.

Buy "Diamond Dyes" — no other kind and tell your druggist whether the material you wish to color is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods.

HOME TOWN RECIPE.

Miss A. Walton, 506 Smith street, gives us the following recipe with the pretty name of Fairy's Foam, and vouches for its exceptionally nice taste:

Cover three-fourths of a tablespoon of gelatin with one tablespoon of cold water. Let stand five minutes. Add two tablespoons of boiling water to dissolve, holding over the hot kettle, if necessary. Beat one cup of whipping cream very stiff. Add two tablespoons of powdered or very fine sugar, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and dissolved gelatin. Have ready one-quarter cup of stoned or chopped dates, one-quarter cup pecans or walnuts, and one cup of marshmallows, cut in pieces. Turn into a mold and chill. When ready, serve with garniture of whipped cream or chopped dates or candied cherries and angelica.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

REMOVES WHITE SPOTS

To remove white spots on woodwork apply alcohol with an old cloth. Rub off quickly and polish.

IRONING PONGEE SILK

Pongee silk should be thoroughly dried before it is ironed and then ironed on the right and wrong side.

CLEANS PIANO KEYS.

Lemon juice and salt will clean piano keys. Be careful to let none of the liquid drop between the keys.

WATER GOOD FOR ALL.

Every Adult Person Should Drink Three Quarts a Day.

How much water should a person drink daily?

The amount needed varies.

Many do not drink this amount. Some take a glass of water before breakfast, a glass at noon and a glass at the evening meal.

The body loses about two pints daily through the skin in the form of perspiration, and from two to three pints through the kidneys.

Salty foods call for water. If very little salt is used, and if meat is not used, the kidneys and other excerectory organs have much less work to do than when meat is eaten freely.

Also, under these conditions, the amount of water required for the elimination of execretory wastes and other poisonous matters is greatly lessened.

Hard water should be softened for drinking purposes. This can be done with lime or salt.

Physicians believe that hard water is a likely source from which the body acquires those lime salts of oxalic and urie acids, which prove so troublesome to many persons.

LONG TIES ON DRESS

A blue serge dress, beltless and very plain as to line, has white collars and cuffs of pique and long ties of American beauty and purple taffeta.

WOMEN'S LEAGUE HAD PRETTY TEA

Corrected Report of Function at Home of Mrs. E. G. Hiland.

Through typographical errors, several names were omitted in the list of those assisting at the Catholic Women's League tea on Wednesday. The following was the correct account:

The members of the Catholic Women's League were hostesses at a very pretty and well-attended afternoon tea, held on Wednesday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. E. G. Hiland, Homewood avenue. The guests were received by Mrs. Hiland and the president, Mrs. C. J. Snider, assisted by members of the executive: Mrs. H. Owen, Mrs. E. H. Hickey, Mrs. F J. McFadden and Mrs. C. Hodgson. Miss K. McAuley was convenor of arrangements.

The tea table, prettily centred with a large vase of daisies, was presided over by Mrs. E. J. McCarthy and Mrs. E. T. Flood. Tea-room assistants were Mrs. George Gordon, Mrs. F. J. Overend, Miss Eleanor Morrow and Miss May Grady.

During the afternoon, a musical programme in charge of Mrs. H. Owen, was given. Mrs. James Lynch and Mrs. George Ball played an instrumental duett, Miss A. Archambault an instrumental solo, vocal numbers were given by Mrs. L. Spriggs and Mrs. J. Dwyer, and a pretty dance by Miss Jessie Hodgson. Accompaniments for the solo numbers were played by Mrs. James Lynch and Mrs. C. Hodgson.

SPRING FROCKS SEEN IN PARIS

French Women Don Choicest Garb for Longchamp Races.

OTHER CENTRES

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 24.—(United Press).—Spring frocks like spring flowers, are sprouting up in various fashion centres of the world. What is worn in Paris is unfamiliar in New York and what is worn in Atlantic City differs from what is worn in San Francisco, but eventually one will see a smattering of all these styles in every city from Vienna, Austria, to Dallas, Texas.

Longchamp, France.

With the opening of the races, the French woman is donning her "chicest" of chics. She is a different creature this season than she was a year ago, for today finds her a mannish little figure in hip-length jacquette, short skirt and head-shaped hat. Her neck-piece, if any, is a small one of sable or a silver fox.

Most predominating among the styles at Longchamp are the hip-length jacquettes of black cloth or black velvet, which are worn with skirts of greyish mixtured material. The jacquette is often double-breasted and adorned with large bone or leather buttons and the short skirt may be pleated or plain. The popular hat worn with this outfit is a small one of black belting ribbon or corded taffeta or a simple black felt.

Mannish topcoats of pinkish beige worn over crepe frocks of similar shade and with matching hats are another familiar style at Longchamp. Felt hats in these soft beige shades are more popular than silk or straw shapes. The popular felt shape has an up-turned front brim which sits close to the crown, resembling a cuff. The back brim, of course, is short. Among the ensembles one sees at the races are many of navy blue trimmed with shades of velvet, red, light green or Madonna blue and these are worn with hats matching the trimming.

Atlantic City.

Costumes at Atlantic City this season are mostly trim tailored suits with double-breasted jacquettes and short scant skirts. Felt hats matching the color of the suit are usually worn. Owing to the coldness of the weather, most women have been wearing their fur coats over the spring suit. The tendency at Atlantic City is not mannish, but mantailored suits are worn with the idea of accentuating the feminine note. For instance, the blouse is decidedly feminine this season. One never sees mannish shirts, collars, ties, shoes resembling men's oxfords or woollen hosiery. Gloves, blouses, shoes, etc., are as dainty as can be and often the satin slipper is the one chosen for the mannish suit.

Lido-Venice Club, New York.

A fashionable New York store utilized the popular Lido-Venice Club for its spring fashion parade. The Italian setting of this club lent a beautiful background for the colorful spring models which ranged from cape suits, which are designed for morning wear in the country, to the tulle dance frock. Among the sports frocks was a sweater in two shades of green adorned with a large and colorful bird on the left side. This was worn with a white pleated skirt and a green felt hat. The masculine note was stressed in a navy blue suit, worn with a white blouse and white stock collar and plain black hat. A cane augmented the masculine trend.

Cocoa colored georgette was chosen as representative of the tea frock. This was made with simple bodice effect and flaring hemline and had a separate scarf of cocoa georgette trimmed with cocoa colored fox. Hat, hosiery and shoes were of matching shade. The entire cocoa colored gown is undoubtedly one of the most popular of the season. One sees entire windows on Fifth Avenue devoted to this shade and to variations of wood shades.

Black lace frocks with long sleeves are about as popular as they possibly can be for evening wear. One sees them worn with colorful Spanish shawls.

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 4

The Two Types of Tea

There are two distinct types of tea, namely Black Tea and Green Tea. Both are made from the same bush and both are equally pure. The difference is in the process of manufacture which gives each a different flavour. Black Tea after it is plucked is withered and partially 'fired' or dried, then allowed to oxidize by being exposed to the air. This gives Black Tea its dark reddish colour when drawn. Green tea is immediately steamed after plucking, which prevents oxidization. There are delicious blends of "SALADA" in both of these types and also a unique blend of Black and Green Tea Mixed. All are sold in four qualities.

"SALADA"

NAMES HALL COCHRANS

After all, aren't we people a right funny lot? We're never quite pleased with the names that we've got. Objections we feel may be all tommyrot, but we all feel the same as to names, like as not.

Marie would much rather her name had been Pearl, for Pearl seems to fit just her type of a girl. And Lily and Hazel, if pinned to the truth, admit that they wish they were Gertrude and Ruth. The feelings of fellows run on just the same. They're never quite pleased with their own given name.

If Earnest had chosen, when he was a boy, he wouldn't be Earnest but Arthur, or Roy.

With names that are common, like Mary and Grace, the owners wish odd ones had taken their place. And those that are odd like Theresa and June, to folks who are called them, seem way out of tune.

Can any one tell why we make such a fuss, o'er names that our parents have handed to us? It's you, not your name, that will carry you far. Don't worry 'bout WHO, but about WHAT you are.

IS THIS Your BIRTHDAY

SATURDAY, APRIL 25—If today is your birthday, you often will be tempted to seek a stage career. You have much latent ability along this line, but you lack the courage to fight an uphill battle against big odds. Because of this, it will be difficult for you to succeed on the stage. Learn to use a little more will power when you face discouragements. Remember there is usually a bright side to every discouraging situation.

TRAINING YOUR DOG

After teaching your dog to jump and sit up, it is time to start him walking on his back feet. The dog should learn this trick in two or three weeks.

Place the dog about two feet in front of you in a sitting position. Hold a piece of meat over him so that he will raise on his haunches to take the food.

When the dog has reached a walking position, slowly move your hand toward your body so that the dog will unconsciousy put his feet against your leg.

SITTING POSITION FIRST

You must start the trick each time from a sitting position. Repeat this routine until he is willing to do it without food. Now, to get distance place him a few feet farther away. At the snap of your fingers he should rise and come to you walking on his back feet.

After he has become familiar with this part of the trick it is time to correct the position of his front feet. He may not hold them up properly. Correct posture of the front feet may be achieved by tapping them up.

When the dog has been properly trained for walking on his hind feet, it is time to take up what is called waltzing. The movement is so natural to a dog that it becomes a habit and he adopts it often-times to please his master.

Waltz Trick Easily Taught.

The waltz trick should be accompished in a few lessons by turning him around to left or to the right as you wish.

Place your hand under his lower jaw and slowly turn him in the direction desired. Finish the waltz by placing his feet against your leg.

When he has done this trick successfully pet him and let him play about the house so that he will forget the day's work.

EXPLAINS NEED OF PROTECTING CITY'S HEALTH

Dr. A. W. McPherson Tells of Work of Disease Prevention.

IN SCHOOLS.

Great Opportunity For Community Effort is Among Scholars.

Permit me through the medium of your columns to bring before the general public and particularly the parents of the children attending our public schools the importance of the various health measures that aim to protect our children from infectious diseases. We are just passing through a big epidemic of whooping cough, mumps and measles. About two years ago we had diphtheria, and a couple of years previous we had smallpox and scarlet fever, and these epidemics will recur just as regularly and as certain as the years will come.

There is no doubt that the schools afford an excellent opportunity, probably one of the best, for the communication of the disease from one family to another. Statistics tell us in no uncertain way that these infectious diseases cause more deaths in early childhood than any other group of diseases; in early infancy, whooping cough; in the second year measles; then in later childhood, scarlet fever and diphtheria.

In addition to the dangers to their health and life there is the big wastage incidental to the sickness and quarantine and the loss of education due to the enforced absence from school on account of quarantine. This latter is a serious matter and is of prime importance not only to the parents of the children affected but also to the ratepayers generally, because the irregular attendance of the pupils is an important factor in increasing the cost of education to the individual and to the ratepayers in general. It is for these reasons therefore that health problems in the school are undertaken, viz., assisting in the control of epidemics, preserving the health of the children who are in attendance at school, safeguarding the health of those at home who are below school age, and by these means eliminating some of the most serious causes of irregularity of attendance.

If the facts are as I have stated it becomes of prime importance to do anything possible to protect our children against epidemics of diphtheria and scarlet fever. These are the two diseases most dreaded by mothers, and rightly so. However, I am perfectly certain that within the next few years these diseases will be looked on as we now look on smallpox, which, as a result of the general use of vaccination, has practically been eliminated as a disease to be feared. We now have at our disposal the materials for testing the children to find out who are susceptible to diphtheria. We have also the materials to inoculate the children which will minimize them, or in other words, will render them not susceptible to diphtheria.

I may say that last year we tested out 500 school children and found about 75 per cent of them susceptible. These we inoculated. As there has been some criticisms of this procedure by people who know nothing about medicine in general or this process in particular, I want to say that this discovery is considered by the whole of the medical profession, both in Europe and America, as one of the greatest advances made in public health measures. It has been tried out all over the world, and has the approval of those who are actively engaged in the work of public health, children's hospitals and schools, and is being applied to the greatest extent possible.

The results obtained in protecting the children are most gratifying and the disturbance to the children is negligible. In our series of 500 children we had no disturbances. All the work was done in the schools during the school term and was accomplished without any discomfort to the pupils, and without any interference with the attendance.

The response of the parents last year has encouraged us to give another opportunity to have their children tested out and inoculated against diphtheria, and it is proposed to do this next week. Any parent desiring this to be done must send in without delay a written request to the teacher. It is hoped that a large number will take advantage of it.

A. W. McPHERSON,
School Medical Officer.

FOR TEN YEARS DEPENDABLE

V. M. Eastwood Comments on Motor Car Dependability.

"For ten years — dependable. These words express the successful attainment of an ideal conceived in the minds of the founders before the first car bearing Dodge Brothers name was placed in the hands of a purchaser late in 1914," says Mr. Eastwood of the Dodge Motor Sales., local dealer, in commenting on Dodge Brothers latest advertisement.

"The word 'Dependable,' when it appeared on the poster board and in the magazines and newspapers several years ago, focused public attention on one basic characteristic to which, more than any other, is due the good name which Dodge Brothers Motor Car enjoys everywhere.

"Having decided to produce a car bearing their name, Dodge Brothers kept 'Dependability' constantly in mind while they were designing the units, selecting the materials, prescribing the heat treatments and determining the machining and assembling process and inspections.

"The four-cylinder, L-head type of engine was selected because it has always been known, over great periods of service, to be the most dependable and free from need of repairs or adjustments.

"That their judgment a decade ago was sound is evidenced clearly by the fact that over 75 p.c. of all passenger cars to-day are powered by four-cylinder engines and that last year Dodge Brothers sales showed an increase of over 25 p.c. against a loss of 11 p.c. by the automobile industry as a whole.

"Dependability of the chassis is the result of a well balanced design—of which Dodge Brothers Motor Car is an outstanding example. All units and component parts are designed and manufactured to work together in smooth co-operation— none overdeveloped at the expense of others.

"The well known policy of constant development of a basic design as contrasted with the production of radically different annual models gives the buyer complete assurance of dependability. Every year since the first Dodge Brothers Motor Car was built it has been made better by refinement of detail.

"When one million Dodge Brothers Motor Cars had been produced it was found that over 90 p.c. were still in active service. This fact affords ample evidence of generous public approval of the sound policy of building a car of enduring dependability."—(Advt.)

Is Housework Keeping You Tired and Weak?

Thousands of tired, nervous, rundown women who must daily perform exhausting housework and care for children, would be astonished to learn that in most instances their fatigue, headaches, nervousness and haggard appearance are now entirely unnecessary.

For physicians say that in an enormous number of cases these symptoms are due merely to the lack of sufficient iron in the blood. And now that Science has perfected a new combination of iron, like the iron in the blood, it is, in many cases, easily possible for people to increase their strength, nerve force and endurance in only two weeks time.

Any doctor will tell you that without sufficient organic iron, your blood loses its power to change food into firm, healthy flesh and tissue. So nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good. You become undernourished, weak, nervous, and lacking in physical force and endurance.

What you need, then, is organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to enrich your blood and give you strength. For Nuxated Iron is organic iron, like the iron in your own blood. Try it just two weeks and notice the astonishing improvement. Money back if not delighted. But be sure you get genuine Nuxated Iron, with the letters NI on every tablet. This is the only kind sold under this absolute money-back guarantee. At all good druggists.

Kiwanis Minstrel Mimics

The Kiwanis "Minstrel Mimics" is a sure fire hit.

The production as given at the Grand last night under the auspices of the local Kiwanis Club and under the personal direction of Mr. H. J. Perkins of the John B. Rogers Producing Company was a most thorough success. Plenty of tuneful music, fun in large quantities, pep, variety, pretty costumes, pretty girls to wear them, and effective scenic investiture are combined to make "Minstrel Mimics" a treat both for the eye and the ear. An audience that filled balcony and pit to capacity indicated its appreciation almost continuously throughout the production and there was not the slightest doubt that everbody out in front enjoyed the programme. Incidentally the zest with which the people behind the footlights entered into the spirit of the thing seemed to indicate that they also seemed to enjoy every moment of the presentation.

It is not a minstrel show in the ordinary conception of that term but rather a three part production with a minstrel opening, a couple of specialties as a middle section of the programme and a one act musical comedy as the effective wind-up, the result being plenty of variety and not a dull moment anywhere.

The setting for the minstrel opening was remarkably effective. The scene was a day with the Peterboro Hunt Club and the singing brigade wore the red coats of the hunting field while the six end men billed as stable boys were clad in all the colors of the rainbow.

Jack McNabb as the hunt captain was the interlocutor and scored a triumph for himself and was of invaluable assistance by the manner in which he handled this responsible position.

The end men, Vernon Morphet, Norman Laing, Kenneth Anderson, Fraser Skinner, Carl McLean and George Nicholls had a host of jokes fresh as the average office boy and with a local tang to them that got many a laugh while each one of the six made a hit with a song number. Fraser Skinner made the most out of "Charlie, My Boy," Ken Anderson sang the popular ballad "Let Me Call You Sweetheart," most acceptably. Vernon Morphet put the tuneful "My Best Girl" number over most successfully with the charming assistance of little Jean Nicholls; Carl McLean warbled effectively about "Eliza." George Nicholls told all about the chorus of "Blue-eyed Sally" and Norman Laing exacted the last drop of fun out of the amusing "Oh, Eva." Mrs. Walter Byers contributed the other solo number on the first part singing in splendid voice the haunting number "Dreamer of Dreams" with a kazoo accompaniment by the chorus. The latter scored heavily throughout not only in the opener and finale but in the refrains of the other numbers.

The second part of the programme opened with a golfing number "A Day at the Peterboro Country Club" with Ernestina McManus and Harold Snelgrove as the principals and a chorus of caddies and golfers. The duet between the principals was charmingly done and the chorus made a big hit with their dancing, the eccentric dance of the caddie proving particularly effective.

A most enjoyable specialty followed in the singing of the lilting number "U. and S. A. Pop, Pop, Popular Song," by Mrs. Joe Dwyer in her usual artistic fashion assisted by a chorus of dancers whose clean cut work was enthusiastically applauded. The dance had to be thrice repeated.

The musicale comedy, "The Island of Never Known," with Alec Dick as the most striking queen that was ever supposed to have lived on a south sea isle wound up the programme. Never mind about the plot. There was one but those who have yet to see "Mimics" will not want to hear about it in advance. It however seemed to bring into action Norman Laing and Verne Morphet as two funny ship wrecked sailors who were always in hot water figuratively and sometimes nearl yactually as well. Ken Anderson was an amusing prime minister. Mrs. Walter Byers and Jessie Hodgson his two charming daughters. Hugh Nevin was a manly British naval officer and Jack Dewart Walter Byers and Harry Huffman handled their roles effectively. There was a riot of fun in the production. A chorus of pretty South Sea belles, a charming setting and some pleasing music. The feature was the duet "My Dream Moon" by Mrs. Byers and Mr. Niven, a number most enjoyably sung.

The Rotary Club attended last night's production in a body and between the first and second acts contributed a choral programme of their own that was much appreciated.

"Minstrel Mimics" will be repeated to-night, and deserves another capacity house. It is a real show and the director, Mr. H. J. Perkins, has earned praise and congratulations upon his success in producing such an enjoyable programme.

The Grand Orchestra, in charge of Mrs. J. A. Foster, was of very material assistance in the musical numbers.

PROFESSOR DUXBURY RECITAL.

(By J. R. H.)

The large audience at George Street Methodist Church last night was entranced by Professor John Duxbury's dramatization of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." Nothing quite like it has entertained and thrilled a Peterborough gathering in years, and Professor Duxbury's ability raised the presentation into a realm of art by itself. Lasting an hour and twenty minutes, the recitation of Robert Louis Stevenson's awesome story seemed only to consume a few passing moments, so enthralled were the twelve hundred witnesses of the amazing metamorphosis that is the basis of the tale. Before their eyes, as in the office of Dr. Lanyon, the despicable Mr. Hyde, murderer, child beater, and creature of evil, was transformed into the honored Dr. Jekyll, M.D., D.C.L., LL.D., F.R.S., friend of the poor and gentleman among gentlemen. There, too, appeared the kindly, suave, debonair lawyer, Mr. Utterson; the self-satisfied, dignified Dr. Lanyon, and the phlegmatic London policeman. Professor Duxbury lived his parts in the terrible story he unfolded so well and took his audience with him in every whim and change.

A Great Story.

Whatever may be said of the other works of Robert Louis Stevenson, the place of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" is assured by the teaching in its great allegory. "It shows," Professor Duxbury said, "the Pauline struggle between bad and good in our natures, so that the thing we would, we do not, and the thing we would not, we do." The story stands alone, comparable with none other, and cannot be read without admiring the spiritual greatness of its author. And to the work of the author was added last night the art of the interpreter who breathed life into the characters and pictured the events of the most stupendous fantasy in actions that will linger in the memory of all who saw, and send them to the oft-read story with a new conception of its import and beauty.

Dreadful Secret.

At his laboratory table where he delved into the mystic and transcendental, Dr. Jekyll found the secret of man's duality, and one accursed night compounded the chemicals that separated his moral entities, and drank the tincture. After racking agony he revived in the form of the evil that was subdued in Dr. Jekyll—a deformed, younger and smaller man. This was the first human being in whom good and evil did not commingle—he was in this guise pure evil. His second experiment—that of changing back to the character of Henry Jekyll—proved successful, and thereafter the change was often made. As Edward Hyde he went out seeking monstrous pleasures, and as Dr. Jekyll he plodded along in the respect of men and service of his patients.

After months of this dual life, Dr. Jekyll awoke one morning to find that without voluntary act on his part he had become Mr. Hyde—and thereafter it became increasingly difficult to throw off the body and spirit of the lower order and assume his place in society as Dr. Jekyll.

Following two months' absention from the devil's draught his moral courage broke down and once more he went on a rampage, striking down and slaying Sir Danvers Carew. Later, he is compelled, through a sudden change while sitting in Regent Park, to appeal to Dr. Lanyon for help, and shows the doctor the unhappy secret he has wrung from his chemicals.

With the use of the last of his prepared chemicals, Dr. Jekyll's hope is blasted. It was due, he said in his written confession, to impurities in the first salts used in compounding the preparation, that it was efficacious. No more of that kind being procurable he is forced to the permanency of existence as Mr. Hyde, for whom the gallows waits, and takes his life.

This, in brief, is the story unfolded in startling realism by Professor Duxbury's consummate skill. Rich in allegory, eloquent in pathos, deep in thought and masterful in composition, the rendition will be remembered as classic by hundreds.

The Bells.

To offset, he said, the tendency to bad dreams that might have been caused by the gruesome story, Professor Duxbury rendered three short selections that showed well his varsatility and ability.

"The Bells," by Edgar Allan Poe was a masterpiece of rythm as presented by the elocutionist. An until then unsuspected musical timbre made itself heard in the beautiful tones of the silver, golden, brazen and iron bells. The melody rolled out over a rapt audience, telling a world of happiness in their liquid notes, ringing a wild alarm in clangor and clamor with strident tones, and solemny tolling in a monody that afrighted and awed by its melancholy menace.

The other selections were "Old Farmer Gray," and "Seven Stages of Man."

BELLEVILLE SET FOR BIG SEASON

Plan to Use Oulette, But Kingston May Spoil Their Game.

PROTEST UMPIRES.

Those who care to journey to the High School grounds on Friday evening will see for the first time this season the aspirants for positions on the Trunk ball team which will operate in the C.O.B.L. The manager of the team, Walter Gerow, has sent out the call for all to be on hand and the long-looked-for future stars may come under review.

This is not only a practice for the players of last year but for everyone who wishes to turn out. There is plenty of good men in the city who should at least come out, even if they do not make the team and those are the ones the invitation is sent to.

Only a little less than a month remains before the first ball is thrown and the season on its way; and there is a lot of work to be done between now and then to get the squad in shape. Practices to this end will be held every night until such time as the grounds are ready at the regular diamond. These would have been ready now had it not been for the snowstorm of last Sunday.

Belleville will have the old team of last year intact, Keon, Ouellet, Jeffrey, Harry Mills, Meagher, Weir, Williams, Ross, Casey, Hagerman, Wm. Mills, with the addition of a couple of outfielders who come well recommended and an infielder who hails from Quebec Province. One of the outfielders pastimed in the Inter-County last season and hit above the 300 mark and pulled them down in the garden with satisfactory regularity.

As Josh Craig says, they may be a little "rusty" but that lineup looks to have some kick in it and although no predictions are being made all the teams in the circuit will have to dispose of Belleville before they can lay any claim to the championship.

It is to be hoped that everyone will turn out for the first practice and be on hand for every other one that is called. Getting the jump in the first of the season is what counts and the team must have the conditon to do it.—Belleville Ontario.

KINGSTON'S PROTEST.

Belleville's attempt to ring in Jack Oulette this season, despite the fact that he has not been a continuous resident of that place since the first of the year, will be most strenuously objected to by Kingston, and the chances are that the C.N.R.'s will have to worry along this year without their crack right-hander.

Oulette was in Fenelon Falls until last week, and now he has again turned up in Belleville. Up there they are arranging their team and counting on Oulette being the ironman in the box this summer, but Kingston, and the other teams in the League intend to register every strenuous protest. Last year the residence rule threw Kingston out of the running for the Ontario title, and it also meant the end of Peterboro's chances so those teams intend to stick strictly by the residence rule and force Belleville to abide by it also. Just how Belleville expects to be able to use Oulette when he has not been in that place since the first of the year, is something that will give the C.O.B.L. a little careful thought.

Kingston's team in the C.O.B.L. will be a strictly home-brew affair, and the indications are that it will be as good a team as last year.

The local executive has written to the League officials protesting against the appointment of Toronto umpires, and asking that Kay and Sullivan be appointed. — Kingston Standard.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

The clubhead having started a return to the ball, from the top of the back swing, through the reverse action of shoulders and body, it is necessary to perceive that the hands and wrists do not attempt to "work" the club at this point. About half way down the body weight will have shifted to the left leg, and this leg then begins to stiffen to absorb the weight. At that moment, the clubhead having gained in speed mostly of its own accord, you catch it up with the hands and begin to throw it. This throwing is commonly called wrist action. It is more properly hand action. During this "throwing" you are in behind the club. The throw takes place wholly in the bottom of the downswing, at which time the club attains its maximum acceleration. This action is not attained by any specific rule. You learn to "feel" your way through it. It is an instinctive action. The only thing you have to do is give the club time to turn at the top and then down with you—then throw it.

SIX CLUBS WILL START IN LEAGUE

May Possibly be Eight Teams in Northumberland League This Year.

BRIGHTON, April 25.—The annual meeting of the Northumberland League has been called for next Wednesday, April 29, in the Memorial Hall, Warkworth. Afternoon and evening sessions will be held.

At the present time, six teams at least will enter and that number may possibly be increased by one, two or three. Roseneath, Hastings, Campbellford, Warkworth, Colborne and Brighton are sure starters. Brighton has decided that the Bay of Quinte League looks entirely too nebulous to be inviting and will stick to their former circuit. Orland is an uncertain proposition, while Harwood may come back this year, no one knows that definitely. Wicklow was keen to enter last fall but whether their enthusiasm survived the winter or not, remains to be seen. Frankford is interested in the Northumberland League also, and it would occasion no surprise if they entered a team.

BALL FANS HURT.

Two Spectators Struck By Runner's Thrown Bat.

MONTREAL, April 24.—A baseball bat, flung by a player running for base after a hit, struck down and injured two men during a scrub game here Thursday afternoon.

The victims are: James McLaughlin, aged 35, and Sam McCrea, aged 32.

Both were taken to an hospital where they were kept for treatment.

McLaughlin and McCrea were stading at the home plate when the accident happened. The man batting met one of the pitcher's offerings and when he darted for first base he hastily hurled his bat in the air. The heavy club struck them on the forehead and they were thrown to the ground stunned.

It was to be expected that Henry Ford and his son would ultimately take up aviation ..... The Fords, after all, are just plane people.

The first automobile built in this country is on exhibit in the Smithsonian Institution ... We suppose they'd make an exhibit of the first pedestrian if they could ever find his parts.

Maybe Babe Ruth would have less trouble with his stomach if the pitchers didn't feed him so many bases on balls.

FIFTIETH YEAR OF PLAY FOR FOOTBALL CUP

First Competition Was in 1872 When Wanderers Were Victorious.

AN ANNUAL EVENT

Suspended for Four Years, 1916-1919 Because of the War.

LONDON, Eng., April 25. (Canadian Press).—While the year 1925 can scarcely be termed the "Jubilee Year" of the English Football Association Cup, nevertheless in point of actual contests the Titantic battle which takes place at the Wembly Stadium today between Sheffield United and Cardiff City for the premier honor of English soccer brings the number of such encounters up to the half-century.

The Cup competition was inaugurated in the season of 1871-72, nine years after the Association code of playing rules as apart from the Rugby, or carrying-game, came into being. The league, with its various divisions and sections, was then unknown, for professional football had not at that time been introduced, and play was confined for the most part to the public schools, the universities and the services. As far back as 1855, however, the Sheffield club, of which the present Cup finalists are a development, had been organized.

In its first year of competition, only 15 clubs were entered in the Cup tournament, as contrasted with the 64 who now take part in the actual rounds proper, additional to the innumerable "small fry" that meet their fate early in the qualifying rounds. Comparatively little interest surrounded the trophy in its early days, and only the enthusiasm of the players themselves kept the competition alive. In general, the contestants were teams drawn from the south of England, and it was not until 1883 that the Cup was taken north, when Blackburn Olympic defeated the Old Etonians. It remained north for 19 years, until Tottenham Hotspur took Sheffield United into camp at Bolton in 1901.

Particular interest is centred on this 50th competition, inasmuch as grave danger exists that the English Cup might, for the first time, be taken by a Welsh team. Cardiff City bear the honor of the whole Principality of Wales on their shoulder, and the Welsh are looking with confidence to their sole representative in the First Division of the English League to crown their first battle in the final tie of the tournment with success. The threat of the Cup finding a temporary resting place outside of its country or origin used to loom somewhat large in the past, when Queen's Park, the Scottish amateurs, got as far as the finals in both 1884 and 1885, but in each case they were defeated by Blackburn Rovers, a feat which the Blackburn club rounded off in the year following by winning the Cup outright. A special trophy was awarded the Lancashire combination for their third consecutive victory. The Blackburn Rovers have won the Cup five times, a feat that is eclipsed only by Aston Villa, who have gone one better.

The final round this year is the farthest Cardiff City have ever gone. Last season they were subdued by Manchester City in the fourth frame, when in 1921 they were defeated by Wolverhampton Wanderers in the semi-final tilt.

Sheffield United's history is more impressive, for their presence at Wembley on April 25 will be thefifth time they have appeared in the last stage of the battle. Of their previous four "turns" they were successful three times, in 1899, 1902 and 1915. Their unsuccessful effort was made on the occasion noted above when Tottenham Hotspur defeated them at Bolton. Last year their career in Cup football was brief and inglorious, the Blades dropping out in the first round to Blackpool.

30 Miles to the Gallon

Startling good news to tens of thousands—the first announcements of the new good Maxwell's amazing results. Never since the Chrysler took the country by storm has the automobile industry known such whole-hearted response—such a dramatic and decisive triumph.

Not content with designing into this car power and pick-up equaled only in the higher priced fields, Chrysler engineering genius and fine manufacturing facilities enable the new good Maxwell owner to enjoy these performance advantages with unparalleled economy.

In almost sensationally low cost of operation and maintenance—as in speed and acceleration—this great car has written a wholly new page in motor car achievement, and in the accomplishment of the great organization which builds the Maxwell.

We await with eagerness your permission to prove in a demonstration drive that the new good Maxwell is the greatest value in the field of fours.

REDDICK EASILY BEATEN BY GREB

NOT OUTGAMED.

TORONTO, April 25.—(Canadian Press).—The largest crowd that ever attended a boxing exhibition in this city saw Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, world's middleweight champion, demonstrate conclusively last night that there is a lot of difference between a world's title and a Canadian one, as he easily outpointed Jack Reddick, Canadian middle and light heavy title holer, in each of the ten rounds of their main bout at the International Club's show. While Reddick was outclassed he was not outgamed, and in his vain effort to land telling blows on his far more experienced opponent he took lots of punishment,.

PREMIER NOT RIGHT BORDEN

EXTREMELY BORED

Having represented the city of Halifax in the Commons for many years, Sir Robert Borden for a time believed he was no stranger to the good people of the eastern gateway to the Dominion. He was sadly undeceived, however, shortly after he laid down the onerous duties of premier, according to the Toronto Star Weekly.

Included among the large number who pressed forward to meet him at an informal reception in Halifax was a middle-aged lady well known for her interest in child welfare.

Included among the large number who pressed forward to meet him at an informal reception in Halifax was a middle-aged lady well known for her interest in child welfare.

After the manner of so many other one-idea enthusiasts, this lady imagined everybody else must necessarily be particularly interested in her particular field, and when she got the chance to talk to the guest of honor launched forth into her favorite topic.

Sir Robert was bored, but did his best to stimulate a polite interest, though listening with only half an ear.

Suddenly he became all attention when he realized the lady was thanking him profusely for what he had done to make the lives of little babes healthier and happier. He was particularly puzzled when he heard himself referred to as "the greatest benefactor of future generations this country has ever known."

Sir Wilfred Laurier would have carried off such a situation with with graceful ease. Hon. Arthur Meighen would have looked wise and maintained a discreet silence. Premier Mackenzie King would have tactfully changed the conversation.

But however great may have been his ability in other lines, Sir Robert Borden never was a nimble-witted politician.

Try as he would, the ex-premier could not recall any child legislation of his that deserved such extravagant praise, and said something to this effect to his fulsome admirer.

"Legislation? Legislation?" said the lady, with a look of extreme surprise. "What has legislation to do with your business?"

"As member of parliament and former premier, I am naturally supposed to have something to do with legislation," explained Sir Robert, his brows compressed in perplexity.

The lady gasped with dismay, then said: "Oh! Are you a member of parliament? I am so disappointed! I thought you were the man who condenses milk for babies!

LORD BURGHLEY WINS HIS RACE

NEW RELAY RECORD.

PHILADEPLHIA, April 25. — Breaking of a world relay record by the doughty four from Georgetown University, the equalling of another by Princeton, a victory for Lord David Burghley of Cambridge University, England, in the 400 metres hurdles, and the winning of the Decathalon by Anthony Plansky, of Georgetown, featured the first day's events in the University of Pennsylvania's thirty second annual relay carnival Friday.

Georgetown's great performance came in the sprint medley one mile relay, last event on the afternoon programme. George Marsters, running anchor for the Washington quartette, covered his half mile in one minute 53 seconds, and gave his team a mark of 3.28, cutting two-fifths of a second from the figures jointly held by the New York A.C., and the University of Illinois.

Lord Burghley, who entered the hurdles contest against the advice of a physician, cleared the timbers cleanly, and for the greater part of the 400 metres ran in fourth place. With one hundred yards to go he increased his pace and drew away from his antagonists to win in 54 4-5 seconds, only two-fifths of a second behind the Penn. relay record.

The band played "God Save the King" and 20,000 spectators stood and bared heads.

A. E. Porritt, sprinter from Oxford University and a native of New Zealand, was unable to bear the strain of two races against some of the fastest men in the United States. He captured his heat in the 220 yard dash but fell behind George Hill, Pennsylvania captain, and Torrence, of Penn. State in the finals, Hill winning in 22 seconds.

The Britisher showed a strange style, with more shoulder motion than American runners use. His stride is even and his performance was considered remarkable in that he and Lord Burghley had only one day to practice on this side of the ocean.

THEATRES

TENSE CROOK ROMANCE "MIDNIGHT MOLLY." AT ROYAL MONDAY.

With all the melodrama of such a picture as "Those Who Dance," and all the mystery and charm of "Cornered," "Midnight Molly" bids fair to be one of the outstanding movie successes of the year. The Evelyn Brent production shows the star to great advantage; and the dual role in which she is cast gives her exceptional opportunity to display the skill in characterization which has made her the best actress on the screen in crook-drama roles. "Midnight Molly," which is from the pen of Fred Kennedy Myton, is the story of a girl who by an unusual twist of fate is called upon to take the part of the wife of a prominent attorney, running for Governor. Her resemblance to the real wife makes this substitution possible; and the complications that arise are numerous and exciting. Director Lloyd Ingraham has brought out all the fine points of a truly thrilling melodrama. The picture comes to the Royal Theatre on Monday.

ADDED VAUDEVILLE AT ROYAL MON., TUE., WED.

A European novelty balancing and juggling offering has been booked by the Royal for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. They come direct from Detroit to Peterboro and play Leows in London following. A distinct novelty that defies all the known laws of gravitation, this act, entitled "See and Believe," comes here highly recommended.

COUNTRY STORE MONDAY NIGHT.

Monday night, as usual, at the Royal, over fifty patrons will leave the theatre with a worth-while prize. This novelty, coupled with a novelty vaudeville act and 'Midnight Molly,' ought to make the Royal a popular place on Monday next.

"BAREE, SON OF KAZAN," COMING TO ROYAL.

It will be interesting news to the many who read The Examiner's story, "Baree Son of Kazan," to know that the Royal will show the picture version on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. This will be the first showing of this production in Canada.

Rehearsals are proceeding very satisfactorily for 'The Right Word,' the crossword puzzle comedy in one act written by Miss Kathleen L. McCarthy ("Jeannette" of The Examiner staff) and produced by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, which will be presented as an added attraction to the regular programme at the Capitol Theatre next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, with Wednesday matinee. This is the third of a trio of one-act plays, its forerunners being "Melange" and "Dumb Dora."

There is an entertaining little plot to "The Right Word," in which the interest centres about a mysterious professor and the solving of a crossword puzzle. A talented cast of local amateurs will present the play, with vocal and instrumental selections during its progress, by Miss Mathilde Masson and Mr. Lionel Chapman. The cast includes Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, Miss Mathilde Masson, Miss Alma Goselin, Messrs. James Dixon, W. E. McWilliams, Gordon Cornish and Lionel Chapman.

Stage furniture from H. Rummary's antique shop, gowns from R. Hall and Son, Limited, grand piano from the Heintzman Company.

AT THE CAPITOL

SILLS HERE NEXT WEEK IN NEW DRAMA. Star of "Sea Hawk" and Doris Kenyon in "I Want My Man."

Milton Sills, film hero, steps again out of the camera's eye onto the screen at the Capitol Theatre next week, when his latest First National drama, "I Want My Man," opens on Monday for a three-day run.

In this latest appearance Sills is co-featured with Doris Kenyon and supported by a cast which includes Phyllis Haver, May Allison, Paul Nicholson, Kate Bruce and others.

Film fans will find an interesting contrast between Sills' notable role in "The Sea Hawk" and his characterization in "I Want My Man." The latter is that of a war-blinded soldier who returns cured after eight years in France to find this country steeped in a mania of pleasure chasing.

"I Want My Man" was adapted from the novel, "The Interpreter's House," by Struthers Burt. It was produced for First National under the supervision of Earl Hudson and was directed by Lambert Hillyer.

Money AT WORK

This article does not include California bungalows, which have been well worked out and adapted to the needs of the people in a sane, progressive way. Th common "city an suburban" bungalow is the one referred to here.

One one particular count alone the bungalow is more expensive than a two story house of the same cubic area—the bungalow must use up twice as much roof for the same amount of room. Furthermore, it covers more land and in that way eats up back and front yard space.

In addition, the resale value of a bungalow is likely to be less than that of a two story home of the same cost because the two story home looks like "a lot more for the money." The bungalow is also a space waster, but it has become largely popularized through advertising.

People have bought bungalows largely to avoid running upstairs and downstairs and hae lost sight of other and truer values in such purchases—as well as losing sight of costs and resale value.

BOTH PARTIES ARE CONFIDENT

Supporters of Von Hindenburg and Marx Both Claim Victory.

30,000,000 VOTERS.

By Carl D. Groat
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

BERLIN, April 25.—Thirty million German voters will decide to-morrow whether the aged Marshal, Von Hindenburg, or Former Chancellor Wilhelm Marx will be President of Germany for the next seven years.

A third candidate, Ernst Thaelmann, once a hobo in America, is also running on the Communistic ticket for the Presidency, but his candidacy is a mere side-ling, with not even a remote chance of success.

Both the "Empire bloc" supporting Hindenburg and "the Folks bloc" supporting Marx, claimed today that their candidate would win.

Revelation was made by the Foreign Office early to-day that its diplomats abroad reported considerable concern regarding Hindenburg's candidacy for the Presidency.

According to the Foreign Office, the Presidential election is looked upon abroad as a "Monarchy versus Republic" struggle.

In a statement to the United Press the "Empire bloc" headquarters predicted that Hindenburg would receive approximately 14,000,000 votes and Marx about 1,000,000 less.

Marx's headquarters set the figures at: Marx 14,500,000 and Hindenburg 12,500,000. However, even Marx's most optimistic supporters doubt if he will win by such a margin. The general impression is that the former Chancellor will finish first in a close race.

Any prediction is dangerous, though, because of the complicated elements of the situation. As usual, the non-voting mass will play a tremendously important role. The Bauern party, originally supporting Hindenburg, has swung into the Marx column. The personal opposition of Foreign Minister Von Stressman to the former Field Marshal is likely to influence many of his followers to abstain from voting altogether or vote for Marx.

LOW-COST TRIP TO PACIFIC COAST.

A captivating four-weeks tour of Western Canada and the Pacific Coast, with a trip through the United States on the return journey, is being planned for Canadian teachers and their friends this summer.

Those who take advantage of this trip will see the grandest scenery on the continent—the Buffalo herd at Wainwright; Jasper National Park; with its unsurpassed mountain scenery; Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies; the totem poles of Kitwanga, and the mystic beauty of the Skeena River.

At Prince Rupert the party transfers from train to boat for the glorious water trip of 750 miles through the sheltered Scenic Seas of the North Pacific Coast to Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

On the return trip, five wonderful days will be spent touring Yellowstone National Park by motor, with a trip to Salt Lake City, and three days at Rocky Mountain National Park, Colorado. Then it's Denver, Clear Creek Canyon, Idaho Springs, and Lookout Mountain before heading for Chicago and Toronto.

The tour leaves Toronto, July 9th, and you cannot afford to miss it. Full information, fares, etc., can be secured with illustrated booklet from A. E. Bryson, 44 Silverthorn Ave., Toronto; Martin Kerr, 4 Beulah Ave., Hamilton, or any Canadian National Railways agent. 25-28

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

Preaching that is not of the operation of the Holy Spirit is without power, notwithstanding that a certain amount of truth is given forth. Strenuous efforts, by vociferating shouting, pounding of the desk, and performing muscular antics, is of little, if any value, when the Spirit of God is ignored. Some say this kind of preaching is better than the kind that puts people asleep. If both are from the same source one is as bad as the other. It is a mistake to believe that men could not talk earnestly and give out what they termed truth, if God was not with them. Men can memorize other men's words, using them as their own, and work themselves into a frenzy in giving them out. Because men even utter truth and do it so with fervor is no proof God is with them. In these days there is so much imitation of the real work of the Holy Spirit that we must try the spirits, discern for ourselves, and not be deceived.—M. T. Butcher. 1d98 10646

MORE MANUFACTURERS LOOK FOR AN INCREASE IN BUSINESS AND TELL REASON FOR HOPE

If Prosperity Doesn't Come For Breach of Promise, is This Year It Can Be Sued General Outlook— Conditions Show Betterment.

BUSINESS BAROMETER SAYS FAIR WEATHER.

J. J. Turner, R. A. Brown, W. Lyle and G. A. Macdonald Are Among Peterborough Men Who See Better Business Ahead—Some Worth While Ideas Given.

Continuing the research as to business conditions the Examiner finds further proof of the fact that the outlook for the future is sanguine.

Some further views were received which will throw a light on circumstances which have mystified many.

W. Lyle, manager of the Canadian Canoe Co. stated that his business was profitable at present and that the prospects for the immediate future were good. However, owing to unstable market conditions Mr. Lyle felt that he could not forsee events any considerable distance ahead.

Lack of Confidence

A further statement from the Quaker Oats Co., authorized by Mr. MacDonald is as follows: "On the assumption that grain markets are now on a sounder basis and should remain steadier business with us should show improvement. Lack of confidence in the market has caused buyers to withhold purchase except for the very barest necessity."

Big Sales Increase

R. A. Brown, manager of the Nashua Paper Company, regards affairs in general in a distinctly favorable light.

"Paper goods," he states, "are a fair index to business condition inasmuch as paper stock is used largely by manufacturers and wholesalers in wrapping their articles. The volume of business last year was greatly increased over previous years while this year to date shows an increase in volume and orders of 15 per cent over last year's sales."

The Nashua Paper Company employs but a limited number of hands," he continued, "as most of the work is carried on by machinery, but the plant has been comfortably busy working, as it has been doing of late, two shifts.

The prices he says are very close due to active American competition as well as to the fact that the U.S. have an advantage of 25 per cent in the cost of material.

The European wrapping paper market is poor owing to the Scandinavian competition. Thus we see that for profit we must rely on the domestic trade.

Hint to Industries

"The Nashua Paper Company," Mr. Brown continued, "is now in its sixth year in Peterborough. During the first two or three years we tried to manufacture and distribute on the same plan as in the United States giving as an excuse for poor results the fact that the market was small and in an abnormal condition.

At the end of the third year, seeing no immediate improvement of the prospects, we decided to readjust our methods to meet the prevailing market conditions. On doing this business at once became more profitable. This fact leads me to believe that, while many industries may be badly handicapped by conditions beyond their control they could be improved if managements would conform in their methods of operation and production to the times prevalent."

Mr. Brown believes that, in a great many lines of industry, Canada is over organized and, due to the tariff situation and the degree of price fixing in many industries, these industries are attempting to carry all the individual companies in the industry regardless of their efficiency.

Mr. Brown is of the opinion that it would stimulate business if, in the industries to which this applies, these price fixing agreements could be forgotten and some real competition introduced into the market. This might cause many inefficient companies to go to the wall, but it would result in lower prices to consumer, a higher degree of efficiency in better plants and a higher regard for Canadian products for the part of the consumer.

In his belief the "Made in Canada" campaign is being injured badly by the present system of price fixing in man yindustries.

The buyer who finds a price combine working against him and hence no price competition in Canada, is bound to be dissatisfied and is in many cases only too glad to defeat the purpose of such a combine by purchasing foreign goods.

This, of couse, does not apply to all industries, but a material proportion of goods imported from the United States enters the market because American manufacturers keep tab on the standardized and agreed prices made by Canadian manufacturers and cut slightly under the price.

Many Canadian companies are losing business to the United States because, due to price fixing organizations, they are unable to promptly meet cut prices from the United States which in most cases they could well afford to meet.

Immigrant Said Canada "Owed Him a Good Living"

WINDSOR, April 27.—Although Robert J. Williamson, 27, was freed on a charge of vagrancy by Magistrate Gundy in Police Court Saturday, he was severely lectured after he declared it was his belief that the country "owed him a good living."

Williamson arrived at Windsor a short time ago from Scotland and was refused admission to the United States at Detroit because of quota laws. The police found him at the Ontario Employment Bureau on Perry Street, demanding work and threatening the officials if he were not given a job. He was arrested on a disorderly charge.

"The country owes every man a decent living and they have to find jobs for everyone who wants to work" he declared when arraigned.

"You must rid yourself of many of your ideas" Magistrate Gundy told him. "There is one place for a man who acts as you do where you will be kept by the country, and that is the reformatory. The next time you appear here you will find this out."

JUDGE CHARGES CORRUPTION IN CITY BUSINESS

Says Thousands of Dollars Have Been Lost to Detroit Citizens.

MANY GUILTY.

Civic Officials Accused of Incompetence, Graft and Extravagance.

DETROIT, April 27.—(Canadian Press).—Declaring that the existence of irregularity, graft, corruption and extravagance in several city departments had cost the taxpayers of Detroit thousands of dollars, and making a recommendation both for correction of the defects and punishment for those accused of being responsible for them, Judge Frank Murphy, of the Recorder's Court, made public yesterday the finding of the grand jury inquiry.

Judge Murphy denounced certain city officials, past and present, for inefficiency, incompetence and dishonesty in their conduct of the city's business, and recommended the issuance of warrants for the arrest of 9 men. In his report, Judge Murphy states that graft and corruption were found in the Board of Education, the Department of Public Works, the Motor Transportation Division Parks and Boulevard Department, the Water Board and also in connection with the purchase of the site for the county morgue.

The administration of the division of motor transportation under Werner Helmbold as superintendent has been base and sordid.

Judge Murphy says a review of Helmboldt's activities disclosed a situation startling as to improper practices and wasteful neglect. Despite this, his judgment was accepted by his superiors, including the Mayor and Council, the report charges.

SPECTACULAR BLAZE

PRESCOTT Ont., April 27.—A spectacular fire attracted thousands to the waterfront on both sides of the St. Lawrence River Saturday night, when a warehouse located directly between the main plants of the Standard Oil Company and the Texas Oil Company at the New York Central yards at Ogdensburg was totally destroyed with its contents at a loss of $10000.

Hindenburg Is Steady Old Man, Won't Do Rash Things

LONDON, April 27 (Canadian Press) — Nothing rash in the line of political action is expected of Field Marshall Von Hindenburg as President of the German Republic by former Premier Lloyd George.

Interviewed today he said; I think France has driven Germany into this mood which is extraordinarily stupid. Hindenburg, however, is a steady old man and I do not think he has the temperament to do rash things."

The official British opinion is that while Hindenburg's election is unfortunate it is not disastrous so far as the reparation question is concerned. It is not expected that German foreign relations will be seriously affected except possibly to make Germany's former enemies less trustful of her.

SOFIA REPORTS NEW OUTBREAKS BY COMMUNISTS

Theatre and Library Destroyed by Bombs in Bulgaria's Domestic Terror.

MORE ARRESTS

Newspapers to be Censored During Period of Control by Militarists.

SOFIA, April 27. — (Associated Press). — Various acts of terrorism attributed to Communists occurred in Bulgarian provinces Friday night. A theatre and library in Plevna, capital of the province of the same name and considered a Communist stronghold, were destroyed by bombs.

Unsuccessful attempts also were made to destroy three bridges in the region of Varna, while in the town of Vratsa, in North-Eastern Bulgaria, a military patrol was fired upon during the night, one soldier being killed and two wounded.

Investigation of the explosion and fire at Plevna is said to have established the outrage as the work of Agrarian Communists. The bombs that exploded were placed under the stage of the theatre.

The Agrarian Deputy, Velinoff, alleged to have been implicated in the cathedral bombing, has fled from Bulgaria with several accomplices.

Another accomplice of the terrorists who set the bomb in the Sveti Kral Cathedral, named Kassaboff, has been killed by the Varna police.

All Party Meetings Are Forbidden.

All political party meetings throughout the country have been forbidden until further notice by an order issued by General Lazaroff, commander of the Sofia garrison. All newspapers and periodicals are to be censored during the period of martial law in Bulgaria.

M. Kordff, the Sofia director of the French Banque Generale, has been arrested and charged with transferring money to Communist conspirators. The police state that they seized fifteen packages, containing about 3,000 dinars each, because the money was intended for Communist agents. (A dinar is about 20 cents).

Further arrests have been made as a result of information obtained by Government agents, who declare that leaders of the Left Wing Peasants' Party were to form a new Bulgarian Ministry after a revolution. It is stated that Captain Athanassof was to be Minister of War and Petrini the new Premier.

General Vulkoff, the Minister of War, declared Saturday that further acts of terrorism are expected, but that all ranks of the army loyally are doing their duty. Saturday morning, the former Agrarian Minister, Omarchefsky, visited General Vulkoff, and swore allegiance to the Government. He strongly condemned the methods used by the Communists, and promised to publish an appeal through the press asking the peasants of Bulgaria to support the present Government.

The Government attaches much importance to this proposed appeal, as heretofore members of the Agrarian Party, although not hindering the Administration, have not supported it.

Four Army Officers Involved.

According to the latest evidence, four Bulgarian army officers in active service have been involved in Communist plots. One of these four has been killed by his comrades.

On the day of the explosion in the Sveti Kral Cathedral a former air force officer, who was accompanied by three men, were found trying to enter the army airdrome outside of Sofia. It is believed that they intended to seize an airplane and bomb the city.

The intruders were captured, and all airdromes have been guarded since the incident. The brother of one of the alleged conspirators in the cathedral bombing was arrested attempting to enter the Parliament Buildings, where he was employed formerly as a stenographer. The police state that he is suspected of being involved in a plot to blow up the Chamber.

Despite all these occurrences the Sofia authorities profess confidence in the situation and declare that today the population of the city will be allowed free access to the streets until 10.30 o'clock at night.

Saturday the weekly market proceeded as usual. Hundreds of peasants bringing produce were allowed to enter and leave the town without restrictions.

It is learned that Ivan Manoeff of the Bulgarian Communist Party, who was reported to have been shot by the police, committed suicide. The act occurred when the police demanded his surrender after a search of his home, in which they declared they found evidence of his connection with the revolutionary plot.

The report that the Agrarian leader Prutkin and former War Minister Mouravieff and former War Minister Mouravieff had been put to death is denied in semi-official quarters. It is stated that both men attended Friday's inquiry into the Sveti Kral Cathedral bomb plot.

The Vienna Communist organ Rote Fahne reported that Prutkin and Mouravieff had been executed by the Bulgarian police. It added that nearly all the leaders of the Peasant Party, including Friedman and Petrini, and Herbst, a journalist, had also been killed.

AROUSE PUBLIC TO AVOID WARS LEAGUE OBJECT

Sir Robert Borden Appeals to Canadians to Join Society for Peace.

USEFUL PURPOSE

Ex-Premier Hopes 100,000 Members Will be Obtained in Canada.

OTTAWA, April 27. — (Canadian Press.)— Hearty endorsation of the world movement to organize public opinion against war is contanied in the statement issued by Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden, Canada's war-time prime minister, asking for the support of the citizens of the Dominion, for the appeal which is being made by the League of Nations Society for 100,000 members. Sir Robert Borden was largely responsible for the formation of the society and is the immediate past president, and he has great faith in its filling a practically useful sphere.

"The firmest hope for the avoidance of war lies in the purpose and method of the League of Nations," he states. "By the habit and practice of peaceful settlement through periodical conference in organized gatherings, war, with its anarchy of horror and destruction, may eventually be outlawed at the bar of humanity. But the League can be powerful only as public opinion in its support is powerful in each adherent nation. To proclaim the ideal of the League and to bring to its support the strong purpose and influence of the Canadian people has been the aim of the League of Nations Society. That purpose has justly enlisted the most earnest sympathy and support of the women of Canada who are joining in this appeal for means necessary to make the Society's work effective. I pray that generous response may come to their unselfish endeavour for a purpose of highest significance to our country, our empire and the world."

CHOICE OF WAR HERO AFFRONT TO THE ALLIES

Great Britain May Decline to Extend Congratulations to Hindenburg.

SITUATION SERIOUS.

"France Drove Germany to This Mood," Says Lloyd George.

LONDON, April 27. — (United Press).—Great Britain may decline to congratulate Field Marshal Von Hindenburg on his election to the German Presidency.

The Foreign Office was undecided to-day as to what attitude to adopt, some officials inclining to the view that the customary congratulations should be sent only to countries especially favorable to Britain.

Ex-Premier David Lloyd George, arriving at Southampton from a vacation to Madeira, was particularly interested in the news of Hindenburg's election.

"The position apparently is serious. I think France drove Germany to this mood," he said.

"However, don't think Hindenburg will do anything rash. He is a steady old man, and does not possess a rash temperament."

The "Daily Chronicle" said today: "It is impossible to discuss the seriousness of Hindenburg's election, which will cause profound uneasiness throughout Europe.

"It is important that the Allies face the situation calmly. The election of this war hero is an affront, but not a breach of the Versailles treaty."

WEATHER

Saturday was the warmest day we have experienced this spring up to the present time. The thermometer reached 78 degrees in the afternoon. Sunday's highest point was 75 degrees, with some showers in the afternoon totalling .02 of an inch. After the wintry character of the two preceding Sundays, yesterday was an agreeable and much appreciated change. The low point yesterday morning was 43 degrees; this morning 40 degrees. Mayflowers have made their appearance. Some children who went searching for them yesterday found five different varieties, and report them to be fairly plentiful.—W. P.

Barbed Wire Fence Held Girl Prisoner All Night

PRESCOTT, Ont., April 27. —(Canadian Press). — Little Anna Markham, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Markham who live near the village of Lowville, passed the night in a patch of woods some distance from her home when she was caught in a barb wire fence from which she was unable to extricate herself. When found Sunday morning the child's arms and face were blue and swollen from the exposure. She was in an exhausted condition, but was conscious. Search for her began early in the evening when she failed to appear for supper and the entire country surrounding the home was searched.

At daybreak she was found by her father in the small patch of woods and although it required but little effort to free her, the effort was beyond the strength of the child.

I.L.P. EJECTED FIVE MEMBERS

Communists Were Trying to Gain Control of London (Ont.) Party.

OPPOSED POLICIES.

LONDON, Ont., April 27.—Resignations, practically forced, of five Communist members of the Individual Labor Party were accepted by this I.L.P. at a special meeting called Sunday afternoon at the Labor Temple to discuss the advisability of allowing members to retain their connection with the Communist Party of Canada.

The resignations were tendered by Comrade Graves after a resolution had been submitted by J. E. Thomson calling on the Communists to withdraw from the Individual Labor Party. An amendment was moved by Henry B. Ashplant to give the Communists the choice of withdrawing from the Communist Party or from the Labor Party, but this was not favored by the meeting as a whole. Comrade Graves then explained that the Communists held a meeting Saturday morning and it was announced that the Communist members should save the Labor Party the trouble of ejecting them by tendering their resignations. On behalf of himself and four other Communists, Mr. Graves tendered resignations, which were promptly accepted by the meeting on motion of Ald. G. F. J. McKay. Messrs. Thomson and Ashplant withdrew their resignations.

Sunday's action was the result of the meeting of the Ontario Branch of the Canadian Labor Party, where the Communists "boring from within" obtained control and adopted resolutions contrary to the Labor Party's policy.

PEACE TRIUMPH FOR HINDENBURG ELECTED PRESIDENT OF GERMANY 845,000 MAJORITY OVER DR. MARX

FIRST ELECTED PRESIDENT OF REPUBLIC

Defeated Dr. Karl Marx, Candidate of Republican Group of Centrists, Socialists and Democrats—Women's Vote a Factor.

BERLIN, Apr. 27—The official provisional figures of the Presidential election follow:—

Von Hindenburg—14,639,399,
Marx—13,752,640
Thaelmann—1,931,591.
Votes declared invalid—21,910.

The people of Germany have rallied to the banner of Field Marshal von Hindenburg and elected him President of the Republic. He is the first President of Germany to be elected by popular ballot. He was nominated by the Nationalist Conservative bloc to replace Dr. Karl Jarres, who failed of election in the first balloting on March 29. His opponent was Dr. Wilhelm Marx, candidate of the Republican bloc, adherents of the Weimar Coalition, composed of Centrists, Socialists and Democrats. The third candidate was Ernest Thaelmann, Communist.

Von Hindenburg triumphed in his race for the Presidency with a majority close to 845,000 votes. The unofficial result of the final votes are: Von Hindenburg, 14,639,399; Marx, 13,752,640; Thaelmann, 1,931,591.

Von Hindenburg comes to the chair once occupied by Frederick Ebert, who was chosen President by the National Assembly at Weimar in February, 1919, and who died in Berlin in February, 1925.

Heavier Vote Polled

The women's votes and a heavy turn out of former stay-at-home voters elected the Field Marshal. Not until the returns from 33 out of the 35 election districts were received and tabulated could the outcome be determined, and from the close of the polls at six o'clock it was any man's race, as the two chief candidates ran neck and neck in the official count.

Two Killed in Election Clash

KARLSRUHE, Germany, Apr. 27—In a clash between Republicans and Nationalists at the Presidential elections Sunday two persons were killed and many wounded.

HOW IS FRANCE TO REDUCE HER ARMAMENT NOW

French Experts Ask This as Result of Hindenburg's Election.

CHANGE IN POLITICS.

May Cause Election of Conservatives Hostile to Painleve, to Senate.

By A. L. Bradford
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, April 27.—How can France reduce her armaments and withdraw her forces from the Rhine with the leader of the Kaiser's armies now the head of the Republic? French experts demanded to-day an answer to this question.

"They declared France's outlook regarding her security was radically changed by the election of Hindenburg to the German Presidency."

"How is it possible Foreign Minister Briand to sign a peace pact with the Field Marshal of the late enemy?" it was asked.

Hindenburg's election is likely to have a profound effect upon French politics. It is expected to influence the municipal elections, emphasizing a swing to the right.

This is of national importance, because the municipal councillors expect election of one-third of the Senate this year. Paul Painleve's Government cannot exist in office against a hostile senate. Therefore if the German example causes the municipalities of France to support more Conservative candidates and they in turn create a Conservative majority in the Senate, Painleve may have Hindenburg to thank for a possible downfall.

The Conservative Frenchman, however, sees not the slightest difference between the German Republic and Monarchists, believing both inspired with the same sentiments toward France—i.e., hostility and desire for revenge.

In view of recent despatches from New York indicating American bankers opposed to Hindenburg's election the French are all the more alarmed if Germany is strong enough to risk having financial supplies cut off, it is feared in some quarters that the victorious nationalists will now begin to prepare a new war.

Reviews Offers Made for Arbitration of Dispute With Nova Scotia Miners.

DEFENDS COURSE

Reduction in Wages Necessary, He States, and Would Secure Steady Employment.

MONTREAL, April 27.—(Canadian Press).—When shown the communication from the United Mine Workers of America to Premier Armstrong, appealing through him to labor organizations and the public of Canada for further aid for the coal miners of Nova Scotia, Mr. Wolvin made the following statement:

"I have seen the latest communication from the United Mine Workers of America making an appeal through Premier Armstrong for aid for their 'hungry people,' and have also noticed in that appeal the usual hidden threat that the men may 'come to the conclusion that destruction of the corporation's property is the only means to take to arouse it to reasonable action.'

"The Canadian Press on April 20 reported that a message had been sent out by a provisional committee from Ottawa, calling for an intensive national campaign for relief and inviting to Ottawa for the conference, among others, the following organizations:

"Great War Veterans' Association, National Council of Women of Canada, Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, Federation Des Femmes Canadiennes-Francaises, Hadassan Organization of Canada, Canadian Council of Child Welfare, Catholic Women's League, Women's Christian Temperance Union, Catholic Convent Alumni, Salvation Army, Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, Canadian Brotherhood of Railroad Employees, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers.

Employment Paramount.

"Some of these organizations are interested in charity as charity only, and in considering this appeal they must give serious consideration to the advisability of taking sides in an industdial dispute as they will if they undertake to furnish food and clothing to the striking miners and

SUGGESTS PLAN TO CLEAR CITY OF PARKED CAR

Garage Owner Would Move Them to Vacant Lots and Yards.

OTHER SUGGESTIONS

Dr. T. P. McCullough Points Out Inconvenience to His Profession.

The parking by-law continues as the subject of much heated speculation, and opinions regarding it are expressed in no measured terms. One prominent citizen described the by-law as being a certain specified type of foolishness, which assertion may, or may not, be true.

Dr. T. P. McCullough says that that if the by-law were observed by those in the medical profession, considerable inconvenience would result. Much time of vital importance would be lost if a doctor was forced to seek a regulation parking-place before turning his attention to the more serious business of saving lives. The Doctor advocates unrestricted parking on streets little used by traffic.

C. H. Roper is of the opinion that present regulations lead to confusion. He says, "Restrain parking on busy thoroughfares, but leave other locations free for parking. In other words," he concluded, "specify places unavailable for parking."

Unused Yards.

The manager of one of the leading taxi service stands offers a new suggestion. There are a number of practically unused yards, centrally located, which might be commissioned for parking areas. Get the cars off the street," he says. "Their presence near the curb interferes with business. Those in charge of such car parks can be allowed to charge a certain fee. Other cities use this solution; why not Peterborough."

James Lewis, of the Oriental barber shop, says that a person should be allowed to park outside his own home or place of business without exciting comment on the part of the police. Mr. Lewis advocates a system of signs indicating areas available for parking as well as prohibitions and closed districts.

WEEK-END PARTIES

A week-end means from Friday afternoon or from Saturday lunch to Monday morning. The usual time chosen for a house party is over a holiday, particularly where the holiday falls on a Friday or Monday, so that the men can take Saturday off and stay from Friday to Tuesday or Thursday to Monday.

BIG CITIES LINKED BY TWIN RIBBONS OF STEEL

There are two outstanding factors in railroad service that seem to be chiefly responsible for influencing travel to a particular route. These factors are equipment and convenience of schedule.

Those whose business takes them frequently on trips between the leading cities of Central Canada and Central United States points are highly appreciative of the service rendered by Canadian National Railways, as regards both these important features.

The number who constantly travel Canadian National on their trips to Ottawa, Montreal, Buffalo, Detroit and Chicago, furnishes striking testimony as to the excellence of the service established on the great double-track route that connects these important cities.

Leaving at convenient times and arriving at hours that suit the business requirements of the average traveller, the Canadian National train that so efficiently link these business centres have all-steel equipment, consisting of compartment sleeping cars, standard sleepers, observation library cars, and modern day coaches—and in addition, splendidly appointed dining cars on which are served meals actually superior to those one expects in the average first-class hotel.

Becoming increasingly popular with the travelling public as the quick, comfortable and dependable route, the Canadian National is the logical choice of those whose business requirements call for the highest type of travel efficiency and whose standards of convenience and comfort are such as to be satisfied with nothing short of perfection in railroad service.

ACROSS CANADA AND BACK

The wonder trip of the coming summer will be conducted by Dean Laird of Macdonald College, to Victoria, B.C., and back.

Inspired by the success of the trip to Victoria last year on the occasion of the Teachers' Federation meeting at that point, and filled with patriotic motives for everyone to see their own country, the Dean has arranged for a special train of standard sleeping cars to leave Toronto on July 20, visiting Port Arthur, Fort William, Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw, Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, Vancouver, thence steamer to Victoria.

Returning, the trip will be via the Okanagan Valley, Nelson, the Kootenay Lakes, Windermere Bungalow Camp, from which place the party will be motored to Banff, 104 miles over the newly completed Banff-Windermere Highway, the most charming, and awe inspiring trip it is possible to conceive, with stops at Radium Hot Springs, Vermilion River, and Storm Mountain Bungalow Camps—another day at Banff, then Edmontno, Saskatoon, Devil's Gap Bungalow Camp, near Kenora on the Lake of the Woods, steamer from Fort William, to Port McNicoll, thence rail to Toronto, where the trip will terminate on August 10.

Everything is included at the price of $325.00 from Toronto transportation, sleeping cars, accommodation in hotels and bungalow camps, meals in diners, hotels, and on steamers, sightseeing tours at points visited, and all gratuities.

While appealing primarily to teachers, the tour is open to everyone desiring to go.

All will be welcome.

Fare from other points than Toronto will be named, and descriptive illustrated booklet sent on application to Dean Laird, Macdonald College, P.O., Que.

OBITUARY.

JOHN BUCKHAM

The death occurred on Sunday, April 26, at his residence, 95 Morrow Street, of John Buckham. The deceased was born in South Monaghan, in 1852 and resided there until he moved to Peterboro about ten years ago.

Mr. Buckham was a well-known figure in the community where he spent most of his life, and in Peterboro where he had made many friends. He was liked and respected by all who knew him and one to whom the description of an "upright man" was well applied by a friend. He was an elder and a faithful member of Knox Presbyterian Church, and served different times as Reeve in the Township of South Monaghan.

There are left to mourn his loss a sorrowing wife, three daughters and a son—Mrs. George Marshall of Windsor; Edna and Violet at home; and Frank on the homestead in South Monaghan.

The funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock from the family residence to the Little Lake Cemetery. Service will be conducted by Rev. M. C. Mackinnon.

CHEESE FACTORY BEING RE-OPENED

Maple Leaf Has Been Closed For a Number of Years.

KING'S WHARF, April 25. — The Maple Leaf cheese factory is about to open up again. It has been closed for a number of years.

Mr. Horton, the cheese maker, has moved in and intends to make cheese for the season. It will be a great benefit to the people here to have it open and they all wish Mr. Horton success in his undertaking.

The farmers here are all working on the land, but it is so very cold there is not much grain in as when it is cold it is better not sowed. The fall wheat and clover all look splendid and promises to be a bumper crop. There are no gardens planted here yet, but the ground is drying up fast and if it were fine everything would start and grow.

Domonic O'Neill left on Wednesday for Rochester, N.Y., where he will visit friends.

BESCO ACTIVITY.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld, April 27.—The British Empire Steel Corporation has announced that beginning today it will seek to increase its working force in the Belle Island iron mines from 1,600 to 2,400 men. The company stated that sale contracts with Germany would enable them to employ this increased force all through next winter, although for the five past years operations have been curtailed during this season.

This expansion in operation will be possible, the corporation declared only if the present wage scale is maintained. The workers have sought an increase of ten cents an hour but the corporation while it has expressed a willingness to slightly increase the pay of unskilled workers declared that any general increase would result in loss in operations.

CALL MINISTER TO ST. ANDREW'S CAMPBELLFORD

Rev. James Greer Invited to Pastorate of Presbyterian Church.

CONTINUING CHURCH.

Oddfellows' Annual Service Held Last Night to St. Andrew's.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 27.—At a congregational meeting of the members of St. Andrew's Church, held at the conclusion of the service last evening, it was decided, on motion of C. L. Owen and Harry Townsend, to extend a call to Rev. James Greer, of Montreal, who preached twice yesterday. J. A. Anderson, who presided, called for a standing vote, and every person in the large gathering present stood up.

Rev. James Greer is a young man, and his sermons yesterday, both in the morning and in the evening, when he preached to the visiting Oddfellows and Rebekahs, created so favorable an impression that it was decided to take prompt action in order to secure, if possible, his services as pastor. He has been here since Wednesday, and took up pastoral work from the start, visiting the sick and officiating at the funeral of a former member of the congregation, who died last week while on a visit to the home of his daughter. In this way the young preacher became personally acquainted with a large number in the congregation. He is a clear and forceful speaker, apparently filled with energy and inspired with enthusiasm for his chosen work. Mr. Greer will deliver an address at the meeting of the St. Andrew's Young People's Society to-night.

Remains Presbyterian.

The meeting last night was a continuation of one held after the morning service, when matters connected with the Union movement were finally disposed of. J. A. Anderson presided, and R. J. Allan was elected secretary. The presiding officer explained that it would be necessary to put the church on record as to whether it was the intention to remain a part of the Continuing Presbyterian or to carry on as an independent congregation. The meeting had been announced a week ago, and the attendance was unusually large.

It was moved by James Allan and seconded by William Russell that St. Andrew's become a part of the Continuing Presbyterians and this course was unanimously decided upon by a standing vote.

On motion of D. P. Clarke, the following were named as a committee to represent the congregation on the advisory board of the Presbyterian Church Association: James Allan and William Cock, elders; J. R. Allan, layman, and Mrs. William Hume and Miss Jessie Niel. This step was taken in compliance with the recommendation of the Presbyterian Association. In churches where there is a settled pastor the latter and one elder are chosen to represent the session, but when there is no minister, two elders are selected.

It was apparent that the congregation had been favorably impressed with the morning sermon of Mr. Greer, and were ready to extend him a call, but it was finally decided to postpone this matter until after the evening service.

Oddfellows Church Parade.

The Oddfellows and Rebekahs held their annual parade to St. Andrew's last night, the men marshaled by Percy Sherwin and the ladies by D. A. Montgomery. There was a large turnout, the centre pews of the church being almost completely filled by the visitors.

Capt. Fisher of the Salvation Army, who is a member of the Order was invited by request, of the managers to a place on the platform and he assisted Mr. Greer with the services, reading the Scripture lesson and announcing the closing hymn, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." The choir, consisting of 22 voices, rendered two anthems during the services, having been specially trained for the occasion by William Pearson, leader and organist.

Mr. Greer is not a member of the Oddfellows' fraternity, but is evidently familiar with the aims of the Order and of the three elements in their teaching—Friendship, Love and Truth. It was an interesting and practical discourse, based on the heresy of Cain, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

Christ the Model.

After welcoming the visitors to the church, the preacher proceeded to uphold Christ as the great exemplifier of true friendship. He believed in material as well as spiritual blessings, and was practical in his ministry. Jesus was a friend of sinners, although he had nothing in common with them. He loved Mary and Martha and Lazarus and enjoyed visits to their home, and He was in the most complete sense the friend of man, the example which all the world should follow.

Mr. Greer then commended the Oddfellows for the many kindly deeds which they have to their credit, one particular instance being that of a clergyman, who went to a hospital in Minnesota for an operation and who died there. The Oddfellows not only provided for the funeral, but sent the widow and her children back to her former home in Winnipeg and found places for the little ones in the Oddfellows' Home in that city.

Mainspring of Life.

Alluding to the story of the Good Samaritan, the preacher asked his hearers to take a look at it again. That incident tells how human love is manifested, and love should be made the mainspring of life.

Truth Always Right.

Dealing with truth, the third element in Oddfellows' teachings, the speaker said that truth was not always popular, but it was always right. Popular teaching is not always right, and though the press may open its columns to certain matters, that is no proof that these are always true.

In conclusion, the speaker said that to be an Oddfellow in the highest sense it was necessary to follow closely in the footsteps of the Saviour.

When the Oddfellows returned to their Lodge rooms, the usual resolutions were adopted, thanking the managers of St. Andrew's for their kindness in granting the use of the church and Mr. Greer for his excellent discourse.

ROAD OVERSEER IS DRAGGED BY TEAM

CAVAN, April 25. — On Thursday morning Mr. William Pudsy, overseer on the county road, ninth line, between Cavanville, and the Manvers boundary, made a trip over his beat to see that it was all right for traffic.

On his way home one of his horses got its bridal loose and started to run. His son, who was in the waggon with him jumped out of the waggon and caught the horse by the head, but as the bit was out of its mouth, he could not hold it by the halter.

The team ran from Mr. Smith's gate to the bottom of the hill beside Mr. Boyle's farm where one of the horses fell forcing the other to come to a stop also. After they started to run the seat slipped off the waggon, and Mr. Pudsy fell with it. His foot was caught in the lines and he was dragged for some distance. He got a very bad shaking up besides being hurt in the fall and by being dragged. No bones were broken and very little damage was done to the harness or waggon, as the team kept the road. Fortunately they did not meet a car or a rig of any description.

Mr. T. Cully is visiting at the home of Mr. T. A. Kelly.

Send Clothing.

A committee of the Women's Institute packed a bale of clothing, which had been contributed for the people in the Nova Scotia strike area, on Wednesday evening at Mrs. D. J. Hunter's.

A large quantity of good clothing was sent by the people of the community. They were shipped via the C. N. R. from Millbrook. All relief goods go free over that line.

Mrs A Tinney went to Oshawa on Wednesday, and brought home a new car

Mrs. Rowen went to Peterboro on Friday evening on account of the death there of Mrs. Thexton, relict of the late J. D. Thexton, of Mount Pleasant.

GIRL FELL ON KNIFE

HEPWORTH, Ont., April 27. — Evelyn, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith, was the victim of a serious accident at her home near here while she was playing on the lawn. She fell on a knife with the result that her mouth was badly cut and her tongue almost completely severed. The child almost bled to death before the doctor arrived.

Medical science progresses rapidly, and now you can get at your druggist's real, genuine cod liver oil in sugar-coated tablets that young and old can take with ease and pleasure.

Even the run-down and skinny grown-ups, who ought to take cod liver oil, because it really is the greatest vitamine food and builder of healthy flesh in the world, will feel extremely joyful when they read this welcome news.

Of course, doctors have been prescribing cod liver oil in tablets under another name for several years, but it is only of late that one can walk into a drug store and get a box of these flesh-producing tablets just as easy as a bottle of cough syrup.

Thin, run-down, anaemic men, women and children who need to grow strong and take on flesh are advised to get a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets, and if you don't gain 5 pounds in 30 days just get your money back.

Just ask for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. Warne Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, Jas. Lynch, or any good druggist will tell you that they are wonderful flesh and health builders. Only 60 cents for 60 tablets, and don't forget that they are wonder workers for feeble old folks.

DUNSFORD FARMERS ARE BUSY SEEDING

Storm Caused a Slight Hold-up, But Much Work Has Been Done Since.

DUNSFORD, April 27. — Despite the hold-ups which the farmers have had during their seeding they seem to be getting along fine. They are all busy on their land again and in listening to the farm chat it is noticed that most of them report having their wheat sown and perhaps some mixed grain.

House cleaning is the order of the day among the housewives and it is hoped that the nice weather will continue for their benefit as well as that of the men.

Now that the Easter holiday is over school has reopened with a good attendance although some of the pupils have been unable to attend on account of colds.

Miss Richardson is back again. she has been home with her mother for the past three weeks owing to the death of her sister. Everybody is pleased to have Miss Richardson back, and the children are more than pleased.

Armand Laplain was removed to the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, on Wednesday evening, to undergo an operation. Dr. McCullough of Lindsay performed the operation, which proved to be rather serious but the patient's condition is quite favorable now.

Bruce Skitch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Skitch, Thurstonia Park, Dunsford, who has been in the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, for some time was removed to the Ross Memorial Hospital last week where he will be nearer to his own people.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Robertson, of Lindsay, accopanied by the latter's mother, Mrs. Wm. Nicholson, were visitors at the home of Mrs. Walter Robertson, on Saturday.

Miss Garnette Th... has returned to Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. George Burgess were busines visitors to Lindsay on Thursday.

SEYMOUR BASEBALL LEAGUE ORGANIZED

Five Teams Represented at Inaugural Meeting For Election of Officers.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 27. — The Seymour Township baseball League was organized on Saturday night at a largely attended meeting, held in the Seymour parsonage, about 30 young men from the surrounding district being present. Ernest Craighead of the English line, was elected chairman, and Ernest Fairman of Petherick's Corners, secretary. In the gathering were L. lie Shillinglaw and Barney Eagleson, of Burnbrae, two of the best players in the Campbellford League team, and who this year will probably hold out the new organization.

There will be five teams in the new league, the centres to be represented being English Line, Hoard, Burnbrae, Seymour West and Rylstone. Home and home games will be played, or eight games for each team.

The Officers.

Rev. C. D. Daniel promoter of the league was elected president, George Donald, vice-president, and Lindsay Anderson, secretary-treasurer.

These officers with a representative from each team, will constitute the executive and these will draw up a schedule.

The representatives selected were as follows: Hoard, Frank Heagle; Rylstone, Wilfred Spencer; Burnbrae Barney Eagleson; Seymour West, Charles McArthur; English Line, Ernest Craighead.

The double umpire system will be used, these officials to be chosen by the executive. Only those known to be residents of the district will be eligible to play in the various games, but players from outside will be allowed provided their names are sent in to the secretary 10 days before the games in which they take part. All protests must be in the hands of the secretary within 48 hours after the disputed games, and each protest must be accompanied by a fee of $1. In other respects the league will be governed by the Spalding rules.

Each team is required to send in a list of players to Secretary Anderson by May 15th.

This organization it is expected will form an excellent training school for recruits for the Northumberland League team.

Football Notes.

One of the latest rumors in Football circles here is that a league is to be formed among the public schools of the district. H. Cubitt has been asked to form and enter a town team.

The Canadian Packers of Peterboro will play a practice game with a team made up of Campbellford players next Saturday.

TREASURE HUNT GAY NEW YORK

Righto! But what was the number? Some knew and they dashed for the machines. Others rushed into the lobby of the apartment house, and gave the telephone operator "a turn," as they rustled through the phone book for the number. There it was, 437 East Fifty-eighth Street.

Working a System

Up Park, Madison, Lexington, Third and First Avenues dashed the carloads of hunters. Some were working on a system, with a girl to rush in, get a clue and dash off, and a young chap to stand by with the machine. But even these foresighted ones kept encountering the "Stop" and "Go" laws of the traffic officers. None of the contestants had any worse luck in getting halted than did the "Four-Must-Get Theirs," the four young men who eventually won the first prize.

They were Eric Wood of 118 East Sixty-fifth Street, Cornelius S. Lee Jr. of Tuxedo, Robert Ilsley of Chelsea and Curzon Taylor of 7 East Eightieth Street. They dashed enthusiastically past the tall traffic man at Park Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street. He promptly emitted a powerful and indignant blast from his whistle.

"C'mon back here," he said, "what d'ye mean? Huh?"

All spoke at once:

The traffic man opened his mouth and stared hard. No; anybody with a car like theirs simply couldn't be crazy.

"You know, the treasure hunt," chorused the four youths earnestly.

"There's no diamond studs around here," said the law majestically, "and there's no treasure hunts either. But I guess you didn't mean it going by my signal, and, anyhow, I never hear that excuse before. Go on now."

He turned and was stricken—for from all directions the cars of young people were coming, and who, in the name of common sense, could be remembering rules and regulations with somebody else likely to win?

Over near the river in Fifty-eighth Street where live the youngsters that Hope Farm takes care of, the hunters found a booth with the inevitable punchers of tickets on the job, and more debutantes to give the next clue. The hunters were somewhat taken back when a copy of Life was handed to them. The publication ran off a special edition of 1,000 of the "Treasure Hunt Edition," and these were handed out. Any one who had failed to halt long enough in the Park Avenue apartment to have the ticket punched was refused a copy of Life. Some had to retrace their steps before being able to rejoin the chase.

Tenements All Agape

While mothers and children from the tenements clustered about and chatteringly wondered what it was about, the participants in the treasure quest riffled the pages of Life seeking the clue. On page fifteen they found a drawing by Charles Dana Gibson. It was entitled "The Treasurer Hunter" and portrayed a young man eagerly questioning a girl. The dialogue was:

"He: Tell me, quickly, how can I solve the great mystery

"She: You will find the answer in the moon and the stars on the blue bottle.

"He: But where—where?

"She: Go past the Library, southward, until you come to the house of the man who discovered electricity and the man who was called Peter. There you will pick up the scent."

The man who discovered eectricity? Franklin. The man who was called Peter? Simon. Let's see. Franklin Simon. Minutes later the Fifth Avenue shop had a stream of hunters pouring in, and the girls back of the perfumery counter were silently fascinated by the hatless young man who was peering through thick glasses at the sign on the counter. All the sign had to offer in the way of help, however, was:

"Go up to the Avenue of the Allies to the seat of the Earl of Buckingham and to the house of the man of sackcloth and ashes."

Musin over that one, the "Four-Must-Get-Theirs" recalled that the Avenue of the Allies was Fifth Avenue, and that the Hotel Buckingham used to be at Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street, and they guessed that sackcloth and ashes might mean Saks-Fifth Avenue. They

In their haste to get back into their taxicab one of the four thrust a cane through its window. He had a perfect right to look surprisedly at the debris, but his companions would have none of that woolgathering. He was yanked promptly into the cab and the spluttering chauffeur was talked into immediate locomotion.

At Saks-Fifth Avenue the hunters began to spread out, with the four young men leading. Right behind them were Miss Eleanor Fitzgerald, winner of the second prize, squired by Louis Reynal, Lyon Boston and W. Fanshawe White. The clue at Saks' was a crossword puzzle.

Leads to Beauty Parlor

When the hunters painfuly worked it out, they found the name of Mrs. Helene Rubinstein, hair dresser, in West Fifty-seventh Street. The four youths, however, got the clue first because one of them noticed the name Valaze, one of the Rubinstein preparations on the puzzle. He put two and two together and the quartet was on its way. The clue at Mme. Rubinstein's was a bit of verse, as follows:

Here you are at Beauty's Altar,
Where the fairest grows more fair
But just now you must not falter
For you seek a treasure rare.
Speed you onward, ever onward,
Brave the terrors if you dare;
Find the Fortune, go to Balta,
See the kerchiefs bartered there;
Silk from Venice, lace from Malta,
Track the Pirate to his lair.

It really didn't take the hunters, growing keener by the minute, long to figure that "Balta" was an unusual sort of word, and really should be "B. Altman." In fact, the clue was mastered so quickly that the "Four - Must - Get Theirs" were stamping up and down the Altman aisles, followed by amused shoppers and floorwalkers trying to ascertain the reason for the visitation, before the committee in charge of the hunt could adjust things for the next clue.

The committee consisting of Miss Helen Jenkins, Robert E. Sherwood and Frederick Nichols, might have reached Altman's in time, only for the policeman at Forty-eighth Street and Madison A venue. He was very much upset because the whistle of the man at Forty-ninth Street had been mistaken for his "go" signal. But he quickly entered into the spirit of the hunt, when he heard about it. What looked like a summons became a godspeed. Arriving out of breath at the store at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, the committee bestirred itself and the last clue was soon propped up on the counter.

The Last Clue

It was a sketch of a couple at a tea table, and the inscription read: "There is often more than a tempest in a tea pot." A profile view of President Roosevelt was in one corner of placard. Well, everybody knew that the hunt was to end with a tea-dance at the Hotel Roosevelt, and so that one was easy.

But when the "Four-Must-Get-Theirs" 'burst into the lounge of the hotel, where scores of tables were set for tea—wow! what a clattering of teapots. It had been arranged that tab was to be maintained on the leader in the hunt and if a man was reported heading for the tea room first, a pair of crystal and onyx dress studs was to be hidden in a tea pot; if a girl was leading, then a crystal and onyx brooch was to be the treasure. Each of the jewels, valued at $600, was donated by Pierre Cratier, the jeweler.

Four Times He Put Us Off

—Then Death Stepped In

When fire destroyed a large hotel in a Western Canadian City one winter morning two men were burned to death.

One of these had applied for an Imperial Life policy a few days before—but he had failed to keep any one of four different appointments he had made for a medical examination. His family thereby is deprived of the insurance money he intended they should have.

Strangely enough, the other man was insured under an Imperial Life Policy. And, although his policy had been in force only seven months, our cheque was sent to his family the very day proofs of his death were received by the Company.

Even a long life-time is not always sufficient in which to accumulate enough to protect one's dependents. But an estate definite, certain and permanent can be created in a few minutes through an Imperial Monthly Income policy.

Just send us your name and address and we'll mail you a booklet which tells more about it.

SERVING THE 4.4.

The provision in the stronger beer amendment to the Ontario Temperance Act making it compulsory to sell the beverage at tables and not over the bar is likely to prove a hardship to the majority of the proprietors of standard hotels.

The majority of the hotel buildings are laid out in such a manner that it is difficult to provide the accommodation stipulated in the Act.

They were all built years ago when the bar was a recognized adjunct of every hotel, and the result is that they fit very poorly into the arrangement now insisted upon.

This is particularly true of the smaller hotels, who will be called upon to choose between sacrificing the sitting-rooms provided for their guests or doing without the sale of the new beer.

The unwillingness of the Government to allow sale over the bar is easily understood; it would leave the administration open to the charge that they had restored the open bar.

But many people fail to see any real difference between serving beer at a bar or serving it at a table in the same room and when by insisting upon the latter course the management of standard hotels is put to much inconvenience and expense, there does not seem to be any sound reason for the change.

If the new beer is not intoxicating why should it not be sold over the bar as other soft drinks have been sold?

And if it is intoxicating by what feat of magic can the kick be removed merely by changing the place of serving?

THE TOURIST ASSOCIATION.

The election of Mr. J. J. Duffus of Peterboro as First Vice-President of the newly-formed Ontario Tourist Association is not only a merited tribute to the ability and energy and vision of Mr. Duffus, whose zeal in the public interest is widely recognized, but it is also a fitting acknowledgement of the fact that the association was first mooted and advanced by the Peterboro Chamber of Commerce.

The Tourist Association, which will boom Ontario far and wide as a paradise for lovers of beautiful scenery, is expected to greatly increase the volume of tourist traffic into the Province.

It will have the support of the Ontario Government, and with all sections of the Province represented in the organization and enthusiastically working for its success, splendid results can be confidently expected.

The tourist traffic can come to be one of the biggest of Canadian industries, thanks chiefly to the automobile, which has brought the beauty spots of the Dominion appreciably nearer to millions of United States people who before the advent of the motor car rarely thought of visiting Canada.

Millions of dollars are spent during the season by these visitors, and it is apparent that the Provinces which make a real effort to attract tourists are certain to profit by their enterprise.

The launching of the Ontario Tourist Association is a most important development that should mean big things for this Province.

THE PARK QUESTION.

The Parks Committee of the City Council decided last week not to accept either of the tenders made for the lease of James Stevenson Park, but to administer the athletic grounds itself this season.

Had this decision been made with a view to using the park as a community recreation grounds on a free basis there is little objection that could be raised, except the complaint that the interests of senior baseball had been overlooked.

Apparently, however, the Aldermen expect to operate the grounds in such a manner as to produce a revenue equal to the carrying charges, about $850.

In that event there is only one policy that will produce results.

The only summer sport that attracts a big following here is Central Ontario League baseball; and if the city wishes to secure revenue from the James Stevenson Park the Council will have to make sure of having the Central Ontario League club play its games there.

The best bargain that the city fathers can make, from a viewpoint of civic revenues and in the interest of the very many citizens who are followers of senior baseball, is to agree to let the Central Ontario League club play its home games in the James Stevenson Park at a reasonable percentage of the gate taken in and to guarantee the use of the park for practice purposes.

Otherwise, should senior baseball be played elsewhere, the Council will find that the total revenue received will not pay for the upkeep of the grounds, let alone cover the interest charges.

THE SPEED "COPS."

From certain sections of the Province complaints are made that the officials entrusted with the task of enforcing traffic regulations on the highways, "speed cops" as they are generally termed, are using tactics that deserve a reprimand from their superiors.

Some of them, it is complained, are cruising around after dark without lights on their motorcycles—a dangerous practice, for which there is no justification and which is quite likely to lead to something the officials are supposed to be trying to prevent—that is, a serious accident.

Others have the playful little habit of trying to coax unsophisicated motorists into a race, and of nailing their victims as soon as they have been tempted into breaking the speed limit.

Surely there are enough wild drivers on the road without law enforcement officers deliberately adding to the numbers by luring motorists into disregarding the legal limit.

There is plenty of legitimate work for the "speed cops."

Let them get busy and apprehend the gentry who tear along at 50 miles an hour.

They are to be found on every main highway, and their recklessness is a menace to the safety of everybody else on the road.

Why waste time trying to make a law-breaker of the man who is tooling along at 25 miles an hour while there are plenty of drivers who think nothing of travelling twice that fast?

Officials who turn off their lights and work in the dark as if they were on the trail of desperate criminals, and the others who seek to entrap drivers who are not breaking the law, are of no real help in making travelling safer, and the department should not hesitate to get rid of them.

SERVICE AND INDEMNITIES.

The Edmonton Journal says something which needed to be said in connection with parliamentary indemnities. It is this:

"It may be quite true that membership in the Legislature involves a financial sacrifice for many and that, considering the services which members have to render, they are not overpaid when comparison is made with the monetary rewards which they may obtain as private citizens. But this is the case everywhere, and it is not expected that those acting in a representative capacity will consider only the money returns, when they agree to enter public life."

There has been too much tendency of late—it was the dominant note in Premier Ferguson's recent speech justifying an increase in Ontario indemnities—to put service to the State in the category of service to the ordinary client. Members of Parliament or at least a great many of them, have come to regard their services in Parliament in almost the same light as the ordinary employee regards his work for the ordinary employer. They appear to look upon their office as a task to be performed for money, to be done at a profit, with indemnities regarded as salaries.

This, assuredly, is a misfortune. In the old days men regarded it as a privilege, as a high honor, to serve the State. Fathers trained their sons for a parliamentary career, not because they thought it would bring them material rewards, or financial success, but because politics, public service, was looked upon as the finest of careers. In England, indeed, parliamentary indemnities were unknown until within recent years.

With the advent of democracy, with the extension of the franchise, resulting in the admission to Parliament of men poor in this world's goods, it was inevitable, and proper, that indemnities should have been provided. In Sanada, a country of great distances, necessitating that many members should travel long distances to attend to their parliamentary duties, they are inescapable. But there is a difference between legitimate and necessary indemnities, and the idea—held all too generally now—of parliamentary salaries. In the one case a citizen merely seeks reasonable indemnification for financial losses sustained. What is sought in the other is to make politics a paid profession, to make membership in Parliament a paid career.

The man who enters public life for what he can get out of it, who gets into Parliament because he thinks it will pay him more than a trade or a profession will pay him, will not be of much service in Parliament. He is not of the stuff of which public servants are made. More than that, the business or professional man who enters Parliament, and then thinks that the country should completely indemnify him for everything that he thinks he is losing through absence from profession or business, could be just as usefully dispensed with. For if he measures his devotion to the country by a yard-stick of dollars and cents, his devotion, on occasions, will yield to certain tests.

Men who think in such terms ought to stay out of Parliament. For when Parliament becomes a mere assemblage of men who put their work on a trades union basis, or on a strictly "pay-as-we-enter" basis, then Heaven help democracy.

In the past, fortunately, it has not been thus. The men who made Canada what she is politically, the Macdonalds, Browns, McGees, Howes, Tilleys, Tuppers, Cartiers, Blakes, Lauriers, Fosters and Fieldings, did not regard Parliament as a place to work at so much per week and month. They thought of politics in terms of service, as a career rising above mere selfish and monetary considerations.

They have some successors today. There are men in Parliament now who, without thought of sacrifices they are making, are serving Canada unselfishly and devotedly. But the number, we greatly fear, is not as large as formerly. More and more, if we are to judge from the propensity to heighten indemnities, members of Parliament and Legislatures are thinking of parliamentary service in terms of monetary compensation. Hardly a year goes by now without announcement of advances in indemnities.

The tendency, we fear, is not confined to Parliament. The same spirit, the same detestation of having public service in any way conflict with private activity, whether it be pleasure, or business, or something else, is everywhere manifest. It is seen in the citizen who will not put himself out to vote. It is seen in the man who will decline to serve on a jury. It is seen in the man who, with every qualification, will decline public office. It is witnessed in the lethargy, the indifference, with which too many citizens regard public affairs.

Democracy, if it is to survive, must overcome this spirit. The sixty thousand Canadians who sleep in France did not measure their service by one dollar ten a day. Surely in the Canada they died to save the idea of public service will not be degraded into something merely purchaseable with dollars!—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Ontario Treasury notes having been sold in New York on a 4.4 basis, the Globe suggests that the Province ought to place the figures on the coat-of-arms.

Perhaps the Government has asked the members to take the issuing of beer permits in charge as a way of earning the extra $600 sessional indemnity voted this year.

Looks as if the Progressive members of the Ottawa House will be lucky if they are home in time for the harvest.

STERLING RATE

Sterling demand $4.82.

Sterling cables $4.82 3-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 25.—Generous rains over the winter wheat belt in the United States, together with lower quotations at Liverpool, sent wheat values much further downward here today. Chicago closing prices for wheat were heavy at 1 1-4 to 4 1-4 cents net decline; May $1.48 1-2 and July $1.38 to $1.33 1-4; with corn 2 to 3 cents off; oats showing 3-8 to 1-2 cent loss; and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a setback of 10 cents.

With continued offers of wheat to be shipped here from Duluth and Minneapolis, and with export business disappointing in volume, pronounced weakness became apparent in the wheat market before the day was ended.

MONTREAL GRAIN

MONTREAL, April 26.— While the inquiry from foreign buyers for Canadian grain on the Montreal market Saturday was good, the prices bid were not in line with exporters' views, and no new business of any importance resulted. The local cash grain market was without any new feature to noe, but prices were firm. Towards the end of the week there was an improved demand from exporters for all grades of Canadian Western oats.

Butter Demand Steady.

The trade in butter continued fair under a good steady demand, with prices maintaining a firm level. Receipts here last week amounted to 5,342 packages, as compared with 3,120 packages in the previous week and 6,935 packages in the corresponding week of last year.

The cheese market was extremely dull and prices displayed an easier feeling with Western No. 1 white and colored fodder-made quoted at 18 3-4 cents per pound, while No. 2 grades were quoted at 17 3-4 cents per pound. Receipts this week were 7,172 boxes, as compared with 5,003 boxes the previous week and 1,995 boxes on the corresponding day of last year.

Receipts of eggs here last week amounted to 22,648 cases, as compared with 18,280 cases in the previous week and 22,132 cases in the corresponding week of last year. A steady feeling prevailed in the market for eggs, and a fairly active trade took place in a wholesale jobbing way.

Beans were sold at 2.70 per bushel.

THE COUGH OR COLD That Settles on the Lungs Is Hard to Get Rid of

These are the kin dthat are dangerous; the kind that weaken the lungs, the kind that allow the germs of consumption to get a foothold in the system.

Mr. John E. Luloff, Golden Lake, Ont., writes:—"Last year I had a cold, and a cough which seemed to stick on my chest. I tried different preparations, but they did not seem to help me any. I was advised, by a friend, to try

A THOUGHT.

VICTIMS OF HOPE

One of the strangest tricks of human nature is the hope which "springs eternal in the human breast."

It is the mysterious little things which sends the soldier into the thick of the frav confident that he will come out alive and unscathed. It is the ineffable something which permits man to live happily unmindful of inevitable death. It is the optimistic, omnipresent companion of man through the vicissitudes of life. Without it, life would be unbearable to the multitudes.

But while hope is indispensable to humanity it not infrequently becomes the author of tragedies. After sowing a full field of happiness hope sometimes harvests a bumper crop of sorrow and misfortune. There is an adage that "man can not live on hope alone." Those who try it usually suffer only disillusionment or starvation. Hope is responsible for a great deal of human improvidence.

Some of those who overwork hope are the workman who, hopeful of continuous employment and high wages preserves none of his earnings; the husband and father who, hopeful of dying at an independent old age, fails to give his family and himself the protection of life insurance; the property owner who, hopeful of never having a fire, places no fire insurance on his property; and the man who, hopeful of permanent good health, neglects to preserve his health.

FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

Then, in a little while, she heard Bill's voice calling to her from the lower hall.

Glory laughed.

"She didn't crab it . . . everybody ought to have a hot time at a housewarming, anyway!" she called. "Good night, old timer! . . . Good night, Lola!"

. . . Then she heard the sound of Bill's wheezy old car backing out of the driveway. "Asthma," Bill called his car.

After all, it was probably Lola's fault that he acted the way he did!

. . . A pretty woman who knew how to "vamp" a man could make him do anything under the sun that she wanted him to do! . . . But Lola had lost all interest in "vamping" Bill or looking pretty for him . . . So of course she had lost him!

No man wanted to sit around a house alone while his wife spent every minute bathing and feeding and rocking three children, either!

. . . What a poor simp Lola was!

* * *

Half asleep, Glory went on thinking. . . .

Stan Wayburn's good-looking face floated into her mind. She wondered if Stan had kissed Myra Gail to give her a "thrill" . . . or because he had wanted to kiss her. . . .

Myra wasn't so awfully alluring. But she had a way with her, at that! And she knew a lot about books, and plays and things. . . .

Glory fell asleep.

She was awakened by Dick's voice.

"Glory! Wake up!" he was saying. "Maggie's having a brainstorm down in the kitchen. . . . Says she's going back to Mother's house tonight. Have you said anything to hurt her feelings? . . . If you have, for the love of Mike, go down and beg her pardon. . . . Glory! Glory!"

He shook her again. But Gloria was fairly drugged with sleep and alcohol.

Dick shook her again. She opened her topaz eyes.

"What in the world are you screeching about? Leave me alone!" she said crossly.

Dick lifted her out of bed and set her on the rug in her bare feet.

"Put on your slippers and kimono and run down to Maggie," he said. "She's going home tonight, she says. . . . If you want a maid, you'd better go and stop her!"

Glory went downstairs.

In the kitchen Maggie was strapping a bulging suitcase. She had put on her hat. Her coat was thrown over a chair.

"Now where do you think you're going in the middle of the night?" Glory asked.

* * *

Maggie glared at her.

"That's my business!" she snapped. "But I can tell you one thing, Mrs. Gregory! . . . I'll not be stopping another night in a house like this! Women drinking and smoking and carrying on right in front of my eyes. . . . Look at yourself! Hardly able to stand!"

It was true that Gloria could hardly stand. She was still faint and dizzy. She leaned against the cold stove.

"I've always worked for decent people . . . and been decent, myself!" Maggie went on. "I've kept myself to myself for forty-five years, and no cheap actor is going to chuck me under the chin, my lady! Let me tell you that!"

"Who chucked you under the chin?" Glory asked sweetly.

"Oh, that actor . . . that Mr. Smart Aleck, the one you call 'Stan'," Maggie answered. She tossed her head.

"Oh, Maggie, it must have been accidental! I'm sure he didn't mean to do it!" Glory said. She laughed in spite of herself. The thought of Stan Wayburn chucking the elderly Maggie under the fat chin was too funny!

"Well, anyway I'm going . . . and I'm going tonight!" Maggie declared.

She began to put on her coat.

"Oh, Maggie, you wouldn't leave me to clean up this mess of a house all alone, would you?" Glory was on the verge of tears.

The kitchen table was filled with sticky glasses. The sink was piled high with plates waiting to be washed. Some salad dressing was splashed against the wall. . . .

And Gloria knew that the rest of the house was littered with cigaret ashes and stubs, with wilted flower petals, and all the rest of the sordid souvenirs of a "wild" party.

"I'm sure it's not my fault that the house is a mess! It was as neat as a new pin this afternoon . . . and should be now," Maggie said in her most dignified manner. "Mr. Dick's mother gives dinner parties, but her house never looks like this when they're over, let me tell you! . . . She knows

* * *

Maggie picked up her coat, hat and traveling bag, just as Dick came into the kitchen.

"Wait a minute, Maggie," he said, quietly attempting to take the bag from her hand.

"No, Mr. Dick," replied Maggie, trying to pull away from him. "I am going. I will not stay in this house another night."

"If you've really made up your mind to go back to Mother's house I'll drive you over," Dick said. "You can't go walking around the town at this hour of the night alone."

He started to go back into the hall for his hat and coat.

But Gloria barred his way. She threw her arms across the door.

"Dick Gregory, you must be crazy!" she said. "Here's this woman leaving me at a moment's notice—and you actually upholding her in what she's going to me!"

Dick stooped and kissed his angry little wife. Then he gently pushed her out of the way.

"Run upstairs, Littlest!" he said quietly. "Don't be afraid here by yourself. . . . I'll be back in ten minutes."

* * *

Cold with anger, Glory climbed the stairs through the silent house.

She heard the hum of Dick's roadster as it swung down the street.

The clock in the hall downstairs began to chime . . . one, two, three, four!

Four o'clock! In another four hours Dick would be wanting his breakfast. And no Maggie here to get it for him!

He had been so ready to take Maggie back to his mother's house . . . let him see how he liked getting along without her!

For Gloria had made up her mind that she would not get breakfast.

She would not sweep and dust.

She certainly would not wash greasy dishes. . . .

In a word, she would not work!

"If I ever start drudging around the house, I'll have my mother's life all over again. . . . And I'd rather be dead!" she told herself.

She looked at her pink-tipped hands with their shiny nails. Then she thought of her mother's. How rough and calloused they were! . . . No, she would never have hands like her mother's . . . never!

* * *

She climbed into her soft bed that smelled of lavender flowers. Maggie had made lavender bags for the linen closet. . . .

Glory turned on the reading lamp. Then, from a drawer in her bedside table she took several small bottles and jars.

She dipped a wad of cotton into almond oil, and wiped all the powder from her skin with it. With another wad she patted her face lightly with witch hazel.

Then she rubbed muscle oil under her eyes and around her mouth. . . . the places where lines first begin to show themselves. Her skin was as soft as a fresh-laundered baby's.

After that she turned out her light. And slept like a baby.

* * *

He went around from room to room snapping them out.

The house reeked with the smell of stale tobacco smoke and gin.

Then he went upstairs. . . .

He stood for a long time looking down at his sleeping wife.

Her dark lashes lay in a shadow on her cheeks. Her mouth was like a scarlet flower against that warm white skin of hers.

She looked as pure as some old Italian master's picture of an angel.

. . . How had she happened to ask that fellow Wayburn to the housewarming, Dick wandered for the hundredth time.

. . . How well did she know him?

. . . And was it really Wayburn whom Dick had seen leaving his house a few days ago? . . . Or had Glory told the truth when she said that the man was an interior decorator?

These questions went 'round and 'round in Dick's tired brain like squirrels in a cage. . . .

He made up his mind to ask Glory about Wayburn again in the morning. And this time, he would not let her put him off!

No matter what the truth was, he would have it, by Jove!

* * *

She stretched luxuriously like a cat.

Then she got up on one elbow and looked around her.

Dick's bed was empty. The covers were flung over the foot of it to let it air.

She supposed Dick had left for the office without waking her to say goodby. . . . He knew how she loved to sleep until noon.

She wondered where he had had his breakfast. . . .

The thought of breakfast made Gloria realize how very hungry she was.

She got out of bed. She would bathe and go down-town to eat. And then she would go to the employment agency to hire a maid. . . . The mere thought of the disorder downstairs sickened Glory.

What a horrible job housework was . . . eternally making dirty things clean! Dirty dishes, dirty clothes, dirty floors and walls. . . .

While her bath was filling Glory did her exercising.

She stood up and went through the head movements that keep the face young. . . . Her head ached terribly, but she did not falter.

This was the way to remain beautiful! To start young, and to work constantly to keep your lines and color!

For if you lost them you were through! Absolutely! . . . Men had no use for women unless they were pretty. . . . What fools women were not to realize that!

* * *

Suddenly Gloria stopped exercising. She sniffed the air with her delicate nostrils.

There was a smell of fresh coffee in the house . . . a delicious, appetizing smell!

Then Glory heard footsteps on the stairs.

TREASURE HUNT GAY NEW YORK SOCIETY STUNT

Smart Youth Follow Clues from Luncheon to Tea Dance.

A LONDON IDEA.

Charity Benefit Puzzled Traffic Officers — Carloads of Hunters.

NEW YORK, April 27 — Traffic policemen were well-nigh speechless and Fifth Avenue shoppers were amazed Saturday when about 300 young society people raced over a course from the Plaza to the Roosevelt, solving seven clues on the way in New York's first treasure hunt. The novelty was designed to aid Hope Farm for Children, and was such a success that it will be repeatover new hunting ground tomorrow night.

When London embarked on the hunts with the Prince of Wales, Gladys Cooper and others of "the Bright Young People" leading the efforts to solve the hiidng place of prizes, lots of things happened. Speed laws were broken, bobbies felt certain England was going Bolshy or worse, and any number of staid old gentlemen wrote to The Times about it. There were dark reports that holes dug in Green Park were the work of treasure hunters, and that houses partly taken apart could be traced to the same enthusiasts.

Yesterday in New York, however, it was handled better. The only casualties reported were two warnings from puzzled traffic policemen, a broken windshield, a flat tire and a shattered taxi-cab window. But the competition was terrific — ask any one who saw the dashing about of flustered young women and fevered young men, each grasping a blue card and terribly in earnest.

The hunt started with a luncheon at the Plaza, and at 2 o'clock the first "clue" was flashed on a screen at the end of the grill room. It read:

The Hunt Starts

That was all. A buzz of wonder ran through the room. Which station? That was the question. Suddenly several of the hunters made for the door. Well, reasoned those who were still pondering, if they seem to know where to go, why not follow them. So there was a general scramble for limousines, touring cars and humble taxicabs. Out the doors of the Plaza piled the excited hunters. The stunned doormen and starters were swept aside. The hunt was on.

There was a general racing about in cars, and cahuffeurs got gray hairs before the first clue led to 277 Park Avenue. While tenants in that exclusive apartment house felt sure an earthquake at last was taking place, the hunters streamed into the courtyard and got the second clue. A group of young society girls was punched to prove that a hunter or huntress had actually solved the first puzzle.

Then the second clue was distributed. This proved to be a packet of Lifesavers, the lozenges, and around the packet was a narrow strip of white paper. It read as follows:

"Below the Bridge-of-Queens,
Hard by a Sutton Slope,
"You'll find out what this means;
Where there is Life there is Hope"

The courtyard filled up with contestants busy munching the candies and staring with furrowed brows at the puzzling slip of paper. There was plenty of life, certainly, but very little hope. Hope? Hope Lets' see — Hope Farm? Yes, and hand't the farm a house in East Fifty-eighth Street somewhere near the river?

their families. In my judgment, the best contribution that can be made to relieve distress in the mining districts is employment for the miners. The British Empire Steel Corporation has offered such employment, and its many mines should now be producing coal and distributing weekly payrolls sufficient to prevent distress, and to permit the miners to accumulate something towards the part time operations next winter.

"The officers of the United Mine Workers of America have refused to accept any reduction in the wage scale, although we have endeavored to satisfy them that a reduced daily wage rate would permit the sale of larger quantities of coal and furnish more days work per year and more yearly wages than a high daily wage rate. The officials of the United Mine Workers of America have refused to submit any reduction of wages to a vote of the miners themselves.

"The wage scale paid in 1924 was an increase over the previous year of about 7½ per cent., and was forced upon the company by the Miners' Union. The companies only accepted it to minimize the great losses that were experienced during the cessation of production while negotiations were being carried on in January and February, 1924.

"The Corporation has made many public statements analyzing the reasons for its inability to continue the 1924 wage scale. Existing economic conditions and the competitive prices obtainable at the present time from the sale of coal do not warrant the continuation of that scale, which it may be mentioned in passing, is higher than the wage scale in any other industry in Canada.

Double 1914 Scale.

"After the proposed reductions the new wage scale will be practically double the wage scale paid in these mines in 1914. This increase in wages is very much greater than the increase in the cost of living at the present time as compared with the year 1914. Our studies indicate that the cost of living in the mining districts is about fifty per cent. greater than it was in 1914.

"The corporation carried on negotiations with the United Mine Workers of America, commencing on December 11 last, and continuing until December 30. The negotiations failed in working out a new wage scale to take effect January 15, 1925. The corporation then applied to the Minister of Labor at Ottawa, in accordance with the law, for the appointment of a conciliation board. This board was granted and was organized, but the United Mine Workers of America refused to take advantage of the board and refused to give evidence before it.

Refused a Board.

"A little later our corporation made an offer to the United Mine Workers of America that they should appoint at their option either one or two members of a board and that we would appoint the same number; that these representatives should undertake to agree upon a chairman and, failing to agree, that the United Mine Workers of America might ask any one of three courts (named in our offer), to appoint a chairman. This board was to make an investigation and report, and also give an award covering a wage scale for a certain contract period, the corporation and the United Mine Workers of America to be bound by that award. The United Mine Workers of America declined to be a party to such a board.

"On Februaty 23, Hon. E. H. Armstrong, Premier of Nova Scotia, made a proposition to both parties that he cause a board of inquiry to be formed under the Province of Nova Scotia Act with the power of summoning witnesses, who should be compelled to give evidence, and the production of documents and all things requisite for a full investigation of the matters for which the board was appointed. The Corporation would agree to pay and the men would agree to accept the rate of wages determined by the board for a fixed period; the corporation would continue in the interim to operate its mines and pay the 1924 wage scale. The British Empire Steel Corporation accepted the offer made by Premier Armstrong but the United Mine Workers of America declined.

Made Every Effort.

"I believe that any reasonable person must be forced to agree that the British Empire Steel Corporation in these three efforts of conciliation and arbitration did everything that civilization has so far developed for amicable settlement of industrial disputes.

"On March 5, the United Mine Workers of America apparently decided to force the corporation to accept their wage scale. They ordered 6,000 men, who were then at work at the mines to discontinue work and they ordered the maintenance men to abandon the properties in the hope that the companies would surrender in the face of damage and possible destruction of our property. This action on their part destroyed our confidence in the United Mine Workers of America.

"When considering the giving of relief in the districts affected by the strike one must realize that the Governments of the country, undoubtedly after careful consideration, have not found that conditions call for much help. One must also realize that the Province of Nova Scotia is rapidly approaching a Provincial election and that a desire to embarass the present Government has had as much to do with some of the stories that have been sent out from that province, as the well-organized labor propaganda.

Union Has Wealth.

"I am reliably informed that the United Mine Workers of America have between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 of cash in their treasury, and this should furnish the districts affected with such relief as is customary in disputes of this kind.

"There is work available in the mining districts for the miners and, while we regret that we cannot pay a higher wage scale than the one we have been offering and while we sympathize with them in regard to their diminished earnings, due to the short time they could work last year, we believe that their earnings will compare favorably with those realized in many other parts of Canada."

PAPERS PREDICT BUDGET PLANS DESPITE CARE

Churchill's Attempts to Prevent Leakage of Proposals Were Futile.

CUT INCOME TAX.

Restoration of Imperial Preference and McKenna Duties in Meantime.

LONDON, April 27.—(Canadian Press).—With an unanimity almost uncanny, but which probably is only the consequence of intelligent anticipation, since Winston Spencer Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is said to have taken unusual pains to prevent a leakage of his intentions, newspaper prophets outline what they allege will be the main features of the Chancellor's budget statement in Parliament on Tuesday.

The country's trade is bad, and in his first budget Mr. Churchill is expected to do something striking—first to stimulate lagging industry and, second, to help win for the new Government ponularity and a firm seat in the saddle.

Forecasts are that sixpence, or perhaps a shilling will be taken off the income tax, with the restoration of the Imperial preference and the McKenna duties and, in addition, though here prognostications are more vague, the beginning of a method to provide the sinews of war to enable the Government to introduce a new and comprehensive social insurance for the benefit of workers and to provide pensions for widows.

The Imperial preference will admit dried fruits of Empire origin duty free with reduced duties on Empire-produced wines and tobacco. The restoration of the McKenna duties probably will mean a re-imposition of thirty-three per cent. duties on motor cars, musical instruments, films, clocks, and watches.

This new way works wonders on cloudy teeth

THAT cloudy teeth, yellowish, discolored teeth can be made whiter is now an accepted fact. Foremost dentists of the world are widely urging this new method. You can have cleaner, prettier teeth if you will start today.

This is accomplished by combating a viscous film that covers teeth. A stubborn, hard to remove film that old type dentifrices do not fight successfully.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel this film. Under it are the clear, attractive teeth you envy in others. Combat it, and your teeth become many shades whiter—more glistening. This offers you a 10-day test free. Mail the coupon.

The great enemy of teeth

Film is the great enemy of teeth beauty. And a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the common cause of pyorrhea. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

Ask your druggist or mail the coupon for Pepsodent. Don't expect the same results from old time dentifrices. Begin beautifying your teeth today.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

LADY DRIVERS HAVE OPINIONS ABOUT PARKING

One Declares Peterborough's Present By-law is a "Fizzle."

SHOW DIFFICULTIES.

Another Admits Frankly She Doesn't Pay Much Attention to It.

A number of the lady car drivers of the city are unanimous in voicing their opinion as to the inconvenience caused by the parking regulations drafted by the City Council's bylaw. With regard to shopping excursions, the most difficulty is experienced. One woman says the parking rules are a "fizzle," while another admits that she does not pay much attention to them any way. To restrict parking spaces at the farmers' market to an area one hundred yards away and then expect women buyers to make two or three trips to their automobiles, with loaded arms, and then to make this restriction apply until one o'clock only, when all the marketing is over, seems ridiculous to one energetic market shopper.

The trials encountered on rainy days, form another thorn in the side of the lady motorist. "If you wish to stop for any length of time, and have to go and park your car on the Court House hill, and then walk up there in the rain, you're in a fine fix," says one lady. Besides our streets are all so narrow that it is difficult to park a number of cars on them."

One lady who shops a good deal says it is nerve-wrecking to go into a store where the service may not be of the quickest and wonder what will happen if the car is left standing longer than fifteen minutes.

To give such a small space on King street, "and only on one side, too," to patrons of the Grand opera house, seems absurd to one lady, and another refers to the excellent accommodations afforded in Toronto, for instance where the Eaton Company maintains a special door man, who takes a lady's car to the parking station, and goes for it when she is ready to leave, and to a similar parking station at Simpson's. Several old houses were purchased and torn down by the Eaton Company to give their patrons this service.

A number of ladies who drive constantly were asked to express an opinion. Several for business and other reasons, declined to allow their names to appear in print. Mrs. A. W. Turner thought that restrictions of certain areas, with free parking spaces provided in all other sections, would be a better plan. Mrs. Homer Meyers gets around the difficulty in another way. On lengthy shopping expeditions she leaves her automobile at home, or at her husband's office. For shorter shopping trips she takes a pasenger who stays in the car.

BALDWIN SAYS PACT ASSURED

Will Avert Future Wars as Far as Humanly Possible.

ALLIANCES USELESS.

WORCESTER, England, April 27. —(Canadian Press). — Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin, addressing his constituents here Saturday, spoke hopefully of seeing signs of daylight in the dark European situation. He declared the British Government was convinced that the attempt to bring the nations of Western Europe into some sort of security pact, or agreement, would succeed, and thereby avert future wars as far as it was humanly possible to do.

Premier Baldwin spoke strongly against the old idea of trying to maintain the balance of power in Europe by means of armed alliances, which he said had proved repeatedly to tend almost inevitably toward an ultimate conflict for supremacy.

TO BRING TOURISTS TO ONTARIO CHARMS

Motion by the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce Brings Provincial Action.

The resolution submitted by the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, and adopted at the annual meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce last November, culminated on Friday in Toronto in action by the election of a Provincial Board of Directors for the Tourist Association of Ontario.

The meeting, held in the King Edward Hotel, was the result of invitations extended to all county and city councils, motor clubs, public publicity bureaus, railway companies, steamship lines and existing district tourist associations.

In the words of the Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Public Works and Highways, Provincial Government, as it was one of the most representative meetings that he had seen and augured well for the new organization, which was required in the province." Over two hundred and fifty representatives from the entire province were present.

The objects of the Association were outlined by Mr. K. J. Dunstan, Toronto, first vice-president of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, and Mr. Russell T. Kelly, Hamilton, chairman of the special committee.

In the address of welcome on behalf of the City of Toronto, Mayor Thomas Foster, and Mr. George Wilson, assured as representatives of the City Council and Board of Trade, their whole-hearted support to the Association which was characterized as meaning one of the best movements for some years for the development of business, industry, capital investment and settlement in the Province of Ontario.

The Hon. G. S. Henry, as principal speaker, assured the new Association of the whole-hearted support of the Government, and that the activities of the Government which has already been carried out for the development of tourist traffic would be amalgamated with those of the new association which when complete organization had been carried out would receive the endorsation, co-operation and assistance of the Government, which no other organization of the same character would receive.

The movement originating from Peterborough, was honored by the presentation of a resolution forming the Association and electing a provisional Board of Directors, until the annual meeting to be held in Toronto, by Mr. Jos. J. Duffus, past president of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce and second vice-president of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce.

The resolution was unanimously adopted after being seconded by Mr. G. C. Coppley, ex-Mayor Hamilton, and Past President of the Associated Boards of Trade.

At the meeting of the provisional board of directors, held immediately after, the following provisional officers were elected: President, Mr. Russell T. Kelly, Hamilton; Vice-President, Mr. Jos. J. TWO KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Two Cars Collided and Mother and Daughter Were Fatally Injured.

CAR WRECKED.

BLENHEIM, Ont., April 27. —(Canadian Press).—Mrs. A. Lyle, aged 89, and Mrs. James McKechnie, aged 50, mother and daughter, both of 416 Caroline Avenue, Windsor, were killed late yesterday afternoon, when the car in which they were riding from St. Thomas to Windsor collided with one driven by James Hebblethwaite, of Blenheim. The deceased were passengers in the car owned and driven by Allen Robertson, Detroit, as were also his wife and two small children. The whole party were returning from St. Thomas, where they had been spending the week-end.

The Michigan car was wrecked, and the two ladies died within an hour after the accident.

Mrs. Robertson, wife of the tourist, was also severely injured, and being in delicate health, is in quite a serious condition.

Crown Attorney Smith, of Chatham, asked that Robinson be detained. An inquest was opened and adjourned till this afternoon.

STORES OPEN TOO LATE

Grocer Complains That Others in Business Disobey Bylaw.

Attention has been drawn to the fact that certain grocery stores are selling food material contrary to the early closing by-law. This statement is made on vouched authority, customers having been seen leaving the stores in question with articles which should have been purchased within the legal time limit.

This type of business is grossly unfair to those merchants whose policy directs them to conform to the by-law, a prominent grocer says.

NOTES ON BOOKS

I have chosen three books this week, wide enough apart in their details but of equal interest not only to lovers of travel but to those who look upon biography as one of the fascinating branches of literature.

The first of these is called "The Log of the Cutty Sark." There are not many lovers of the sea in Peterborough nor many who have served an apprenticeship in sailing the seas but there are very many who nevertheless are interested in the experiences of others who have done so. The Cutty Sark is probably the most famous clipper that has ever sailed the seas. As her historian very justly observes, she is, after the Victory, the one that appeals most to the affections of all Englishmen. She was the fastest sailing ship of which there is any record as can be well believed when her log on some occasions recorded her going nearly eighteen knots an hour. One master mariner said of her that she must have, on some occasions, gone as high as 370 knots in the 24 hours. If you wish to learn all about her in a book filled with splendid illustrations ask at the library for The Log of the Cutty Sark. You will not be disappointed.

Steep Trails, by John Muir, the famous American traveller, is a book that should appeal to all lovers of travel. It is not a new book, having been published first in 1918, but it is representative of him at his best. Muir was a naturalist as well as a traveller, and lovers of nature will find in him a kindred spirit, to whom the great out of doors called unceasingly and who was never so happy as when he was trudging along the lonely glen or up the mountainside. His account of the ascent of Mount Shasta and of a stormy night spent on its summit is enough to stir the pulses of any sentient being.

The Life of Pierre Curie, the Discoverer of Radium, may not appeal to the majority of people, for it is the life of a scientist who dreamed out his dream to a logical conclusion in the seclusion of his laboratory and not in the great, pulsating world that roared and moved unceasingly about him. But it is fitting that we should know something about a man, who in collaboration with his wife, discovered radium and thus helped materially towards the relief of human suffering.

Pierre Curie and his wife are remarkable for another reason. Instead of attempting to enrich themselves by patents they gave their discovery unreservedly to the world, saying that radium is an element, and that it belonged to the world. Simple-minded simple hearted, they pursued the even tenor of their way, looking for no applause and expecting none, happy in the hope that they would some day produce something that would be of benefit to the human race. The lives of such people are worth reading.—F.M.D.

YOUR GARDEN

PRUNING AND CARE OF VINES AND CLIMBING SHRUBS.

This class of plants requires comparatively little attention as to pruning. They should be kept within bounds at all times and this will be largely done by pinching and light clipping during the summer.

The Boston Ivy, Englemanns Ivy and Virginia Creeper will grow up over the roof of the dwelling or the wood portion of semi-shingled buildings and should be kept constantly cut back or they will do damage by working into and under the cracks.

In some cases vines require the cutting back of the old wood of the laterals in order to produce fresh clean flowering shoots and foliage as the Dutchman's Pipe. In other cases as that of the Wistaria and honeysuckles, the heading-in of the young wood is necessary to encourage the development of the blossom buds.

Care should be taken to avoid allowing the vine to completely cover a building or support especially if of good design or architectural merit. A much better effect will be obtained by allowing portions of the building or support to show through in various places. Many an interesting building, gate-post, wall or trellis is spoiled by being too fully clothed in vine foliage.

The self-clinging vines as the Boston Ivy and Engelmanns Ivy, should not be placed on a wooden building and will require no support.

Twining vines will need support as the Wistaria, Honeysuckles and Dutchman's Pipe and may be trained on trellises, pergolas, arches, etc., of wood, iron or wire. Care should be taken to see that the support for the larger growing vines is adequate or it will be wrecked by the strong growth of the vine.

Semi-woody vines as the Clematis Virginiana may be cut back to live wood and have the stems thinned.

SPEEDING CARS MENACED LIVES

Racing on George Street Terrorized Children and Adults.

ON SATURDAY.

Children playing by the roadside on George Street near Smith had narrow escapes on Saturday night at five minutes past eight, when two closed cars approached side by side going north at a terrific speed in an obvious attempt each to pass the other. More sane drivers were compelled to draw near the sidewalk to avoid the speed fiends who rocked from side to side and ran far over the centre of the road toward the left.

A half dozen children enjoying an innocent romp before bedtime, and some grownups were compelled to run to avoid being struck, while onlookers gasped in anticipation of a fatality.

A similar case occurred yesterday at Charlotte and Park Streets, but the streets were comparatively clear of children and pedestrians.

Jack and the Bean-stalk

Long, long years ago, there was a little boy named Jack, who lived with his widowed mother in a little cottage and they were poor. At last they became so very, very poor that the mother decided to sell their only cow to buy food.

Now Jack was really too small a boy to take the cow to market; but he begged so hard that his mother at last consented and he set out.

On the way to the village he met a butcher, a very sharp fellow, who asked where Jack was going.

"I'm going to market to sell our cow," said Jack.

"It's very lucky I met you," replied the butcher, "for I want to buy just such a cow as yours."

The butcher took a handful of bright colored beans from his pocket and offered them to Jack for the cow. Of course Jack did not know how much the cow was worth; but he liked the pretty beans and so he made the trade. Then he ran home to show the beans to his mother.

She was very angry and scolded Jack about the bargain he had made. Then she threw the beans out of the window and they both went to bed without any supper.

Neither Jack nor his mother knew that they were magic beans. So when Jack awoke in the morning and looked out, he was much surprised to see a great mass of green leaves covering the window. He hopped out of bed to see what new tree has grown up over night and found that one of the beans had taken root in the night and had grown so tall that the top reached right up into the sky.

Jack being very curious, without waking his mother, at once began to climb the beanstalk to see where it went and what was at the top of it. He climbed and climbed all the morning and was not yet near the top. Late in the afternoon, when he was so tired he thought he would surely drop, he came to the top and found himself in a strange country.

There was no house in sight and no one to talk to. Jack felt very lonely. He was a brave boy or he would never have climbed the beanstalk; but now it was getting dark and he wished he were at home with his mother. He was much too tired to climb down again and he didn't know what to do.

Just then a fairy came from no place at all and she told him it was not far to a castle where a great Ogre lived.

"It was he who robbed and killed your father," said the fairy. "I gave the beans to the butcher to give to you, so that you might climb up here. Now you must try to get back your father's wealth from the Ogre."

The fairy told Jack how to get to the Ogre's castle and promised to watch over him. He was delighted with the idea of the adventure and set off toward the castle.

When he got there a woman was standing in the door, and Jack asked for something to eat and a place to sleep.

"I dare not let my husband see you," said the kind-hearted woman, "or he would surely eat you." Then she took him and fed him. While Jack was eating his supper, they heard the Ogre coming and his wife hid Jack in the oven.

When the Ogre had eaten his great supper he called to his wife, "Bring me my money."

She brought two big bags of money and the Ogre played with it until he fell asleep. Then Jack crept out of his hiding place, and, hoisting the bags upon his shoulder, slipped quietly away with them.

The Ogre was snoring so loudly that he did not hear Jack, and he got safely away and escaped down the beanstalk.

His mother was much relieved to see him again and she was delighted with the bags of money, which was enough to keep them in plenty for a long time.

By and by Jack became anxious to make another trip to see what else he might take from the Ogre.

So he dressed himself in other clothes so that the Ogre's wife would not know him, and climbing up again, went to the castle.

Again the Ogre's wife was in the doorway. She told Jack that a small boy had come some time before, and after she had fed him and given him a place to sleep, he had stolen her husband's money and ran away with it. The Ogre had been so mad that he had given strict orders that no one was to be allowed to enter his castle.

For a long time she refused to allow Jack to come in, but finally she agreed to take him in and give him his supper.

After a while the Ogre's tread was heard coming across the hill. His step was so heavy that it shook the house, and she hid Jack in a closet.

After supper the Ogre called out, "Wife, bring me my hen." She brought the hen from another part of the house, placed it on the table by the Ogre and left the room.

Now this hen was a very wonderful bird. When the Ogre said, "Lay," she would lay a golden egg. For a long time the Ogre contented himself with watching his hen lay golden eggs, which he placed in a large basket, until it was quite full. By and by, growing tired of playing with the golden eggs, he began to doze and finally fell into a sound sleep.

Jack came quietly out of the closet, and as the Ogre now snored very loudly and there was no one to see, he picked up the hen very carefully and quickly ran off with her. He wished to take the eggs also, but could not carry them. Anyway, he would have all the golden eggs he wanted when he got home. So he hurried away and got safely down the beanstalk.

Jack's mother was very much pleased with the hen, which laid so many golden eggs that they became very wealthy.

They built a beautiful house in the village and had all the money they would ever need; but before moving away from the little cottage Jack was determined to make one more visit to the Ogre. He had grown larger and stronger and felt sure that the Ogre's wife would not know him now.

When he reached the castle this time, the door was open and he was much surprised to find no one about the house. Jack wandered through the rooms looking for something to carry off, but found nothing of value. Just as he heard the Ogre's wife coming he hid in a large copper kettle near the fireplace.

The Ogre's wife went along preparing supper and after what seemed to Jack a great length of time, the Ogre came stamping in and ordered his wife to serve supper at once.

He ate for a long time and then called out: "Wife, bring me my harp and be sure that nothing happens to it or you will pay dearly. My money was lost, my hen that laid the golden eggs has been stolen and I have nothing left but my harp; bring it in."

She brought the harp, which she left beside the Ogre, and, as before, went to another room.

When the Ogre said, "Play," the harp played the most beautiful music ever heard, without being touched. Jack had never seen anything quite so wonderful.

Jack remembered the Ogre's saying that the harp was all he had left, so he meant to get away with it if there was a possible chance and take it to their new home. Then he could forget the Ogre.

The Ogre had eaten so much that he was soon lulled to sleep by the sweet sounds of the harp and began snoring loudly. Jack quietly climbed out of the kettle, took up the harp and started to run off with it, when the harp began playing louder and louder until it finally awakened the Ogre, who jumped to his feet with a bellow of anger and clumsily ran after Jack.

The harp was heavy, but Jack ran faster than ever before in his life. It was a very narrow escape, but Jack hurried down the beanstalk as the Ogre came rumbling along after him.

Jack called to his mother to bring the ax, and as soon as he was on the ground he chopped off the beanstalk close to the roots. Down came the beanstalk and the Ogre fell to the ground and was killed.

Because of his wealth and bravery Jack became one of the King's favorites and was made a Knight.

He and his mother lived happily in their new house and he spent much of his time doing good deeds among the poor.

One day he met a small boy leading a cow. When he found that it was to be sold for money to buy food, Jack gave the boy a great bag of gold and sent him back home with the cow.

MOVE TO TAKE LINE CONDEMNED BY LABOR PAPER

Says Private Companies and Big Interests Are Responsible.

WOULD SELL LINE

Michigan Scheme Would Interfere With Experiment in Public Ownership.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—(Canadian Press).—A move which has been started in the Michigan Legislature to have that State take up an option which it claims on the Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee Railway, is described by "Labor," a labor organ published here, as a deliberate plan to cripple Canada's public-owned railway system. The paper charges that "interests" opposed to public ownership are back of this move, which it describes as "one of the most amazing propositions ever submitted to an American Legislature."

A resolution calling for the taking over of the option has been passed by both Houses of the Michigan Legislature and is reported to have the approval of Governor Groesbeck. The Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee was formerly a part of the Grand Trunk. It is declared by Sir Henry Thornton, according to "Labor," to be an internal part of the Canadian National system and its possible loss would be a serious matter for Canada's big road. "Labor" declares that the State of Michigan will not operate the branch, but will hand it over to some United States railroad at a handsome profit. The paper says, in part:

"Under the charter granted the road many years ago the State of Michigan, it is claimed by the supporters of the resolution, has the right to buy the property for the amount of the actual investment, which is said to be only a little more than half its market value.

"It is not proposed that the State shall retain the road. The advocates of the resolution frankly declare that the State can easily dispose of the property to some American transportation system at a profit of $10,000,000.

"The supporters of this extraordinary proposal argue that the State would be justified in forcing the purchase because under the road's special charter the State has been helpless in its efforts to make the Grand Trunk perform needed work of improvement and service or pay a just tax.

"It is not contended that the Canadian National, since it came into possession of the Grand Trunk, has violated its charter. In fact, the courts of the State have held that the road was complying with the provisions of the charter.

"The supporters of the resolution, however, hold that the charter itself is unjust to the people of Michigan and should be wiped out through the purchase of the road by the State.

"There is reason to believe that the scheme to purchase the road was suggested to the politicians who are in control of the State Government of Michigan by the Pennsylvania, or some other trunk line, which desired to get control of the D. G. H. and M. because of its importance as a connecting link.

"At the same time, by taking the road away from the Canadian National, that great experiment in Government ownership can be seriously crippled."

An Integral Part.

"Labor" declares that "in order that the Canadian National might get its side of the story before the people," it wired Sir Henry Thornton and publishes the following as a "signed statement" received from the Canadian National's president in reply:

"The Detroit, Grand Haven and Milwaukee is an integral part of the Grand Trunk western railway system, which became a part of the Canadian National Railways when the latter system was formed.

"The Canadian National Railway and its predecessor, the Grand Trunk, have put into the properties comprising the D. G. H. and M. $25,497,530. Furthermore, this line furnishes to the Canadian National Railways a traffic route by car ferry across Lake Michigan of great value and strategic importance, together with valuable Detroit terminals.

"The present administration of the Canadian National Railways has endeavored to fulfill all of its obligations to communities served in the State of Michigan and elsewhere and to the employes on its lines.

"We had no reason to assume that a material dissatisfaction existed until out of a comparatively clear sky the project to dispossess the Grand Trunk Western of the D., G. H. and M. appeared.

"It is difficult to understand the motives which may have prompted such a movement, but it would have seemed the part of wisdom and justice if any dissatisfaction existed that the proper authorities should have made the situation known to the Canadian National Railways and given us an opportunity, by negotiation or otherwise, to have corrected whatever may have given cause for complaint.

"It is not beyond the realms of speculation that one or more important trunk lines may be seeking the acquisition of the D., G. H. and M. for the purpose of forming a direct traffic connection with other trunk lines on the western side of Lake Michigan.

"The Canadian National Railways system desires to live in peace with its neighbors and has never pursued a policy of aggression.

"We will, with such strength as we can command, resist the exploitation of our property, replying on the justice of our cause and the reputation which we think we enjoy for fair dealing with our patrons and our employees.

"HENRY W. THORNTON."

Aged 149, Deplores Infirmities Of Son

BORDEAUX, April 27.—(Associated Press).—Jean Baptiste Rolland, who recently celebrated his 149th birthday and is said to be France's oldest citizen, probably owes his life to the fact that one of his legs is six inches shorter than the other. As a consequence he has escaped service in all the wars which have raged during his lifetime.

M. Rolland has three sons living. The baby is 83, the second son is 87 and the oldest, Michael, is not quite 95. Discussing the latter M. Rolland recently said: "He is a poor sort. He isn't quite 95, but he is deaf, half-blind and not able to work. It is too bad for a child to be in such a state. I often wonder what will happen to him if he should become a really old man."

BRITISH PROFIT BY U.S. DRY LAW

Despite Exports, Liquor Consumption at Home, Increases to Marked Extent.

LONDON, April 27.—British shippers profited by the bootlegging industry of the United States during the past year to the amount of more than $15,000,000. That is an estimate recently made public by George B. Wilson of the United Kingdom Alliance, a national temperance organization.

Mr. Wilson's method of arriving at his conclusions, which, of course, can not be based upon direct statistics since bootlegging business or the traffic in liquor with any American agencies received no official recognition in this country, is to check up the amount of liquor exported to those countries which are known to be the "jumping off" grounds for smuggling into the United States. Allowing for the normal export to those countries, but omitting the United States, the quantity shipped for smuggling purposes, Mr. Wilson thinks, did not exceed 2,250,000 proof gallons.

The smuggled liquor, says Mr. Wilson, represents less than 3 per cent. of the spirits consumption of the United States in 1917 before national prohibition went into effect. But small as the quantity is relatively, it is regarded as the basis of the present prosperity of the Scottish whiskey trade.

The temperance forces of Great Britain are making much of the fact that, in spite of unemployment and depression in industry, the drinking bill of the British nation is increasing. The estimate is made that the people of Great Britain spent more than a billion and a half dollars for drink during 1924, an increase of about 2 3-4 per cent. over the drink bill of 1923. The expenditure per capita is estimated at about $35 during the past year. The significance of the fact is affected by the estimate that there are at least 1,000,000 families in the United Kingdom that make no use of liquor at all.

The Journal of the Ministry of Agricultural interests, supported by health authorities and social workers, are trying through a campaign of education to induce the British people to use more milk. It is pointed out that Great Britain spends about $13 for beer for every $5 spent for milk.

"While Sweden consumed a gallon and a half of milk during the past year," says the Journal of the Ministry of Agricultural, "this country consumed only a pint to a quart."

Mr. Wilson also calls attention to what is regarded in Great Britain as an excessive burden due to unemployment. Sir John Simon in a recent statement in Parliament said: "Whether under head of unemployment benefit or out-of-work benefit, or outdoor relief, £288,500,000 ($1,399,225,000) have been expended since the Armistice." Sir John has referred to this vast expenditure as "dope," meaning that it operated to keep in idleness and contentment the great mass of unemployed, who otherwise might become turbulent.

But, Mr. Wilson comments, "Great Britain spent over £2,000,000,000 ($9,732,000,000) on actual, not metaphorical dope, of which £750,000,000 ($3,649,500,000) were — even after deducting taxation — spent on beer."

OMEMEE TRAPPERS WERE DISAPPOINTED

Sold Their Rats and Then Heard More Was Being Paid Elsewhere.

OMEMEE, April 27.—The trapping season for rats came to a close on Saturday, and not in the last twenty years has the catch in this vicinity been as small as it was this year. Every year sees a number of new participants in the game and the catch of about 1,000 was divided among many trappers. Mr. John Dickson of Lindsay secured the lot at $1.75 per hide, the price having dropped from $1.90 at the beginning of the season. Since disposing of the lot, reports have circulated that at other centres not far distant the price paid was $2.05 and as high as $2.10, and much disappointment is being expressed.

Mr. Albert Ford, who sold his house and butcher shop about a year ago to Mr. George Wilson, has re-bought it and is again in business.

Mr. Wilson has re-purchased his house from Mr. W. Eggleston, who is moving to Lindsay, where he has been employed since the fall with the C. N. R.

TRINITY METHODIST.

The Women's Missionary Society of Trinity Methodist Church held their annual service and thankoffering yesterday morning in the church, with Mrs. Gordon Wright as the speaker. The members of the society occupied the centre of the church with the president, Mrs. (Rev.) A. J. Langford, and the vice-president, Mrs. R. J. Kidd, on the platform.

In speaking of the history and work of the W. M. S., Mrs. Wright said that it is a far cry to the days when the society was regarded as the fifth spoke in the wheel, being entirely unnecessary and interfering with the work and finances of the General Mission Board. The women didn't organize themselves but were called together by Dr. Sutherland, secretary of the General Board in 1881 to do work that he saw could not be done except by the women. In that first year's work they had raised $2916 for the work of the society, and in 1924 the society raised $479,314, and for this year the objective was half a million dollars. They were asking for this amount but they didn't want funds diverted that would otherwise go to the General Board.

It is a long story from the first missionary who went to Japan to the present time when the sunrise kingdom is honeycombed with missions and a great many lives have been changed by their influence. When the W. C. T. U. held its first world conference after the war the delegates from Japan were headed by two women who had been converted by the missionaries sent out by the W. M. S. of the Methodist Church in Canada. In China the society maintains a splendid medical mission but through lack of funds was obliged to close two of the mission stations.

The work in Canada has been along two lines. In the Indian work the first worker was sent out in 1882, the same year the work was started in Japan. This work has grown and prorpsered. The work among the foreign element, from the orientals in Victoria on the west to the Europeans in Cape Breton in the east is a great work, Christianizing and Canadianizing the people. There is a demand for more workers and even the foreigners are asking for mission schools among them and helping in the work of building them.

The principal business of the church, said Mrs. Wright, is world evangelism. The raising of beautiful churches and other buildings is a commendable work but should not interfere with the great purpose. Giving to be worth while must be tinged with, even steeped in, sacrifice. The work of Christianizing the world is an investment which pays interest, compounded over and over again, in human lives. The society's work through the women is of a great value as when a man is converted an individual is touched, but when a woman is converted a whole family is reached.

The service was conducted by Rev. A. J. Langford, and suitable music was rendered by the choir, Mrs. King taking the solo part.

KNOX PRESBYTERIAN.

"Men should not be so busy to-day as to deny themselves the privilege of walking with Jesus and realizing on the power He offers."

This was the arresting statement made last night by Rev. Dr. Henry J. Keith of Winnipeg in the course of a striking sermon in Knox Presbyterian Church, when he took as his subject, "The Living Christ." Rev. Dr. Keith was the first minister of Knox Church, and it was his first charge. He went to Edmonton nearly eleven years ago, and from thence to Winnipeg, but has not, he said yesterday, lost his love for Knox Church and Peterborough. The honor recently conferred upon Dr. Keith by a Presbyterian College was the subject of congratulation by Rev. M. C. Mackinnon, present pastor of Knox Church.

Dr. Keith's address last night was a plea for men to accept the fact of a Living Christ as a real factor in their everyday lives. It would be a poor Gospel to preach, he said, if its basis was a dead Christ.

The Church of Christ cannot be explained in any other way apart from the fact of a Living Christ. In its missionary achievements and great growth must be recognized the impelling force of an ever-present life, not the memory of a Christ who lives two thousand years ago and is gone. The fact of a Living Christ is undisputed, the speaker said, and the question to be decided is the relation of the individual life to that fact. "We have not come into the fullness of Christian life until we are in contact with this Living Christ," he declared. The great significant fact is that Jesus is here, standing in the midst of our modern conditions—He sees the modern industrial development — He knows the modern business activity—He stands amid the havoc and wreck of human souls and sees it all. "We can imagine His heart is burdened with sorrow as it was broken on the cross."

He sees too the fathers seeking to discharge their responsibilities to their families, mothers sacrificing heart and body for their children, and the cup of cold water given one of His little ones in His name, and is pleased.

"The question is, what is the reaction in your heart? Does He see you fighting against evil and reaching up to higher manhood and womanhood? Would we act differently if we were conscious of His presence? Would this day be different is we were conscious Christ is here?"

Secret of Knowing.

One of the finest ways of realizing the presence of Jesus, Dr. Keith said, is doing the things He did. "I believe if we would put into practice the doings of Jesus Christ the Master Himself would become a living reality to us. That is what the world is waiting for. It challenges His followers to show it the Christ. The world cannot have peace without Christ, and the world will not have Christ until we live Him in our lives so that others may see."

In closing, Dr. Keith urged his hearers to turn away from narrowness, bigotry bitterness and selfishness, and accept His challenge, "Be ye perfect." These words are just as vivid to-day, he said, as when they fell from Jesus' lips, "If any man would come after Me, let him take up his cross and follow Me."

In the morning Dr. Keith's message dealt with the danger of the busy life, busy with other things to the exclusion of the things of higher value. He also spoke to the younger folk on the music of the heart.

In the afternoon a special programme was put on in the church school, with emphasis especially on missionary work. Dr. Keith spoke on the "Way of Life," and those who mark the way, Jesus the way, and the missionary pathfinders who have followed Him. Mrs. Mackinnon presided.

ALL SAINTS' ANGLICAN.

At All Saints' Church last night, Rev. J. D. Paterson started a series of sermons on the letters to the seven churches in Asia, taking as his text Revelations i; 1 to 4. These letters, he said, are different to anything else in the Bible. The other letters were written to people who had just been converted from Judaism or heathenism, was a new thing to them, but these letters were written 63 years after the Ascension and forty years after the Gospel had first been preached in the seven cities. To those people Christianity was not new; many of those to whom it had first been preached were dead, and the second generation, many of whom had been born of Christian parents, were the body of the church. To them was unfolded a greater revelation of Jesus Christ.

The book of Revelation is a very symbolic book and difficult to understand, but it promises a three-fold blessing to those who hear, and those who read, and those who carry out. The message is not to the dead, but is a living message to the church of today.

The symbolic meaning of the passage read was taken up by Mr. Paterson. The seven golden candlesticks were the seven churches of Asia. Modern scholars say that a better translation is lampstands instead of candlesticks. This is a far better symbol than the usual one of brick or stone for the church. A lampstand is useless without oil, which is in both old and new testaments the symbol of the Spirit of God. There is nothing more useless than a dead church. The lack of growth is a sign of death.

St. John, in his vision, saw the seven candlesticks set in a circle, as the seven cities were set in Asia, with the Son of Man in the centre. The Son of Man had hair white like wool, a sign of absolute purity, and eyes like flames of fire which were and are continually searching, not for what is bad to condemn it, but for what is good to commend it The girdle which was around His breast was a symbol of the love with which He He looked out upon His Church.

The writer had a vision of Christ, who is the Supreme Head, sitting in the middle guiding, controlling and correcting His church and the seven stars which were in His hand were the angels or messengers of the seven churches.

The fault in the church is that people are not living close enough to the Master. It is all very well to be working hard for the church or some organization in the church, but the work should be for Christ. The lampstands reflected the light from the sun in the centre, and workers are supposed to be like the rays of the sun, which are not themselves seen but which lead the eye to the sun.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Announcement of change in time of Sunday Masses was made at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday. From May until September, Masses will be at 7.30, 9.00 and 10.30 a.m.

Taking his text from the Gospel of St. John, Rev. J. McGuire spoke at the morning services on the similitude between the Good Shepherd and His children and the careful human watcher of the fold.

Prefacing his remarks with the reference to the simplicity and directness of the language used by Christ, the reverend speaker said that the Good Shepherd of the New Testament had been foreshadowed in the Old Testament by the Prophet Ezekiel. But the lesson of the Old Testament was one of fear of God, while that of the New was a lesson of love and childlike confidence in the Father.

The shepherd guides and feeds his flock and protects it from danger. He loves his sheep and encounters dangers gladly in their defence. Christ teaches us the way of virtue and goes before us to mark out the way. There is nothing that He demands of us that He has not suffered Himself. By His direction and example, we are guided, and He not only guides us, but He feeds us with the life-giving streams of His heavenly doctrine and grace and the food of the Blessed Sacrament. Like the shepherd, also, he defends us from danger and is constantly helping us in our warfare against the world, the flesh and the devil. "Fear not, for I will help thee" is the promise of Our Lord to His children, that He will help us in life and at the hour of death. A great love for God will keep us from offending Him, it will help us to bear our trials, and will give us courage and bravery in our temptations, for, as St. Paul says: "If Christ be with you, who shall be against you?"

MURRAY STREET BAPTIST.

The A.B.C. of Oddfellowship was the topic which Rev. Brother C. W. Rose, D.D., used in his address to the Oddfellows and Rebekahs assembled at Murray street Baptist church yesterday. In the course of his sermon Rev. Mr. Rose summarized the beliefs and aims of the organization and made clear in a very impressive manner the true worth of such an Order.

"On approaching an Oddfellows' lodge the thought of the member is directed toward God. This must be true, because belief in God is the essential keynote of the brotherhood. The opening hymns are selected to express this faith and in all the ceremony God is the centre and the circumference, omnipotent, omnipresent omniscient," said Brother Rose.

Continuing he said that the Oddfellows kept nothing secret which could not be proclaimed from the housetops. The secrecy was necessary in the time of the Order's inception because of the current atmosphere of the times. Now the vows of secrecy taken are regarded as pledges of persouality, indices of character and symbols of responsibility.

The Brotherhood realized that life was brief and that all matters was liable to complete disintigration, accordingly it was their high aim to make the moments at their disposal of some definite use to humanity.

Explains Ideals.

Brother Rose then launched into an explanation of the ideals of the Order. Friendship, he said, was the cornerstone on which the brotherhood was builded. It meant the complete knitting of soul with soul. "There will be a time," he added, "when the world will be filled with brotherhood and the nations will vie in their humanity."

After Friendship—Love. Love that was stern, sturdy, beautiful; love that could endure all things, love that would never fail in the hour of need. The fraternity regarded love as one of the greatest obligations.

Friendship, Love, Truth —truth is fact; in reality all truths are not of equal importance. One may be selective as regards truth, Brother Rose said. It is not necessary to know all truth, but it is necessary to be constantly searching for greater enlightenment.

The mission of the brotherhood Rev. Dr. Rose explained, was the protection of brethren and the dispensation of benevolence and charity. The command issued to all members was, 'Visit the sick, relieve the distressed, bury the dead and educate the orphans.' Thus the organization was linked in bonds of well-doing.

The members of the Oddfellows lodges in attendance numbered over two hundred and fifty, while the Rebekahs totalled about one hundred and fifty. The choir was composed of members of the brotherhood and presented two anthems, Mendelssohn's "Consolation" and "The Good Shepherd" by Barrie.

WAR VETERANS HONOR MEMORY OF THE FALLEN

St. Luke's Church Crowded for Ypres Anniversary Service Yesterday.

STIRRING CALL.

Rev. G. J. Bousfield Points to Continued Battle for the Right.

Rev. G. J. Bousfield delivered a stirring call to arms yesterday at the annual church parade of the Peterborough war veterans in memory of those who made the supreme sacrifice at Ypres on April 22, 1915. The service was held, by invitation of the rector, in St. Luke's Anglican Church, which was crowded to capacity. Mayor J. J. Turner and G. N. Gordon, K.C., M. P., joined in the parade, marching with Captain J. Winterbottom, who commanded in the absence of Captain R. E. Layfield, who was out of the city. Captain S. Whatley mustered the troops, and the band of the Peterborough Rangers, under Lieut. Peryer, furnished the music.

Memorial parades are gaining more interest on the part of veterans as the events recede in time, allowing them a perspective of the great days through which they passed and during which they lost their comrades. Yesterday's, with many men in the ranks wearing the red chevron and the red, white and blue ribbon that showed they had participated in the gallant battle the occasion recalled, was one of the best held in Peterborough. The number on parade and the number of civilians who sought places in the crowded church showed that Peterborough has not forgotten.

The First Call.

In opening his address Rev. Mr. Bousfield recalled the days of the beginning of war and the waiting until Canada's forces were engaged. Britain took her traditional place on the side of righteousness, and the call came to Canada for a contingent. In Peterborough, crowds gathered at the bulletin board to read that news and then watched while the Dominion's soldiers mustered, trained and went overseas. When they went to France there was anxiety, but no doubt. These citizen soldiers had not been tested, what would be their stand under fire? Satisfied that the traditions of the race would be upheld, people still watched anxiously every message. Then one day was spread across the bulletin board the wonderful story of their achievement—they had quitted themselves like well-tried troops.

The Germans thought that these colonial civilians would be most easily frightened, and so it was on them that they loosed the first attack of poison gas. "We had the advantage of reading," Mr. Bousfield said, "that when others gave way—and they are not to be censured—our men stood their ground. There was a retreat, but our troops picked up their losses and stood fast."

Remarking on the glory of the death of him who dies for another or for his country, the speaker recalled the sadness of the messages telling the casualties. "We are met to-day to celebrate the fact that Canada's citizens as represented by you stood fast on that occasion. We remember the men who gave their lives in that great battle and in the others that followed. We may not say much, but there is no doubt that in Canada there is a loyalty and love for that which is British, not to be found greater in the Mother Country itself."

Not Enough.

It is not enough to dwell upon the past. Canada will go on being a part of the great empire and ready to stand side by side with Britain as before, but Canada's greatness depends upon the individual lives of the citizens of the Dominion. Her relationship with God is the supreme question. No one can succeed without a recognition of God, and without Him no one can do what makes for the highest and best in life. God made everything good; His commandments cannot be questioned, but the nation can be guided by God's commandments only through the individual.

There is a tendency among men, Mr. Bousfield said, to become careless and indifferent toward religion. Individualism in religion is only an excuse, for unless religion is exercised with others it amounts to very little. Worth-while things are only accomplished in company with others. It is as a member of a religious body—not out on the golf course or in an auto, or doing the different things that the possession of more or less means can allow him to do—that a man worships God. "That is an excuse, and one of the poorest I know."

The speaker urged everyone to become associated with some religious body, obey its ordinances, and take an active place in its organization. He dismissed the transitory sects, saying a religion must prove itself by an existence of some years at least before people can be assured that it will carry on. He pictured Christianity as continuing warfare, not something merely pleasant and nice. "To you in whom has been implanted the desire to fight for right the desire may still be fulfilled in days of peace between nations by taking up the fight against sin. The battle is none the less real than that between flesh and blood."

In closing his address, Rev. Mr. Bousfield remarked that there is no more appropriate time to remember the fallen comrades of war veterans than near Easter with its promise that death is but the portal to everlasting life.

PARK STREET BAPTIST.

The services at Park Street Baptist Church yesterday, both morning and evening, were well attended, the church being well filled at the evening service, when the pastor's subject, "Poison Gas," held the attention of all present.

Special mention was made at both services of those who made the supreme sacrifice or who were wounded at the Battle of St. Julien, ten years ago, also in this connection one minute of silence being observed both morning and night. The pastor said that although on Park Street Church honor roll there were none listed who made the supreme sacrifice at the Battle of St. Julien, Peterborough as a whole paid a heavy toll, and he thought it only fitting that members of the church should honor the memory of those who fell at that time.

ST. PAUL'S, PRESBYTERIAN.

Rev. J. H. Whillams, of Regina, was the preacher at the services in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church yesterday, before very large ongregations. The services were helpful and inspiring, the themes being treated in Mr. Whillam's inimitable manner, clear and distinct.

The morning sermon had as its text the first verse of the 44th Psalm, "We have heard with our ears, O God, our fathers have told us, what work Thou didst in their days, in the days of old."

The general outline of Mr. Whillam's discourse told of the source of strength of the people of those days, the Gof of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and traced down the ages to the present day, how the same God had stood by his fol'owers in all their adversity.

The martyrs of Scotland haddyed the purple heather with their blood; their God was the same God of Abraham. St. Augustine, in teaching the people of North Africa and Italy in his day, had as his guide and strength this God; the Crusaders on their conquests; Abraham Lincoln, the Pilgrim Fathers, St. Colomba and many others, trusted in the God of Abraham. A simple faith in the Creator of all things was wanted more than ever to-day. The church with God as its head, the speaker concluded, could not help but progress; with such a heritage he urged St. Paul's congregation to press on in every good work.

The evening sermon was based on the text "Aristarchus, my fellow-prisoner, saluteth you," Colossians 4:10.

Mr. Whillams dealth with the characteristics of this little known saint, how that he was captured by Mistake as the leader of a riot in the streets of Ephesus and on examination was found to be a peace-loving citizen, a close friend of the Apostle Paul. He was not noted for outstanding influence, but was included with the other saints in remembrance on All Saints' Day. There were many heroes and heroines in all parts of the world who had passed away ultimately, and their names and deeds done, had been forgotten.

This Aristarchus, when Paul was beheaded in Rome, missed his Apostle companion, and went to the authorities and requested the same death for himself as had been meted out to Paul, and owing to the though that on seeing him they would visualize Paul, and owing to the ought that Aristarchus was led to the headsman's block, and was with his loved friend Paul in the great eternity.

The lesson drawn was that all should have a part to play in this world, knowing that God in the end will reward the righteous though we may never have recognition in this world.

The choir was at full strength and Miss Muriel Bridge presided at the organ in the evening.

WORKMEN KILLED.

Five Construction Men Dead as Result of Explosion in Mine.

WEST NEWTON, Pa., April 27. —(Canadian Press).—Five construction workmen were killed in the explosion at the Humphrey mine of the Westmoreland Coal Co., near here, last night. One man on the tipple when it was wrecked by the force of the blast was blown to bits, and the bodies of four others were found early to-day along the slope about six hundred feet inside the mine.

He says when Canadians revert to the old standard of giving a dollar value for a dollar pay, then, and not till then, will prosperity step around the corner and approach instead of gradually recede from the country.

Mr. Bishop recalls the time when everyone seemed to take pride in how much he could accomplish in a day. This applies to all kinds of employment, from office boy to general manager. Today it seems as though everyone is trying "to get by" by giving the least possible for the greatest amount of remuncration thereby creating the condition that brings hardship upon everybody.

"We may inker with tariffs, as no doubt there are always adjustments to be made according to conditions obtaining at the time, but until everyone is willing to give a dollar's worth for $1.00, we will stay in the position we find ourselves in today."

"We must have recreation and pleasures, but we cannot afford to make them our particular occupation,' he concluded.

On Crest of Wave.

J. J. Turner of J. J. Turner and Sons, said he had sought to analyze conditions as he saw them, having in mind the business in which he is engaged.

"Of the export trade I cannot speak and only on domestic trade have I any knowledge and experience," he said. Many of our industries have large export trade which is necessary to their welfare to keep the plants running and give employment to our citizens. On the other hand we have numerous industries which cater to domestic trade only and among these is the firm of J. J. Turner & Sons, Ltd.

Part of our product is bought by contractors on constructon work and part by merchants and others who have need of our goods. There appears to be the average amount of contracts going on—the Welland Canal, new dams in the north country, paper and pulp mills and even rearer to home we have dams and development on the Trent Waterway about Campbellford.

We do not serve all these contracts, but we get a share sometimes directly, very often indirectly, and we find if the country is prosperous and money in circulation we receive a share in one way or another. We have large business in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime Provinces. The Western Provinces do not give as much business owing to the fact they can purchase supplies in nearer markets.

Some of the depression I am told is occasioned by large stocks carried by manufacturers in distributing warehouses across Canada from Halifax to Vancouver and Victoria. These stocks were not moving very rapidly and it was not good business to manufacture at a faster rate than the public could consume. Hence industry slackened and until buying is established more freely by governments, commissions and municipalities there has been retrenchment. During the past four years much of this stock has been sold and I believe factories will gradually speed up and employment will be more general. Already, some of our local industries are increasing their output, some working for the first time 24 hours, while others have orders booked to keep running well into the fall months. Surely this evidence leads one to believe trade conditions are improving and to prophesy we are on the crest of the wave ready for the turn of the tide which always follows the ebb. Much fun has been made of the slogan, "Prosperity is just around the corner." I believe it is, but we have been wont to think it was the first corner we came to, rather than the optimistic vision of a distant corner ever coming nearer, gradually but surely, and the first thing we know we will have reached it.

Prosperity, however, must be sought. There is not use sitting down and waiting for it—rather let us be up and doing and when some one asks:

'HOW DO YOU FIND BUSINESS?'

MILLBROOK WOMAN RIDDEN ON RAIL

Set Down Quickly on Account of Weight, Says Old Paper.

In an old paper just unearthed on Saturday is found a peculiar story from Millbrook. The paper is dated March 27, 1863, and under the heading—"Riding a Man and Woman on a Rail in Millbrook," the following thriller appears:

"A man of very low moral character, named David Boone, a barber and fruit pedlar, a negro, who harbors a woman of ill-fame, named Catherine Cook, but commonly called 'The Great Eastern,' in his house, while his own wife, an Irishwoman, lies sick in bed, wholly neglected, and, it is alleged, chiefly fed upon laudanum and whiskey, was on Wednesday evening last, with the said Catherine, ridden upon a fence rail. The woman was not however carried any very great distance in that manner on account of her weight. She was too much for the young imps, and 'The Great Eastern' having been landed upon terra firma, was transferred to the barber's chair of business, and in that carried from the railway station to the village, there to meet Boone and to be placed in mock embrace. Boone yelled, but on the whole, bore his punishment with fortitude. He was lastly powdered over with flour and set free.

NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN MEN IN FRENCH EYES

Little to Choose Between Principal Candidates, Say French Papers.

BOTH SEEK REVENGE.

Former American Ambassador Sees Menace to World Peace in Result.

PARIS, April 27. — (Canadian Press). — The news of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg as President of Germany was received here with a certain amount of uneasiness. Although it was felt that there was little to choose between him and the other principal candidate, Dr. Marx, the Field Marshal is believed to represent in a greater degree the spirit of war revenge than his civilian opponent.

The result arrived too late to permit of extended editorial comment and what there is appears colored by party affiliations of the respective papers.

Thus l'Bre Nouvelle, organ of the Cartel on the Left, declares that Von Hindenburg's expressed pacifism can deceive no one, that he is an enemy of German democracy, and that his election is a remote but certain consequence of the French occupation of the Ruhr.

"Pertinax" in the Echo de Paris, declares that the only difference between Dr. Marx and Von Hindenburg is in method; their aim is the same, "revenge."

GERARD SEES MENACE.

NEW YORK, April 27—(Canadian Press).—The election of Hindenburg as President of Germany is a menace to world peace, in the opinion of James W. Gerard, former Ambassador to Germany. Mr. Gerard to-day characterized the election as a flat declaration by the German people of a return to militarism and monarchism.

APPOINTMENT ENDS LONG DISCUSSION

Suburban Areas Commission is Completed By Government Action.

The appointment, announced on Saturday, of Thomas Brown as the third member of the Suburban Area Commission in this district breaks a deadlock that has existed for some months. The Commission consists, under the creating act, of three members, one representing the city, the second the country, and the third to be the choice of the first two.

At a meeting early in the year the city council named Harry Gainey its representative, and the county council similarly appointed William Brown to look after its interests. Then the city council expressed the opinion that since the third member for the past five years has been drawn from the county, he should this year be a city man.

The two appointees were unable to agree on a companion, and this threw the onus upon the Government.

Saturday's announcement in The Examiner gives the Government's answer in the naming of Thomas Brown, who ran neck and neck with Mr. Gainey on the city ticket up until the last ballot.

Function of Commission.

The purpose and scope of the Suburban Area Commission are little known in the city, although Peterborough pays a substantial sum every year towards its work. All roads within a radius of about ten miles of the city are under the Commission's jurisdiction, this taking in the roads to Lakefield, Zion, Chemong, part of the Norwood road, and others. A capable engineer manages the work, which the Commission supervises, and a force of 30 men is employed at present, 15 on roads and 15 building culverts. Regular tours of inspection are made by the members of the Commission, Mr. Gainey having been on six already. No new work has been attempted this year, repair work only having been done. An organization meeting will be held on Saturday

BADLY BURNED SAVE PET HORSE

HIT BY LIGHTNING.

DELHI, Ont., April 27 (Canadian Press).—While attempting to rescue her pet horse after lightning had struck their barn near Rhineland during an electrical storm about 6.30 o'clock last evening Mrs. Louis Bentley was severely burned. Mrs. Bentley had thrown a blanket over the horse's head and had gotten the animal to within a few feet of the barn door when she collapsed. Her clothing ignited and was partially burned from her body although her husband threw a blanket over her and smother the flames as quickly as possible. Her physician reported her chances of recovery as good.

The barn and contents were completely destroyed, together with some stock. The loss will be about $4,000.

Increasing Motor Traffic Demands Concrete Roads

Existing highways are crowded, particularly the few that are permanent. Others break down under the ever-increasing volume and weight they are forced to carry.

Meeting this situation face to face we realize that the longer our road building programmes lag the worse off we become. Fuel costs and road repair costs mount. Driving discomfort intensifies.

Help your local highway authorities who are striving to put things right. Let them know that you are as one behind them for more concrete roads.

Concrete roads justify their selection. They stand up under the ceaseless drive and grind of modern motor traffic. They require little upkeep. Car wheels take a real grip on their surface. They save tires and gasoline. They ease the taxpayer's burder

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

AGRICULTURAL SURVEY MADE BY CANADIAN PACIFIC SHOWS BEST PROSPECTS FOR SEVERAL YEARS

Exceptionally Early Spring Weather Has Advanced Seeding in West.

SMALLER ACREAGE

Early Freeze - up Caused Smaller Fall Ploughing Than in 1924.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 27.—"Surveying the agricultural situation generally, the prospects appear better than for many years," states Crop Bulletin No. 1 of the Agricultural Dept. of the Canadian Pacific Railway for 1925.

The latter end of March and month of April thus far have been exceptionally good spring weather throughout the whole of the West, with the result that operations on land including both ploughing and seeding are general, and in many sections well advanced.

The land, a few districts excepted, is in excellent condition, and has an adequate supply of surface and subsoil moisture to meet all present requirements.

Farmers, encouraged by the better prices obtained for their produce and prediction that they will likely continue, are optimistic in regard to the prospects for the season.

Early rains last fall and the early freeze up resulted in considerable reduction in acreage ploughed. While final estimates of acreage prepared are not yet available, preliminary estimates are here given which will be greatly increased by spring ploughing.

	1925	1924
Manitoba—
New Breaking	71,000	97,400
Summer fallow	1,446,000	1,518,000
Fall ploughing	1,126,000	2,815,000
Saskatchewan—
New breaking	407,922	425,381
Summer fallow	5,309,300	5,345,681
Fall ploughing	2,838,454	483,128
Alberta—
New breaking	398,698	486,847
Summer fallow	2,312,991	2,760,468
Fall ploughing	10,000	225,000
Total Acreage Prepared in Prairie Provinces.
Manitoba	2,643,000	4,430,400
Saskatchewan	8,555,183	6,254,190
Alberta	2,721,689	3,472,315

Seeding.

Some anxiety was felt in the early part of the winter owing to possibility of scarcity of seed grain, more particularly in districts in Saskatchewan and Alberta, which suffered drought damage last season. The first samples of grain from some of these areas showed very poor germinating qualities, but later tests made at the seed testing plants revealed much better results, and it is now expected that there will be quite sufficient seed grain without any inconvenience being felt. Seeding has started extensively, comparatively early commencement.

Live Stock.

Live stock wintered fairly well in spite of the fact that the weather conditions were unusually severe, and feed in some instances were scarce. Fewer steers were winter-fed than was the case last year. This was due not so much to the scarcity of food as to high value of same, farmers preferring to sell their oats and barley rather than feed it. An encouraging feature in connection with live stock situation is the enhanced interest being shown towards dairying, and many inquiries are being made from good dairy cattle by farmers having intention of taking up this part of agriculture.

Horses

The horse situation has improved considerably and there is now fair demand for horses. A canvas of the situation reveals that there are not nearly so many horses for sale in the respective provinces as has been generally thought.

Cattle.

Prices have shown tendency toward improvement, and those who fed steers during winter and finished them received satisfactory returns.

Sheep.

Large numbers of inquiries have been made for sheep, particularly breeding ones, but it was found practically impossible to obtain adequate supply to meet requirements.

Swine.

Prices for swine have also improved, and the outlook is brighter than for some time. The high price of feed has, of course, militated against any large increase in hog raising.

Labour.

In spite of the fact, considerable number of farm hands from the Old Land and European countries are being distributed on western farms, the supply is not equal to the demand, and shortage is becoming more pronounced as spring work developments more extensively. Wages are averaging from thirty to forty dollars per month with board.

Manitoba.

Seeding is practically general all over the province. Spring weather is ideal, and so it is in excellent condition, and containing good supply of moisture. It is difficult to predict how acreage will compare with last year, but indications point to a slight increase of coarse grains. A few districts have had to get in seed wheat, but there is no general shortage of good seed. Oats for seeding have had to be shipped into a number of northern districts owing to shortage and low vitality of local supply. Sizing up the situation in general, conditions in this province are more favorable than at this period for many years past.

Saskatchewan.

A good covering of snow over the whole province and heavy rains during the fall has left the land in desirable condition, from a moisture stand point. All the dry area of North-western Saskatchewan last year had heavy October rains, which thoroughly soaked the soil; and there was abundance of moisture stored up before the frost came. Ploughing and seeding, except in very wet places, is general. Considerable supplies of seed have been moved about, and there is not now the alarm that existed some weeks ago.

Alberta.

Fine weather, for some time past, has enabled farmers to commence operations on the land, and while some districts report seeding well advanced others are just commencing. This is due to variation in the time the snow took to disappear. The farmers in the southern districts were as usual the first on the land. Seed supplies are ample without importing, and a considerable surplus of good oat seed exists.

Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway.

The past winter has been somewhat unusual on account of it's duration, depth of snow and its severe continuous cold. Notwithstanding this fact, stock fared well, and losses are considerably below the average owing to abundance of rain last fall and the heaviest snowfall ever recorded. Moisture conditions are exceptionally favorable. No spring work has commenced owing to considerable snow still lying on land, and it will be at least another week before operations can commence.

Rooster Clucks And Insists On Setting

KEENE, April 27.—A. Rennie, of Keene, has a clucking rooster. He is accustomed to having hens that cluck, but a clucking rooster is a new item in his experience. No amount of persuasion, forcible or otherwise, will induce the rooster, who is as motherly as the hens, to stay off the nest.

GROWING PLUMS IN THE DOMINION

Cultivation of This Fruit Has Not Been Properly Developed in Canada.

GIVE GOOD RETURNS.

"Comparatively few people get good plums to eat, especially in the fresh condition, and the export trade in plums, whatever it may be in the future, is practically nothing at the present time," writes W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist. "The plum has not been as profitable to grow in Canada as some other fruits," continues Mr. Macoun, "but with a careful selection of varieties and good care it will be found to give fairly good returns. In those parts of Canada where the European plums do not succeed, the improved native and American varieties have been found very profitable."

A new bulletin by W. T. Macoun, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, is now in the press and will very shortly be ready for distribution. This bulletin deals with every phase of plum culture, and among other valuable features, gives a complete list of the varieties recommended for the different parts of Canada, from Prince Edward Island in the east to British Columbia in the west. There is also a description of the varieties included in the list just mentioned. This bulletin, entitled "Plum Culture," (No. 45, New Series) which is perhaps the most complete of its kind yet issued by the department, will be sent free on application to Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

A FINE SPECIMEN

MANY PRIZES TO ONTARIO SHEEP

Sheepmen Bring Honors to Province From International Show.

WON 63 PER CENT.

Someone said, "The proof of the pudding is the eating of, WW WW the proof of Ontario being the breeding ground for sheep to supply the other provinces in the Dominion as well as the United States, was proven beyond all doubt by the winnings made by Ontario's Sheepmen at the International Show held in Chicago, Ill., in December, 1924. This show is the common battle-ground for breeders throughout the length and breadth of United States and Canada. All the best flocks in the United States are represented, and in order that the Ontario sheepmen might try conclusions with American breeders, the Ontario Department of Agriculture has been assisting these provincial exhibits by financial assistance in the form of payment of frieght charges. This was necessary in view of the fact that the prize money offered at the show is relatively small. The greatest reward comes from the honor of winning. The following summary shows the remarkable winnings made by Ontario breeders, in the eight breed classes in which they competed:

BREEDING CLASSES.

It is worthy of note that while Ontario did not have more than perhaps twenty-five per cent. of the exhibitors in these classes, Ontario breeders won sixty-three per cent. of the possible first prizes, fifty-five per cent. of the total championships, and sixty-two per cent. of all reserve championships.

FAT CLASSES.

This summary shows Ontario winning fifty-nine per cent. of all the first prizes in three "fat" classes in which they competed and also winning fifty per cent. of all championships and sixty per cent. of all reserve championships.

In addition, Col. Robt. McEwen & Sons, London, Ont., succeeded in winning for the third time in succession, the grand championship for the best carload of not less than fifty lambs. Belvoir Stock Farm stood fourth in this competition.

These results were accomplished by years of wise mating, careful secletion and good feeding on the part of our breeders. The policy of breeding the best of the best which has been generally followed brought results. By the use of the best rams and ewes obtainable at home supplemented with very high-class stock imported from Great Britain, Ontario's sheep have attained a very high standard. Time and money has been spent by the sheepmen in obtaining this enviable position in the sheep-breeding fraternity of North America, but their efforts are being repaid by the demeand which is now experienced for Ontario bred sheep.

BIG EXPANSION.

Many Homesteads Being Taken Up, But Still Thousands Available.

The great Peace River country in the northern part of Alberta is opening up faster now than at any time since the post-war rush, which proved only temporary, hundreds of families making their way northward each month. It is now apparent that there are vast tracts of splendid farming land still open. At the beginning of the current year the number of quarter sections available in the various districts were:

Lethbridge land district	260
Calgary land district	4,200
Edmonton land district	57,976
Peace River	38,021
Grande Prairie	7,818
	105,275

This means that there are more than 100,000 available homesteads in Alberta still, while the total number of farms at present is but 82,954. It is a very favorable sign that the value of Alberta farms has increased from an average of $24 per acre in 1923 to $25 last year, while most of the other provinces registered no increase.

ROTATION OF CROPS

Soil Should Be Given Rest by Changing Product.

It is highly important that the soil be given a rest, oats following oats, or corn following corn is not good farming, it is soil mining. If the soil is rich the evil day will be delayed, but the time will surely come when those who do not give the soil a chance must pay the price and suffer in reduced crops, plant diseases, insect ihnjury, and weeds.

No one rotation is the best under all conditions, but to all accepted crop rotations, certain principles can be applied, so that each particular farm can be fitted with a definite plan suited to its peculiarities.$ Give the matter of crop rotation some consideration, it will pay you. The staff of the Ontario Agricultural College will be glad to help you with any farm problem.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. College.

MIXED FARMING LIGHTENS DROP ALBERTA CROP

Farm Revenue Up $10,000,000 Despite Big Drop in Grain Yield.

MUCH LIVESTOCK

The state of business and the purchasing power of the Province of Alberta would have suffered a severe blow in the drastic falling off of last year's crop, had it not been for the fact that diversified farming is advancing perhaps more rapidly in Alberta than in most sections of the West, and there is less dependence, at least throughout the central area, on one crop or even on grain alone.

The extent to which diversified farming has developed is seen from the fact that although the yields of wheat and oats last year were both less than half of the 1923 figures, the total value of farm products, according to figures just published by the Alberta Department of Agriculture, was more than $10,000,000 in excess of that of the previous year. The total value last year was estimated at $217,000,000, as against $206,000,000 in 1923 and $150,488,000 in 1922. While the wheat yield dropped from 144,834,000 bushels in 1923 to 61,312,000 last year, the decline in value was only $94,143,000 to $73,575,000, and the latter figure is close to the five-year average of $77,175,000. The value of the barley crop rose from $4,889,000 in 1923 to $7,285,000 last year, and of grain hay from $12,562,000 to $43,695,000.

The livestock statistics also tell a story of rapidly developing diversified farming. In comparison with 1915, cattle have increased from 844,000 to 1,630,000, and hogs from 229,696 to 1,016,380. Turning to the current situation, while there was a decline in the total sales of cattle for the first quarter of the year, a favorable sign for the future, there was a big increase in sales of calves in the Calgary and Edmonton stockyards, and also of hogs, and top prices in nearly all cases were materially advanced. Total receipts of the two yards last year were $10,419,800.

Dairy farming has expanded very rapidly in the last two or three years in Alberta. Creamery butter exports advanced from 1,000,000 lbs. in 1922 to 2,000,000 in 1923, and 4,000,000 in 1924. Cheese output rose from 381,832 pounds in 1915, to 1,675,000 pounds last year. The dairying industry is carried on, for the most part, in conjunction with other branches of agriculture.

MONTREAL, April 27.—Peter Moir, aged 41, was found dead in his bath in his home Sunday with his throat cut from ear to ear. A bloodstained razor was found in the bath.

Varying Crops Mean Better Times For Canada

LONDON.—E. E. Reid, general manager of the London Life, has completed a trip from Sydney on the east to Victoria on the west, holding conferences at practically all the principal centres with his field staff.

"The Canadian west is better this year than last and better last year than the year before," Mr. Reid stated to The Financial Post. As proof of this, Mr. Reid pointed to the figures written by his company for the month of March, showing that Southern Alberta was leading all other parts of the country. "Farmers in the middle west have learned their lesson about going into debt," he added, "and merchants in several places told me that they had no applications from many of those whom they used to carry on their books. Mixed farming is what has made the change, and the farmers have gone in for that because they had to. I don't know whether a real bumper crop of wheat at good prices would make them drop their new method of farming, but it is undoubtedly one of the causes that is making conditions better in the west."

SOW ALFALFA AT BAILIEBORO

Many Farmers Planting It This Spring for First Time.

FARM NOTES

BAILIEBORO, April 27. — The farmers of this district are sowing a large acreage of alfalfa this spring. Previous to this year there were only a very few farmers in South Monaghan who have grown alfalfa on their farms. Those who have already experimented this splendid feed claim that it is much more valuable to grow alfalfa for a hay crop, than it is to sow either red or sweet clover. There is not only much more food value in alfalfa than in other hays, but three crops per year can be taken off a field of alfalfa.

F. C. Paterson, District Agricultural Representative, of Port Hope, has highly recommended the growing of this valuable hay throughout this district. He claims that the soil in South Monaghan ought to be very suitable land to grow it on, as in the majority of cases the land is high and dry. The majority of farmers are sowing all the way from three to twelve acres this year, while some are sowing a great deal more. There is not nearly so much sweet clover being sown this spring, and it is generally thought that in the future alfalfa will take its place to a great extent.

Mr. W. A. Wood has his new barn erected, and it is now ready to receive the season's crop. Mr. Wood had the misfortune last fall to have his barns and season's crop burned to the ground.

Throughout this district there seems to be a great demand for good fat cattle. The drovers and also men owning ranches seem to be buying up all the available cattle in these parts. The prices that are being offered are somewhat higher than they have been for the past couple of years.

On account of the high prices of rough grains there are fewer hogs being raised this spring than ever. Although the price of hogs have been fairly good of late, farmers state that they cannot make money by feeding hogs at the present high price of grain. Many of the farmers have been disposing of their pigs at from from five to seven weeks old, and the prices received for young pigs has been from twelve to sixteen dollars per pair.

At present the majority of farmers are not keeping hogs to any great extent, only just a couple to eat up the spare milk.

MANY FLOWERS ARE NECESSARY

The Beekeeper Must Locate Where Bees Can Obtain Abundance of Nectar.

CONTINUOUS CROP.

LOCATION AND ARRANGEMENT OF THE APIARY.

Without an abundance of nectar secreting flowers, a crop of honey cannot be expected, therefore, the first consideration in selecting a location for an apiary is the flora. As bees gather nectar from a distance of two or three miles from the apiary, it is necessary that the location chosen should contain a plentiful supply of nectar secreting flowers within this range. A good location is one that will provide a continuous supply of nectar and pollen from early spring until fall and with at least one source from which the main crop of honey will be gathered. Most locations, in the city or country, will provide enough nectar to make a few colonies profitable, but where it is intended to establish a large and permanent apiary, the question of flow must receive careful consideration. Other points to bear in mind, when choosing a location, are other apiaries, accessibility, fire and flood. An apiary should be easy to reach by team or truck so that supplies can be transferred back and forth with little difficulty. Locations that are already occupied should be avoided; overstocking a location cuts down the crop. Apiaries should not be less than four miles apart unless the location is an exceptional one. Places that are likely to be devastated by fire or flood should also be avoided.

The site chosen for the apiary must be well sheltered from high winds, especially the cold winds in the spring which usually come from the north or west. If the bees are to be wintered outside, good wind-breaks are of utmost importance. It is also necessary to have the hives partly shaded during the hottest part of the day in summer; this can be accomplished by planting a few evergreen trees or shrubs in the yard, or taking advantage of natural shade. The bees should not be placed near a public highway, nor where children are likely to play near the hives.

The arrangement of the hives is a matter for individual taste, but neatness and arrangement are secondary to convenience in handling. The hives may be arranged in pairs or singly in rows, but in any arrangement they must not be crowded together or heavy drifting from one colony to another will take place. There should be at least three feet between the hives and six feet between rows, so that each colony may be handled with ease and that necessary supplies may be moved to or from any part of the apiary with hand barrow or truck. If the site is in grass this should be kept closely cut during the summer, so as not to choke the hive entrances.—C. B. Gooderham, Dominion Apiarist.

WEST SEEDING LARGEST AREA IN ITS HISTORY

Swollen Values Have Deflated and Credit Conditions Are Sound.

INFLUX OF SETTLERS

Building Up 35 Per Cent. and Farm Implement Sales Have Expanded.

The current week witnessed the launching of seeding operations in Western Canada, under conditions inherently healthy and promising. Notwithstanding the heavy surplus of wheat from the United States crop, and the prospects of heavy yields in the Southern Hemisphere, an unusually small world carry-over at the end of the present crop year is indicated, and the West is preparing to seed a larger area than ever before. The opinion sometimes heard, that the precipitous decline in the grain markets has been a staggering blow to the West is utterly groundless, yet the fear that such might be the case warrants a careful analysis of the whole western situation.

Relative to the possible effect of the grain market break upon the western country at large, it must be remembered that only a comparatively small portion of the grain actually remains in the farmers' hands. At the beginning of last month, there was scarcely more than 20,000,000 bushels of wheat in the farmers' barns, in addition to seeding requirements. The great bulk of the grain was sold at prices far in advance of present levels. The sale of the remainder, moreover, at anything near present levels would yield the farmer about 50 cents more per bushel, for wheat, than he was receiving at this time last year. The average price of No. 1 Northern wheat (Fort William) for March and also April of last year was 98 cents. Reports on western business at that time dwelt on the satisfactory grain prices, and the encouraging farm outlook arising therefrom. It is true that hundreds of speculators, including some farmers, were ruined by the price crash, but this has no material effect upon fundamental conditions. After all, Canada's progress is more definitely linked up with the state of western, and also eastern agriculture, than it is with market speculation, whether it be in wheat or in railway or mining stocks. The total agricultural revenue of the three western provinces in 1923 was in excess of $576,470,000. The Alberta Department of Agriculture estimates that the revenue of that province is $10,000,000 in excess of the 1923 figure, and in spite of the much smaller yield, there is an indicated farm revenue from the three prairie provinces of something in excess of $600,000,000.

Demand For Farm Land.

The most favorable feature of the whole western situation is the inherent soundness of credit conditions, in contrast with the situation there five years ago. Debt payment has been proceeding creditably, and land values have been deflated to the point where a substantial buying movement has been made possible. As a result, there has been a gradual increase in the turnover of farm properties during the past three months. This has led to a mild rise in farm values. The average value of occupied farm land in the three prairie provinces is now about $26. This low price of land has two significant results. It has led to an influx of settlers from the United States as well as from Great Britain and Europe, to buy or make initial payments on land before the price rises, and immigration figures are now much more encouraging.

But a more important feature, probably is the fact that farm land in Canada is cheaper on the average than in any of the wheat raising countries with which we are in competition. We are thus justified in expanding our acreage and output almost indefinitely. Our salvation is in production, in contrast with the situation in the United States, for example, where the government has already advised a reduction of wheat acreage. Canada is thus equipped to continue as a wheat producer under more favorable conditions than any of her competitors, from the standpoint of this important matter of land values.

Further tangible proof that the West is progressing favorably is shown in increased volume of buying. Farm implement manufacturers report that the volume of sales of implements and parts has begun to increase materially, and hardware products, especially for building purposes, are selling in larger quantities. This is to be expected in view of the large increase which has taken place in volume of building in the West. Building permits for the first two montas of the year were 35 per cent. above those for the same period last year. The totals were $374,384 and $1,018,256. Livestock sales also indicate betterment, and progress in mixed farming.

SHEFFIELD LEFT NO DOUBT OF SUPERIORITY OVER CARDIFF IN THRILLING ENGLISH CUP FINAL

"Blades" Worked Like Well-Oiled Machine, While Welshmen's Famous Defense Was Not in Evidence—True Cup-Tie Football.

LONDON INVADED IN "WEE" HOURS

Gillespie Outstanding Player—First Trains of Fans Reached City at 1.30 A.M.—No Untoward Incident All Day.

LONDON, April 27. — Sheffield United are the 1925 winners of the English Cup. At Wembley stadium on Saturday before a crowd that sat thrilled through every minute of the warmly contested game, the United defeated Cardiff City in the final round of the tournament, and emerged with the title of chief exponents of soccer in England. The game was fast, clean and open, and was fought out in the true spirit of cup-tie football. There was plenty of hard, honest charging, which pleased the fans immensely. Sheffield's superiority was admitted and it was most marked in the first half. At no time did they look like losing the game. Once they established their lead when Tunstall netted after 31 minutes of play, they were never headed. Their forwards worked like a well oiled machine while the often emphasized advantage of Cardiff's City's backs simply did not exist.

Keener, it must be said, worked hard to stem the tide, but he was almost alone.

The dominating figure of the field was Gillespie. He it was who initiated Sheffield's attacks with the utmost skill. The "Blades" open game produced more chances than did the more careful play and the slower movements of the Welshmen. The latter never got going as a combined attacking force and at the end of the game there was no doubt in the mind of anyone as to whether Sheffield did or did not deserve their victory.

Honor Ramsay MacDonald.

English Cup day was full of feature in the Metropolis and the tournament was witnessed by many of the most distinguished people in the Kingdom. One figure that came in for great attention was the Right Hon. Ramsay MacDonald the ex-Premier who occupied a box behind the Royal box in which sat the Duke and the Duchess of York. The ex-Premier had to rise repeatedly and acknowledge the cheers of the exuberant and good natured crowd. At half time he was invited to take his seat in the Royal box but declined on the ground that he was with friends whom it would be discourteous to leave. The invitation was repeated however and extended to include his friends and was so insistent that the Labor ex-prime minister and his guests accepted and joined the Royal party in the waiting room.

When play was resumed Mr. MacDonald was bidden to sit on the right of the Duchess of York with whom he remained in close conversation until the end of the game.

It was significant that the afternoon's arrangements for handling the tremendous crowd passed off without a hitch not a single untoward incident being reported to the police. The crowd at the close of the game dispersed very quickly and without the slightest congestion.

It was a sunny morning in London and thousands had travelled all through the night. Paddington, King's Cross, Euston Road, Marleybone were at their very busiest from 3 o'clock in the morning.

The char-a-bancs in attendance were speedily filled and drove off, either to Wembley, or made tours of London. Around the stations the stores were open from 2 o'clock in the morning, and the streets were ablaze with light. The street hawkers selling their favors did a roaring trade with clackers and rattles.

Welshmen Arrive Early.

The first excursion train pulled in from the west into Paddington at 1.30 a.m. and it was here that the vanguard of the Welsh army debouched. The customarily quiet and eminently respectable streets in the vicinity of Lancaster Gate and Oxford street west filled with a great throng and the air was full of sharp sibilants and oymric song. Welsh girls attired in their national costume and young men wearing Cardiff City favors were in such crowds that ordinary clothing on the streets was almost hidden. Impromptu bands emitted strange noises while parties of Welshmen paraded streets singing and counter-singing the National airs —English of course was prevalent with respect to language, but the colors borne were the blue and white of Cardiff City.

Many scenes of good natured joshing were enacted. Occasionally a party of Yorkshiremen wearing the cerise and white of Sheffield United would venture in the Welsh camp "just to see wot's 'appening." There would then be a torrent of good-spirited badinage.

"Football, lad, not tiddley-winks!" was how one Sheffielder put it, while another urged his "croom" to "tell 'em wot we did t'West Bromwich."

The Cardiffians were not backward in repartee and kept telling the world generally and the citizens of Sheffield in particular just what they proposed to do.

The same liveliness featured all the other stations, the fun starting a little later, but nevertheless maintained in a spirit of utmost good-will and sportsmanship.

Raid on Leeks.

A notabel feature was the number of women who took advantage of the cheap trips to take a turn up to the city. Even on the earliest trains came the young girls with their fiances, wives with their husbands, and in many cases little girls with their parents. Until the city woke up there was little for them to do but go to Covent Garden market which furnished a tremendous attraction particularly for the Welshmen sporting the leek. Those who had come unprovided remedied the omission at Covent Garden. They came away with whole bunches and distributed them freely to their friends, and also to the good humored Londoners after extracting solemn promises from the amused Metropolitans not to eat them.

LACROSSE MEETING WEDNESDAY NIGHT

A meeting of all those interested in the organization of a lacrosse club is called for Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Y.M.C.A.

Athough Johnnie Sutherland as secretary of the Thistles football team has returned to his first love he is a natural magnet for lacrosse players, and on paper he could line up a team right now that would take a lot of beating. According to Johnnie's reports Bert McLeod and Irvin Bailey are just as skilful at the summer net games as they are in hockey, and that's a nice pair to "draw to." Bailey was sought by Brampton a short time ago. Doug Miller, who has been with Oshawa since his last appearance in a Peterborough uniform, is eager to see the game go here this summer. There are other newcomers who are also keen for action, on of them a big rangy lad who has invested in an $8 stick in the expectation that the game will go ahead. Besides, there is a string of local boys who might be mentioned as good material for a team, but experience here has proved that it is one thing to line up a team on paper, and quite another to trot it out on the field. However, a net has been set up at Central Park and some of the players have already been working out.

Every one desiring to boost the game should be on hand at the "Y" Wednesday night.

"Pete" King, last year with Wallaceburg, is in the city, and the more one looks over the possible squad the more convincing are Johnnie Sutherland's convictions that Peterboro could muster a fast intermediate squad.

FAST WORKOUT OF BALL SQUAD

Candidates for Petes Loosened Up in Warm Weather Saturday.

"RED" LEGON OUT

Saturday's workout of the Peterborough Central Ontario League club at James Stevenson Park was featured by the presence of "Red" Legon who returned from Kingston on Friday, and by the largest turnout of the season. The weather conditions were ideal and the squad took more liberties with their throwing arms than in other workouts. Heckman and Whitehouse warmed up for nearly an hour with Swanston and Gardner and each tossed a few during the batting practice, without of course attempting to put anything on the ball.

Swanston and Gardner worked at the plate in the infield practice with L. Lebarr at first, Johnny Marchen and Ray Rose at second, Batten, Don Cameron and Irvin Bailey at short and Collins and Manager Johnston at third. Bailey was the first casualty of the season, the hockey star having a finger split by a fast throw from Marchen in attempting to pull off a double play at second.

Batting practice for three quarters of an hour wound up the workout.

Evening practices begin this week and if the weather conditions are favourable Manager Johnston hopes to have the first practice game of the season on Saturday. There is material enough for two lineups and the squad will stage a game on Saturday, with Heckman and Whitehouse as the opposing pitchers.

Scotty McPherson is expected out this week as well as Hap Harrison.

NEW NURMI RECORD.

Defeated Eight Indians at Three Miles.

COLISEUM, Los Angeles, Calif., April 26.—Paavo Nurmi, Finland's fast middle distance runner, won a three mile race from eight Sherman Indians here yesterday. The first quarter mile was passed in 63 1-2 seconds. Nurmi dropped a few paces behind from the gun, but after the first quarter timted himself and increased his pace to lead the field in the second lap.

Nurmi's time was 14:15.9, a new United Sttaes' record for a three mile run.

SPRING TONIC FOR GOLFERS

As Prescribed by Tommy Armour.

Of recent years there has been quite a run on steel-shafted clubs. But it is not true that steel is as good as hickory and that this is a fact can be attested to best by observing that star golfers do not use the steel clubs.

There was once a supposition that steel made for longer and truer shots. Its fallacy has been proved.

Steel can be made as whippy as wood, but there is not near the amount of tortion in steel that there is in hickory when the club head is being carried through fast.

In selecting a driver, go to your pro. He not only will know a good shaft of hickory when he sees it, but he will know what sort of shaft will be best suited to your game.

Players who buy steel, bamboo or shafts made of some patent substance will change to hickory when they have discovered what a difference it makes in their game.

KERRY TEAM WON.

DUBLIN, April 26.—The Kerry team to-day won the all-Ireland gaelic football championship from Dublin by a score of 4 to 3. The match, which was played at Croke Park, was witnessed by 40,000 persons.

WEST BROMWICH CHANCE SLIGHT

Huddersfield's Victory Over Preston Regarded as Settling English League.

REVIEW OF GAMES

LONDON, April 27.—(Canadian Press Cable.)— With the eyes of the football world centred Saturday on Wembley Stadium, where Sheffield United carried off the English Cup in their thrilling contest with Cardiff City, interest in the League games was comparatively little except for the decisiveness of these games in notching new places. The play brought out no surprises, the various leagues running absolutely true to form. To a certain extent it almost completely destroyed the hopes of West Bromwich for title honors, while Huddersfield Town made a complete job of Preston North End. Huddersfield are now regarded as almost sure winners of the First Division championship, since they have a game in hand over the Albion. Unless some unforseen disaster overtakes them, they have the title salted away and everything is over bar the shouting.

West Bromwhich put up a good fight, coming up from behind a few months ago and playing sterling football ever since, but Huddersfield had too good a start and notwithstanding that the Albion at times led the league, they always seeme to fall just at the time when they should not, with the result that they may have to be content with the rather shadowy honor of runners-up.

Second Division.

It is in the second and third divisions that the real fight is taking place. Leicester City obtained promotion Saturday by virtue of their win over Bradford city, and next season will seek them travelling in the first division, but who is to accompany them is still a problem. The decision lies between Manchester United and Derby County, with the former hot favorites. Manchester made short work of Port Vale, nerving up a bloodless victory by four goals to nothing. Derby County could only draw with Coventry City—an amazing result since Coventry City are the basement holders of the second string and must go down to the third next season. With each team having one game to play, Derby stand two points behind the United. Even should they win their next tilt and Manchester lose, it is problematical if the county could make up the needed margin in goals, so that the fans consider it a foregone conclusion that the two teams moving up are Leicester City an Manchester United.

Their places in the second division will be taken by Preston North End and Notts Forest.

While Coventry City will go down to the third division, the matter of who will accompany them is still open. The club most threatened is Crystal Palace, who were the only menaced team that failed to improve on Saturday. They were handed a costly defeat by Fulham, a defeat that may be their entire undoing. They have one more game to play.

Swansea Favore.

Swansea Town are the favorites for leadership of the southern section, third division. They are running second to Plymouth Argyle and are bracketed with Bristol Rovers. But since they have a game in hand over each of these two clubs, they are in the best position of all three. They produced a creditable draw with the Argyle at Plymouth on Saturday, but rather overdid the one-back game which they had adopted. Merthyr Town, at the other end of the table, were thoroughly trimmed by Southend United, and will be automatically dismissed from the league. To them comes the humiliation of having to apply for re-admission, a fate that in the northern section is reserved for Rotherham. Whether they will be admitted to the League again or some of the other clubs that are battering at the doot of the Football Association given a chance, remains to be seen.

Darlington in the northern section of the third division will move into the second.

THISTLE WON SOCCER GAME FROM QUAKERS

Losers' Defense Let Thistle Get Two Easy Goals.

PENALTIES MISSED

Play Was of a Dilatory Character in the Second Moiety.

Ideal weather prevailed on Saturday afternoon for soccer, when the Thistle defeated the Quakers by three goals to nothing in a dilatory game at the Oval. Last year's champions only had five of their team from last season but the newcomers made a good impression. Unfortunately, the defeated team's failure was in the defense department, it needs strengthening.

The Quakers were the first to attack, in spite of the loss of the choice of goals which aided the Thistle in their endeavours to open the scoring but only received fruitless corner-kicks. Scott cleared to his forwards, who had travelled close in on the defense, Logan and Craig missing opportunities galore. Soon after this Laughlin returned to the Quaker's goal where Richmond missed his accurate cross, as Honor punted clear. Then Edgar was called into prominence from an effort from Lauchlin's corner-kick that the goal keeper picke off his teammates head.

Quakers Worked Hard.

Quick as a flash, the half-back line carried the tactics of defense, along with their forwards into Thistle territory.

The full-backs responded well with nippy clearances when the opposing forwards were all set to score. The Quaker boys continued to press, and they made the play interesting as they peppered Brown in goal with all kinds of shots. Eventualy Anderson retaliated upfield. Wade sent out to the left wing, where progress was made to the Quaker's detriment. Honour and Williams tackled without success but to the goal-keeper's surprise, he did not notice the outside left come running forward as he landed the ball in the net from between the two players.

Maker's Big Mistake.

A sporadic raid by Logan and Craig was deserving better rewards, after this snappy goal. The bouncing ball took a lot of controlling—too much for the fast moving Quaker forwards. The Thistle defenders were generally their masters when they got near goal. When at length, Doherty drove hard into centre field where Richmond took advantage of Maker's mistake when he misjudged the ball with his head. Trapping the ball as it dropped the big fellow sent the second counter far out of the reach of Edgar. From the kick off the Quakers penetrated the defense of the opponents but someone made poor use of a good opening by Logan's pass. They continued to press as half-time was announced. Thistle 2, Quakers 0.

SECOND HALF.

The second moiety was opened up by Wilson outwitting Quaker's right defence, to make a dead centre that was shot forward by W. Logan to Mayette who beat along the wing. He centred the ball, and from the effort to obtain possession, Carmichael accidentally hit Scott in the face with the ball, that sent him out for the count. The throw-up really gave the Quakers a scoring chance as Williams was well placed to receive ball from Scott. Wade at right back tackled him unfavorably for a penalty kick.

Poor Markmanship.

Maker was trusted with the kick that landed in Brown's arms who kicked clear amidst an amount of gesture. Craig and Logan gave the spectators a touch of their ability when their individual play would predominate, but was spoiled by shooting wide of the mark, although the latter's parting shots kept Brown from having an easy day. This was followed up when Scott, now going in mid-season form, tested the Thistle goal-keeper with a stinging shot from far out. Brown with outstreched arms prevented a tally as the ball was dropping in below the cross-car.

Missed Penalty.

The Thistle were for the most part playing a spasmodic game that was intertwined by beautiful crosses from Laughlin who had the upper hand of his opponents and when he did get down into Quaker's area his methods were always profitable. A pass from him, let Hutton make tracks for Edgar's goal but Honour upset his intentions for an unproductive penalty taken by Richmond. Play run from end to end for a long time, until a corner taken by Lauchlin, was cleverly cleared by Edgar when he fisted out a positive centre in below the cross-bar. Down at the Thistle citadel, Brown enacted the same performance when Quakers should have scored. Five minutes before full time, a Quaker player unfortunately committed an infringement that gave the Thistle the third goal from a penalty kick when Richmond made no mistake with his parting shot. This ended a very tame game. Thistle 3, Quakers 0.

Goal scorers—Richmond 2, Wilson 1.

Referee—W. Richards.

RANGERS AGAIN CHAMPION OF SCOTS' LEAGUE

Defeated Ayr United, While Airdrie Lost to St. Johnstone at Perth.

END OF SEASON

Clydebank and Dundee Replace Ayr and Lanark in First Division.

GLASGOW, April 27. — (Canadian Press Cable.)— The curtain officially descended on Scottish football Saturday, only a few odd unscheduled contests remaining for the second division, and the result of the eight months of strenuous play finds the Glasgow Rangers once more ensconced as champions of the Scottish League. A single goal by McCandless fifteen minutes from the commencement of their game on Saturday with Ayr United, gave the "invincibles" their title, but in view of the amazing defeat of the Airdrieonians at Perth, when St. Johnstone took them into camp by an orphan counter, Rangers did not need this win over Ayr. They finished the season three points to the good over Airdrie, having won 25 out of their 38 games, drawn 10 and dropped three. The Airdrieonians won 20, drew 7 and lost 6, giving them an aggregate of 57 points to 60, gathered in by the Rangers.

With their defeat on Saturday went also Ayr United's last chance of staying in the first division. The one goal sealed their fate and they are now relegated with Third Lanark to the second string. Their demotion was reached by only the merest fraction to the bad in goal average as compared with Motherwell, who were trimmed by Aberdeen two goals to zero. Motherwell had the same aggregate number of points as Ayr United, but their goal average was slightly better, with the result that they remain in the senior section.

Two Promotions.

Clydebank and Dundee United will take their place in the first division next year, Clydebank regaining the position they lost a year ago with Clyde. The advancement of Dundee United gave jute city a couple of first division clues now.

The concluding games were attended by fine weather and the fans turned out in good style to witness the "grande finale." The big surprise of the day was the victory of St. Johnstone over Airdrie, although it has also to be said that the three to nothing trimming that Cowdenbeath handed to Partick Thistle was also not included in the fans' calculations. A. Rankine, Devlin and Chambers were the stars for Cowdenbeath.

Celtic Defeated.

St. Mirren fought a keen game at Paisley against Celtic and defeated the cup-holders by two to one. They led at the interval by their two goals, scored by Thompson and Cabbie, but the Celts improved somewhat in the second stanza and might have drawn had McStay not missed a penalty. Wilson score their only goal. The game was featured by the ordering off the field of Patsy Gallagher.

Queen's Park garnered in two points at the expense of Raith Rovers in a hot game staged at Hampden Park, the "amateurs" registered in each period, Crawford counting in the first half with Nicholson completing the tally in the second.

Falkirk turned in a good win over Hamilton Academicals on the latter's ground, despite the fact that the "Bairns" played a man short for the better part of the game. Dougal was responsible for both scores, while Kelly was the marksman for Hamilton.

The two Jacksons "A" and "J" were the stars in Aberdeens' game with Motherwell.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Relaxation during the address is so highly necessary because tightness and rigidity, felt during the address will increase their muscle-paralyzing effect as the swing progresses. This is a rule of physical action from which there is no exception.

You can never have muscle tightness and rigidity during the address and get rid of it during the swing. It is the same thing as starting quickly. The speed of your swing will naturally accelerate reardless of the speed you use at the start, and by the same rule your muscles will get tighter and more rigid in exact proportion to the tightness and rigidity you feel during the address. There is a consolation to all golfers however. The exact reverse of this rule is that the more relaxation you have, under easy control, during the address the more free and easy—and effective—the swing will be.

ROUND UP COMMUNISTS.

All Police of Europe Will Expel Suspected Aliens in Few Days.

LONDON, April 27. — (Canadian Press).—Lt.-Col. Cecil L'Estrange, Lamone Malone, former M.P., who has just returned from the Balkans, quotes Chief of Police Schoeller of Vienna as declaring that all the police departments of Europe have agreed upon a general round-up of Communists and the expulsion of suspected aliens within the next few days.

FOR A HOLIDAY OF SUPREME ENJOYMENT

This summer pass up the familiar near-at-home vacation ground and visit a land of fresh charm and interest. New scenic thrills await you in Jasper National Park and on the Triangle Tour of British Columbia. Awe-inspiring magnificence features the glorious five-day boat trip from Vancouver to Skagway, Alaska.

Jasper National Park — 4,400 square miles in area—is the largest National Park and game sanctuary in the world. Among the foothills of the Canadian Rocky Mountains, the colossal snow-capped peaks, gigantic glaciers, tree-clad slopes, silvery lakes, torrential rivers and shady retreats make it a playground of unique grandeur. Jasper Park Lodge offers every modern luxury as well as golf, tennis, riding, hiking, boating—every form of sport and recreation.

The Triangle Tour is a wonderful combination of rail travel through the heart of the mountains and boat travel through the sheltered Scenic Seas. Leaving Jasper, the tourist crosses the mountains in close proximity to the highest peaks; the train following the shores of mighty rivers and skirting deep canyons on its way to Prince Rupert. Thence by luxurious steamer to Vancouver and by train back to Jasper, edging the roaring gorges of the Thompson and Fraser Rivers.

The mountain magnificence revealed on the trip to Alaska is unparalleled by any other scenery that may be viewed from the deck of a boat. Great glaciers, rugged crags, totem poles, romantic cities, Indian villages these are some of the features that combine to make your Alaskan holiday one great and glorious adventure.

The trancontinental trains of Canadian National Railways, all-steel equipped—offer the maximum of travel comfort on your journey to Western Canada. Daily service from Toronto to Winnipeg, Edmonton, Jasper National Park, Prince Rupert and Vancouver.

THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL

Clever Crook Drama, "Midnight Molly," at Royal.

Cast in a role which brings out her dramatic ability to a remarkable degree, Evelyn Brent, Gothic picture star, comes to the Royal Theatre for a three day run to-day, in her latest production, "Midnight Molly." With a theme of mistaken identity rolling along smoothly from climax to climax, "Midnight Molly" proves one of the most powerful melodramas of the season. It is tense with suspense and replete with action. The story, written for Miss Brent by Fred Kennedy Myton, is but another instance of how much more effective an original story written for a particular star can be. Bruce Gordon, John Dillon, Leon Bary and John Gouch are outstanding figures in the cast. The production shows the best efforts of Lloyd Ingraham, one of the cleverest directors in motion pictures, and his assistant, Pandro S. Berman.

VAUDEVILLE AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

As an added attraction to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday the Royal has secured a European novelty, "See and Believe." They defy the laws of gravitation. They are coming direct from Detroit anl go from here to Loews in London.

COUNTRY STORE NIGHT TO-NIGHT.

To-night is the night that fifty patrons of the Royal go home after the show with a worth-while prize. "Country Store Nite" is presented in an original manner and also provides plenty of laughs.

To-night will see the first performance of "The Right Word" at The Capitol Theatre. This is a one-act comedy which will be an added attraction to the regular picture programme. Written by Miss K. L. McCarthy ("Jeannette" of the Examiner staff) and produced by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, with a cast of talented local players.

Miss Mathilde Masson will sing during the progress of the play, and Mr. Lionel Chapman will play on the Hawaiian guitar. Others taking part are Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, Miss Alma Goselin, and Messrs. James Dixon, W. E. McWilliams and Gordon Cornish.

DAVID W. GRIFFITH MAKER OF PICTURES.

Kentucky is the birth-place and the home of D. W. Griffith. His residence is at his studios in Mamaroneck, N.Y. There he has established a sea-walled park for picture-making, one of the show places along Long Island Sound, visible for miles, canopied with great elms and birches; and soothed into a restful reach of nature by surrounding lawns.

How does this man appear? He is in his early forties; five feet and eleven inches tall, weighing one hundred and fifty-two pounds. Physically, he has a firm balance of bone, with alert decisive movement; a slender, cutting body with no suggestion of brute strength. His vitality and endurance are premiums of perfect health and indomitable will.

His studio is his home. For weeks he never leaves the grounds. Up at seven-thirty every morning he works steadily until from eleven to one o'clock every night. It is most typical of him that he hastens, but never hurries; moves quickly but never rushes.

While other directors have the resources of great organizations to assist them, Mr. Griffith works alone. He selects his own stories. Then he begins to cast the principal roles. In this day when so many successful players have long-term contracts, this is often a most trying and difficult task; as available talent is often unsuitable.

While he selects his cast, he rehearses them, at once to prove the worth of the player in absorbing the role, and to work out the details of the drama so every member will be saturated with the purposes of the parts.

During the rehearsals, the costumes are selected, tried out, changed over and over again until final choice is made.

AT THE REGENT

DORIS KENYON HERE IN NEW MOVIE.

A gust of girlish soprano, floating out through the window of a Brooklyn drawing room to smite the ears of a famous music composer, was the luckiest thing in the life of Doris Kenyon, film and stage star, who is co-featured by First National with Milton Sills in "I Want My Man," the current attraction at the Capitol Theatre.

"I was singing in the choir of a Bushwick Methodist Church while studying for a career as a pianist," said Miss Kenyon. "I was doing a finger exercise on the keyboard when some urge led me to air my lungs. I sent my voice as high as I could.

"Victor Herbert happened to be coming to visit my father. He heard me sing for the first time. As he was a warm friend of my family, he knew I was studying piano. But he didn't know I had any ability in voice—and no more did I.

"As soon as he came in he turned to me and asked if I should like to go on the stage. I had never dreamed of it, but before my first surprise was ended he had offered me a role in his operetta "Princess Pat," which he was just starting in New York. It was my high note that attracted his attention, and it is responsible for my turning from music to drama."

"I Want My Man" is an adaptation from Struthers Burt's sensational novel of society high life, "The Interpreter's House." May Allison heads the supporting cast.

UMPIRES HAVE GIVEN UP JOB

Benson Won't Work as He Is Not Wanted, and Gloster Can't.

SEEKING OTHERS.

OSHAWA, April 27—President C. M. Anderson received a protest on the appointments of umpires from President Noble Stacey of the Kingston team in the Central Ontario League, objecting to Gloster and Benson, the Toronto umps, and an S.O.S. has been sent out for other officials, not because of the objections of the Eastern team, but Benson telephoned President Anderson on Friday night, that after seeing in the daily papers that his appointment was not unanimous among the teams of the league, he resigned from all engagements ,then along comes word from Tom Gloster that he cannot work on Saturday afternoons. Alec Kay of Peterboro and Geo. Sullivan have been asked to accept berths in place of the two Toronto umps, while other help will be look for from the Toronto Umpires Association. The economic plea of the eastern team of the Central Ontario League as to the umpire situation is likely to develop into an enlarged expense account, especialy in the case of Kingston, as Sulliavn being a Kingston umpire it is hardly likely that visiting teams will agree to his appointment for the Limestone City home games.

OXONIAN DEFEATED.

A. E. Porritt Forced Michigan University Man in Dash.

FRANKLIN FIELD, Phila., Apl. 27.—Sensational running which sent Georgetown University to a world record of 7 minutes 42 seconds in the two mile relay, and brought the defeat of A. E. Porritt of Oxford University in the 100 yard final at the hands of Dehart Hubbard of Michigan featured the closing events of the University of Pennsylvania relay carnival Saturday.

Hubbard had to run with one-fifth of a second of the world record to defeat the Britisher. His time was 9 4-5 seconds.

Lord Burghley of Cambridge University failed to qualify in the 120 yard hurdles, finishing third in the first heat of the event. Hamilton Collegiate Institute of Canada won third place in a field of fast preparatory schools.

MOTORS TEAM HELD CENTRAL LEAGUERS

Dainty Worked For Intermediates in Exhibition Game —Score Was 6 to 3.

OSHAWA, April 27.—On Saturday afternoon at Alexandra Park the Oshawa Motors Intermediate team of the Durham and Ontario League, with "Duke" Dainty, the Central Ontario port sider, serving them up to batters, made the Central Ontario Senior team extend themselves to win an exhibition game by a score of six to three, the winning runs being chased across the pan in the ninth frame. Being advertised as a workout for the two Oshawa teams, Dainty with Jack Broad doing the receiving, held the would-be swatters of the Central Leaguers to two hits and one run for the first five innings. Matthews, a rookie from the Danforth League of Toronto, then took up the heaving, and he got by up to the ninth with two hits and two unearned runs being registered against him, but in the final frame he weakened, and the big league boys gathered four hits in a row, one of which was a three-bagger by Ward and three runs went over the pan with the first win of the season being hung up by the Central Leaguers. Jimmy Breckenridge, the ex-Leaside right-hander, made his first appearance of the season as a slab artist and held the Intermediate D. and O. entry to five hits and three runs in the six innings he worked, when Webster, the ex-Brantford boy, took up the task, and although he got away to a bad start, hitting the first two batters, he finished the game with only two hits off his offerings and no runs placed in the score sheet.

The Central League players were: Dugan, 1st and 2nd; Ward, rf and 3rd; Dineen, 1st and 2nd; W. Fair, 3rd and rf; R. Fair; Morrison, ss; Nott, lf and c; Cameron, c and lf; Breckenridge, p; Webster, p.

CAMPAIGN ON HERE FOR GEM LYE.

The Cudahy Packing Company, manufacturers of Old Dutch Cleanser, are launching an intensive and seasonable campaign in Peterboro on Gem Lye. Gem Lye is 100 per cent. in strength and quality and has an added feature of being packed in the old style way — powdered form. The tin is of a convenient size and very handy for home use in that it is made of a material which eliminates any possibility of the lye eating out, with an additional feature of a safety top, air cushion stopper, which enables the can to be opened and closed in a handy fashion. There is, consequently, no danger of the contents losing their strength through exposure to the air. If you have not tried Gem Lye, ask your grocer about it—he will have it on display in his store and will be only too glad to answer any questions regarding its many varied uses. 1d

All in the Day's Work Says City Policeman

Some queer jobs are handed out to the always-ready-to-please policeman, but one that popped up to confront the local force yesterday holds a record.

The constables are accustomed to being called to settle family rows and they have become expert in handling these cases of domestic infelicity.

Shooting a dog is a common incident and answering appeals to stop a dog howling are not uncommon. But the prince of all assignments was handed out yesterday when a constable was called to the assistance of a cat. Pussy had delved too deeply into an empty salmon tin and had her head securely fastened in the tin armour.

The policeman freed her.

MEN DISMISSED BY RAILWAY CO.

C.P.R. Has Let Out 18 Conductors For Irregularities With Tickets.

"CHINESE SPIES."

WINNIPEG, April 27 (Canadian Press).—It was officially announced here last night by the inspection department of the Canadian Pacific Railway that a number of conductors on the company's lines between Winnipeg and Vancouver, have been dismissed during the past three months as a result of an investigation into ticket irregularities. The number of dismissals is given as "between 18 and 24." Most of these dismissed were employed on the lines in British Columbia.

The publication of a story in a Chinese newspaper at Vancouver, practically warning Chinese travellers to buy tickets in the regular manner and to beware of "Chinese spies" engaged to detect offenders, was translated recently by the authorities and is believed to have resulted from investigation.

Chinese have been employed in travelling over the road between Winnipeg and Pacific Coast in an effort to detect irregularities.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR.

There are those who seek to join together the old covenant or law of ten commandments (which is called "a yoke of bandage") and the new covenant (which is called "a law of liberty.')' The old covenant could not give life, it being the ministration of death. The new covenant makes perfect, and gives life, it being the ministration of the Spirit. Those who are under the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus are not under the old imperfect "ten commandments law." Jesus and the apostles never gave commandment to keep the law of Moses. The old covenant is done away with in Christ. II Cor. 3: 14. The law of Moses or the law from Sinai has been abolished. Eph. 2:15. The Apostle Paul said it was made old and vanished away, by reason of a better covenant taking its place. Deluded ones exclaim: "horors," the ten commandments all gone, so now we can steal murder etc. Not quite so fast; the new law (the law of the Spirit) does all the old one did and much more. Read what Jesus says is murder, theft, etc., under the new covenant. — M. T. Butcher. 1d99-10678

MOHER—DOHERTY.

Moher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moher, Douro, by Rev. J. J. O'Brien, cousin of the bride.

The bride looked pretty in a deep amber satin crepe dress with hat to match, and wearing a corsage bouquet of ophelia roses and the groom's gift, a string of amber-tinted pearls. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid, Miss Minnie Doherty, was also a string of pearls. Mr. Jos. McManus acted as best man.

After a dainty wedding repast, served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moher left on a short honeymoon to Toronto, the bride travelling in a dress and coat of navy tricotine.

On their return they will reside in Douro.

ROTARIANS ARE ENTERTAINED BY LINDSAY TALENT

Kiwanians Hi Meehan and Doc Mercer Visit Local Club.

SONGS MADE A HIT.

Rotarian Gillespie Tells of the Recent Hamilton Convention.

Enjoyable numbers by Kiwanians Hi Meehan and Doc Mercer of Lindsay and an interesting report of the Hamilton convention by Rotarian George A. Gillespie, were features of to-day's luncheon of the Peterborough Rotary Club at which there was an unusually large number of visitors present.

Messrs. Meehan and Mercer proved entertainers of great ability and scored heavily. Their opening number, their own version of "How Do You Do?" in which they used the names of a large number of local Rotarians with much effectiveness, caused gales of laughter. Later on in the programme they contributed as a banjo duet a medley of current popular songs and in response to the hearty applause rendered a pot pourri of Southern airs in splendid fashion. Mr. Meehan sang a parody on "I Wonder What Has Become of Sally," in inimitable style.

The visiting entertainers were given the usual Rotary thanks, and in reply Kiwanian Meehan explained that their presence was a return for a most pleasant evening enjoyed by the Lindsay Club as the result of a visit from Rotarian Rev. Harold Young.

The Hamilton convention, Rotarian Gillespie characterized as one of the most enjoyable and profitable gatherings he had ever attended. The speaker briefly reviewed the proceedings and dealt principally with the business methods works, the developments in connection with which he, as chairman of the local Club's Business Methods committee, had been detailed to watch and upon which subject he had been one of the speakers at the convention.

Rotarian Gillespie stated that the business methods work had only been begun, but that during the year it was hoped to make considerable progress in one of the most important branches of Rotary service.

President John H. Seels was in the chair to-day and he and Rotarian W. R. Morris urged the members to remember the International convention in Cleveland. President Seels also urged the club to support the Y.W.C.A. gymnastic exhibition this week.

FIREMEN BUSY OVER WEEK END

Four Calls Sunday and One This Morning—Mostly Chimneys.

RUBBISH BURNING.

The firemen were kept busy Sunday morning when they received four calls. The first was at 8.05 a.m. to the corner of Morrow and Sherbourne Streets, but as this is outside the city limits, they did not respond. However, no damage was done.

At 11.57 a.m. the firemen were called out to 103 Hunter Street East; at 12.25 a.m. to 188 Park Street, and at 12.45 to 36 Hunter Street East. The first and the last cases were just chimney fires, no damage being done in either case. The fire at Park Street turned out to be rubbish burning underneath the verandah.

The firemen were again on the job this morning at 10.53, when they were called to 188 Douro Street. This was a chimney fire and no damage was done.

S. National Museum of Anthopology to many parts of the world. He is here to examine the discovery recently made of five different species of fossils of anthropoid apes in Shivalik Hills.

Addressing a representative gathering Dr. Hrdlicka urged India to undertake seriously the researches in the Shivalik Hills, which he said might contain important evidence concerning the origin of the human race.

NEW PRESIDENT HAS OPPOSITION

BERLIN, April 27. — Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's 'front porch' campaign, conducted from his home in Hanover, has been successful, and next week he will be inducted into office as the first popularly elected president of Germany.

Running as the choice of the Nationalist-Conservative bloc, consisting of the parties of the united right, he received 14,639,399 votes, or 48.3 per cent of the total ballots cast in yesterday's polling. He obtained a plurality of 886,759 over his principal opponent, former Chancellor Dr. Wilhelm Marx, candidate of the Republican bloc, who received 13,752,640 votes.

Von Hindenburg took little active personal part in the fight and did not even vote himself, but his supporters were busy everywhere.

The Reichstag will reconvene next Tuesday and Von Hindenburg, if he follows the established custom, will have the Republican oath administered to him sometime during the week by the Socialist Reichstag President, Paul Loebo, in the presence of a parliament in which he probably has more opponents than supporters, as the Centrists, Democrats, Socialists and Communists, command 277 seats against only 216 for the Rightists.

RAILWAY AMALGAMATION UNDER PUBLIC CONTROL, ONLY PLAN TO SATISFY PUBLIC, LIBERAL SAYS

W. D. Euler Believes People Would Not Tolerate Private Monopoly by the C.P.R.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

Progressive Member is 88th Speaker on Budget and 20th From His Party.

OTTAWA, April 28. — (Canadian Press).—In the debate on the budget yesterday, A. Knox (Progressive, Prince Albert) drew attention to the fact that he was the 88th speaker on the budget debate, and the 20th member of the Progressive party. Progressives had not, however, taken more than half an hour each, and he proposed to be brief.

The budget proposals were not matters for enthusiasm, he said. The thinking portion of the western electorate would not welcome the Government with open arms after this last budget.

Mr. Knox advocated a survey of the Lake La Ronge area in Saskatchewan. Anrplane maps should be made to assist prospectors in getting into that country, which was rich in mineral wealth. He regretted that Mr. Motherwell had not changed his attitude earlier on the Hudson Bay railway question. His idea that a truce should be called while the proper destination of the line was determined, looked, according to Mr. Knox, "somewhat fishy," and merely an excuse for further delay.

W. D. Euler (Liberal, North Waterloo) said he did not wish to criticize the former speaker, but he hoped his grandson, when he came to the House of Commons, would still have an opportunity to speak on the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway.

"Nuisance Taxes."

He referred to the stamp taxes as "nuisance taxes," and said also that he would have liked to see a reduction in postage to the rate prevailing in pre-war days. He did not believe that such a reduction would result in decreased revenue.

Mr. Euler referred to weakness which he said existed in the method of collecting the sales tax. Under the present system, the wholesaler and manufacturer were made the collector of the sales tax. Sometimes the wholesaler or manufacturer shipped goods to a customer before receiving payment. He was called upon to report these sales to the Government at certain periods. If the customer failed to pay for the goods purchased the manufacturer or wholesaler not only lost the principal involved but also the amount of the sales tax, which, under the regulations, he was required to turn into the Government.

Need Foreign Markets.

He did not believe that business stagnation was greater in Canada than in the United States, Mr. Euler said. He attributed conditions in Canada to over-industrialization, lack of confidence among business men, and finally, high taxation. We had more factory plants in this country than were necessary to supply the population. Therefore, Canada must have foreign markets. To develop these, she should have commercial agents in every country which offered a possible market for Canadian products. As to the United States, it was high time, not only for business reasons, but as a matter of self-respect, that this country had a representative at Washington.

Turning to the tariff, Mr. Euler said that he favored a fiscal policy which would insure a fair portion of the Canadian market for Canadians. He believed that changes should be made in the tariff only

LINDSAY, April 27.—(Special).—Andrew Rutherford, brother of Mrs. Carter and James Rutherford, of Peterborough, aged 65 years, was found dead in bed on Sunday afternoon at his home, situated between Fenelon Falls and Sturgeon Point. The deceased, who was unmarried, lived alone. Neighbors became alarmed at not seeing him around on Sunday, although he had been in Fenelon Falls on Saturday afternoon. The doctors state he had been dead about 24 hours before being discovered.

FRENCH WOMAN SAYS SPIRIT OF REVENGE RULES

Mme. Saint Servan Charges That it is Stronger Than Mother Love.

HOHENZOLLERN NEXT.

Germany Will Re-organize For Another War Against France.

(By John D. Gandt, United Press Staff Correspondent, Copyright, 1925, by United Press.)

PARIS, April 28.—"The spirit of revenge is stronger than that of Mother Love in the hearts of most German Women," Mme. De Saint Servan, President of the French League of Re-population, charged in an interview with the United Press today. "Forgetting the terrible suffering of parents in war time, when their sons faced death every second, German women Sunday returned to power the chief of the butchers."

Mme. De Saint Servan said that the women's vote in Germany was the deciding factor in electing Hindenburg.

"Next they will proceed to return to the throne a member of the Hohenzollern family. There will be stronger re-organization of Germany for war against France," the noted French woman welfare worker continued.

"The Germans will take Alsace-Lorraine and other provinces away from us once more."

Mme. De Saint Servan was asked what French women would have done under the circumstances.

"If French women ever were placed in the same situation," she replied without hesitation, "and had to decide the future of nations, they would die rather than commit such a monstrous act as that perpetrated by Germany's women—an action which is equivalent to killing a child at the bosom.

"We French women regard Hindenburg's election as a warning to the world not to trust Germany. We hope all our former allies will come closer to France's side and see that Germany is not allowed to carry out her abominable plans which are tantamount to a desire to kill and exterminate everything not German.

"Tonight, the French mothers, kneeling beside their cradles, will passionately kiss their sleeping babes and pray through their tears that their little ones live, not to be drawn as were their fathers, into the battles of which Hindenburg is dreaming."

Prince Visits Turrets Of Repulse's 15 In. Guns

ON BOARD H.M.S. REPULSE (by wireless via Cape town), April 28. — The Prince of Wales yesterday visited the forward turrets of the battle cruiser Repulse, on board of which he is proceeding to Capetown. He manipulated the fifteen inch guns and seemed pleased with the novelty. In the afternoon he played squash racquets on the deck.

Beautiful weather prevailed here. There was only a slight swell on the ocean, and all aboard the cruiser were in the highest spirits.

RETURN TO GOLD STANDARD MADE

Act Prohibiting Export of Bullion Will Be Allowed to Lapse.

EXPENDITURE UP.

LONDON, April 28. — (Canadian Press).—Winston Churchill in his maiden budget, laid before the House of Commons to-day, placed Great Britain on a gold basis and announced the reimposition of the McKenna duties on imported luxuries. After finding additional sources of revenue through increased death duties, a tax on silk and a few other articles, the Chancellor of the Exchequer went to the relief of the general British public by a straight cut of sixpence in the pound on the income tax.

The Act prohibiting the export of gold bullion will be allotted to lapse December 31st, Mr. Churchill announced. The gold standard, he said, will be restored by a special license to the Bank of England to export gold bullion. This special license, Mr. Churchill said, would operate from to-day, pending a formal lapsing of the Act prohibiting the export of gold bullion passed in 1920.

Mr. Churchill characterized the yield from internal revenue as "satisfactory."

Excess profits and corporation profits taxes showed a deficit of nine million pounds sterling, but these were "moribund" taxes and were more than counterbalanced by the yield from the income tax, super and death taxes.

Consuming Power Maintained.

The consuming power of the British people has been maintained, declared Mr. Churchill. He said he realized that the surplus of the late Chancellor's estimate corresponded with remarkable accuracy to the budget's revenue from spirits. Tobacco has fallen 2,000,000 pounds sterling below the last budget estimate, but on the other hand beer had advanced by one million sterling.

Mr. Churchill said he was making arrangements to obtain credits in the United States for not less than $300,000,000 with possible expansion. With regard to the re-establishment of the gold standard, Mr. Churchill said he would introduce a measure, providing for internal Treasury notes as well as Bank of England notes, which would be convertible in coin but only at the option of the Bank of England.

The re-establishment of the gold standard, he said, did not necessarily mean a return to gold coinage. Churchill appealed to all branches

DERELICT BOARDED.

Quebec Schooner Carried By Ice to the Atlantic.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 28. — (Canadian Press).—A vessel sighted in the ice off Aguathuna on Saturday was boarded by two men, who found her to be the Rose and Alba of Quebec. She was full of water and without sails. Papers found in her cabin showed that she cleared from Three Rivers on June 10, 1924, and that her captain was Maurice Degagne.

This was believed to be the schooner that was carried away in the ice of the St. Lawrence, last winter, after the vessel had been laid up for the season.

WEATHER

The temperature last night almost touched the frost line, going down to 33 degrees. Other things besides the trees and vegetation generally are feeling the influence of the spring-time season. I refer to that insect pest commonly known as the tent caterpillar, and it is quite possible that more will be heard about this plague later on, unless a sharp frost should come and write "finis" to these destructive and hideous creatures. Highest temperature yesterday 68 degrees.—W. P.

IMMIGRANTS LANDED SINCE 1860 CHARGED AGAINST GOVERNMENT BY QUEBEC HARBOR COMMISSION

Rate of One Dollar a Head for 2,299,973 Immigrants —And Accrued Interest.

A CONTRA ACCOUNT.

Submitted as Set Off Against $1,980,000 Interest Unpaid on Dominion Loan.

OTTAWA, April 28 (By Canadian Press) — The Quebec Harbor Commission has put in bills totalling $5,122,109 representing a dollar a head with accrued interest for every immigrant landed in Quebec since 1860. The years 1923-24 and 1924-25 are deducted in the account.

2,299,973 immigrants at $1.00 .. .. $2,299,973
Accrued Interest 2,822,136

$5,122,109

The bills present a remarkable illustration of the way interest charges mount up. The bill for 1860 for instance, represents 10,150 immigrants at a dollar a head. But there is an annual interest charge of $507.50 representing five per cent on $10,150. Multiplied over 64 years interest charges alone on the original account of $10,150 come to $32,480. Again, for 1862, the bill at a dollar a head comes to $19,923; interest charges on this amount over 63 years amount to $62,757.

Tabled in House

A return containing this information was tabled in the house Monday at the request of Hon. H. H. Stevens. Mr. Stevens asked what were the "contra account for services rendered" by which the Quebec Harbor Commission claimed to offset the $1,980,000 accrued and unpaid interest on advances totaling $8,426,800 from the Dominion Government to the Commission.

Other bills are included among the contra accounts. One is for $1475 representing services of the launch Gossoon in 1914 in connection with the First Canadian Division ,or 59 days at $25 per day. There is another account of $38.75 representing chauffeurs' expenses and meals also in connection with the embarkation of the First Division.

Air Mail Service Beats Sailing Boats a Mile

The air mail service recently inaugurated between Bermuda and the United States has proved to be much faster than the sailing ship that formerly plied the seas or the famed pony express of the western plains.

A well-known citizen of Peterborough received a letter yesterday which was part of the first air mail to leave a British colony for a foreign country. His correspondent, one of the leading merchants of Bermuda, wishing to show him what an improvement would be made in the present five-day service, sent him a short note, the envelope of which was inscribed "U.S.D. Los Angeles." The Los Angeles is the Zeppelin which recently made the sensational nonstop flight from Germany to the United States at a rate of over sixty miles an hour. The postmark is very plain on the envelop, so that there can be no doubt as to its authenticity of the flight. But the postmark also gives away a secret of the great speed. The letter left Bermuda on April 17! Ten days by aeroplane against five days by steamer.

LAY OFF 200 C.N.R. MEN.

Junior Enginemen at Winnipeg Out of Service.

WINNIPEG Man., April 27. — Two hundred junior enginemen employed on trains operating out of Winnipeg, will be laid off permanently this spring by the Canadian National Railway, it was learned officially here to-day.

This action, it was stated, is the result of general business depression, reflected in the reduced traffic from the local railway yards.

HAD LIQUOR LEGALLY.

Magistrate's Decision Under Alberta Liquor Act.

REGINA April 28. — Possession of liquor purchased in a government store, in a place other than a dwelling house or a guest room in an hotel, with the seal of the original package broken, and part of the contents consumed, was legalized in a brief judgment delivered by Magistrate Heffernan in the city police court on Monday.

By virtue of the judgment charges of "having" against Thomas Thirde, a resident of Craven, Sask., and Jno. Hughes, of Regina, were dismissed.

GERMAN RESULT IS DISQUIETING TO THE LEAGUE

Election of Von Hindenburg Causes Pessimism at Geneva Headquarters.

REACTION TRIUMPHS.

Fear He Will Become Tool of Young Militarist Officers.

GENEVA, April 28. — The election victory of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg in Germany, is received with the utmost pessimism in the League of Nations quarters.

The greatest importance is placed upon the certain cessation of disarmament activities. It is held that Von Hindenburg's election to the presidency is sufficient justification for France's maintenance of a top heavy military organization.

The victory is interpreted as a triumph of reaction which is certain to result in embarrassing problems for the League and for Europe at a time, when the continent was well started toward recovery.

The League officials consider Von Hindenburg inevitably will become the tool of young militarist officers.

DIED WATCHING CORPSE.

PARIS, April 28.—In a village near Cherbourg, Mme. de Lauf, a widow, offered to keep watch over the dead body of a friend during the night. When relatives came into the room the next morning, the widow was found dead, having fallen over the body of her friend.

Liquor Caravan Rounded Up With 144 Cases Aboard

ST. JOHN, N.B., April 28. — Two automobiles, a horse and wagon, 144 cases of contraband liquors and four men, were gathered in by Inland Revenue officers on Monday, near Musquash. Two of the men, W. J. Quinn, and Dennis Burchill, were taken before Magistrate Allingham, in Lancaster, at noon, and fined $200 each.

Harry E. Stone, who was also arested, broke from the officers and escaped, and a warrant is out for his arrest. Samuel Burchill, who was said to be a driver of one of the cars, will be brought to court later. There may be other arrests.

GERMAN BONDS HEAVILY SOLD

Wall Street's Reaction to the Election of Von Hindenburg.

TEMPORARY CHILL.

NEW YORK, April 28.—The election of Field Marshal von Hindenburg to the presidency of the German Republic threw a temporary chill over the financial markets Monday which was later dispelled by reassuring statements from leading bankers and industrialists that the election outcome was not likely to have any adverse financial or economic effects.

Negotiations for new loans and credits to German industries, bankers agreed, would be retarded by the establishment of the new government, which might, even result in the withdrawal of some United States funds from Germany. Final financial judgment on Hindenbrug's election, however, they indicated, will not be formed until the new president has made a declaration of foreign and internal politics.

Wall Street's initial reaction to the election news was found in heavy selling of the German seven per cent. bonds, which broke to a new low record, a reactionary movement in the stock market and a check to the recent upward movement in the foreign exchanges, notably sterling and French francs.

For the first time since the German Republic loan was sold last fall, the bonds failed to command a premium, breaking through the offering price of 92 to a new low record at 91 5-8. Support subsequently lifted the price back to 93 1-8, which represented only a fractional loss on the day. Selling spread to the Krupp seven per cent. bonds on the New York curb market, which were driven down 1 3-8 points to 91. Fears that the French political and financial situation would be complicated further by Hindenburg's triumph depressed French bonds 1 to 2 points, while French francs and sterling exchange both reacted under European selling.

FRENCH CRITIC RAPS U. S. GIRL

Beauty Standardized, Made Common and Is No Longer Beauty.

RUINING FIGURES.

PARIS, April 28.—Modern fashions are ruining the female figure deplores Pierre de Treviers, famous social writer, in a scathing denunciation of styles which, he asserts, "apparently have for their purpose the transformation of the fair sex into a cross between boys and old women, although permitting admiration of their lissome limbs."

Treviers pours scorn upon the so-called American type of beauty, saying:

"America, which turns out automobiles by the thousand every minute, has now succeeded in standardizing beauty. When beauty become common it is no longer beauty.

"The vulgarizing of the female face with beautifying apparatus and cosmetics is making all women look alike. When we go to Ciro's, or other haunts of the genus Americanus, we cannot tell one woman from another."

The critic then proceeds:

"To strip the modern woman of her narrow sack-like finery is to reveal a flat-chested, straight-hipped figure which a painter would behold with horror."

One famous dressmaker judges his clients like bits of wood explaining:

"To successfully wear the 1925 styles, woman should not be more than nine inches thick at the bust nor more than sixteen inches wide at the waist."

PEACE FOLLOWS GERMAN BATTLE FOR PRESIDENT

Political Groups Evidenced Desire to Avoid Partizan Recriminations After the Conflict.

COUNTRY IS CALM.

People Regaining Self-Consciousness, First Step to World's Respect, Says Paper.

BERLIN, April 28.—The election of Field Marshal von Hindenburg has up to the present failed to produce any untoward reaction in the popular mind, and the editorial comment in the organs of both political groups also reveals a desire to avoid partisan recriminations as President-elect von Hindenburg enjoys the benefit of "the law for the defence of the Republic," and this automatically brings a cessation of political hostilities so far as his personality is concerned.

"The so-called sentimentality which was on display Sunday is naught but a reawakened idealism, without which any nation is doomed to go under" is the opinion of the monarchial Kreuz Zeitung.

Vorwaerts, the Socialists' organ, sums up the outcome of the election in these words: "An individual, not a cause, was victorious on April 26."

War profiteering, socialism, anti-semitism and religious bias figured in the campaign slogans, and unquestionably attracted fresh support to von Hindenburg from those who usually do not vote. The new president will be notified by the federal election commissioner of the official count of the votes early next week, when arrangements for his formal inauguration will be decided upon. His induction into office will be marked by a ceremonious display, and it is planned to have him drive from the Reichstag to the executive mansion under military escort.

Speculation on Staff.

There is already considerable speculation over the political complexion of the executive staff, as well as the future composition of the Luther - Stresemann cabinet, which at present comprises one member of the Centre party and one Democrat in the persons of Dr. Brauns, Minister of Labor, and Herr Gessler, Minister of Defence.

Among the United Right parties which nominated him there is an evident desire to avoid a parliamentary ruction in the central government, although the effect of von Hindenburg's election on Prussian politics may have greater ramifications, in view of the re-appearance today in the Prussian Diet of the coalition ministry headed by Premier Otto Braun. This has not yet been assured of a satisfactory working majority, as the three Republican parties supporting it are permanently confronted by the decisive opposition of two Right parties and the Communists.

Regain World's Respect.

The Kreuz Zeitung thinks that the Field Marshal's victory will demonstrate that the German people are regaining self-consciousness, which is the first step to regaining the world's respect. Die Zeitung says that von Hindenburg's pre-election pronouncements prove that the foreign policy will not be changed and that there is no danger of monarchist reaction.

SOCIETY WOMEN RUN SECOND HAND SHOP

Will Save Discarded Merchandise to Aid Tuberculosis Work Among Poor.

NEW YORK, April 28. — After thirteen months of intensive study, 3,000 women most of them socially prominent are opening an elaborate "second hand" store, or "opportunity shop," as a means of aiding the tuberculosis relief work of the New York association for improving the conditions of the poor.

They estimate that the citizens of this city throw away every year merchandise which has a reclamation value of at least $50,000,000. They intend to recapture as much of this value as possible and put it to charitable use.

LACHINE CANAL OPEN

MONTREAL, April 28—The Lachine Canal opened officially Monday for the season. The next several days will probably constitute a record as there are 51 vessels waiting to pass "up," while about 88 lake ships are at present proceeding towards it from the West.

SPRING'S EARLY WAKENING AIDS WESTERN FARMS

Plowing and Seeding Further Advanced Than For Years, C.P.R. Reports.

LAND WELL WORKED.

Operations Halted by Recent Rains, But Moisture Benefits Higher Land.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 28. — Heavy and general rainfall throughout the three prairie provinces during the past week temporarily delayed land operations, but prospects of improved weather conditions promise early resumption.

While liberal moisture is reported from practically every point the additional precipitation will materially benefit the higher lands, where the seeding has been delayed, according to the weekly crop report of the Canadian Pacific Railway Agricultural Department, released Monday.

Despite the present delay, farmers generally are further advanced with plowing and seeding than they have been for many years. The early start, the report says, has encouraged the farmers to work their land unusually well while indications point to a moderate increase in the acreage under cultivation.

Report in Detail.

By provinces the report summarized the situation as follows:

Manitoba: Seeding and plowing were progressing well until rain interfered, and about 15 to 20 per cent of the wheat and from 5 to 10 per cent. of other grains has been seeded. Fall rye is looking fair; but there are reports of a small acreage of this crop being winter killed. A large acreage of grasses and clovers is expected to be seeded.

Saskatchewan: With the soil in excellent condition for the reception of seed, early resumption is expected. The warm weather during the early part of April brought premature germination to many weeds which plowing and cultivation will to a large degree eradicate. To date approximately 5 per cent. of wheat has been seeded. A larger acreage is expected in all grains except flax.

Good in Alberta.

Alberta: General conditions for crops throughout the province are exceptionally good. Wheat seeding is from 10 to 15 per cent. accomplished in southern and central sections and 5 per cent. in the north. Very little oats and barley is yet in the ground, although there are prospects of a larger acreage of the latter commodities than last year.

Land operations are reported to be progressing favorably along the Edmonton, Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway. It is estimated that the acreage to be put under crop will be increased about 15 per cent. Abundant moisture promises to promote early germination.

British Columbia conditions generally are very favorable for seeding and planting operations. The apple trees are coming into blossom; the extent of the winter damage to the fruit crop will not be determined until about the middle of June, although the early varieties do not appear to be suffering from the effects of the frost.

HOSTS TO FARMERS.

Midland Kiwanis Club Entertained Township Men.

MIDLAND, Ont., April 28.—The Kiwanis club held a successful farmers' night at their club rooms last night when over 100 were present. Many of the leading farmers of the district, including reeves and deputy-reeves of the townships being in attendance. Mr. W. B. Roadhouse(deputy minister of agriculture of the province and Mr. D. H. Stonehouse of Milk and Cream Producers Association of Ontario, and also president of National Diary Congress of Canada, were the principal speakers. Mayor Maclean of Orillia, was also one of the speakers. The addresses were practical and were enthusiastically received by the large gathering. The meeting was a success from every standpoint.

HIS LIBERTY BRIEF.

Jail Breaker Re-arrested at His Home.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 28—Clarence Maggett, reported escaped from the Ontario Reformatory at Burwash where he was serving an indefinite term for house-breaking and theft, enjoyed but brief liberty. He was rearrested Sunday night by the police at the home of his parents here and is now in jail awaiting the arrival of an officer from Burwash.

Radio Flashes

CLEVELAND, April 28.—Proof of the lightning speed of radio was demonstrated at the Cleveland Auditorium, here, during an organ recital broadcast by William Metcalf, famous blind organist and composer, through Station WTAM.

While the voice of the singer went into the microphone at the auditorium, through the WTAM aerial six miles away and back to a receiving set in the auditorium, Metcalf sat at the console there accompaning the singer and listening to her voice by radio.

The time it took the singer's voice or the organ notes to speed to the WTAM transmitting room and back was so slight that no human ear could detect it.

A steel curtain separated Metcalf and Mrs. Carl Rupp, soprano, as she sang her husband's song, "Lovely Lady," and Metcalf played it on the organ. Metcalf was at the console beneath the auditorium floor at the front of the stage. Mrs. Rupp was on the stage, 60 feet from him, unseen and unheard.

Mrs. Rupp heard the organ note as she sang. But Metcalf, aviator's helmet on his head with earphones set into it, heard her and his organ only through reception from WTAM.

This is a regular procedure at the Public Auditorium WTAM organ recitals. By listening to his music through a regular receiver, instead of directly, the organist is able to tell just how his music is being broadcast.

Previous to this practice, it was found that although an organ sounded well in the auditorium it would not reproduce well when broadcast through the air. To correct this fault, the organist now shuts himself entirely from the notes of the organ, by steel curtain and helmet, and hears his rendition just as his listeners do.

LOW-COST TRIP TO PACIFIC COAST.

A captivating four-weeks tour of Western Canada and the Pacific Coast, with a trip through the United States on the return journey, is being planned for Canadian teachers and their friends this summer.

Those who take advantage of this trip will see the grandest scenery on the continent—the Buffalo herd at Wainwright; Jasper National Park; with its unsurpassed mountain scenery; Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies; the totem poles of Kitwanga, and the mystic beauty of the Skeena River.

At Prince Rupert the party transfers from train to boat for the glorious water trip of 750 miles through the sheltered Scenic Seas of the North Pacific Coast to Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

On the return trip, five wonderful days will be spent touring Yellowstone National Park by motor, with a trip to Salt Lake City, and three days at Rocky Mountain National Park, Colorado. Then it's Denver, Clear Creek Canyon, Idaho Springs, and Lookout Mountain before heading for Chicago and Toronto.

The tour leaves Toronto, July 9th, and you cannot afford to miss it. Full information, fares, etc., can be secured with illustrated booklet from A. E. Bryson, 44 Silverthorn Ave., Toronto; Martin Kerr, 4 Beulah Ave., Hamilton, or any Canadian National Railways agent. 25-28

BIG PROGRAMME DRAWN UP BY SEYMOUR FAIR DIRECTORS FOR VICTORIA DAY CELEBRATION

Races, Lacrosse, Tug-of-war and Other Sports Will Be Provided.

MEYERS CUP.

Entries For Lacrosse Tournament For Cup Are Already Coming In.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 28—A meeting of the directors of the Seymour Agricultural Society was held in the Public Library last night when further arrangements were made in preparation for the celebration which will be held at the Fair Grounds under the auspices of the society on Victoria Day. The directors present were: President, John Locke, Secretary J. Nelson Stone, Henry Watters, William H. Locke, T. J. Horkins, W. A. Wynne, George Van Volkenburg, Garnet Hendry, Alex Hurne, W. J. Abernethy, A. J. Meyers, Dr. E. L. O'Hara and E. A. McCook.

The Meyers Cup

A deputation made up of lacrosse players who propose to organize a team this year was present and asked for information as to the terms on which the Meyers trophy is to be played for. This is a handsome silver cup donated by Mayor Meyers, to be competed for at the Victoria Day celebration held each year by the Society, the cup to become the permanent property of the team winning it three years in succession. The Society offers as a second prize a sweater to every member of the team that are the runners up.

The competition for this cup is open to every lacrosse team in the district b ut so far the prospects are that only Hastings, Campbellford and Ha'elock will take part. It was decided last night to ask Peterboro to send a team, so that two games may be played, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon. Jack Nesbitt one of the best of famous local lacrosse team of former days, will act as coach for the locals. The boys were assured by the directors that they would be given all possible support and were encouraged to do their best to keep the Meyers trophy at home.

No Change of Date

It was reported that the date for the Campbellford Fall Fair this year conflicts with those of Tweed and Wooler but on motion of Directors Horkins and Watters it was resolved that no change be made.

The Tug of War.

It had already been decided that there should be a tug of war between teams from Menie and Percy, the prize to be a pair of overalls to every member of the winning aggregation. On motion of Directors Hume and Walters, it was decided that a second prize of $10 cash be given, and that the competition be opened to every team that cared to enter.

It was felt that Campbellford should have a tug of war team, and on motion of Director Walters and Hume, Mayor Myers and Secretary Stone be a committee to organize one, Mr. Hume being assured that this would probably mean that his own district (Menie) would lose the championship.

No Farmers Race.

On the motion of Mayor Meyers the farmers' race was eliminated, as there would be some difficulty in defining eligible entries and the $60 set aside for the event will be added to the purses offered for the other two races. This will make the purses $150 for the free-for-all and $125 for the 2.30 trot or pace.

To Engage the Band.

Mayor Meyers, Secretary Stone, and Directors Horkins and Abernethy were appointed a committee to arrange with the Northumberland Regiment Band to furnish a musical programme.

President Locke will make an appeal to the public through the newspapers to support the society in its attempt to provide the people with a first-class entertainment on a holiday.

The Campbellford Town Council, on motion of Director Hume and Horkin, was tendered a vote of thanks for the liberal grant of $300 made to the society.

Director McCook reported that Dr. O. J. Reid, veterinary inspector for this district had stated that all the cattle barn at the Fair Grounds needed to make it a safe place in which to house tested herds, was a cleaning up and a coat of whitewash. District Representative Smith of Brighton, will loan the society the large tent used at school fairs, and grain and roots will be exhibited in this, leaving more space available in the main building.

A Popular Judge.

George H. Kingsley, the wellknown hotelkeeper of Cobourg, whose only relaxation is sporting events, with a preference for horse racing, and who is regarded as one of the best starting judges in the district, will officiate in that capacity here. Mr. Kingsley however, draws the line at acting as umpire for the tug of war.

RAILWAY AMALGAMATION UNDER PUBLIC CONTROL, ONLY PLAN

after the most careful consideration, and therefore approved the appointment of a tariff board. He said this board should have upon it a preponderance of independent men. He opposed the British preference, saying that if a protective tariff was right, it should be applied equally everywhere. If a Canadian industry was ruined, it did not make it any more bearable to that industry to know that ruin had come from Great Britain. If the leader of the Opposition cared to move a resolution for the abolition of the British preference, he would support it, Mr. Euler said.

Amalgamate Railways.

The member for North Waterloo expressed appreciation of what had been accomplished by Sir Henry Thornton in the welding of a number of independent railways into one great system. No matter what progress was made, however, the fact still remained that this system was a debtor to the Government to the amount of $560,000,000 and that the tax on the Canadian people for interest was very heavy.

Mr. Euler advocated the amalgamation of the two Canadian railways which would result, he said, in railway operation in Canada showing a surplus of fifty millions a year instead of a deficit of the same amount. He reviewed the financial history of the railways which go to make up the national road, and stated that the over-capitalization of the Canadian National Railways was the result of the extravagance of governments and promoters in bygone days. It was not properly chargeable to the present operation of the road. The capitalization should be reduced to approximately the same figure as it would have been if the national road had been organized under private ownership. He was willing to admit that the Government debt would not be reduced thereby, but in fairness to the management of the national roads, and to give them a definite objective at which to aim in their operation, the road should be relieved of the unfair burden of the piled up debts of previous ownership.

Economies Possible.

Many questions were directed at Mr. Euler. He said he did not favor placing all the railways of Canada under one private ownership; rather the people of the Dominion should be given the benefit of the economies which would result from amalgamation. He estimated that these economies would total one hundred million a year. Asked to say how he arrived at this figure, Mr. Euler said that it was perfectly obvious that there was duplication and waste everything, the two roads having duplicate stations, duplicate lines, duplicate trains, and duplicate expenses of all kind. Those most responsible for the operation of both the big railways, had openly admitted that tremendous economies could be effected through amalgamation. Sir Henry Thornton had said that a dividend to C.P.R. shareholders and all the fixed charges of the Canadian National could be paid out of these economies, and Mr. Euler felt sure that nobody in Canada seriously doubted that this was so.

Controlled By State.

The railroads would, said Mr. Euler, be combined under public ownership. He felt that in view of the growing popular interest in this question, it became the duty of the Government to make an investigation to ascertain whether or not the statement of estimated savings was founded on fact. He was inclined to believe that the shareholders of the C.P.C. might consent to such an amalgamation. The stockholders could be given securities in the National Railway, and drew their dividends as at present. The actual amalgamation should cost nothing. The service to the public should not necessarily become less efficient if competition was done away with. Nothing, however, as Sir Henry Thornton had said, would give the impression which had been created by some newspapers, that he was in favor of the C.P.R. assuming the control of the National Railways. It was unthinkable that any private company should secure as great a monopoly as the National Railway.

The Shaughnessy plan was a most excellent proposal for the C.P.R. Under it, the Canadian Pacific Company would keen out of the amalgamation its steamships, hotels, lands, express and mining interests. The C.P.R. shareholders would be guaranteed dividends forever. Mr. Euler estimated that the annual loss to the country under such a scheme, would be fifty-five million dollars.

Although stated Mr. Euler, our Canadian National Railways had a deficit during the past year of fifty-two million dollars, we are "actually three million dollars better off than we would have been under the Shaughnessy plan, and we still have our railways. The proposal to amalgamate under C.P.R. ownership should not be considered at all."

No Private Monopoly.

The Canadian people did not desire a monopoly of railways in Canada under any private company. "If we must have a monopoly, it must be a public one. We are not going to place ourselves at the mercy of a private railway." He believed that the people of Canada would destroy any Government that would attempt to hand over our railways to the C.P.R., and would "wipe out any candidates for the monopoly."

Three schemes presented themselves, stated Mr. Euler. The first was to continue as we were, and run our railways in as close co-operation as possible with the C.P.R., saving where we could, and as two individual systems. The second was to combine under C.P.R. ownership which he opposed, and the third was to combine Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways under a great public ownership. Referring to the last mentioned suggestion for a public ownership, Mr. Euler stated "that, in my opinion, is the proper solution."

His first attempt in that line was at the Warkworth Fair last year when the contest between the Menie and Percy teams resulted in a dispute which left the result undecided.

EXPECT HOT FIGHT IN ST. CATHARINES

Twenty-three Men Nominated For Nine Seats in the Council—Two for Mayor.

ST. CATHARINES, April 28. — With two candidates for Mayor in the field and 23 nominated for nine aldermanic seats, there is every indication that the new election ordered as a result of the recent municipal inquiry, will be a spirited one on Monday next. Mayor Smith and Joseph Hodgins are both in the field for mayor.

TREASURER HAS RESIGNED POST

Simon Windsor Quits Job After Twenty-five Years' Service.

APSLEY, April 28.—Mr. Simon Windsor, who has been treasurer of the township of Burleigh and Anstruther for the past five years, resigned his position last week. A special meeting of the Council was held on Saturday evening when his resignation was accepted on motion of Councillors Coones and Tucker, and Mrs. Stanley Windsor, clerk of the township, was appointed in his stead pro tem on motion of Councillors Coones and Downing. This appointment will likely be made permanent as there is little material to choose from in the matter of eligibles for this important and responsible position, the remuneration for which, some say, is utterly inadequate.

Farewell Visit.

Members of the A.Y.P.A. on Thursday evening paid a surprise visit to Mr. and Mrs. Norman James, who are leaving this week for Dunsford, where Mr. James will resume his position of cheesemaker at the factory there. A pleasant evening was spent which concluded after a speech by Mr. Spence voicing the regrets of the members at the removal of the family from the village, with the singing of "For Auld Lang Syne."

The Rev. J. W. Ogden and family are spending a couple of weeks at Montreal visiting their son.

Mr. Sam Carr conducted service in the Methodist church on Sunday evening.

Moving Pictures.

A motion picture show was given on Friday evening at the Lasswade Community Club, which was well attended. Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. McKee very kindly provided refreshments, which were much appreciated.

Many Duckings.

Most of the green hands on the drive down Eel's Creek have taken impromptu duckings, escaping with nothing more than a wetting. Phil Willis had a narrow escape from death, being swept under the dam known as White's Dam.

FRANKFORD LAD MAY LOSE EYE

Lit Match to Look Into Gasoline Tank of an Automobile.

FRANKFORD, April 28. — A Frankford lad had a narrow escape on Friday at 5 p.m. Three or four boys were playing catch in the rear of Mr. C. A. Wood's residence. The ball rolled under a large touring car stored in a shed nearby. After several vain attempts to move the car up a few feet one of the boys, Frank Wood, removed the cap of the gasoline tank and lighted a match. An explosion followed, badly burning his face and head. The sight of one eye may be destroyed.

It is thought that only a small quantity of gas was in the tank, or a far more serious accident would have occurred.

UNITED CHURCH FIRST SERVICE AT GARDEN HILL

Fulfilment of Dream of Years Said Rev. H. A. Bunt, of Canton.

TO EXTEND CALL.

Sell Methodist Church Property and Improve the Presbyterian For Congregation.

MILLBROOK, April 27 — "We see today the fulfilment of a dream, which had its origin many years back, that the union of these two congregations might one day become an accomplished fact."

This was the opening sentence in the remarks made by Rev. H. A. Bunt, of Canton, at the service held in St. Enoch's Presbyterian church, Garden Hill, on Sunday afternoon. The occasion was a memorable one since it marked the first union service of the local Presbyterian and Methodist congregations, and the speaker was listened to with close attention as he traced briefly the various steps taken leading up to the making one of the Methodist churches of the Canton circuit and the Presbyterian church at Garden Hill—a union which will be formally consummated after June 10th but which had its actual beginning last Sunday.

Rev. G. S. Gervan extended a hearty welcome to the members from the Methodist church who, for the first time, were worshipping with their friends of the Presbyterian belief as a united congregation, and a part of the great United Church of Canada which will come into being in June of this year.

Will Call Pastor

No minister for this union charge has yet been decided upon. A committee, representative of the two congregations, will meet in the near future and a call will be extended. A communion service for the united congregations will also be arranged for at an early date.

"We want you to feel that this church, and its members, are no longer of the Presbyterian denomination, as you are no longer Methodists, but both belong to the United Church congregation. We welcome you to every department of the church life and work—the Sunday School, the choir, the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary—they are yours as much as ours."

Sell Methodist Church

A sale of the Methodist church and property will be effected and the money used to thoroughly renovate and improve the Presbyterian church, and build a closed-in shed to replace the old ones now in use. St. Enoch's contributing building and property as its share toward the United Church arrangement.

Associated with Mr. Gervan on the pulpit platform were, Rev. H. A. Bunt, of the Canton circuit, Rev. W. A. Bremner, and Rev. E. Forbes Stillman, of Cobourg. The two latter have been associated as pastors of the United Church at Cobourg for some weeks, and both in their remarks emphasized the fact that the Divine blessing, in marked degree, has rested upon the work since its inception in that town.

The large congregation on Sunday particularly enjoyed the special musical numbers which included a quartette, "Somebody's praying for you," by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston, and Rev. G. S. and Mrs. Gervan, and a duet, "Ever Near," by Mr. and Mrs. Johnston. Miss Gussie Clarry presided at the pipe organ.

Rev. Mr. Bunt read the scripture lesson from Acts 11:19 to 30, "The Church at Antioch, and the New Name," forming a most appropriate subject for the occasion. Rev. Mr. Stillman led in the opening prayer. Mr. Stillman also spoke briefly previous to the sermon by Rev. Mr. Bremner. "I am glad to have the privilege of sharing with you the honor of this services. We are not going alone. oGd is leading us in this union movement, and I predict for you a larger way, and a wider horizon in heart and life, as a result of the action which sees you a united charge from this day forward."

Commission to Preach

Rev. Mr. Bremner took as his text the Master's last command, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," pointing out that Christ's commission to the Christian church is still unfulfilled, and the task still unfinished. "As members of the body of Christ, and of the great United Church, you are privileged to have a share in carrying out this command which has never been repealed.

In a very interesting, and instructive manner the speaker outlined briefly the forces which will be available once the union is accomplished. There will be 9,233 congregations, 5,000 ministers, and 782,264 members in the United Church, with 683,270 Sunday School scholars enrolled, constituting a potential force of tremendous significance for the task the Master assigned. The resources also include 78,332 Sunday School teachers, and the fact that last year four million dollars was contributed by the uniting churches for the work of the Kingdom.

Challenge of the West

The magnitude of the task was clearly point out, with special reference to the increase in population west of the Great Lakes in the last fifty years. "Ontario has its needy congregations, too. There are children in New Ontario, fourteen and fifteen years of age, who have never looked into the face of a minister, and have never been at a church service. The United Church, which was born in a missionary spirit, and in a missionary meeting, is the greatest step toward removing this reproach that has ever been taken. With divided forces the church was not able to face her task."

The foregin mission fields will profit also by the union in Canada. "A new word, 'retrenchment,' has crept in the language of the church lately. It was noticed about the beginning of the war. The reason is not far to seek, for although the givings have increased forty-one per cent. the cost of carrying on has shown an increase of seventy-five per cent, but with a union of men and means, and inspired with the Master's spirit, greater things may be attempted and achieved."

The police admitted that it was the boldest hold up ever perpetrated in that part of the city.

As the robbers broke through the door of the cashier's compartment, with drawn pistols, Miss Laura Recesi (the telephone operator) fell to the floor in a faint. Men Who Go Down to the Sea in Ships

Captain J. Roberts of the S.S. Homeric, whose failure to rescue any from the sinking Japanese freighter, Rai Fuku Maru, was criticized by many of his passengers

In this photo, the greatest picture ever made of a sea tragedy, is shown, as seen from the decks of the S.S. Homeric, the last throes of the Japanese freighter, Rai Fuku Maru, as she was engulfed by the raging seas off Nova Scotia, carrying to the depths with her, her officers and crew. Passengers and crew of the Homeric lined the rails helplessly, the women with tears streaming down their cheeks, as they watched the doomed men on the sinking ship wave their arms in frantic appeal for the aid that could not be given.

KEEPING THEIR MEMORY GREEN.

The Young People's Club of Keene is to be congratulated upon its decision to beautify and take care of the plot of ground on which is situated the village's memorial to the memory of her sons who gave up their lives in the World War.

All too often such memorials are neglected.

Their erection is made possible through the grateful assistance of the public generally, they are unveiled with fitting ceremonies—and then in many cases forgotten.

The result is that in too many places in Ontario the war memorial is surrounded by weeds and unkempt grass, neglected, forlorn, crying out to the world that public gratitude to the war heroes lasted just long enough to erect a monument—and no longer.

The community's tribute to the unreturning brave should be a veritable "Garden of the Unforgotten," tenderly cared for and kept eve-beautiful so that every passerby may know that men who die for their country are ever held in grateful and loving memory.

The Keene Young People's Club has taken upon itself a splendid duty, and it should have the support of the community in which it is located.

Some such organization should be at work in every centre where a war memorial has been erected.

VON HINDENBURG'S TRIUMPH.

The alarming significance of the election of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg as President of the German Republic cannot be overstressed.

It is the most dangerous menace to the peace of the world that has eventuated since the signing of the Treaty of Versailles.

The German Republicans are crushed; the Monarchists, with the arch-junker, Von Hindenburg, at their head, are in the saddle.

And they were put there by the votes of a majority of the German electors, 85 per cent. of whom exercised their franchise.

Had the accession of the Field Marshal been accomplished by a coup d'etate, engineered by force of arms, the consequences would have been serious enough.

The present situation is infinitely worse because it serves to show that the German people themselves want the old order back.

If the world, if, especially France, always faced with the German menace, reads in the triumph of Von Hindenburg the proof that in their hearts the people of Germany are still demanding revenge, the German voters have only themselves to blame.

They surely could not expect a different construction to be put upon the election as the head of a supposedly democratic Republic of the ex-Kaiser's chief lieutenant, the commander-in-chief of all his armies in the Great War, and an intense Monarchist.

Militarism, not democracy, holds the reins again in Germany.

TONIGHT'S POWER MEETING.

Full of interest and productive of much useful information upon a subject in which every Peterboro citizen is more or less directly concerned should be the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce tonight when Mr. R. R. Hall, K.C., will discuss the local power situation, and Mr. Robert Hicks will present the viewpoint of the Utilities Commission.

The meeting being an open one and a cordial invitation having been extended to citizens generally, the attendance should be commensurate with the vital nature of the topic to be discussed.

Mr. Hall has for years been in close touch with power matters in this district, and has studied the question from all angles, having therefore a wealth of information on the situation that he will promulgate tonight for the benefit of his fellow-citizens.

His message will be an important one.

Peterboro has long been known as the Electric City.

Are we fully entitled to that label?

Mr. Hall's address may perhaps deal with that phase of the situation, as well with many other points of much interest.

Chairman Hicks will present the official viewpoint as visualized by the Utilities Commission, and altogether the programme should be of an unusually attractive and informative nature, such as all citizens concerned in Peterboro's progress and welfare will be glad to hear.

THE DIPHTHERIA CAMPAIGN.

So important in its bearing upon the health of the community and in the protection it will give against one of the most serious diseases that threaten all the city's children is the campaign being conducted by Dr. A. W. McPherson, School Health Officer, against diphtheria that the Examiner offers no apology for again calling the attention of parents to this question.

The testing of school children to ascertain whether or not they are susceptible to diphtheria and the imnunization of those who give a positive reaction to the test by administering toxin anti-toxin is a simple but effective programme that can be carried out without any disturbance to the school schedule or any injurious reaction so far as the health of the children is concerned.

The theory of prevention applies with even greater force to health matters than it does in other fields.

It is cheaper to prevent fires than to extinguish them.

It is not only cheaper but safer to prevent epidemics than to curb them after they have developed.

The use of modern methods in dealing with diphtheria can be extended with the co-operation of the parents to make the entire school population of Peterboro imnune from the disease.

The authorities are ready to take the necessary steps, and parents are urged to give their consent in order that the imnunization can be made as widespread as possible.

HAD A GUN.

There was another killing in the "ward" last evening, another body in the morgue to be inspected by another coroner's jury, another prisoner facing a charge of murder—and another revolver in the possession of the police, says the Hamilton Spectator. And most important of all, from the viewpoint of the public, is the weapon with which the crime was committed. It may be brought out at the prisoner's trial that he was provoked to fire the fatal shot by an attack upon his crippled wife—or that he shot in self-defense. But what was he doing with the revolver in his pocket? Had there been no revolver there would have been no murder. The bad blood between these two men would have doubtless led to a brawl and a police court case, but the gun, within reach when angry passion gained the ascendency, in the twinkling of an eye turned a quarrel into a killing. Where did the slayer, Corich, get the revolver? How many more revolvers are there in the foreign district? Enough to stock an arsenal? There always seems to be one conveniently at hand when there is a quarrel. It is a physical impossibility, of course, for the police to search every house in the foreign colony, but there would be no need for such search if the regulations governing the sale and possession of firearms were tightened and rigidly enforced. If, when the man Corich decided to acquire a revolver, he had found it impossible to buy one, he would not be in jail today awaiting trial for his life—and the victim would not be reposing upon a slab in the public morgue.

CAN POLICEMEN STRIKE?

The Coderre judgment forbidding the City Council or the Executive Committee to take steps to disband the Montreal Police Union will create a sense of uneasiness throughout the city. Those who are fair enough and indefatigable enough to read the judgment before forming a conclusion will be very likely to agree that the learned judge has rightly interpreted the law. If it were merely a legal question, then there would probably be nothing more to say.

But what will be said is—Mr. Justice Coderre being right—that we have here another case in which "the law is a hass."

The layman, with his direct way of thinking, will have no difficulty in seeing what should—indeed, what must—be done. He will not have the smallest objection to the police and the firemen—for these twin defenders of public safety are, in this matter, on the same footing—forming benevolent or business or fraternal organizations among themselves. Indeed, such organizations would improve their esprit de corps furnish the men with a properand effective channel for ventilating their grievances, create a valuable nexus between the civic authorities and these vitally important civic services, and generally benefit everybody concerned.

If the men wanted, for any reason, to call these organizations "Unions," there could be no legitimate objection. What the relation of these poli and firemen unions should be with other unions, is a matter for consideration and sympathetic compromise. Goodwill on both sides could probably dispel all misunderstanding.

* * * *

But there is one thing that the police and the firemen cannot be allowed to do.

They cannot be allowed to "strike."

An army might as well talk of "striking" on the field of battle.

These men constitute, indeed, the standing army of society. They are constantly on guard, day and night, against the two greatest enemies to public safety—Crime and Fire. They no more dare relax their vigilance a moment than the men in the front trenches during the late war dare forget that the Germans were just a few yards away.

The criminal is the civic "German," ever invading the territory of the peaceful citizen. He is an unsleeping enemy who must be watched with at least equal vigilance. Fire is another incalculable foe which strikes in the night or at high noon when least expected. No family is for a moment secure against it. Only the fearless firemen, watching ever in their stations, with the antennae of alarm spread all through the city, can keep in check this most dreaded of the destructive forces of nature.

The question is not one of "union men" against the critics of the union system. The stoutest union man who ever lived would be just as badly hit as any of us if his home burned down while the firemen were "out on strike." He would be just as deeply injured if a burglar entered that home, and, incidentally, shot his wife or son, at a time when this brutal criminal could plunge into crime with impunity because the police were "out on strike."

On this issue, trades unionists as well as employers are just citizens; and we all have a common interest in keeping our sentinels on the watch-towers and our guardians on the public streets.

* * * *

Just whether a union would be a union, without the right to strike, is an attractive subject for academic discussion. We have noticed no readiness on the part of industrial unions to surrender this traditional weapon. But the ordinary worker is in an entirely different position from the policeman, the fireman or the soldier. His "strike" usually injures society to some extent; but it does not open the floodgates to wild anarchy and devastating destruction.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The goose step doesn't seem to be as abhorrent to the Geman people as outsiders were led to believe.

The election of Von Hindenburg, to say the least, cannot be regarded as a contribution to the tranquility of the world.

May 1st is generally known as moving day, but a lot of people seem to think things will not begin to move until May 15th when the 4.4 beer goes on sale.

The Budget debate, despite poor attendance figures, will continue to hold the boards at the House of Commons this week.

The announcement that Baron Byng of Vimy may remain for a second term as Governor-General of Canada will be received joyfully throughout the Dominion. The leader of the Canadian forces at Vimy has won the affection of Canadians generally.

Apparently temperance organizations are going to have a hard time to find grocers to boycott. The 4.4 permits are not in demand among the provision men.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO April 27—Supplies of heavy export cattle for today's market were heavier than expected and considerably in excess of immediate requirements. About 400 cattle were billed through. About 600 will be required out of the market, and of these about 400 were sent over the scales by noon, leaving about 200 to fill the quota required for this week. About 1,200 export cattle were shipped in. This left a rather heavy offering of butcher cattle still to be disposed of. Trade at the opening was a little slow, buyers generally being disposed to hold back a little, or at least taking plenty of time to look them over.

Prices generally held about steady, with a slightly easier feeling for medium qualities. Choice heavy export steers were quoted steady from $7.75 to $8.25. One special load extra fancy quality was reported sold at $8.60. Export store cattle were steady at from $6.50 to $7.50.

Choice butcher steers and heifers were selling steady from $7.50 to $7.75, a few extra choice picked at $8. Choice baby beeves from $8 to $10.

There was a strong and active demand for choice fat butcher cows at firm prices from $5.50 to $6.50.

Calf trade again slow and draggy, with a wide range of prices from $6.50 to $11 for a few tops.

Hog market weak and 25c lower at $12 f.o.b. for today's deliveries. Packers bidding 25c lower for today's loadings.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 27.—The foreign enquiry for Canadian grain here today was fair, but it was principally asking exporters to continue making offers and therefore the volume of actual business was small, there being only odd sales of oats for May shipment and the market on the whole was quiet. In sympathy with the lower prices ruling for oats in the Winnipeg market, spot values for cash oats were reduced one cent per bushel.

Potatoes Weaker.

A weaker feeling prevailed in the barket for potatoes and prices scored another decline of 10 to 15 cents per bag owing to the continued liberal offerings and the somewhat limited demand.

There were no new developments in the local egg situation. The demand for car lots being limited owing to the fact that Toronto packers and dealers are paying higher prices for such for storing purposes than local houses in most most cases are disposed to pay, and in consequence of which, the receipts here are smaller than were at this period last year. A good trade continues to be done in a wholesale jobbing way and prices were steady. The receipts were 1,739 cases, as compared with 2,529 for the same day last week, and 2,636 for the corresponding day a year ago.

Butter Firm.

The receipts of butter today were 434 packages, as compared with 1,083 for the same day last week, and 1,699 for the corresponding day a year ago. A firm feeling continues to prevail in the market and especially so for the top grades of creamery as it is claimed by some in the trade that supplies of such are now in small compass. Owing to the month drawing to a close the demand from local buyers was limited and the volume of business was small.

The receipts of cheese were 849 boxes, as against 473 for the same day last week, and 172 for the corresponding day a year ago.

In sympathy with the lower prices that ruled in the country at the close of last week an easier feeling prevailed in the local market and sales of Western No. 1 white and colored fodder made cheese were made at 18 1-2 cents per lb., and No. 2 grades at 17 1-2 cents per lb. There was some enquiry from over the cable for supplies, and a little new business was done.

Beans sold at $2.70 per bushel.

WINNIPEG LIVESTOCK

WINNIPEG, April 27.—Arrival, 1,300 cattle and calves; 1,825 hogs; 11 sheep and lambs.

Trading was brisk and prices firm on the cattle market today. Butcher females continued to find a ready outlet and realized strong prices. There was a good demand for weighty bulls suitable for export which were quoted from $3.75 to $4.25. The calf market was a trifle weaker and the choice types registering from $10 to $11.

The hog market was unsettled and weaker, with thick smooths $11.25. The sheep and lamb market was an inactive affair.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 27.—Despite a bigger decrease of the United States visible supply than was expected, wheat underwent a material setback in price today. Heavy rains in the southwest and a dearth of export business together with a sharp break in quotations at Liverpool were largely responsible. The wheat market here closed unsettled, 1 1-2 to 2 cents lower; May $1.44 1-2 to $1.44 3-4, and July $1.35 3-4 to $1.36, with corn 1 3-4 to 2 3-8 down; oats 1 3-8 to 1 3-4 cents off, and provisions showing 10 to 20 cents decline.

EGG MARKET

OTTAWA, April 27.—The egg market during the past week has ruled very firm and in a great many instances prices have held steady and unchanged. Ontario country shippers report paying extras 27, firsts 25, seconds 21 and making sales extras 32, firsts 30, seconds 25, in new cases f.o.b.

Toronto — Jobbing, extras 32, firsts 31, seconds 27 to 28.

Montreal—Extras 34, firsts 31, seconds 29.

Manitoba—Dealers quoting, delivered, extras 26, firsts 25, seconds 20.

STERLING RATES

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

"You didn't know I was a regular cook, did you?" Dick grinned.

"I certainly did not!" Gloria laughed. "But isn't it nice for me that I married one. . . . Let's see what you've got ready for me, chef!"

Dick set the tray down on the bedside table. On it was a plate of sugary rolls that Maggie had baked the day before, a silver dish filled with butter balls, and the steaming coffee.

"I made the coffee," Dick said, "and believe me, it's some brew . . . strong enough to float an egg!"

"Where did you ever learn to make coffee?" Glory idly asked. As a matter of fact, she didn't care where Dick had learned. The great thing was that he had made it!

"On camping trips when I was a kid," answered Dick. He put his arm around his wife and drew her down into his lap.

"I can broil bacon and fish and fry potatoes, too," he said proudly. "Honestly, Glory, cooking isn't hard work. . . . I wish you'd try it. I'd love to see you in a white apron fussing around the kitchen. . . ."

Instantly Glory's good humor vanished.

"Oh, I don't doubt that you would!" she cried. "You'd love to see my flying around with a mop and a scrubbing brush, too! You'd be crazy about seeing me with my nails broken and my hair flying and my face haggard like Lola Hough's, wouldn't you? . . . Well, you never will, Mr. Man! Because I'll never be a slave for you or anybody else! . . . And a new maid comes into this house today or I walk out of it! See?"

She jumped up from Dick's knees. She threw herself face-downward on her bed, and burst into angry tears.

"Now don't start that hysterical stuff!" Dick pleaded. There was fear in his voice . . . a man's fear of a woman's tears.

"I didn't say you couldn't have a housemaid, sweetkins," he went on gently. "If it takes every cent I have you shall have one . . . but I guess every man dreams of seeing his wife doing little jobs around the home he's made for her. . . . What's marriage, anyway, but the joy of a man and a woman building a nest for the children they hope to have?"

* * *

She leaned back and let her brilliant eyes rest in his.

"Is that what marriage means to you, Rikky-Tikky-Tavy?" she asked. "Doesn't it mean me? . . . Doesn't it mean love and thrills, too, to you . . . just a little bit?"

She took his head between her hands and kissed him on his forehead. Dick held her close.

"You know you're the only thing to me," he said solemnly. "You know you hold my whole life in the palm of one of your hands. . . . And it's because I do love you that I want this house to be a home for both of us . . . and after awhile, for our babies."

. . . Glory said nothing at all.

* * *

The telephone rang.

Gloria jumped up to answer it.

"Yes?" she said.

Stanley Wayburn's voice came to her over the wire!

"Well . . . how's my Russet this morning?" he said.

"Very well," Glory answered stiffly. She knew that Dick was listening.

"Have you forgiven me for playing around with your friend, Myra?" Stan asked. "Or are you still green-eyed about it?"

Gloria knew that she couldn't answer that question, with Dick right there in the room. And she could feel an uncomfortable flush spreading itself over her face and neck. . . . At that moment she wished Stanley Wayburn on the other side of the world!

"When am I going to see you again?" Stan's voice asked after a long interval.

Still Gloria made no answer. She actually shook with fright.

Then Stan apparently had a flash of understanding.

". . . What's the matter? Why can't you talk? Hubby still at home?" he asked.

"Yes!" Glory could answer that.

She heard the click of a receiver in her ear. Wayburn had hung up.

* * *

"Who was that on the telephone?" Dick asked carelessly.

He did not look at her. He stood by the chiffonier, lighting a cigaret.

"One . . . of . . . my friends," Gloria stammered.

"Who?"

"Does it matter?" Glory asked.

"It matters very much . . . to me," Dick said. He came toward her.

"It was Wayburn, wasn't it?" he asked.

Gloria threw back her head defiantly.

"Well, what if it was?" she asked. "What's so terribly wrong about his calling me up to thank me for the good time he had here last night? That's only common politeness . . . for him to do that!"

She poured herself a second cup of Dick's coffee. Then she took a cigaret from the package he had left lying on the tray. She put it daintily between her lips.

"Give me a light, Dick," Glory said.

He came toward her. But instead of lighting her cigaret he pulled it from her mouth. Violently he threw it into the waste basket.

"How long have you had that rotten habit?" he asked.

"Why, I've always smoked . . . that is, for the last two or three years," Glory said. "Didn't you know that?"

Dick shook his head. He smiled. But there was a sort of misery in his eyes.

"I guess there are a lot of things about you that I don't know," he said. "For instance, I never knew you had a taste for liquor . . . until last night."

* * *

Glory laughed. Her face was as merry as a small girl's.

"Yes, yes, go on," she begged. "Tell me all the other black traits of character that I've kept hidden from you for so long! . . . When I drink it's a crime. When you drink it's a foolish act . . . When I smoke it's a disgrace! . . . When you smoke it 'rests your nerves!' . . . But I can't see where it's any worse for women to do those things than for men!"

The more she talked the angrier Glory became. She stamped her small foot.

"Here you are shut up in an office all day alone with that secretary of yours . . . your Miss Briggs! How do I know that you're not making love to her right along? . . . But if an old friend like Stan Wayburn happens to call me up and talk to me for five minutes, you throw a fit about it!" she stormed. "I tell you I won't be treated this way . . . as if I were a bad child! I'll do just as I please! And it will take more than you to stop me!"

"Whew!" Dick said. "You're quite some little spit-fire, Glory!"

He pulled out his watch.

"It's nearly noon," he said. "I think I'd better be starting for the office. . . . We aren't getting anywhere with this argument, anyway . . ."

He started for the door. Then he wheeled suddenly and came back into the sunny room. From under her lashes Glory watched him.

"If I asked you something, would you tell me the truth?" Dick asked.

Glory pondered.

"I might," she said. She picked up a nail file and began to "point" her beautifully kept nails.

"Well, then," Dick began, "why did you never mention this fellow Wayburn, in all the months before we were married?"

Glory shrugged her lace-covered shoulders.

"Why should I have mentioned that I knew him?" she asked. "Is he so very important?"

* * *

How could she tell Dick the truth about Stan Wayburn?

How could she tell him that there had been a time when she would gladly have married Stan if he had asked her to . . . but that he had not asked her?

. . . How could she tell him that there had been a night a year ago when she had cried for hours because Stan had left town without saying goodby to her?

. . . That there had been weeks and weeks afterward when she had tried not even to think about Stan . . . much less talk about him?

. . . And that even now when she was a married woman, he had only to look into her eyes to make her forget everyone else in the world . . . even Dick himself?

. . . How could she tell Dick that? She just couldn't.

. . . And anyway, it was none of his business!

* * *

Dick's voice broke in upon her thought.

"You said last night that you'd had a sort of childish love affair with Wayburn," he said. "Did you ever care for him as much as you do for me?"

Glory drew a long breath.

"No wonder you're a good lawyer, Dick!" she said. "You can think up more questions to ask a person than anybody else in the world, I'll bet! . . . Yes, I did think a lot of Stan once upon a time . . . but it wasn't in the way I care for you."

She got up and walked over to the window. She did not want Dick to see her face. She felt as if all her thoughts were written on it for him to read.

"Just how much do you care for me?" His voice was bitter.

"You ought to know . . . I married you, didn't I?" Glory asked.

She turned from the window and sat on the arm of Dick's chair. She laid her cheek on his dark hair. She was just a bit afraid of Dick when he was in a suspicious mood like this. . . .

Then she kissed him. That, she knew, was the surest way to remove all adoubt of her from his mind!

* * *

"You see, Dick," Glory went on, "I knew, from the minute I met you, that you were going to be my husband. And in the same way I always knew that Stanley Wayburn and I were never going to be more than playmates. . . . A girl always sizes men up that way!"

"And just how long were you and Wayburn . . . playmates?" Dick asked.

"Oh, for two or three months last winter . . . just before I met you," the girl answered. "Look here, Dick, I don't cross-question you about every girl you ever were in love with before you married me! What are you trying to get at, asking me all these questions?"

Glory laughed nervously.

"I'll tell you what I'm trying to get at!" he said. "I'm trying to get at the truth about this Wayburn! . . . the man I saw leaving. . . . He was Wayburn, wasn't he? You lied to me when you said he was a decorator from the furniture store, didn't you?"

WOMAN THROWN FROM HER CAR

Mrs. Nadoo Leaned Against Door While Turning Corner.

LOOSE FASTENING.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 27.—Mrs. Charles H. Nadoo, accompanied by her daughter, who was driving, was out in an auto on Saturday evening. When the car turned off Bridge Street North on Front, Mrs. Nadoo was thrown from her seat and seriously injured. It seems that she leaned against the door, which happened to be unfastened, as the car made the turn. A. G. Watson and C. S. Wallace picked up the injured lady, who was unconscious, and placed her in the car, Mr. Watson accompanying her to a physician. Before the party reached the latter's office, Mrs. Nadoo had recovered consciousness. No bones were broken, but the lady was badly shaken; her face was cut and her right foot painfully hurt.

King's Loyal Subjects.

A. H. McKeel was one of the speakers at an entertainment that was held Friday evening at Alderville to raise money for a monument in memory of the Indians from that reservation who lost their lives in the Great War. It was found that the Town Hall was too small to accommodate the crowd so that the affair was held in the church. Over $100 was realized, the receipts including $58 which was received for an autograph quilt.

The Alderville reservation is eight miles long by two wide, and for this small territory the record is 11 men killed in the war. Five have since died from the effects of gas.

Two propositions for a memorial are being considered. One is a concrete monument, 24 feet high, with a clock on top; the other, a 100-foot shaft without a clock. The location is ideal as it is proposed to erect it at a point where the five roads leading into the village converge. So that no matter from which direction a visitor approaches the place, he is sure to see the memorial.

One of the speakers was J. J. Hayden of Cobourg, who has taken such an active interest in the returned men since the war closed.

Real Estate Transfers.

T. L. Diamond reports the following real estate transactions:—John L. Hay, who recently purchased what is known as the W. J. Armstrong residence on Rear Street from A. L. Reindeau, has disposed of it to George Rounciman, one of the leading farmers in Percy Township. The new owner intends to retire next fall and will reside here.

W. West, buttermaker, Stirling, has purchased from Thomas Cranston the creamery in that village, and is now in possession of the plant.

Another Conflict in Dates.

The ladies of St. Mary's Parish will give an At Home in the auditorium of the High School on Monday evening, May 11. Copl. Hyland has a dance in the Regent Theatre advertised for the same evening.

Personal.

Earl Williams, of Toronto, formerly proprietor of the stage line between Brighton and Campbellford, spent the week-end with friends here.

Grettir Algarsson, young British Columbian, is organizing an expedition to start from the Mersey in May on an expedition to the north pole. The last stage of the trip will be by plane.

CITY YOUTH MADE WAY TO ARIZONA

Left University For Summer and Worked His Passage South.

Some weeks ago readers of the Star Weekly were interested in the story of a Toronto young man who journeyed across Asia with very little money in his pocket, succeeding by working his way from place to place by employment on sailing vessels and steamers and purloining rides on railways and walking where necessary.

Readers were amazed at the perseverance and endurance of the traveller to accomplish so great a feat.

It may be news to many in Peterborough to know of a young traveller from this city who has equal perseverance and endurance to undertake a task somewhat similar in a smaller way—one who set out to reach a job already obtained thousands of miles away. The local young man was a student in university, studying metallurgy, and never having had much financial resources, undertook to walk to Arizona from Toronto.

Stops were made at different points, as, for instance, Detroit, where employment was obtained, which supplied some money to pay for food and lodging until another job was found to replenish the purse, always pushing on toward the objective and remaining only long enough in each place to obtain sufficient means to use until the next resting-place was reached. Many lifts were obtained in vehicles of different kinds, and in due time Arizona was reached, where the young man entered on his duties, putting to practical use the theoretical knowledge gained in university.

The experience was of the best and the return journey was made for the fall and winter term, via Vancouver, from which point the journey to Toronto was made as employed help in the dining-car service of one of the great transcontinental railways.

The city has had a visit from this Peterborough youth, and again the traveller set out to foot it from Toronto in the morning, arriving in the evening of the same day.

Of course, offers of a ride were made and accepted by commercial and passenger vehicles, stops being made at different towns along the route to visit friends and renew acquaintances.

The young man is through his studies, ready to commence his life work, and has accepted a position in an Eastern State on the shore of the Pacific.

It is said he travelled 25,000 miles last year, walking when necessary and riding where possible to do so, by working his passage; and who can value the experience and estimate the foundation laid on which this young man will build?

In this age of ride, even short distances, the thought of this young man stirs up admiration for his resourcefulness and courage, and one believes he will go far in his chosen profession.

Men of this type are rare, and citizens of Peterborough will watch with keen interest the career of one of her citizens who is bound to be a leader wherever he may reside.

NICKEL OUTPUT UP.

Increase of 7,218,478 Pounds In Canada Last Year.

OTTAWA, April 28 (By Canadian Press) — An increase of 7,218,478 pounds in the production in Canada of Nickel, taken as the nickel content of the nickel-copper matter produced, is shown for 1924, as compared with the previous year. Last year's production totalled 69,276,313 pounds; while the total amount produced, in 1923, was 62,057,835 pounds. The nickel recovered from the treatment of the silver-cobalt ores amounted to 269,937 pounds.

An increase of 167,534 tons in the quantity of ore treated by the smelters during 1924, as compared with 1923, also occurred, according to figures prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The amount treated last year was 1,307,694 tons, as against 1,140,160 tons in 1923.

PINNED UNDER CAR DIED IN HOSPITAL

Rawdon Township Man's Injuries Saturday Resulted Fatally.

STIRLING, April 27. — Another proof that it is not advisable to drive a motor car too rapidly unless the driver is sure that everything is in working order and that he can control his car if necessary, was given on Saturday afternoon when a young man named Blakley who was helper at the Stirling cheese factory on the fourth line of Rawdon, was suddenly thrown into the ditch at the roadside and the car on top of him.

He was going east on the fourth line, when near Mr. Wm. Drewry's, when he seemed to have lost control of his car as it veered from one side of the road to the other, and became a wreck with him underneath it. Some women after great difficulty released him.

Dr. Carleton was called, and it was found the young man was seriously injured, a collar bone broken, and several ribs torn loose. The Belleville ambulance was called and the injured man removed to the Belleville Hospital, where he passed away on Sunday morning. His home was near Eldorado, Madoc Township.

Injured by Fall.

Mrs. McCaughen, Senior, fell on the walk last week and suffered from a broken hip as the result. She was removed to the Belleville hospital, and is in a serious condition.

Mrs. J. D. McGee is in Belleville hospital, having had an operation on her left foot.

Business Transfers.

Mr. Lindenfield has sold his grocery and butcher business to Mr. Sandercock who took possession on Saturday.

Mr. Thomas Cranston has disposed of his creamery to Mr. William West, who purchased a ½ interest in the business some time ago and has been operating it since.

R. H. Williams visited her mother at Lansdowne last week.

Is Your National Distribution A SKELETON?

"WHAT good would national advertising be to me?" enquired a manufacturer. "I have national distribution of my product. Dealers all over Canada are stocking it."

And he turned to his files and showed us dealers in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Vancouver and other cities and towns who were stocking his product.

"You see, for yourself, I don't need national advertising," said he, in a tone of finality mingled with pride.

"Yes, you have national distribution," we admitted. "But it's like a skeleton. It needs some meat on its bones."

"What do you mean, like a skeleton?" he replied, politely curious, but with a flicker of anger in his eyes.

"Just this. Your files show you have twenty dealers in Halifax when you should have at least one hundred and forty. Seventy-two in Montreal instead of a thousand. Sixty-three in Toronto instead of seven hundred. And so on all over the country."

"What do you know about MY business? How do you know how many dealers we should have?"

"Well, we are familiar with merchandising conditions all over Canada. We know that products like yours should have a thick as well as a wide distribution if the business is to be profitable.

"Furthermore," we continued, "we would hazard the guess that dealers are not ordering as frequently as you would like them to do, and that they are carrying stocks of only a quarter-dozen or half-dozen packages, whereas if the public demand were brisk, they would be carrying a dozen to three dozen packages always in stock."

"You're pretty good guessers!"

"Now, if you had thick distribution in place of thin—if you had larger size stocks in the stores—if dealers had rapid turnovers of a fast selling product instead of occasional calls for a sleepy product—your present skeleton of national distribution would have some meat on its bones. It would be no longer a skeleton. It would be a healthy, well-filled out animal."

"I'll admit that a lot you've said is true. And I suppose you infer that National Advertising would put meat on the skeleton's bones?"

"Not by itself. But it would do so, provided the advertising were well-planned, well-prepared and well carried out, and if you yourself and your sales force did all in your power to help the advertising make good. The combined result would be more vigor, more life, more lusty health in your business."

"But it would cost a lot of money to advertise all over Canada. And we are not making much money today."

"You could start with your advertising in one section of the country and add other sections as the increase in business warranted," we suggested.

"Well," said he, "I have never considered Advertising seriously before. I'll confess you startled me with your "Skeleton" and showed me a new angle to my business. But how would you go about advertising my line?"

"We would go through your factory and see how your product is made. We would test it and compare with competitors. Consult users of it. Talk to dealers and discover their attitude towards it and rival lines. Talk to you and your officers about your territories and selling plans. After we became familiar with your product and your business, we would then offer our recommendations for advertising."

"That sounds reasonable. You can go ahead on that basis. If you present what looks like a real proposition, I'll promise you I'll give it serious consideration."

* * * * * * * *

We are now working out our recommendations for this manufacturer, and hope that soon another new and successful advertiser will be added to our list of clients.

If you, too, have a "skeleton" that needs meat on its bones, we would welcome the opportunity of helping to put some on.

CHANCE RULES BANK'S CHOICE

Lots Are Drawn by Principle That is Infallibly Pure Chance.

BALLS ARE USED

Ordinarily a bank is the last place where the element of luck is viewed with any sort of tolerance, but there is one occasion in a large bank when it considered necessary. That is in the trust corporation department, where portions of stock or bond issues must be retired at certain intervals in such manner as to be fair to all the holders. The one fair way to choose the necessary shares or bonds is to draw them by lot. For this, Henry Pirtle of the Cleveland Trust Company has devised an entirely new method, and the bank's statistician has demonstrated that this new system is based entirely on the elements of chance, "thus making it the fairest system yet devised."

The method most widely used by trust companies is the laborious method of designing large numbers of small cardboard, metal or celluloid discs with numbers to represent each bond or share. In cases of large issues hundreds of thousands of these discs must be prepared, checked over and over again for accuracy and then placed in some receptacle, subjected to agitation and drawn tediously one at a time—somewhat after the fashion of the army draft.

The new Cleveland Trust method, according to Colonel Ayres, is the employment of a principle of pure chance originally devised by Sir Francis Galton, the noted English statistician. It is a highly involved principle. Colonel Ayres explains: "Each number is the resultant of a number of chances, all of which are equal, and all of which are equally probable."

In application the bank's method was this: A set of small steel balls resembling ball bearings, each engraved with a numeral from 0 to 9 were placed in a bowl, the bottom of which followed the contour of a globe. The drawing may be in blocks of one or any multiple thereof. Each shareholder was given a number. The number of balls to be drawn and the number of sets to be used to determine the shareholder's number chosen is governed by the number of digits represented by the total of stockholders. In this case the total had four digits, so four of the balls were then drawn, each one being replaced before the next was drawn.

If balls 4, 3, 6, 8 were drawn in that order, shareholder No. 4368 was chosen for the retirement of one block. If balls 0, 0, 2, 3 were drawn shareholder No. 23 had one block retired. If balls 0, 0, 0, 1 were drawn shareholder No. 1 was called for one block.

Voice Of The People

SUPPORTS SISTER.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir: What "Sister" says in your paper about marbles is right. My own big boys have told me that all gambling is learned from marbles and not only gambling but trickery and dishonest dealing of every kind. If there is a thing on earth that ought to be prohibited with big penalties it is marbles. Whiskey begins at a more advanced age and is usually done on purpose. Nothing leads up to it. But with gambling even girls are learning it from marbles. The game now does not appear to be what it used to be. My poor little boy sold all his alleys in one day last week which he had won by betting for enough to go to three shows. Marbles at one end and shows with naked women and men hugging them at the other is playin' hell with our children. —Father.

WHY STOP AT MARBLES?

To the Editor, Peterboro' Examiner.

Dear Sir: The recent letters by "Sister," which have appeared in your columns regarding the evils of marbles should arouse the citizens of Peterboro', if not of the Dominion, to a realization of the terrible state into which our children have fallen. No sooner have we recovered from the shock to our feelings occasioned by the discovery of the terrible depravity of the hitherto respected Mother Goose, than along comes this equally appalling revelation about marbles.

The situation seems to call for immediate and drastic action, if the rising generation are to be saved from becoming a generation of criminals and wasters. Let us have a thorough investigation into all these childish amusements. Who knows what other potential instruments of evil we are permitting our offspring to cherish. What of the seemingly innocent skipping rope, the treasured Teddy Bear, the spinning tops, and all other devices which masquerade under the guise of harmless toys? Are they beyond suspicion?

If not, let us ruthlessly inaugurate a campaign for sumptuary legislation "to stop by force all such fun, if fun it be," as "Sister" so ably puts it.

Then, Mr. Editor, having done this, let us proceed to the logical end and enact legislation prohibiting children entirely, since the world will then be no fit place for a child.

Yours very truly, —Ex Adverso.

AGREES WITH MR. J. H. BURNHAM.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir: The enclosed letter may interest some of your readers, at least I hope so, as it expresses the opinion concerning the moral condition of our young people by one of the leaders in practical work amongst us, Mr. J. J. Kelso, superintendent of the Dependent Children's Department for Ontario. Occasionally I get similar letters from other prominent people in Canada, but as they are usually marked "private," I cannot make their contents known. The abandonment very largely of moral and therefore religious suasion for the very commonplace and crude method of force is really a declaration by our people that they have lost faith in the higher methods and prefer the lower. With this surrender goes all our idealism and at one plunge we fall from the pinnacle of moral strength and greatness into the trend of low and brutal realism. Once we become covered with this the whole of our realm of honour, love, unselfishness, chivalry, strength of moral character goes with it, and we awake to find ourselves the victims of our own stupidity, fancying as some do that the spiritual is capable of being treated by physical methods. We are now in Ontario in all walks of life reaping the harvest of our self-will and stupidity.

Coercion never yet did the work of Christianity and culture. Mr. Kelso knows this and sees it every day, but what can such men do in the face of our ignorance?

—J. H. Burnham.

Dear Mr. Burnham:-

Have been greatly interested in the various letter you have written from time to time to the newspapers on Moral Issues—one this morning on the danger of relying upon law instead of developing strong character in our young people—is particularly appropriate at the present time.

You speak with the voice of a Prophet and although you will, no doubt, often be criticized, one is to remember that it is only the people who do nothing who escape criticism.

Yours sincerely,

—J. J. Kelso.

MARBLES FOR ALL.

Dear Editor: I see "Sister's" reply to my letter states, "if I had seen what she has regarding marbles I would alter my opinion." Well, Sister, I guess I have seen more of this old world and the people in it than you ever dreamed of. This Canada of ours is called a Land of Liberty. But is it? There is a certain class of people in this country who are trying to take this liberty from us, and seem unaware of the fact that they are indirectly causing unemployment. Here is what I mean. Some "kill joys" get together and form some kind of a Christian association and prohibit some kind of a thing or other. The article prohibited puts thousands of people out of work. (And people are employed even to make marbles.) Unemployment makes some people desperate and sometimes tempts people to steal, so in my opinion, 'Sister's' idea makes criminals and not saves them.

I firmly believe that religion to-day as preached by some people is a business pure and simple. Some people who are supposed to be good do not care whether you go to Heaven or the other place so long as they make something out of it. The real good Christian helps the "lame dog over the style," and says nothing about it. Well, "Sister," and "Mary Jane," I guess you know that the game of marbles is as old as the hills, and I have seen it played in many countries, but your letters are the first I ever saw published on the foolish article of "Prohibition of Marbles," and I am sure I will not be able to join any such society.

Finally, referring to Christianity and religion, I think the only difference between the heathens in foreign countries and some of the people in Canada is that the heathens in foreign countries worship idols of gold and some of the people in Canada worship it in a bank.

—Finally, Brother.

DAYLIGHT SAVING.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir: Daylight saving means one more hour per day for our young lads and young girls to ruin themselves playing for marbles to get money to go to the movies, for cones for scent and every other extravagance. The young first get that sweet taste of having plenty of money for all their wishes and the only way they can get it while young is by gambling with MARBLES and I want you to put that word in big letters, Mr. Editor. Young children go fairly wild in their passion for getting money. The taste comes first from playing marbles and going with their child friends to shows and buying funnies. In all the world put together liquor, dress, dishonesty, stealing and so forth, there is nothing half so bad as marbles. Our boys and girls grow up with the love of money which is the root of all evil in them and with no respect for God or man. They try to gamble even in Sunday School. They love the movies and candies and cones and guns and scent and colored handkerchiefs and big knives and rings and no one minds the children making the money for them by playing marbles and they get to love gambling. It ruins them. We must have prohibition of gambling and marbles first afterwards. About ten out of a hundred gamble with cards but all children gamble with marbles so you can see what we are steering them for. That is my opinion about daylight saving. —Mother.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—I have read with interest your comment on parking space in the downtown section of the city, and believe, with you, a way must be found to designate No Parking and Parking spaces to avoid annoyance and confusion to visitors and our citizens. I think your suggestion of the local branch of the Ontario Automobile Association dealing with the matter is good, and no doubt a solution of the problem will be found. When thinking of means of marking non-parking places, or parking 10 minutes allowed, the metal electric light and trolley wire standards might be used, as they are conveniently spaced and on both sides of the street.

These standards could be stencilled at proper height with letters under each other of good size, which would always be discernible night or day as against the marking on pavement, which would become discolored and effaced, besides, in wet weather, would scarcely be seen. Use these posts, mark a red band at certain height above or below the reading to indicate fire hydrants, and take the matter up now to be ready for the large number of visitors we have to see on the streets of our city, and also help our own citizens to observe the parking by-law.—Yours, etc.

MOTORIST.

TO MRS. GORDON WRIGHT.

To the Editor of The Exmainer.

Sir: Bolshevism has begun its war against the world. The Balkans are the bones thrown to the tiger. What is Bolshevism? The denial of private rights and the substitution therefor of the general benefit of the people. That is also the claim of Prohibition. All prohibitionists are Bolshevists. The occident and the Orient are meeting on that one great point. If we can't see that what can we see? And what hope is there?

—J. H. Burnham.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir,—In the fall of 1923, and again during 1924, many citizens expressed themselves in favor of an Old Boy and Girl Reunion. The time seemed propitious for the reason it is about 100 years ago since this community was baptized with the name of "Peterborough."

When speaking of the latter, it was stated by the Mayor and Council it would be well to postpone the proposed centenary celebrations until 1926 to give those who are looking after a suitable War Memorial for Peterborough and district, a chance to have the work done, and the dedication ceremony part of our Reunion.

Since then I have heard nothing further, and think it wise to make inquiry to ascertain what progress is being made with the Memorial (a contract, I understand, has been given to a distinguished artist), to give assurance to the citizens the memorial will be in place and the centennial will go on next year.

Now is the time to move, and as it is essential the Memorial must be in position before our Old Home Week can be held, I would like to know if any assurance can be given the work will be completed, and when.—Yours, etc.

HINDENBURG IS GERMANY'S IDOL

The Victory Over Russians Raised Him From Obscurity to Highest Eminence.

Field Marshall Paul von Hindenburg became the great idol of the German people in 1914 by his victories over the Russians at Tannenburg and the Masurian Lakes, and has been their idol without interruption ever since. He was the only great war figure who did not fall into disfavor after the war.

Hindenburg kept out of politics and lived the life of a retired soldier, but every time he appeared in public in Germany, he threw everybody else in eclipse. Big popular demonstrations have greeted him on every trip he has made from his home.

In the thousands of accounts that have been printed concerning Hindenburg two opposing views have been taken of him. One is that he is the incarnation of wisdom, strength and disinterestedness. The other is that he is a stuffed figure who was placed on a pedestal by luck and has been kept there by luck.

It used to be universally thought that Hindenburg was a great automation and that the engineer inside who worked him was Ludendorff. But since the separation of the two men Ludendorff's enterprises have all been lamentable failures, while Hindenburg has been all that he ever was, indicating that perhaps Hindenburg was more than a figurehead in the Hindenburg-Ludendorff partnership during the war.

Called a Wotan and a Thor

In addition to his prestige as a soldier, there are many qualities in Hindenburg which have made their appeal to the German people. In the first place, he looks like one of the old Teutonic gods. The Kaiser called him a modern Wotan. Others have called him a Thor. With the massive stern and dignified features of a Norse god, he has united the habits and ways of an ordinary German. For birthday presents they sent him from all parts of German warehouses of sausages, sauerkraut and barrels of beer.

He is loyal to the old ways, loyal to the old religion and personally loyal to the House of Hohenzollern, athough politically he has declared against a return of a monarchy.

Had he died at the age of 66 years, Hindenburg would have been unknown to-day. At that age he was just one of many Generals who had been retired on account of age. His career had apparnetly come to an end in 1907, when he was placed on the retired list with the rank of General and with the nickname of the "Old Man of the Lakes," because he was supposed to be a little cracked on the subject of the Masurian Lakes. He tried to make everybody believe that the war with Russia, when it came, would be fought out amid the marshes of East Prussia, and he spent most of his leisure in the army, and after his retirement working out schemes on paper for trapping the invading Russians.

When the war came, he had been retired seven years and had not been listed for recall. But in September, to save France, Russia threw Rennnenkamf and Samsonoff into East Prussia with half-prepared armies. There was a panic throughout Germany. Hindenburg was remembered as the great authority on the terrain where the fight to save Gemany must be fought. He was put in command of the Army of the East and Ludendorff was made his Quartermaster.

Between them they tangled up the Russians in the intricate marsh country, enveloped them and destroyed the invading force in a great and clean-cut victory, which was not equaled again during the war.

Whether Ludendorff or Hindenburg deserves the credit for accomplishing this feat is still uncertain. In his book after the war Hindenburg described his relations with Ludendorff as those of "a happy marriage," and said that he gave always "free scope to the intellectual powers, the almost superhuman capacity for work" of Ludendorff; while Ludendorff wrote that from Tannenburg to the armistice Hindenburg "always agreed with my views and approved my draft orders."

Called to Lead Germany's Armies.

But the German people chose for their idol the man who looked like a Norse god. On the eastern front blow after blow was struck with success in the name of Hindenburg, while the Germans were held to a draw on the west front. The prestige of Hindenburg became so towering that in 1915 he superseded Falkenhayn as the Commander-in-Chief of the whole military power of Germany, with none over him but the Kaiser. His first big decision, according to Hindenburg's own account in his reminiscenses, was to break off the battle of Verdun.

"The battle there," he said, "exhausted our forces like an open wound. Moreover, it was obvious that in any case the enterprise had become hopeless and that for us to preserve with it would cost us greater losses than those we were able to inflict on the enemy. Our forward zone was at all points exposed to the flanking fire of superior hostile artillery."

On military grounds Hindenburg said that he would have withdrawn his troops from the ground gained, but the home situation made it impossible to take such a step without creating consternation.

Hindenburg favored the remorseless U-boat warfare and wrote of it, as follows, in "Out of My Life":

"In view of the fateful conclusion of the war, it has been suggested that the declaration of the unrestricted U-boat campaign was a last desperate throw. That judgment is intended to be a condemnation of our decision on political, military and even ethical grounds. It ignores the fact that practically all critical decisions, certainly not military decisions only, always involve a heavy risk. Indeed, the greatness of an action is mainly to be appreciated and measured by the question whether much was at stake.

"When a commander on the battle field throws in his last reserves he is only doing what his country rightly demands of him. He accepts full responsibility and finds the courage to take the last decisive step without which victory cannot be won. A commander who cannot or will not stake his last resources for the sake of victory is committing a crime toward his own people. If his blow fails, he is certain to have the curses and scorn of the weaklings and cowards upon his head!

"That is always the fate of soldiers. To act on absolutely safe calculations or win laurels which are not dependent on courage to take responsibility, is to banish the very elements of greatness."

Originated New Style Trenches.

In 1917 Hindenburg declared that the old policy of holding the front lines in strength which had cost so heavily during allied bombardments on the Somme must be abandoned as well as the system of huge underground shelters in the front lines, which had enabled Nivelle to make heavy captures of prisoners. Instead he wanted a "fortified zone," a "strongly knotted mesh" of positions.

This was the origin of the new style of trenches, characterized by pillboxes and lightly held front lines with an interwoven system farther back which caused the Allies to give the name "Hindenburg line" to what the Germans called the "Siegfried line," the new positions to which the German centre in France fell back in February, 1917. Hindenburg, who had said he would never shorten his line, had shortened it; and it was said that it was by his personal order that the country abandoned was so completely devastated.

His policy worked well as was shown by the German attack in March, 1918, and it had shown that Hindenburg was not afraid to change his mind.

MADE FOR FORDS EXCLUSIVELY

It is the proved economy oil for Fords

—and there are eight definite reasons

ECONOMY of operation is certainly one of the deciding points in favor of the Ford car. Too often, however, the Ford owner forgets that economy of operation depends not on the car, but upon himself.

For example, take lubrication. Experts now agree that this is the primary factor in the economical operation of any car. Yet how often do Ford owners confuse cheapness with economy when buying oil!

Why this is the economy oil for Fords.

Veedol Forzol was created for just one purpose—to solve the unique problem of the Ford lubrication system.

The Ford engine and transmission are combined in one housing. Both must be lubricated by the same oil.

Quality motor oil may lubricate the Ford motor, but it cannot be expected to lubricate the Ford transmission properly, because it is not made for that job. Its use results in jerky chatter when you start, stop and reverse. Chatter wears out the transmission bands, causes destructive vibration and leads to overhauling and repairs.

Only an oil made to do both Ford lubrication jobs can give you economical Ford lubrication. That Veedol Forzol has this ability is proved by the results it gives.

The Eight Economies of Veedol Forzol

1—10 to 25% gasoline saving.
2—10 to 25% saving in oil.
3—10 to 25% less carbon.
4—Eliminates costly chatter.
5—Resists heat and friction.
6—Increased ability to coast.
7—Resists fuel dilution.
8—Reduces repair bills.

Any dealer displaying the orange and black Veedol Forzol sign and many authorized Ford agents will drain your crankcase and refill it with Veedol Forzol.

KNOX CHURCH WELCOMES FIRST PASTOR ON VISIT AND MAKES PRESENTATION OF A MEMENTO

BUILT IT THEMSELVES.

Rev. Mr. Keith Helped Men of Church in Work and Designed Pulpit.

On Monday evening members of the congregation of Knox Presbyterian Church, gathered in the body of the building for the purpose of good fellowship and to welcome back again, Rev. Dr. H. J. Keith, who has returned for a short visit.

The Rev. M. C. Mackinnon, M.A., B.D., acted as chairman and in a few brief words stated the object of the meeting. Miss Marion McCannon and Mr. Charles Peaker, organist, played a piano duet, giving evidence of a remarkable technique and understanding of music, which was highly appreciated.

Joseph Morrison was then called, and during his short address he presented a resume of the history of Knox church, including the difficulties overcome during its construction.

Mr. Morrison paid a splendid tribute to the untiring work performed by Doctor Keith, who labored with the men of the congregation and bent every energy to the cause of completing the edifice. The church was, Mr. Morrison said, a living monument commemorating stupendous effort and unconquerable determination.

Built with Own Hands.

"Many modern churches," he continued, "are built by disinterested contractors, but we built our church with our own hands."

It was Dr. Keith who first saw the need of a new building and it was he who first conceived the possibility of undertaking the task. At first the congregation was small, there being not many more than a hundred members, but the numbers quickly increased and the revenue grew in accordance so that Knox Church as it stands to-day was made possible.

H. J. McCannon related some of his personal intimate experiences in connection with the early work of the church, and more particularly with Dr. Keith. He quoted one instance which illustrated the motive power behind the project. He said that one of the members declared he would stand on the job with a shot gun rather than see it fail.

Following Mr. McCannon's address there was a piano duet played by Mrs. Mackinnon and Mr. Peaker.

Dr. Keith, A. Morrison and Mr. Mulligan were then called forward, and Mr. Morrison read the following illuminated address:

To the Reverend Henry J. Keith, M.A., B.D., Doctor of Divinity:

Dear Mr. Keith,—Your friends in Knox church, Peterborough, take this opportunity to address you a word of greeting in view of the high honour recently conferred upon you. We feel that in conferring upon you the degree of Doctor of Divinity our church, through her college, has but bestowed fitting recognition of your merit and in so doing has honoured herself.

We rejoice greatly in your distinction and recall with pride your ministry among us as our first first minister when you led us in the erection of our present beautiful church building, a lasting monument to your inspiring vision and untiring zeal.

It is a privilege and pleasure to have you with us again and we assure you that the passing years only deepen our affection for you and Mrs. Keith and family.

Please accept this small gift as a memento of the occasion and a tangible indication of our pride in your being honoured. There is companionship and helpfulness in a staff. So we would go with you in spirit as you go your rounds of service and we would hope to help you spiritually in all your ministry as you remember the fruitful years of your ministry at Knox.

Very cordially yours,
M. C. Mackinnon,
Moderator of Session.
E. Benson,
Clerk of Session.
H. J. McCannan,
Chairman of Board.
J. W. Buyers,
Secretary of Board.

At the conclusion of this address Mr. Mulligan presented Dr. Keith with a beautiful gold-headed cane, which was an expression of happiness on the part of the congregation for the honor recently conferred upon Dr. Keith by the Manitoba University of Winnipeg.

Dr. Keith was noticeably affected but addressed the people, telling of the joy it gave him to be once more with the church he loved.

Mr. Keith detailed instances connected with the erection of the church, praising the splendid co-operation and good will.

"I love the pulpit of Knox Church" Dr. Keith said. "Before it was installed a committee of which I was a member visited a number of churches in search of ideas. In one of the Hamilton churches a pulpit was seen which attracted my attenitonvery much, and I accordingly designed the pulpit of Knox Church as it stands to-day with modifications as we saw fit."

Dr. Keith told the story of a beautiful Irish girl who lived in Antrim County in the Old Land. It was a beautiful story of hope buoyed up by an eternal faith which in the end triumphed over apparently impassable obstacles.

When Dr. Keith concluded his address, Mr. Peaker played Beethoven's "Minuet in G," by special request of the Doctor. Mr. Peaker exhibited a perfect mastery of the organ and held the listeners under the spell of his music. The organ is possessed of remarkable tonal qualities and needs but the master touch to release inspiration and peace.

Immediately following this number all present repaired to the Assembly hall, and performed no less efficiently as trenchmen gathered around the festive board.

Monday evening will live long in the memories of Knox church people.

DEPLORES LACK OF ENTERPRISE

British Speaker Says Unemployed Prefer Idleness to Emigration to Colonies.

EMIGRATION DOWN.

LONDON, April 28 (Canadian Press) — Addressing the annual meeting of a charity organization here yesterday Sir Alfred Hopkinson deplored the fact that when the British Dominions were "crying out for men," and England was overrun with unemployed, emigration had fallen to less than half of the pre-war figures. He said that the outstanding reasons were that younger members of the population did not show the spirit of adventure which was prominent in the men of the past, and that "lazy men here" preferred to live in idleness than undertake hard work which was required for success in the colonies.

Recommendation Came From Fellow Workers

So Says Toronto Man of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. P. M. Raggett suffered with rheumatism and found relief after taking half a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

TORONTO, Ont., April 27.—(Special).—"I am writing to say how wonderful and quick your pills were in arresting and relieving an attack of rheumatism I had a few weeks ago. My occupation, a coal teamster, necessitates me being out late at nights during the severe winter weather. I had an occasion to get on my knees in the snow to put fuel into a basement. Two days later I had to stay at home with rheumatism in both my knees. I was recommended to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, which I did. The first half box gave me relief and all signs of rheumatism have now gone after taking three boxes. I thank you for being able to give me such relief. The recommendation of your Dodd's Kidney Pills came from several other coal teamsters that I work with."

Dodds Kidney Pills act directly and promptly at the seat of the trouble.

MONTREAL, Que., April 28 (By Canadian Press).—Tuberculosis will receive study and demonstration from many angles at the annual meeting of the Canadian Tubercular Association which takes place here May 14, 15 and 16. How widespread is the area to be considered is seen in the official programme, which announced that the 34 papers to be read covers surgery, internal medicine, physiology of respiration, X-ray, district nursing and administration. French and English will be used by the speakers, among whom are many of the most noted in this science on the American continent.

Dr. C. G. Brink, provincial travelling chest diagnostician, will speak on junior Red Cross work in Nova Scotia; the Alberta survey will be spoken to by Dr. Baker; the work of a tubercular dispensary as exemplified by the Rotary Club of Vancouver, B.C., will be detailed by Dr. Rawlings. The early detection and prevention of tuberculosis in the child will be the subject of Dr. J. H. Elliott, of Toronto.

Dr. Rousseau, dean of Laval University, will speak at a luncheon to be given to the delegates, at which addresses of welcome will be given by Mayor Duquette of Montreal, and members of the medical profession of the province. The Archbishop of Montreal, the Hon. L. A. David and Dr. Baldwin will address the delegates at a public evening meeting.

Hon. Narcisse Perodeau, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, will be present at the annual dinner. A special motor trip will be made to Three Rivers and Quebec to visit the Demonstration Centre and Laval University.

Let Tanlac restore your health

If your body is all fagged-out and run-down, if you are losing weight steadily, lack appetite, have no strength or energy—why not let Tanlac help you back to health and strength?

So many millions have been benefited by the Tanlac treatment, so many thousands have written to testify to that effect that it's sheer folly not to make the test.

Tanlac, you know, is a great natural tonic and builder, a compound, after the famous Tanlac formula, of roots, barks and herbs. It purges the blood stream, revitalizes the digestive organs and enables the sickly body to regain its vanished weight.

You don't need to wait long to get results. Tanlac goes right to the seat of trouble. In a day or so you note a vast difference in your condition. You have more appetite, sleep better at night and the color begins to creep back into you washed-out cheeks.

Don't put off taking Tanlac another precious day. Step into the nearest drug store and get a bottle of this world-famed tonic. That's the first important step back to health and vigor.

Tanlac Restored Her Health

"Typhoid fever reduced me to 95 lbs. and left me weak as a rag. Failing to get relief from other sources I tried Tanlac and after 6 bottles had gained 20 lbs. Now I enjoy a fine appetite and feel like a new woman. As a nurse I give Tanlac to all my patients."
Mrs. J. B. Terry, 1101 Park St., Ft. Worth, Tex.

T. F. MATTHEWS EYEWITNESS OF OCEAN TRAGEDY

Former Peterboro Man Says Captain of Homeric Did Everything Possible.

STORM TERRIFIC

Saw Japanese Crew Swept by Huge Waves to Their Death.

TORONTO, April 28.—"I am not given to excusing anybody for trying to get out of a hard situation, but as I saw it, I firmly believe that Captain Roberts, of the Homeric, did everything humanly possible to save the lives of the sailors on the Japanese freighter," was the very definite statement of Mr. T. Frank Matthews, of 138 Warwick road, Saturday, in recounting the sea tragedy off the coast of Nova Scotia, when 38 Japanese lives were lost.

Mr. Matthews returned with his wife from New York, and willingly gave his version of the sinking of the Japanese boat.

"It was a horrible thing to see, and the tragedy of it was that the coming of our boat so close to them raised the hopes of the poor Japs," said Mr. Matthews. "But they died gamely. Their religion, I believe, gives them no fear of death, it is merely a passing to a better existence. At the last, when there was a little group of them clinging to the rail of the listing boat, a great wave came along and swept them all off the deck but one. He remained clinging to the rail, and then, as another wave approached, he saluted us, and was swept away to his death."

Mr. Matthews pays tribute to Capt Roberts' handling of the situation. "Without sacrificing more lives, I do not see how he could have done anything more than he did. I have been across the ocean many times, and have seen some severe storms. This was one of the worst. The seas were running heavily, and it would have been suicide to launch life boats in such a situation. Capt. Roberts might have done it, and had his boats smashed and a few lives lost, and thereby cleared himself of criticism, but he did not take that way out of it. As I saw it, it would have been beyond human power to manage life boats in that sea.

Raised Nearly $5,000.

"As to the criticisms, they were made mostly by a few Americans who were eveidntly looking for something spectacular in the way of an attempt at rescue. And it was noticed that when a subscription list went around to raise some money for the widows and orphans of the drowned seamen the passengers who were most critical were giving the least or nothing at all."

"How much was raised by this fund?"

"Nearly $5,000, I believe," said Mr. Matthews.

He also stated that a written statement exonerating Capt. Roberts from blame for the loss of life was signed by some 137 of the passengers. "Only four or five who were asked to sign it refused to do so," said Mr. Matthews.

Of Had No Effect.

"Capt. Roberts has a good reputation as a seaman. He wears a number of medals. He steamed through the heavy seas and the storm as fast as we could after we got the wireless that the Jap boat was in trouble. When he came up we were on the windward side. I had my glasses and could see the boat laboring in the seas heavily. There were more than a score of men visible on her at that time. The wind kept blowing our boat closer in on her until we were only a short distance off. The men were all in their places with the life boats on the Homeric. But it would have been fatal to launch them. Then Capt. Roberts drew up further and came back down on the lee side of the sinking ship. As soon as he had come up he had started to let out oil with the hope that it would reduce the waves, but so far as I could see it had no effect.

"It was a terrible sight to see those poor fellows on the Jap boat hanging on grimly, and being swept off the deck one by one by the huge waves that swept the boat. It was terrible to see that, to be so close and not be able to rescue them.

Sought to Rescue.

"It was only 23 minutes from the time that the Homeric came up until the freighter sank. The men had all been swept off her before she went down. The Homeric officers were watching for them in the water, but the poor Japanese seamen were no doubt so exhausted by the ordeal they had been through that they had no strength left to keep afloat. I did not see any of them with lifebelts on. Some of them wore oilskins.

"It was not until his officers had reported that there were no signs of life in the water around the boat that Capt. Roberts left the scene."

Mrs. Matthews added that the captain had remained at his post on the bridge for 20 hours thereafter, as the ship was in the vicinity of the dangerous Nantucket Shoals.

"Captain Roberts wears a number of decorations," said Mrs. Matthews, "and among them is one for saving all the lives on an American boat that foundered during the war.

"There were a couple of other steamships that caught the wireless signal and tried, but in vain, to get to the rescue of the Japanese boat," she said.

"We were on the deck at the time, and we had to hang on with both hands to keep our feet," said Mrs. Matthews.

ENTERTAINED FRIENDS.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Parker, of East Emily At Home.

UNIONISTS INVITED TO CHURCH SERVICE

Campbellford Presbyterian Communion Service Next Monday.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 28. — Communion services will be held in St. Andrew's Church next Sunday morning, and at the preparatory services Thursday night, Rev. D. A. Thomson of Hastings will be the preacher. Those wishing to join the church either by certificate or profession of faith can do so by seeing Mr. Thomson before the Thursday evening service.

J. A. Anderson, on behalf of the session of St. Andrew's, sent an invitation to the former members of the church who went out when the congregation voted anti-union and are now worshipping with the Methodists, to take part in the Communion services next Sunday. This invitation was addressed to D. W. Douglas, a former member of the session of St. Andrew's.

NEW ALARM IS BADLY NEEDED

Will Be Much Closer to Fire Station Than St. John's Bell.

INSTALLED SOON

LAKEFIELD, April 28. — The new fire alarm, it is expected, will be installed in the near future on the town hall, and will fill a long felt want in the community. It will be in a central place and adjacent to the fire hall instead of being two blocks away as is the bell of St. John's church which has been used for many years as a fire bell, owing to the courtesy of the rectors and wardens. The bell, rung by inexperienced hands in the excitement which a fire produces in every human being is often put out of business before its work is accomplished, which is inconvenient to say the least. A proper siren will be a valuable asset to the village.

Additions to "Grove."

A considerable addition will be made to "The Grove" school during this season which will enlarge its accomodation which is already taxed to the utmost. The addition will incude a new dining hall, infirmary and dormitories and also enlarged school rooms. To those who recall the modest beginnings of the school, its steady growth in popularity and capacity is most gratifying. The school was established by the late Sparham Sheldrake and was taken over nearly thirty years ago by the present head master, Rev. A. W. Mackenzie.

A. V. Hill is building a new store on Bridge street on the site of his former building. Considerable progress has been made and Mr. Hill expect to open up in a few weeks.

W. H. Peacock has built an extension to the dining room of the Commercial House which will increase his accomodation and improve his premises.

Rev. A. W. Mackenzie was in charge of the morning service in St John's church and R. N. Stuart, Licensed Lay Reader, of Peterborough was in charge in the evening.

Mrs. J. C. Strickland entertained at the tea hour on Saturday in honor of Mrs. C. E. Strickland of Toronto who is in the village.

FIRE THREATENED TO DESTROY MILL

Timbers Near Ruins of Power House Caught Fire.

LAKEFIELD April 28.—The fire alarm aroused the village on Friday morning in the very early hours and the blaze was found to be in the timbers near the ruin of the power house which was wrecked by fire five years ago. The prompt action of the brigade prevented any great amount of damage but Mr. N. A. Morris' planing mill was threatened seriously for some time. The origin of the fire is wrapped in mystery for this section of the water front is not a public thoroughfare and no one could have any legitimate reason for being in that locality.

The duet at the close of the lesson period, "Listen the Saviour is Calling, Come Unto Me and Be Saved," by Miss Hazel Steer and Leslie Challice, was especially helpful and a fitting ending to the lesson.

ADDRESS ON CITIZENSHIP

OMEMEE, April 27.—The following is the address on "Citizenship," given by Mr. J. Widdis to Omemee Young People's League:—

The name "citizen" is of ancient origin, coming to us from the old Roman Republic where it was conferred upon a man with great ceremony. The man was then qualified to exercise the franchise, or right to vote, to seek the confidence of his fellow citizens, to share in the government of the city and strive for its highest offices.

In Canada the term is frequently applied to those who are residents of our cities or other centres, even though they are aliens; but, politically, they must be British subjects and Canadian citizens before they have the right to vote.

We get our supply of new citizens from two sources, namely, immigration, from foreign countries and the growing up of Canadian children. Who is responsible for the training of these new citizens? The immigration agents and the Federal government should see that the foreign-born who enter our country are not ignorant, reckless, immoral or besotted, but that they have a good moral character, and given to peace and order before naturalization papers with the privilege of the franchise are granted them.

Who is responsible for the training of the native-born? First come the home and the parents, with a great responsibility on the mother for an intelligent, public-spirited mother is of necessity the mother of patriotic sons and d ughters. The girls and women of our country should be well read in the public questions of our government.

After the parents and the home, come the school and the teacher, and especially the Piblic School, as a great percentage of our boys and girls never reach our High Schools and Universities. Parents have said to me many a time, Why teach history? Is there any use in it? The longer I teach it the more benefit I see in its teaching. While taking up the life of such leaders as Nelson, Wellington, William Pitt the younger, John Wesley, or W. E. Gladstone, what teacher but delights in dwelling upon and emphasizing their shining examples ofpatriotism, unselfishness, truth-loving and real goodness.

Our Public School readers contain many beautiful selections for reading and literature. These explained, and the thoughts fully brought out with the best parts memorized, have a wonderful effect upon the minds of our future citizens.

Canada needs patriotic men—men who can feel their bosoms throb at mention of their country's name, men whose allegiance is not based on selfishness, whose honesty of soul would scorn promotion's highest seat. If treason were the price, men who will guard her soil with sacred care, and when she sounds the trumpet of alarm, will grasp their swords, rush to the battlefield with martial tread, and, fearless, hurl destruction on her foes.

The name "citizen" implies a great responsibility and if that responsibility is well discharged, it is an honorable title. Let us consider some of the qualities of a good citizen.

First is Integrity. Integrity is the foundation of all that is high in character among mankind. The word is is always asking for men who are not for sale—men who are honest, men who will condemn wrong even in their friends or society, men who are willing to eat what they have earned and wear what they have paid for.

Second is Courage. Nothing that is of real worth can be achieved without courageous work: the timid and hesitating find everything impossible, chiefly because it seems so. If we are engaged in a just cause, we have reason to be resolute and of a courageous heart.

Third is Honesty. Honesty is not only the first step towards greatness, it is greatness itself. Hugh Miller's worthy uncle used to advise him that in all his dealings to give his neighbors good measure, heaped up and running over, and he would not lose by it. Honesty is not only the best policy but it is the keystone of manly and Christian qualities

Fourth is Cheerfulness and Happiness. Over and above every other social quality, cheerfulness and happiness is what the sun is to nature, what the stars are to the night, what God is to the afflicted, is the cheerful person to the home and society. Let us be cheerful, for it is the only happy life. It is the sunshine and not the cloud that makes the flower.

Add to these qualities Religion, and we have a good all-round citizen. Religion helps us to understand our mental and executive abilities, and leads to true self-knowledge and is a great impulse to self-culture. This is exemplified in the life of William Wilberforce, who spent his youth in frivolity, with neither ambition nor enterprise. But while he was member of parliament he became a Christian, and for the first time realized the responsibility of his position, saw that he had talents for a good purpose, and he used his gift of oratory to such good effect that slavery was abolished in the British Empire. Political life in the government of Great Britain gained much in consequence of his religion, influence and usefulness. In the Sunday School lesson yesterday, entitled "Life in the Early Church," we have a fine example of brotherhood, where the early converts sold their property and placed the proceeds at the disposal of all, especially their more unfortunate neighbours. We may not approve of their plan, and may think their method was extreme, but the spirit in which the thing was done is a lesson to us. They believed that Christianity covered the whole of life, that bodily and spiritual needs were linked together.

Then let you and I, in our little sphere of life, see that no one near us is unclothed or unfed or that little children do not suffer from cold and hunger during our severe Canadian winters. Let us also see that right is done in our midst, that we oppose conditions that make life hard for the less fortunate, and that all, either rich or poor, enjoy the rights and privileges of the community.

Rudyard Kipling says:—

If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing their and blaming it on you;
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting, too;
If you can wait, and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or being hated don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good or talk too wise;

If you can dream and not make dreams your master;
If you can think, and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with Triumph and Disaster,
And treat these two impostors just the same;
If you can bear to hear the truth you've spoken,
Twisted by knaves to make a trap for fools,
And watch the things you gave your life to, broken,
And stoop and build them up with worn-out tools;

If you can make one heap of all your winnings
And risk it on one turn of pitch and toss,
And lose and start again at your beginnings
And never breathe a word about your loss;
If you can force your heart and nerve and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone,
And so hold on, when there is nothing in you
Except the Will which says to them: "Hold on!"

If you can talk with crowds and keep your virtue,
Or walk with kings—nor lose the common touch;
If neither foes nor loving friends can hurt you;
If all men count with you but none too much:
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds worth of distance, run:
Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And what is more—you'll be a citizen, my son.

Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

A well known agency estimates that women buy 75 per cent. of all men's clothing.

* * *

Many reasons account for the fact that women are buyers for the home business. Men are, in the main, absorbed in the task of earning an income. Their hours are the same as the stores; in many cases a man's time is too valuable in earning power to be taken up with shopping. Sometimes work takes men great distances from retail stores and the loss of a day or half a day for buying is costly.

Many men do what little shopping they attempt in such a hurried, absent minded fashion that they themselves receive little satisfaction from their results.

For this reason it is vitally important that women thoroughly understand all angles of the family finances. The saving program, the plan for life insurance, and the balance of the spending activities must all be thoroughly understood by the housewife.

In addition to all this, women must study the tastes of their families so that the money spent will bring the best possible results in pleasure and satisfaction, as well as in pocketbook.

Another Gas State.

Wisconsin has joined the ranks of the states exacting a gasoline tax. Its tax of 2 cents a gallon is expected to bring in an annual revenue of $15,000,000.

Half Billion in Tires.

Tire output for 1925 is expected to reach the half billion mark. Production, which was about 100,000 a day in 1924, may reach an average of 125,000 tires daily this year.

Revolving Garage.

London, Eng., expects soon to have a garage with a revolving floor. Thus a car parked on the floor can be brought around to the door by the rotation of the floor.

Horns Muffled.

France requires its auto owners to muffle their horns. This is intended not only for quiet, but for prevention of accidents by scares.

Italians Are Trusted.

Theft insurance in Rome, Italy, doesn't pay. The city averages only ten thefts a year, although it has a population of 750,000.

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

PROHIBITIONISTS MUST ELECT ONLY MEN PLEDGED TO THE O. T. A.

Mrs. Gordon Wright, Dominion President of W.C.T.U., Says Battle Must Be Renewed.

O.T.A. INVALIDATED.

Vote For Prohibitionist Legislators Regardless of Party, She Urged.

A well attended meeting was held in George street church last night, which was addressed by Mrs. Gordon Wright, Dominion president of the W. C. T. U. The meeting was presided over by Thomas Barrie of the local Prohibition Union and was opened by singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," followed by prayer.

Mrs. Wright opened her address by congratulating the people of Peterborough because the majority at the recent plebiscite had been on the dry side. She had, along with others, worked hard before that campaign and when the result was known, had looked forward to a rest. The majority of 34,000 did not mean just that many because of the votes that had been cancelled by improper actions, impersonations, etc., but was the number that could not be killed. When the battle had been won they had decided to forget all party affiliations and stand by Premier Ferguson but almost the next day the idol had fallen. In Ontario there are, said Mrs. Wright, 10,000 members of the W. C. T. U., but they can be counted on to influence from 30,000 to 40,000 votes and can sway elections (applause), and they will see that those elected will support the O. T. A.

Beer a Nauseating Word.

Mrs. Wright said that she had never liked the name beer but since the 4.4 beer had been introduced at a time of physical exhaustion after the fight the name had simply nauseated her. She She quoted a letter written by the Hon. G. H. Ferguson saying that the government would zealously strive to give effect to the people's wish and if they were in favor of the O. T. A. the act would be strengthened. But in spite of all the work and the promises the Act has been so invalidated that the very heart has been torn out. Strengthening the beer is not strengthening the act, said Mrs. Wright, and if the 4.4. beer is not intoxicating why are the youths of Ontario not to be permitted to buy it? The United States Government had conducted experiments and found that one-half of one per cent was intoxicating so that 4.4 must be even more intoxicating. Mrs. Wright would ban all alcoholic beverages, including native wines and would like to try some of the new beer on a rabbit or some other animal to see what effect it would have.

Men representing constituencies that voted for prohibition had voted with the government on the amendments to the act and in future, said Mrs. Wright, the way that the members vote is to be watched and the efforts of the W. C. T. U. will be to secure the election of men who will vote for prohibition regardless of party affiliations. Mr. Ferguson had said what she was humiliated to own was true when he said that the wets (she refused to call them moderationists as he did) stood together and voted together while drys split according to party convictions. The only way to eliminate liquor was to forget party. In this connection she commended the plan of the Peterborough prohibitionists who were getting cards signed, pledging the votes to whichever candidate, regardless of his politics, pledged himself to support the O. T. A. Mr. Ferguson, said Mrs. Wright, didn't know the temper of the people of Ontario and at no distant date there will be real prohibition in Ontario, for God is in his heaven and the heart of Ontario is sound and the day will come (applause).

Moderationists Organize.

The members of the Moderation League have said that the 4.4 beer is the entering edge of the wedge and that Government control will come. They are organizing to carry on the fight and there is no time to be lost if the prohibition forces are to be ready.

TheWorld Prohibition Federation sent a memorial to the League of Nations asking them to investigate the ravages of alcohol as they had the opium trade and if they found it was the cause of economic waste to pronounce against it. A counter memorial had been sent by the trade in Great Britain saying that such an investigation would endanger international amity and human liberty.

The cry of "Liberty," said Mrs. Wright, is sickening. Education is compulsory and interferes with the liberty of the child but who would say that it should be done away with. Sanitation laws are compulsory but no one would support their repeal. The question of liberty is a red herring being dragged across the trail to obscure the issue.

It has been said by a famous physician that in the fight between life and death, beer stabs life in the back, and another says that since prohibition has been the law of the United States, alcoholic pneumonia, one of the worst forms of pneumonia, had almost entirely disappeared.

Enslaves Brightest.

Mr. Ferguson has said that he would eliminate bootlegging and regulate the traffic but Harper's Monthly, which is not reputed as a prohibition paper said in an editorial that after a long and varied experience with attempts to regulate the traffic it was shown that it is incapable of being decent and law-abiding. If the traffic only destroyed fools and degenerates it would not be so bad but more often it enslaves the brightest and best of the country. If it were stamped out depravity would die out, yet the people of Ontario are turning back. The aim of the wets is government control and even before the amendment had become law one firm had received an order for 24 bars from a brewery company which was preparing for the return of the open bar. The cry of all should be, "Our land is in jeopardy," said Mrs. Wright

The liquor trade has said that prohibition is a failure in the United States and that drinking is on the increase, but if that is the fact, said Mrs. Wright, why are they protesting? Increased drinking is what they want. A report made by a board of the Methodist Episcopal Church said that they found that prohibition has stimulated industry and has increased production. It has cr created a greater demand for necessities and luxuries. The saloon has been destroyed and the arrogant tyranny of the beer trade has been overthrown. Mrs. Wright said that she couldn't understand why all tradesmen were not prohibitionists for self-preservation, if for no other reason, as there is money spent in their stores that would otherwise go over the bars. The report says that prohibition has saved the United States $5,000,000,000 every year. The whole world is in debt to the United States for the example they have given. Since prohibition there have been 3,000 fewer cases a year in the juvenile courts of the city of New York as the parents have had more chance to look after their children.

Labor For Prohibition.

The leaders of Labor have spoken in favor of prohibition yet in the face of the report mentioned and of these statements the wets say that Ontario will have prosperity when they get stronger beer. British liberty has been won through prohibitions and the commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," may be read, "Thou shalt not do thy neighbor wrong." The story is becoming more sordid as in the case of the Frontenac breweries which gave free beer to all who came on three certain days, with an especial invitation to the young people.

The Ontario Government has chosen to inflict upon the majority that which they voted against and they must rise in their might. The members of the government are not altogether to blame as they were elected by the people but the people must send pledged men. The government has been weighed in the balance and found wanting (applause), and men will be sent to replace them of a calibre that has never been seen in an Ontario Legislature. Souls are going to be lost if this iniquitous thing is allowed and the safety of the young people (Ontario's greatest asset)is worth any sacrifice. The O. T. A. must be free from taint whether of stronger beer or of native wines.

Solos were rendered by Mrs. Doig, accompanied by J. H. Renwick, and a hearty vote of thanks to the W. C. T. U. for bringing such a speaker to the city was moved by A. B. Cunningham, seconded by Mr. Merrill. On the plat Mrs. M. J. Kerr and Miss M. Nichols. The meeting was closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

IN MURDER BELT.

Mrs. Cecil Long, 39, above, killed Mrs. Ora Pierce, 22, her rival for the love of George Grenther, 26, The killing took place at Plains, Mont. She has been sentenced to from 20 to 45 years for the murder. Four women in nine years have been accused of murder in the district, which has a population of 500.

HIS GIRL WAS LATE.

STRATFORD, April 28.—A man was arrested for loitering around a store here and was suspected of being the burglar who had robbed several store. He finally convinced the police he was waiting for a girl, who had not appeared because she had decided to jilt him.

CANADIAN PRESS PLAYS BIG PART IN DAILY LIFE

Combination of Newspapers for News-gathering Has No Peer.

OWNED BY PAPERS

TORONTO, Ont., April 28 (Canadian Press).—Addressing the annual general meeting of The Canadian Press to-day, the president, E. Norman Smith, who is vice-president of the Ottawa "Journal," said as follows:

Gentlemen of The Canadian Press:

In this my sixth annual address as president of The Canadian Press I am tempted to draw a picture of the striking developments in your organization that have occurred during that period. I refrain because to-day a great many matters have to be brought to your attention and there are a number of reports on the progress of the year that should receive more than passing consideration.

Perhaps I may be permitted to again congratulate you on your absolute freedom from outside entangling obligations or anything that may have that appearance. Although the news services of The Canadian Press were never influenced by the grant of the Dominion government for leased wire gaps, the fact that there was such a grant cropped up unpleasantly every now and again in one way or another. Now that The Canadian Press receives no revenue except from its newspaper members we are realizing that the Dominion government grant was a distinct handicap in at least two ways: (1) The difficulty of overcoming public belief that an organization in receipt of a government grant could be entirely uninfluenced by outside interests, and (2) The effect, sometimes unconscious, upon even the members of The Canadian Press in their attitude and frame of mind toward the organization. It is exhilarating to be able to announce to all and sundry that The Canadian Press is not only owned by the daily newspapers of Canada and by nobody else, but that its news services, political and otherwise, are prepared and distributed solely to suit the general requirements of all the daily newspapers of Canada —and at their own expense.

It is exhilarating to be able to quote such statements as the following made by Mr. McKernon, superintendent of the eastern division of The Associated Press at a Chamber of Commerce dinner in syracuse:

"This great organization, The Canadian Press, receives no government subsidy but stands on its own legs, with the single purpose of serving its members and the reading public faithfully and efficiently."

I have had opportunities for noting in particular the growing respect for The Canadian Press among ministers and members of Parliament and political writers at Ottawa and the increasing recognition of the very important part it plays in the life of the people of Canada. And you gentlemen have probably observed an agreeable appreciation by the public of the worth of The Canadian Press. The Canadian Press credit line on a despatch is a seal of high newspaper ideals.

Wage Dispute.

During the year a most unfortunate dispute over wages arose between your company and the Morse telegraph operators employed by it—or rather with their Union—and a strike resulted. I had helped to negotiate many agreements with various Labor unions including this one and never without a happy outcome. The sudden strike of your Morse telegraph operators, therefore, gave me personally a great deal of anxiety. One had the feeling that perhaps something had been done to bring about, or something had been left undone to avoid, an extreme measure that did violence to the warm relationship that had continuously existed between The Canadian Press executive and its employes and the esprit de corps which we have flattered ourselves existed in the organization. A thorough canvass of the situation at the time failed, however, to reveal any step toward amelioration neglected by the company and a review of the facts now confirms the impression then received. The strike of course caused the members of The Canadian Press a great deal of inconvenience, but they had been kept informed of the negotiations as they progressed and to a man they seemed to realize (1) that the very vital principles of arbitration and sanctity of contract were at stake; and (2) that the management had done everything within reason to avoid a break. The whole staff of The Canadian Press, other than the Morse operators, rose to the occasion. Not one of them gave sparingly of his mental and physical abilities and there was a fine spirit of co-operation among the members. The strike ended after a few days as suddenly as it was called through the Union's acceptance of an Arbitration Board under the Dominion Conciliation Act which it had previously refused. Your management has laid before you full reports on this unfortunate incident but I cannot miss the opportunity of expressing my personal regret at this lamentable episode during my presidency and of voicing my keen appreciation of the services of our loyal employees. The strain upon every member of the staff was very great but they accepted the extra load of labor and responsibility without a murmur. One of those who gave of his best was Mr. F. A. MacDougall, our devoted superintendent of traffic, who passed away last week.

I cannot close my incumbency for over five years of this high office without expressing a warm appreciation of the hearty co-operation and assistance that I have received from every member of the Board of Directors. When last year Mr. Macklin insisted upon retiring from the position of first vice-president, I had the honor of suggesting and the pleasure of seeing created the office of honorary president. Mr. Macklin's acceptance of that position has retained to The Canadian Press the benefit of his good judgment and long experience, and enabled your organization to do honor to one who more than anybody else is entitled to the affectionate cognomen, "Father of The Canadian Press." I have also received much consideration at the hands of our members from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Nor can I leave unsaid my appreciation of the worth of your general manager, Mr. Livesay. Decentralize for convenience as you may the operation of a national public utility such as The Canadian Press there must ever be a definite and unequivocal central control. As president I have been simply an advisor, a liaison officer, so to speak, between the management and the Board of Directors. That was all Mr. Livesay required because I venture to say there is no one with a more thorough grasp of the needs of such an organization as yours or better able to handle satisfactorily as they arise the multitude of varying problems that are presented from day to day. The character of the staff with Mr. Livesay has surrounded himself and the spirit that makes for good service that he has been able to instill into that staff are but an evidence of his excep ional fi ness for the posi ion.

You have a splendid staff, gentlemen, and as they gain experience and as the young men trained inside come forward the possibilities for even better work by The Canadian Press in the future are very bright indeed These men and women are worthy of your utmost consideration.

I fully recognize the honor you have conferred upon me by permitting me for five years to head an institution that has done and is doing so much for the newspapers and people of Canada, and, gentlemen, I thank you.

—E. Norman Smith, President.

GUESTS BREAK LAW.

SASKATOON, April 28.—(Canadian Press).—Unless they are granted the right to sell beer by the glass or the bottle or are promised immunity from police raids, 12 leading hotels in Saskatoon will close their doors to the public.

A delegation of hotel men yesterday waited on the Board of Trade and made this announcement. They also said they would make the same statement to the City Council, in view of their belief that the municipalities had the control of law enforcement.

Hotel proprietors declared that it was impossible for them to operate further unless they were allowed to sell bear either legally or sub rosa. At the present time the guests broke the law in their rooms, smashed furniture, and all they bought from the hotel was a lemon or two.

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

RECEPTION HELD FOR MRS. WRIGHT

Peterborough W.C.T.U. Entertained Dominion President at Tea in Y.W.C.A.

INSPIRING ADDRESS.

A reception by the executive of the W.C.T.U. was held in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association yesterday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. Gordon Wright, of London, Dominion president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. At the conclusion of an inspiring address by Mrs. Wright, afternoon tea was served from a table daintily arranged with a central vase of pink roses, surrounded by green tulle. The guests were received by the president of the local W.C.T.U., Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, assisted by Mrs. A. E. Micks and Mrs. Ed. Manning.

There was a good attendance of about sixty ladies present at the meeting.

Mrs. Wright, with a friendly form of address and a flow of homely reminiscence, was greeted with attentive appreciation by the ladies. Occupying the office of Dominion president for the seventh term, she is well fitted to speak on temperance matters, and her address gave her hearers a bird's eye view of various facts of the temperance situation here and in the Old Land.

Speaking of enthusiasm manifested at a recent meeting held in South London, when 219 new members were added to W.C.T.U. rolls, Mrs. Wright said: "The women are getting ready. Do you think we are going to tolerate the invasion of our home by four per cent. beer. I would be ashamed to be interested in missions and missionary work if I did not take a stand against it."

The speaker alluded to the benefits to be derived from making men honorary members of the society, saying the cause of temperance was a man's job as well as a woman's. "The time has come when the world has no use for neutrals. What the world needs today is men and women who will stand by their principles, no matter what they cost them."

Mrs. Wright said the women were not going to be daunted by Governmental refusals of their pleas. They were going to go ahead until a Federal law was passed, prohibiting the manufacture and import of liquor. "The enemy within our gate is a greater menace than the enemy outside the gates in 1914. Don't let anyone tell you that women should have their hands so full of domestic matters that they would have no time for attention to temperance legislation and enforcement. The woman who points to her family couldn't give a better reason for wishing to belong to the W.C.T.U. Do you expect God to safeguard your boy when you are not willing to join the society that will fight for his welfare. I have found limitless opportunities, wonderful friendships and mountain top privileges through my association with the W.C.T.U."

Mrs. Wright claimed that this society was the most thoroughly organized of any association in Canada today, and pointed to the example of Japan as a matter of emulation for a Dominion that considered itself the torch-bearer of the Gospel to the heathen. In the Flowery Kingdom, petitions have recently been presented to the Government by the energetic union there, to honeycomb the country with prohibition posters and 20,000 of these are to be distributed throughout the nation.

Mrs. Wright spoke of the high social position occupied by the national president, the Countess of Carlisle, and of the interest her beautiful daughters took in the temperance movement.

Mrs. Wright went on to give some of her experiences while in Scotland recounting various conditions noted there, where the workers of the big cities live in squalor and poverty caused by drink. Local option districts are termed "no license" sections there, and the moderationists are called "the trade." Of the obdurate male drinkers to whom Mrs. Wright addressed her persuasive powers on her visit, she remarked that a Scotchman was like an Englishman: "It is practically impossible to make him change his mind."

The address concluded with an appeal to the women to rouse themselves and to make a campaign for new members.

CLEAN MILK IS BIG NECESSITY

In Order to be Nourishing the Supply Must be Healthy.

POINTS TO WATCH

BY DR. S. J. CRUMBINE

We are constantly urging our children to drink milk, but not infrequently when doing so we are actually urging them to drink so much poison.

Particles of dirt and disease-breeding gacteria are often contained in the fluid. Very often epidemics of illness result from such milk.

Milk, in order to be nourishing, must be clean.

Consult the local health officer or public health nurse before selecting your milk dealer. If there is no health officer or nurse in your town, at least be certain yourself that your dairyman is clean and that his cows have been tested for tuberculosis.

If you buy from your neighbor and furnish your own containers, be careful to boil them and keep them clean. Do not permit the use of milk containers for any other purpose.

Take milk into the house as soon as it is delivered, and place it in the refrigerator or in cold water immediately. Bacteria increase rapidly in milk which stands in the sun or warms up, and such milk will sour quickly.

Keep milk in the original bottle until the moment of serving. Milk which has been poured from the bottle should not be returned to it.

If you have a cow be sure she is healthy, and have her tested for tuberculosis by a competent veterinarian. If she has tuberculosis have her killed, under supervision.

Keep the cow clean and wosh your hands well before milking.

Do not use your milk utensils or jars for any other purpose.

After sterilization put your pails, cans, jars, bottles in a sunny place, where dust and flies cannot reach them.

Strain your milk, if you like, but always boil the straining cloths every time they are used. The best strainer is a layer of sterile absorbent cotton between two layers of gauze; but any clean white cloth which has been boiled is satisfactory.

WOULD DO WORK BY ELECTRICITY

Effort Should be Made to Get Scrubbing Done by Machinery.

IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Eng., April 28.—(Canadian Press).—"All people interested in efficient home management should make some effort to see that electric machines should be devised which would do washing-up and scrubbing," declared Miss M. Partridge in a lecture under the auspices of the Women's Electric Association.

Miss Partridge, whose subject was the "All-Electric House," thought the housewife spent her life as follows: 50 per cent. cleaning; 20 per cent. preparing food; 10 per cent. sewing; 10 per cent. tidying, and 10 per cent. in shopping and sundries.

The cleaning side of domestic work was largely due to the smoke caused by the coal fires, but if electric heaters continued to be substituted at the present rate, then three or four years would see the end of the coal fire, for cooking, in England, she said.

WOMAN PREACHER DID TASK WELL

Miss Edna C. Bailey Held Field in Saskatchewan Winter.

TORONTO, April 28, (Canadian Press). — Miss. Edna C. Bailey student preacher by the Methodist Church, has just returned from her western mission field. During a Saskatchewan winter Miss. Bailey never missed a service, though her field, Mullingar Mission, meant lonely journey when the temperature was 52 degrees blow zero. While the courageous young missionary was sent out only for the summer, she stayed on for the year instead of returing to college. Miss. Bailey is an Arts graduate of Queen's, and might have sought to enter probation for the ministry if the Methodist Conference had not shelved that issue in 1922. No women have this year been sent out as "sky pilots".

After a short business session, the following programme was rendered: Pianoforte solo, Muriel Wilson; Recitation, Iva Wright; Vocal Solo, Marion Pilling; Pianoforte Solo, Irene Foster; Violin Solo, George Gatfield; Recitation, Verna Huffman.

An interesting address on "Education" was given by Mr. W. The schools have improved from their standards of a few years ago. Present-day pupils are taught to live together harmoniously, also to develop a school spirit and sense of responsibility. A great service was rendered to schools, pupils and teachers by the Home and School Associations.

The pennant this month was again won by Miss Eagleson's room.

A paper collection was recently taken up, and prizes to four rooms were presented: the teachers being the Misses E. Huffman, E. Coulter, E. Eagleson and Mr. T. Miller.

PECULIAR SITUATION IN WELSH COLLIERY

Men Took Over Operation of Mines and Were Apparently Successful.

A copyrighted cable from London to the Philadelphia Ledger reports one of the strangest instances of the interference of labor unions as a fascinating industrial undertaking has come to hand in a ukase issued by the North Wales Miners' Association to the effect that the Vauxhall colliery experiment must end.

Five weeks ago this Welsh colliery was losing money so heavily that the owners notified the men it must close down. The men thereupon asked to be allowed to operate the mines themselves, and offered to raise a guarantee fund to protect the owners against loss. The owners consented and the miners raised in their home town a $3,500 fund, many of them subscribing to it themselves. For the community and the miners it was a choice between having 700 men working for wages or drawing unemployment insurance.

The news that the men had taken over the mines themselves aroused enthusiasm in all parts of England, and the experiment was being followed with the keenest interest. These have been the results:

The guaranty fund has not been touched. The colliery has been working full time and the men were satisfied. The men working at the coal face were earning slightly more than previously, and a great majority of other workers were getting well over the minimum wage. Working hours, however, had been slightly extended.

Everybody was happy but the North Wales Miners' Association, which saw in the interest the experiment had aroused the possibility of a nation-wide campaign for the repeal of the seven-hour-day act, lower wages and the substitution of a local for the national wage scale. At first it was proposed to dismiss the 700 Vauxhall members from the union outright. But the Vauxhall branch has humbly expressed its "regret" for its conduct, and promised that when the three months expire it will not renew the guarantee fund.

This probably means that the colliery will close down and men go on a dole. Several owners of collieries which are on the point of suspending have offered to let the men operate their mines, but in all such cases the miners have declined, due to union influence.

Orphan Lad Is Hero Of Gallant Rescue Attempt

MINDEN, Ont., April 28 (Canadian Press).—Billy Carlson, a 15-year-old orphan lad, is now the hero of this quiet neighborhood as a result of his remarkable effort to rescue Lorne Snell from the Gull River recently while his 13-year-old sister shares almost equal honors. Snell, while fishing, fell into the river when a piece of the bank gave way. Lorne's sister gave the alarm and Carlson who was doing chores on the farm of ex-Inspector S. Phillips hurried to the scene. Leaving his cap and sweater on the way he rushed to the bank and plunged into the treacherous waters. In the meantime Billy's sister, 13-year-old Helen Carlson, leaped into a nearby boat and rowed upstream. Using this boat as a base, Billy dived time and again for the drowning boy pinned beneath the weight of fallen earth. At last he succeeded in extricating Lorne from his trap beneath the river and brought the body to the surface. The heroic efforts were, however, without avail, and every effort to restore the life of the victim proved futile.

INTEREST SHOWN IN THIS DISTRICT

Many Inquiries From Tourists By Boat and Car Are Being Received.

Great interest is now being shown in the possibilities of this district for tourist traffic.

Communications are daily being received by Leon Frazer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, from people who intend cruising up the Trent Valley Waterway or who are making use of the highways for motor transport.

Following is an excerpt from the motorist column of a recent 'Globe' issue. The article was of considerable length and the Kawartha lakes was the sole summer resort mentioned:

"Our network of roads enables the motorists not only to become acquainted with old Ontario but to comfortably travel to the north country where the scenic beauties and the lure of the rod and gun call the lover of the great outdoors.

"Holidays spent in cultivating a knowledge of the byways more than the highways will more than amply repay the explorer. The number of beauty spots unknown and unsung that abound in a line drawn from Lake Simcoe, through Lindsay, Peterboro', Havelock and north are innumerable.

"The Kawartha lakes alone offer opportunity for the cultivation of the beautiful that could not be covered by the ordinary man in his regular two weeks' holidays. There is really only one way that many of these beauty spots can be seen: from the seat of a motor car."

MODEL STEAMBOAT WILL BE TRIED OUT

H. McLarmon, Romaine Street, Designed Small Boat Fitted With Engine.

On Saturday, May 2, at Rye's boathouse there will be a trial run of Rona M., a model steam speed boat designed and built by H. McLarnon, 571 Romaine Street. The boat is a working model carved from a piece of solid pine fitted with a steam tubular boiler and high powered engine.

Mr. McLarnon states that in England model boat races are very popular and believes that if they were introduced in this country might prove of extreme interest. He says that his tiny model should travel at a rate of 12 miles per hour.

Any who might be interested in the trial are invited to be present, and a further announcement concerning definite time and place will be found in these columns at a later date.

"THE RIGHT WORD" A CLEVER LITTLE PLAY

"The Right Word," the one act comedy written by Miss Kathleen McCarthy ("Jeanette" of The Examiner staff), and produced by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, which forms part of the programme at the Capitol Theatre for the first three days of this week, is a worthy successor to "Melange" and "Dumb Dora," other one act plays written by Miss McCarthy and produced by Mrs. Bingham. Indeed "The Right Word" in its ingenuity of plot and brightness dialogue can be hailed as the most successful effort of the three, and serves to show that the earlier successes were not merely flashes in the pan.

Miss McCarthy has evolved a clever and intriguing plot in "The Right Word," which incidentally owes its title to the cross-word puzzle craze which is effectively used in the action. It would not be fair to those who have yet to see the play to divulge the details but the story of the disillusionment of a young man who feels that he has a penchant for detective work but who is ultimately made to see that the mantle of Sherlock Holmes must fall on other shoulders than his is worked out most logically. The love interest is not neglected either and the author makes clever use of the cross-word puzzle incident to furnish the closing lines which suggest to the audience that wedding bells will soon be ringing. The lines throughout are bright and clever, and the character types have been skilfully etched, the mysterious Professor Alcazar with his "spoonersms" being an especially interesting character. All in all "The Right Word" is capital entertainment and was greatly enjoyed by last night's audience.

Mrs. McKee Bingham's ability as a director was displayed in the able manner in which the play was staged and presented. The setting, with its antique furniture and grand piano was striking and the cast, several members of which were making their stage debut, gave evidence of sound training. Mrs. McKee Bingham not only produced the comedy but gave a sparkling performance as the Irish maid Norah, a role which she handles to perfection. Miss Mathilde Masson was the youthful widow Louise, a part that gave her a good opportunity not only to show her histrionic ability but to display her voice to fine advantage, her solo, giving the play an effective opening. Miss Alma Goselin gave a convincing interpretation of the part of the cross-word puzzle "fan." The role of Professor Alcazar with his amusing habit of getting his words all tangled up, an exacting part indeed, was in the capable hands of Mr. James Dixon, whose work was good throughout. Mr. Wallace E. McWilliams was the young man with the ambition to shine as a detective and gave an effective performance in the part, while Lionel Chapman as a visitor played several selections on the Hawaiian guitar very acceptably. Gordon Cornish was a very striking figure as the commissioner of detectives.

The Capitol orchestra got the play off in the proper atmosphere by playing "The Merry Widow" waltzes as a curtain raiser.

Material assistance was afforded by Heintzman and Co., who supplied the grand piano, Rummary's antique shop which furnished the furniture, and Richard Hall and Sons who provided the gown worn by Miss Masson.

"The Right Word" will be presented at the Capitol again to-night and to-morrow afternoon and night, and the many patrons who enjoyed "Melange" and "Dumb Dora" should not fail to see the latest play from Miss McCarthy's pen.—F.D.C.

Y. W. C. A. PAGEANT

In the big gymnasium of the Young Women's Christian Association, and at the Grand Opera House yesterday where a rehearsal was in progress, practices of dances and drills for the Pageant, which will be held on Friday and Saturday of this week, progressing.

The programme this season promises to be entirely new and very interesting. Miss Littlefield, physical directress at the Y., has contrived an exceptionally entertaining group of dances and physical exercises to demonstrate advances made during the past year by the various classes. From the tiny tots who will do a cunning Kewpie and Golliwog, will be something interesting happening every minute.

A glimpse at the programme convinces one of the entertaining nature of the evenings. Dances of many nations comprise a portion of the programme: "A Bit of Old Ireland," the Irish dance, with colleens and their gossoons stepping to the lilt of the merry tunes of the Old Sod; "Vive la France," a superb number in French "flame" effect; "The Soldier and his Sweetheart," a Russian operatic dance, in blue and yellow suits; a Spanish dance with red roses and huge hats and fringed shawls; a Grecian number interpreting Schubert' waltzes; "Katinka," the Russian doll dance; "The Dance of Youth" in leaf greens, and Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," done in shades of blue chiffon.

But the dances do not comprise all of the programme by any means. There are some interesting items in the elementary club swinging, new to Peterboro, by tiny tots, an intricate club drill by the seniors and a new reed exercise. The Swedish exercises include "The Human Wheel," drill, difficult and novel.

Members of the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs have promised to patronize the boxes on different nights for the big event.

NORTH BAY, April 28 (Canadian Press).—F. Cooper, a young farmer living about four miles from South River was instantly killed on Friday last during an electric storm when he was struck by lightning while lying in bed. MILLIONS IN HAND OF HON. S. B. COPP

Property of Germans Amounts to $14,000,000 and as Much to Come.

OTTAWA, April 28 (Canadian Press).—More than fourteen million dollars, in cash and Victory bonds, representing the proceeds of property and securities of Germans taken as a result of the Great War, is now in the hands of Hon. S. B. Copp, Secretary of State, if was learned today. This sum is being held by Mr. Copp in his capacity as custodian, and an additional sum of about fourteen million dollars remains to be obtained from various sources.

It is understood that the disposition of the funds will rest with Parliament, and the suggestion has been made that the money be used to pay the claims of Canadians for war indemnity against Germany.

RETURN TO GOLD STANDARD MADE

of people to continue the use of notes.

Simultaneously with these provisions he said the Bank of England would be obligated to sell gold bullion in amounts of not less than 400 fine ounces in exchange for legal tender at a fixed price of £3 17s 10½d per standard ounce.

The United States' credits being arranged for, Mr. Churchill said, would only be used if and when required and he did not expect that it would be necessary to use them.

Millions in Reserve.

The accumulated gold reserve was 153,000,000 pounds sterling, part of which was in dollars, to the amount of $166,000,000, the Chanrellor announced. This dollar reserve, he said, would be required for the June and December United States debt funding.

Interest on the British National debt, Mr. Churchill announced, has been reduced since 1920 by more than 70,000,000 pounds sterling. It was most important, he said, that the policy of debt repayments should continue. The nominal dead weight of the charge of the debt had decreased from 7,680,000,000 pounds on March 31, 1924, to 7,646,000,000 pounds. Churchill said he proposed to raise the sinking fund to the statutory limit.

Expenditure Up.

The total expenditure of the budget, Churchill estimates at 799,400,000 pounds sterling, which is 9,400,000 pounds sterling more than last year's budget provided. This the Chancellor termed as "a very disappointing result."

Mr. Churchill proposed a re-imposition of the McKenna duties upon imported luxuries.

Churchill estimated the revenue for the current year upon the existing basis of taxation at 826,000,000 pounds sterling. He estimated there would be a surplus of 26,000,000 pounds sterling on the present basis of taxation.

While counting upon 9,500,000 pounds sterling from German reparations, Churchill said he was not budgetting any repayments of Allied debts to Great Britain, which, he said, if they should be made would come as "additional relief."

The re-imposed McKenna duties will be effective July 1, Mr. Churchill announced. Among measures for raising new revenue, Mr. Churchill announced slight additions in the death duties on estates of more than 12,500 pounds sterling and certain duties on natural and artificial silk, with the basis a duty of four shillings per pound on raw silk. Made up silk will be taxed on an ad valoram basis. Another duty is one of four per cent. on hops. Comprehensive compulsory contributory scheme of insurance benefits for the wage-earning population of Great Britain was also part of the Churchill budget.

The Chancellor announced that sugar would be restored to the list of commodities under the Imperial preference plan. The preference would also be applied to dried fruits and heavy and sparkling wines.

The standard rate of the income tax is to be reduced by sixpence in the pound sterling.

The Imperial preference on tobacco will be increased from one-sixth of full to one-fourth.

Mr. Churchill said the existing 11 shilling super tax would be reduced by the same amount as death duties were increased.

STERLING UP.

NEW YORK, April 28. — (Canadian Press).—Demand sterling advanced one cent to $4.83, the highest price in 10 years and less than four cents from parity, within fifteen minutes after the news of Great Britain's return to the gold standard had been received in New York.

LONDON, April 28.— In announcing Great Britain's return to the gold standard, Mr. Churchill declared here would be complete imperial unity in this policy. Canada already was on a gold standard basis, he said, South Africa had notified him of their intention to revert to the gold standard from July 1, while Australia would from today abolish the existing restrictions on free gold export and New Zealand would follow a similar course.

ESKIMOS STARVING IN NORTH OF CANADA

Dr. Rasmussen Investigated Rumors of Slaying of Girl Babies.

OTTAWA, April 28 (Canadian Press)—Dr. Knut Rasmussen, famous Arctic explorer arrived here last night to interview the Canadian Government regarding horrible conditions said to exist in the Canadian Arctic. Dr. Rasmussen, recently made a long expedition into the far north to investigate rumors that the Eskimos were killing their girl babies on account of there being an insufficiency of food to feed them. He would say very little regarding this, however, but said he would be glad to make his findings public after a conference with the Government. "The distances are too great," explained Dr. Rasmussen, "and the various bands of Eskimos are so isolated that there is no general condition existing throughout the Arctic. In one place there may be plenty of hunting and the Eskimos will be well fed and happy while in another section of the great barren lands there may be a scarcity of wild game and as a result whole bands are starving slowly. There is great need of some suitable reservation being made for the Eskimos and I believe the Canadian Government is quite ready to do this."

SPRING TONIC FOR GOLFERS

As Prescribed by Eddie Loos

Some players have found that an even distribution of weight between the feet on drives does not work to their best advantage.

Of these is Leo Diegel. Diegel says that since he has changed so that most o f his weight is placed on his right foot, he is 30 yards or more off the tee than he formerly was.

Joe Kirkwood is another star who has recently changed his drive to some extent. Kirkwood now drives a ball considerably higher than he used to and he maintains that he averages 25 yards farther in the air than he did, and that the entire distance of his drive is much longer.

Kirkwood explains that in driving a lower ball he puts some backspin on it. Naturally when it lit, part of the roll was taken away by the reverse english. But since hitting higher this has been eliminated and the ball not only travels through the air farther, but he has the advantage of still more length on the roll.

PIRATES GET OFF POORLY AT START

Pittsburg, picked by many critics to check the five-year reign of the Giants, has got off to a poor start. In its first six games, five of them ended in defeat. Pirate fans are said to be yelping already over the showing of the team.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Muscle tightness and rigidity during any part of the golf swing, and especially during the address have a capacity for spreading that is surpassed only by the proverbial prairie fire in October. The golfer should understand this peculiar characteristic of rigidity. Rigidity in the wrists during the address will communicate itself, with the speed of lightning, to the forearms as the back swing begins. From there it will go to the shoulders just at the moment you try to turn the shoulders, and interfer with your doing so. At the top of your swing, so general throughout your body is the riot call for rigidity, your whole existence for the moment will be paralyzed with it. This stiffening process robs the muscles of all their springiness and resilience, and it is these muscle qualities that really hit the golf ball. Without them, you hit as though the ball were stone.

DERBY HORSES IN PREAKNESS EVENT

Many horses entered in the Kentucky Derby race will try for double honors by participating in the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico early in May. This fixture is second only to the Kentucky classic on the spring racing calendar. Sir Barton stands alone as the winner of both of these events.

CHANGE IN SOCCER OFFSIDE RULE

New Throw-in Law—Corner Kick is Now "Free Kick" —Local Notes.

The Football Association assembled in London recently for the meeting which usually precedes the Cup Final rejected the proposal by the Scottish F. A. to amend the offside rule to permit of lines being drawn forty yards from and parallel with each goal line to determine the offside area, but the Council approved the alternate suggestion which makes it now possible for two defending players, instead of three to put an attacker offside. To the rule the following was added: "And the player shall not again play the ball until it has been played by another player."

New Throw-in Law

The throw-in law was also changed to read as follows: "A player throwing the ball in from touch must stand with both feet on the ground outside the touchline, facing the field of play, and throw the ball in over his head with both hands, in any direction. The ball shall be in play when thrown in.

To prevent further misinterpretation of the corner-kick rule amended recently the words "corner-kick" were added, and the kick defined as a free kick. Thus a player may not dribble the ball from the flag into a scoring position, nor can he play the ball a second time until it has been played by another player.

Advice to Referees

The Referees' Association offers the following advice to its members:

Don't be ashamed to ask at Association meetings an opinion upon a debatable point. Remember, it is an education for you and others.

Be careful to charge exactly what you are entitled to—no more and no less.

Be punctual . Don't keep teams awaiting your arrival.

Keep your temper.

Don't get flurried.

Don't argue with players. Be firm and make your decisions promptly.

On the field, don't instruct players. You are there to interpret only.

Don't refuse to explain a decision if courteously asked. A courteous reply gains the player's confidence.

Don't stop the game unnecessarily.

Be tactful.

Don't try to justify your decisions afterwards.

Ignore the spectators; satisfy your own conscience.

Always remember that "the least said the soonest mended," both on the field, in the dressing room, and during the week.

The Thistle and Woollens meet in a league game on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, King Edward Park. Referee J. C. Russell.

When Anderson came up the field for the second penalty kick on Saturday a number of fans were disappointed because he did not get a chance to convert. He scored last year from a penalty, of course. "Hughie" is looking to his goal average.

Just imagine! a senior team having no less than three goal keepers —Hillman, Griffine and Harold Burrows, who has played between the sticks before.

The local senior body has acquired a number of copies of their rules and regulations which gives all data relative to all competitions during the season.

Since the beginning of the season, the Thistles have had no regular goal-keeper but they found Jimmie Brown to be able to fill the position well. Also, Edgar, who acted as substitute to Curtis, late of Thistle, now of Quaker Oats, made a name for himself by his excellent judgment in goal. Encouraged by his excellent showing the Thistles signed Edgar the DeLaval boy, as their goal-keeper.

The Thistle F. C. will hold a practice on Tuesday and Thursday evening on King Edward Park at 6 o'clock. All players please attend.

Two Juvenile teams — Northends and C.P.C.—will meet in a "friendly" game at the Oval on Saturday at 2 o'clock before the senior game. There are four teams in the juvenile league.

The Quaker Oats and C.P.C will play a friendly game at the Oval on Saturday at 3 o'clock. Sam Calladine, referee.

Both associations received sanction from the city to use King Edward Park for soccer during the week. Hours to be settled by the executives of each board.

All signed players of the Masseys are asked to attend a practice game on Wednesday evening at 6.30 p.m. at King Edward Park. Also a special meeting will be held on Friday evening in the Chamber of Commerce at 7 o'clock prompt.

The Quakers will hold a practice at the Oval on Tuesday evening, April 28th, at 6.30 prompt. Will as many as possible be on hand?

On Thursday evening the Canadian Woollens will hold a practice game at the Oval at 6 o'clock.

In future the Cogawagna Rink will be used as a dressing room for the players at the King Edward Park. This is a great advantage, so boys, please use it as a privilege, not otherwise.

On Tuesday evening of next week the Masseys and C.P.C. meet in a league game down on King Edward Park.

Y.M.C.A. LEAGUE.

The Teachers took the odd game of three fairly close games from Barrie's in the Y.M.C.A. League. Curvin was high for the three games, rolling a nice total of 627. He also had two nice singles of 261 and 210. Graham had also two great singles of 255 and 221. Other nice singles were Richardson's 255, Touchburn's 203 and 189, Smith's 199 and 193, McFadden's 199, McIlmoyle's 195.

KINGSTON LOSING TWO FINE ATHLETES

Leaving Shortly to Take Up Positions Across the Line.

KINGSTON, April 28.—(Special). —Kingston is losing two good athletes, "Eddie" Lawless, who has played on several local hockey and baseball teams is leaving to take a position in Rochester, N.Y. and "Nipper" Matthewson, another ball tosser of note is also going to Rochester. "Nipper" will be missed by the juvenile hockey players as he has been the pillar of the league. Lawless would have been a candidate for the local team in the C.O.B.L. had he remained in Kingston.

REORGANIZE TEAM

Lakefield Entry in East Peterboro League is Getting Busy.

LAKEFIELD, April 28.—The reorganization of the baseball team will probably be arranged this week as the warm weather suggests activity on the diamond. If Lakefield intends to enter a team in the league it is quite time that something was done.

RETAINED TITLE.

British Lightweight Champion Won Decision in 20 Round Bout.

LONDON, April 28. — (Canadian Press).—In a twenty-round contest at the National Sporting Club last night, Ernie Izzard, of London, successfully defended his title of lightweight champion of Britain against Teddy Baker, of London.

The bout was fast and interesting throughout. Izzard, who had an advantage in height and reach, was mostly the better boxer at long range work, using a splendid straight left to the face and body, while Baker did well in the clinches and landed some nasty right uppercuts and right hooks to the jaw. He was always dangerous as he put plenty of power behind his blows. The fortunes of the fight fluctuated considerably, but towards the end Izzard took a clear lead and won on points.

CRICKET PRACTICES.

O'NEILL GETTING CALL WITH YANKEES

Steve O'Neill, veteran American League catcher, has been getting most of the assignments with the Yankees so far this season. The former Cleveland and Red Sox receiver appears to be in better shape than in some time. With the catching corps also including Wally Schang, another veteran, Huggins appears to be well fortified behind the plate.

IMPORTANT MEETING OF THE CITY LEAGUE

Still Openings for a Few Teams in Several of the Series.

There will be an important meeting of the City Baseball League in the office of the Chamber of Commerce on Thursday evening at 7.30. There will be very important business transacted, particularly with regard to playing grounds, and all managers and prospective managers should be on hand. There are still openings for a few teams in the Juvenile, Midget and Bantam series which the officers would like to see filled up this week.

Billy Evans Says

WORM TURNS

St. Petersburg, April 24. — Once a ball player is traded or sold by a major league club, said team and manager immediately become his arch enemy.

The greatest joy in life for such a player is to be able to defeat his former teammates. It becomes more or less of an obsession.

Some years ago the New York Americans had Pitcher Urban Shocker on its roster. When Miller Huggins took charge of the club he sent Shocker in a trade to St. Louis.

From the time he joined the St. Louis club until he was returned to New York, Shocker was a thorn in the side of the Yanks. In 1921 when Huggins won his first pennant for New York, Shocker several times threatened to upset all calculations by beating the Yanks in pinch games.

The moment Shocker stepped on the rubber the Yankees started to ride him. In turn, Shocker got his satisfaction out of sending the sluggers of that team back to the bench.

* * *

Shocker is again with the Yankees Last winter he was secured in a trade for Joe Bush. Both are veteran pitchers. There is still some doubt as to who benefited most by the deal.

* * *

SEEKS REVENGE

In looking over the Yankees in training here ,the fine condition of Shocker was apparent. I commented upon it. He replied:

"I want to show that gang in St. Louis that I am far from through I am lighter than I have been in six years. The old arm feels great and I look for a big season.

"I hope to beat the Browns at least four games this year. Trimming that ball club is going to be one of my chief delights this summer."

A change of scenery makes a world of difference. Shocker, as a member of the St. Louis Browns, took a keen delight in beating New York; now his main object in life as a member of the Yankees is to trim the Browns.

Joe Bush, sent to St. Louis by New York for Shocker, has always been a jinx for the Browns. It seems to me they didn't beat him over a stretch of three or four years at one stage of his career.

* * *

No doubt when Bush and Shocker hook up in a pitching duel this summer it will serve to pack the park whether staged in New York or St. Louis.

SLIPPING STAR

It is only natural that such a feeling of animosity should exist when a player is sold or traded. In a great many cases the passing of a star from one culb to another is taken to mean that the player is either slipping or is shy certain talents he once possessed.

In other words, a trade or sale is considered a direct slap at the player's reputation and isn't at all relished by a star.

Immediately the desire to show up the manager who traded or sold him is uppermost.

Often such a deal prolongs the career of some star who is slipping, by causing him to get into better conditions, also take the game more seriously.

..It will be interesting to watch the work of Shocker and Bush this season. Both are out to make good with a vengeance for their new clubs.

SOX SPIRIT

Spirit is the thing that is going to make the 1925 Chicago White Sox an interesting club.

"I want to catch 100 games for Eddie this year," remarked Ray Schalk to me at the Sox training quarters in Shreveport, La.

"All the boys are pulling for Collins to be a big success as manager, none more than me, and I am eager to do my part."

Last season, Schalk, after catching 100 or more games for 11 consecutive years, worked in only 56 contests, being handicapped because of numerous injuries.

This year he started out by working the first four games, only to have an injury put him out of it for a few days.

Aside from his desire to try to help the Sox by being in there for at least 100 games, Schalk is also anxious to set a new record, to break a mark that has stood for 20 years.

If Schalk works 76 games this year, it will give him a total of 1576 games, one better than the mark of Jim McGuire, for the honor of working the most big league games by any catcher, living or dead.

MATTY WOULD NOW BE WORTH $25,000 A YEAR

It was in the lobby of the Sarasota hotel, where the Giants stopped while in training camp. Several of the players were discussing the new three-year contract that Dazzy Vance has agreed to sign with the Brooklyn Robins calling for a salary of $47,500 for that period, or $15,800 a year. John McGraw happened to come along, and the question was put to him:

"If Matty was at his best today, what salary do you think he would command from the Giants?"

"At least $25,000 a season," quickly answered the manager, "and he would be worth all of that, for he was not ony a wonderful pitcher, but a box office attraction.

"He was the best pitcher that I have ever looked at—fully 10 per cent better than any other. Furthermore, he was the easiest pitcher that I ever handled. He would take his order on a ball field quicker than a rookie.

"Mattie was never a holdout. The highest salary that he ever drew from the New York club for his pitching was $12,000."

A NASTY TUMBLE—BUT RACE GOES ON.

Spills Mean Little During a Steeplechase Event, For They Are Only Part of the Game.

One of the favorite sports in England is steeplechase racing. It's a pastime that is filled with thrills and excitement. And it's a bit dangerous, too. The above photo was snapped during a hectic moment in a race at one of the courses near London. One of the jockeys had a remarkably close call. He seems to be trying to pull his mount towards him. The race, however, went on just the same.

FINALS REACHED IN BOXING BOUTS

Dominion Championships at Winnipeg Produced Many Close Struggles.

MANY SURPRISES.

WINNIPEG, April 28.—(Canadian Press).—The finals were reached in eleven of the fifteen classes in the Dominion boxing and wrestling championships, which opened at the Board of Trade Building last night under the auspices of the Winnipeg Light Infantry A. A.

The boxing bouts produced by far the more action, though the wrestling bouts were hard fought in nearly every instance.

Thirteen outsiders performed, seven winning and six going down to defeat. The most formidable of those who tasted defeat was A. Burlie, Toronto featherweight, who represented Canada in the Olympic games last summer. Rube Pilbeam, a local boy, was awarded the decision after three rounds of fast milling.

Pilbeam's victory was by no means decisive. The judges disagreed, and the referee awarded the fight to Pilbeam.

WHIPPET RACES

London Revives Once Popular Sport—Meets Held Weekly.

LONDON, April 28. — Whippet racing, long a popular sport in the north of England, has no reached London, where meets are held weekly at various athletic grounds. Instead of chasing rabbits or hares the dogs race towards their masters at the end of the course.

The dogs are treated much the same as race horses and appear to enjoy the races as much as their owners and followers of the pastime. Books are made on each race, and the course takes on much of the aspect of a miniature race track.

SCIENTISTS PLEAD FOR IDEA OF WORLD-WIDE BIRTH CONTROL

Leaders of Thought in Many Lands Give Their Opinions.

WORLD NECESSITY

Rationalization of Parentage Will Aid in Cutting Down Mortality.

Delegates from a score of nations have taken part in the Sixth International Neo-Malthusian and Birth Control Conference in New York. They include physicians, eugenists, economists and sociologists.

In the accompanying symposium some of the leading figures in the movement set out their positions. George Bernard Shaw could not attend, but stated his views in the letter that follows. The contribution from Havelock Ellis is an extract from a paper which was read at the conference. The statements follow:

By GEORGE BERNARD SHAW.
Playwright and Social Philosopher.

I cannot attend the conference; and if I could I doubt if I could say anything that I have not already said. But two things have happened here lately that may interest you. The Judicial Committee of the House of Lords, in finally deciding against Dr. Marie Stopes, has taken the old ground of simple taboo. Dr. Stopes won on every other point, in spite of the attempt of the Judge who tried the first hearing of her case to interpret the jury's verdict in her favor as a verdict for the defendant.

Four lords, three of them over 80—that is, men who would have been superannuated many years ago if they had been the ordinary civil servants—have boldly decided that all references to the reproductive organs are obscene. This takes us back to the eighteen-seventies, when Huxley produced what was ranked as the modern classic text book of physiology without mentioning the forbidden subject of reproduction.

G. B. Shaw

By this the lords have fortified their position impregnably. There is no arguing with taboo. If people regard reproduction as an obscene subject, or a funny subject (and nothing more to be said; nothing remains but to live them down, and to be particularly careful meanwhile not to waste time, life and money in appeals to the law, which is always fifty years out of date.

Probably these same ancient lords, if somebody had accused Dr. Stopes of indecent exposure because she wears a modern dress which leaves her ankles visible, would have found her guilty without a moment's hesitation. I am now an old man myself, and I assure you I never knew that women, as distinguished from little girls, had ankles until I was taken to the pantomine and found that the fairy queen had not ankles but knees.

The shock I received at about 6 years of age, when, without any warning, I went into our drawing room and saw a woman without a crinoline, probably produced a complex which psychoanalysts may be able to trace in my works to this day.

Question of Room. Not Food.

The second notable occurrence is the discovery that there is not room in London for all the people who want to live there. The streets which used to be merely crowded are now choked. This has a certain bearing on birth control. As you know, I have always treated with contempt the notion that the earth is on the curve of diminishing return in the matter of food. That capitalist explanation of poverty ought not to impose on a rabbit, fertile as rabbits are. The fact that productive labor is being crushed by the burden of parasitic labor (to say nothing of parasitic idleness) has no bearing on the food question. The question of room is far more important. We could feed ourselves if we were as crowded as gannets on the Bass Rock; but life would be intolerable under such conditions.

All cities are now frightfully overcrowded; and the dispersal of their population over a reasonable acreage might possibly produce a population question. Some day we shall have to ask ourselves, not how many people it is possible to have under Bass Rock conditions, but how many people it is comfortable to have. If uncontrolled fertility does not keep within this limit we shall have to fall back on controlled fertility.

The Amoeba and the Man.

However, that is a speculation as to what might or might not happen after socialism had effected the redistribution of income, which is the most pressing necessity of today.

Meanwhile, birth control should be advocated for its own sake, on the general ground that the difference between voluntary, rational, controlled activity and any sort of involuntary, irrational, uncontrolled activity is the difference between an amoeba and a man; and if we really believe that the more highly evolved creature is the better we may as well act accordingly.

As the amoeba does not understand birth control it cannot abuse it, and therefore its state may be the more gracious; but it is also true that as the amoeba cannot write it cannot commit forgery; yet we teach everybody to write unhesitatingly, knowing that if we refuse to teach anything that could be abused we should never teach anything at all.

By HAVELOCK ELLIS.
Essayist and Scientist.

The term "birth control" is of recent origin. It was devised in New York less than ten years ago by Mrs. Margaret Sanger and a few friends in discussion. There was already, indeed, the term "Neo-Malthusianism," invented in England, together with the movement it indicated, in the middle of the last century. But it was felt that the term assumed a particular economic theory, which might not necessarily be accepted, or even understood, by many who could still be convinced and even ardent advocates of the movement on its practical side.

The name is recent, but what it stands for is ancient. "Birth control," indeed, and its substitutes—especially the latter—have been in active operation ever since birth began to take place on the earth, and even earlier, from the commencement of animal life. That is why it is possible to look at this question as one having an evolutionary meaning.

So vast, indeed, may be said nature's desire for reproduction—speaking in our human way—that in the multiplication of offspring an enormous margin has always been allowed for accidents. A great many more creatures are produced than could possibly subsist if they reached maturity. All but a few do in fact fail to become mature.

This is fortunate, for it has been roughly estimated that a single infusoria, if allowed to increase to its full capacity, would soon produce a mass of protoplasm larger than the volume of the sun, and another minute organism produce in a year a sphere which would extend beyond the limits of the known universe. A single oyster, if all its progeny survived, would speedily accumulate, it is estimated, a heap of shells eight times the size of the world. Even a pair of elephants, the slowest of all animals to breed, would in much less than a thousand years produce 90,000,000 elephants.

United States Could Overcrowd Earth.

It might be supposed that man is an exception to this rule. But it is not so. Civilized man in some regions, as in the United States in the past, has been known to double his numbers in twenty-five years, and Darwin estimated forty years ago that at this altogether possible rate of human increase the population of the United States alone would in a few centuries cover the whole surface of the globe so thickly that four men would have to stand on each square yard.

There is, indeed, one important difference when we compare man with other animals in this respect. While animals generally do not increase or diminish at all on the whole (except by human interference, designed or undesigned), any excess or deficiency in one season being soon smoothed out and the general balance of life thus preserved, man retains no such equable level.

It is necessary in establishing any ordered system of life that we should remember that life was built up, at the first, under conditions which presupposed the absence of intelligence, and that there was consequently the need of an enormous margin to allow for the certain destruction at an early stage of the great majority of living beings.

As life has evolved toward the higher mammals, living things are better equipped to contend with the destructive agencies of the world, and therefore the offspring of the higher mammals are not nearly so numerous as of the fishes and other vertebrates. Yet even the most civilized human races inherit the aptitude to produce an enormous surplus. Wherever, therefore, man takes up the task of ordering life on a rational and human basis he has to meet the problem of deciding what is to be done with this surplus.

World Population Doubles.

All human societies have been perpetually concerned with this problem from the outset, to a large extent unconsciously, to an ever-increasing degree consciously.

The methods by which population is consciously or automatically controlled, and increase limited, are numerous. They fall into two groups, the first acting before conception, by decreasing fertility, and the second after conception, and indeed throughout life, by increasing elimination.

On the whole they have been fairly successful in maintaining, not without much friction and misery, an even balance. It has been roughly estimated that up to the year 1800 the natural increase from the beginning, that is during millions of years, had attained a world population of about 850,000,000.

But since then a cataclysmal change has taken place which in one way or another has affected nearly the whole of the earth's population. Industrial revolution, development, medical and hygienic science and the slow development of humanitarian feeling, three new forces of world-wide influence, yet unknown in the world before, all began to exert pressure in the same direction at the same moment in the nineteenth century.

How enormously effective they have been we today witness, although so novel is the situation that few have yet grasped its terrible significance. The population of the world, which during millions of years had grown so slowly, suddenly in a mere flash of time—as a century is in the earth's growth—doubled its numbers, and at the present moment is increasing more rapidly than ever in history before.

Professor East estimates at the present rate of increase the time when there will be no more room left on the earth is not so far distant, but that some of our grandchildren will live to see it.

What Sort Shall Inherit Earth?

The goal of human life on earth is now visibly in sight, and the great question before us is: "What kind of people are they to be who will inherit the earth?" Today it is still in our power to determine the answer to that question.

Methods of the past in eugenics are no longer practicable. They are too crude, too ascetic or too cruel; that is why they have decayed. The only method which comes before us today as a reasonably practical instrument, whatever its defects, for effecting the limitation of the family and eugenically molding the future race is the method of contraconception, henceforth, perhaps, the only legitimate and practicable form of birth control.

It is practically a new method, and as yet it has not had the slightest measurable influence in restraining the ever-increasing flood of human fertility.

So vast and menacing is the evil to be fought that birth control will need to be applied on a scale as yet undreamed of if that devastating flood is to be stayed.

By DR. CORRADO GINI.
Italian Statistician and Eugenist.

In order to give an adequate judgment on the control of births it is necessary not to stop at particular or lateral consequences, but to consider its essential purpose. That is to make procreation rational instead of instinctive, as it is today with a large part of mankind and with all the animals.

If an instinct has become rooted and perpetuated in a species it means that it answered, or at least was not in contradiction with, the interest of the species itself; but that does not necessarily mean that it answers it yet, or that other means, such as reason, do not answer it better, or, lastly, that alongside of the interest of the species we should not take also into account the interest of the individual.

The upholders of birth control rightly affirm that reason can better than instinct, cater to the interest of the species by preventing the reproduction of inferior beings and by uniting at the same time to such interest the advantage of families, because it would not impose upon parents the heavy burden of a too-numerous offspring.

The strengthening of the sentiment of social fellowship, caused by natural selection and social education, has brought with it the diffusion and intensification of pity for the weak and degenerate. This has now increased to a dangerous extent and has led to measures which give cause for serious thought to sociologists. By means of special care and treatment, the weak and degenerate are, among modern civilized peoples, saved from the selective action of nature and placed in a position to live and multiply.

We have doubtless, here, one of the factors of counter-selection, which, according to some authorities, threatens to bring our civilization to the ground.

By RAYMOND PEARL.
Statistician, Johns Hopkins University.

Birth control seems to offer the only method at once humane and intelligent of meeting the menace of population growth without fundamentally altering our civilization and standards of living.

Even this solution can only function adequately to that end if it is guided by the soundest biological and eugenic knowledge available.

On these accounts a conference such as the Sixth International Neo-Malthusian and Birth Control Conference has the highest social significance. Bringing together a considerable number of the world's foremost authorities in the field of human biology for the interchange of ideas and information, it cannot fail to produce results of real value for human progress.

This congress of leading scientific men and women from all over the world is also in large measure an expression of tribute to the splendid work of Mrs. Margaret Sanger, the pioneer and leader of the birth control movement in America. Under difficulties and vicissitudes which would have completely disheartened a less courageous soul, she has kept up the fight and won a succession of victories which even a few years ago would have seemed impossible.

The present conference will undoubtedly have a great effect in overcoming the resistance of the few remaining strongholds of reaction and ignorance which yet remain to be taken.

By EDWARD M. EAST.
Biologist, Harvard University.

Who can doubt that widespread rationalization of parentage will aid greatly in cutting down maternal and infant mortality, will effect a reduction of congenial defectives, and will lower the frequency of many diseases? If these important questions are answered satisfactorily by Neo-Malthusianism there should be little reason for the progressive person not to range himself or herself with the proponents of the case.

In the absence of real knowledge, it is hazardous perhaps to make predictions; but there are several cogent reasons for believing that freedom from involuntary parenthood will do a great deal toward making marriage more of an idealistic copartnership. The number of abandoned families should be diminished materially, social workers realize that an overabundance of children is frequently the direct cause of wife desertion. As a result, we may also expect earlier marriages, which should bring about benefit to the State on the economic side and a gain for morality from the decreased demand for commercialized vice.

Neo-Malthusianism would also change the economic status of the wife. It would permit her to help out the family exchequer when unforeseen, exceptional circumstances arise. But the important economic value of the system would lie in the elimination of a significant proportion of the economic waste that now ensues from the preparation for and care of children who sicken and die before they reach the age of shifting for themselves. This is a manifest loss to parents concerned and to the community, and if infant and child mortality can be reduced by doing away with haphazard parenthood, as presumably it can, admittedly there will be a resultant gain.

Obviously, some of the problems involved in population restriction and welfare of the family are still unsettled. Nevertheless, logic and reason, as well as the evidence at hand, point unmistakably to the conclusion brought about consciously and deliberately with the prevision of intelligence and wisdom has many things to recommend it and few to condemn it.

By WILLIAM F. OGBURN.
Professor of Sociology, Columbia University.

Interest in birth control is largely concerned with the speculation as to its effect upon morality, as to whether it could be expected to encourage or discourage marriage. Moralists who oppose birth control often do so on the basis that since marriage would not necessarily have children as its object, some individuals might regard marriage as unnecessary and dispense with it. Thus, they argue, there would be set in motion a tendency to reduce the percentage of marriages.

Another point of view, which seems rather reasonable, is held by those who favor birth control on the grounds that it probably would encourage marriage between young people. These believe that many who now hesitate through fear of burdens greater than their means warrant would marry were the fear removed.

My own researches point in that direction. The evidence which I have collected on the subject indicates that birth control increases the number of marriages. I made a survey of marriage and birth statistics in certain cities of the northern part of the United States. The age factor was held constant, and in a comparison of the same age groups, I found that the cities with the lowest birth rate had the highest marriage rate among young people. Undoubtedly, the birth rate varies between cities of the same general region, and where the same general conditions prevail, because of the influence of birth control methods. This fact is admitted in accounting for the variance between certain countries. We must admit the influence of birth control in England, for instance, where, since 1890, the percentage of marriages has increased, and where, notwithstanding, the birth rate has decreased.

If the evidence bears out the assumption that birth control encourages marriage, and if we accept the other evidence which indicates that marriage is the more desirable social state, logically we must regard birth control as a moral force of prime importance.

CONWAY TEARLE CHOSEN HERO FOR "THE GREAT DIVIDE."

The greatest lover of all times plays the role of Stephen Ghent in "The Great Divide." After much parleying, Conway Tearle was selected to play the role which brought Henry Miller fame and fortune on the legitimate stage. And these were the requisites which gave Tearle the opportunity to portray this strongest of all adventurous lovers.

First he had what Elinor Glyn, that great exponent of love calls "it," which is generally conceded to mean irresistible charm and magnetism.

In physique he is ideally suited to the part of Stephen Ghent, a strong dominant man of the desert.

He is the living personification of the savage hero and has a personality and spirit which will index his interpretation of this role with the great achievements of the screen.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer produced "The Great Divide," which is coming to the Capitol Theatre on Thursday, and Reginald Barker directed it.

"I WANT MY MAN."

Filmed from Struthers Burt's novel, "The Interpreter's House," the feature picture, "I Want My Man," at the Capitol Theatre for the first three days of this week, is an exceptionally interesting production. It is one of those heart dramas of the screen that picture the inter-play of human passion and has a compelling theme in the struggle by two women for one man's love. The eternal triangle is always interesting, but this production has an added attraction in the strife of two women for the affections of a man, a war-blinded hero, who later recovers his sight and is divorced by his wife, who fears he will resent the fact that she married him out of pity. Her idealistic motives are harshly handled when she becomes a companion to his invalid mother, compelled to live in the same house with him, unrecognized, as he had never seen her face after his recovery.

Then the other woman appears and complications bring the event finally of a marriage scene, interrupted by the suicide of one of the principal men characters. The wedding march plays for the hero and his intended bride, and the other girl watches by the side of his mother. Later, however, when financial reverses beset the path of the man, the second woman turns from him and he learns the truth at last.

It is one of those absorbing pictures whose stories are followed with intense interest. To the final moment, through the interrupted wedding scene and the love-making episodes, through scenes from society life and frivolity, the attention centres about the two women and the man whose love they vie for. Milton Sills, the notable hero of the famous "Sea Hawk" picture, makes a splendid hero for this type of picture, and Doris Kenyon, playing opposite him, is appealingly lovely. The comedy is an uproarious mixture of fun and frolic.

AT THE ROYAL

"MIDNIGHT MOLLY."

A case of mistaken identity and a dual role woven into a story of absorbing interest gives Evelyn Brent a starring vehicle in "Midnight Molly" at the Royal Theatre now.

"Midnight Molly" is a powerful melo-drama of the sure-fire fast action school. It opens with a mystery sequence, which is almost immediately followed by a sensational automobile accident. In this crash the heroine, escaping from a house she has just robbed, is run over and sent to the hospital. Meanwhile the frivolous, unfaithful wife of a big attorney, candidate for governor, has run away with another man, and the political ring which is arrayed against the lawyer is only too anxious to get any scandal they can to pin on him. The resemblance of Molly to the real wife is so striking that those at the hospital are taken in, and although the attorney is not deceived he permits the girl to be taken to his home as his own wife. From this close-knit situation arise many complications, not the least of which is the fact that Molly and the candidate grow through the weeks to love each other. The erring wife returns to help her lover blackmail her husband, but is met in a battle of wits and courage by Molly, who more than proves a match for her and the political ring which is trying to ruin the husband. To reveal more of the plot and counterplot of this tense story might spoil the enjoyment audiences are sure to get from seeing this picture.

The adroit hand of one of the most celebrated directors in Hollywood, Lloyd Ingraham, is clearly discernable in the smooth and irresistable manner in which the story flows.

GOOD VAUDEVILLE AT ROYAL

"See and Believe," a European novelty act, made a hit with a large audience at the Royal last night. The offering is made up of remarkable feats of balancing and juggling and ends with a surprise that made last night's audience gasp. They will be here until Wednesday night.

VITAGRAPH OFFICIALS ENTHUSIASTIC AFTER FIRST VIEW OF "BAREE, SON OF KAZAN," STARRING ANITA STEWART.

Having their first view last week of "Baree, Son of Kazan," J. Stuart Blackton's production of James Oliver Curwood's novel, Vitagraph officials and executives expressed confidence that this special will prove one of the big hits of the year. Anita Stewart, making her debut as a Vitagraph star, is cast particularly happily as Nepeese, the French-Indian daughter of Pierre, the trapper, and the central figure in an appealing romance.

The entire action is laid in the Canadian North-West, and an almost continuous succession of striking snow scenes is presented. Wolf, the famous war dog, displays all but human intelligence as Baree, the wolf-dog, who is the devoted friend and protector of Nepeese, and finally brings the romance to its culmination by exterminating Bush McTaggart, the trading post factor whose efforts to win Nepeese occasion a series of thrilling tragedies.

As Baree when a pup appears Ignatz, a diminutive specimen of Eskimo dog whose antics are certain to delight lovers of pets everywhere. A few of the highlights in the picture are the sensational dive of Nepeese from a cliff into an icy stream, and the fight to the death between Pierre and McTaggart, the man-beast.

Donald Keith, a young player who has been attracting much favorable attention in recent productions, is said to give a convincing interpretation of Jim Carvel, who becomes the fiance of the French-Indian "princess." Joseph Rickson and Jack Curtis do fine work as Pierre and McTaggart, respectively.

The picture is filled with engrossing action and pictorially it is said to be a marvel.

The Royal Theatre gets the first showing in Canada on Thursday of this week.

AT THE REGENT

GRIFFITH INTRODUCES DISTINCT NOVELTIES IN "LOVE AND SACRIFICE"

Master Producer, who has Done Wonders for Pictures, has added Many New Things in His Latest Production.

D. W. Griffith, responsible to a greater degree than anyone for innovations in the making of photoplays, and father of the motion picture as a vehicle for art, has again made a radical departure from established custom in the filming of "Love and Sacrifice the titanic epic of Revolutionary days, which will be shown at the Regent Theatre for four days, starting on Wednesday.

In fact it may be rightly stated that "Love and Sacrifice" embodies more distinct novelties in motion picture production than even the masterpieces with which Griffith hitherto has revolutionized the theatre world.

Because of the fact that the production was undertaken at the instigation of our most prominent patriotic organizations, representatives of which were present at the filming of the various scenes, and that through Secretary of War Weeks, the United States Army co-operated, Mr. Griffith first sought to achieve the most meticulous ccuracy from a romantic and historical point of view.

To this end he established a research bureau of experts to delve into the historical document: housed in public and private museums and collections throughout the country. This staff of experts, among whom are numbered the leading authorities on the Revolutionary period have been required to settle every mooted question in regard to the most minute details of the War of Independence. Such an apparently trivial, yet historically important problem as the color of Paul Revere's horse, occupied the undivided attention of a corps of research workers for nearly a month.

Aroused to a high pitch of enthusiasm over Mr. Griffith's aims in producing "Love and Sacrifice," patriotic organizations throughout the country not only volunteered their services to aid in the research work, but defying custom and tradition, took from the museum cases and the private vaults which housed them for years invaluable relics of the Revolution and offered them to the famous director for use in his picture.

HEART TROUBLE SHORTNESS OF BREATH

Mrs. Geo. E. Bowman, Morrisburg, Ont., writes:—"I am writing you a few lines to let you know of my experience with Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. Two years ago I became very poorly with my heart and nerves and whenever I took the least little bit of exercise my heart would start to jump and flutter. I could not walk up-stairs without having to sit down and rest before I was half-way up, on account of my breath becoming so short.

I commenced taking

CANADA GAINS BY NEW BUDGET

Imperial Preference and McKenna Duties Will Aid Canada.

MANY PRODUCTS.

OTTAWA, April 28. — (Canadian Press.)—Canadian sugar, tobacco and automobiles will be the chief beneficiaries under preference proposals in Mr. Churchill's budget. To a certain extent, Canadian wines also may benefit.

Sugar, tobacco and wines came under the first part of the offer of increased preferences made by the Baldwin government at the last Imperial conference. To this part of the offer it is apparently the intention of the British government to give effect. Under its terms increased or stabilized preferences were to be granted on certain articles which were already dutiable on entering Great Britain. Sugar, tobacco and wines were in this list.

Canadian automobiles should benefit as a result of the restoration of the McKenna duties. These duties gave a preference to empire automobiles, among other things. They expired a year ago and were not renewed by the late Labor government.

FOCH REPORT TO BE CONSIDERED

Council of Ambassadors Fears to Provoke Further Reaction in Germany.

LEFT TO POWERS.

PARIS, Apr. 28 (Canadian Press) —The allied Council of Amoassadors at its meeting tomorrow will, it is understood, give Marshal Foch's report on Germany's violations of the Versailles Treaty quick scrutiny and will then await further study of the situation by the chancellories of the various interested powers before taking action. This policy, it was said in official circle this mornng, will be pursued because the allies desire above all to avoid anything that might provoke a further re-action in Germany such as was manifested in the election of Field Marshal von Hindenburg to the Presidency.

NEW DRUG STORE OPENS TO-MORROW

On another page in this issue is an announcement by Mr. G. A. Borland, of the opening of a drug store on Charlotte Street.

Mr. Borland is well known as a druggist in town, having been for the last four years managing director of the late Warne Drug Co., and for ten years before that with Mr. Wm. Madill at the corner of Hunter and George Streets.

The faith which Mr. Borland has in the future of the city is shown by the fact of his opening up a business here after considering a number of apparently good opportunities elsewhere. His desire is to put a new and deeper meaning in the word Service, and on that foundation to build up his business.

In this new undertaking, Mr. Borland is asking for the patronage of those with whom he has had the privilege of dealing during the past fourteen years, as well as those newer friends he hopes to make by his prompt and efficient business policy. (Advt.).

BRITAIN BUILDS UP HUGE CREDIT IN UNITED STATES TO STABILIZE POUND AGAINST MARKET FLUXES

$300,000,000 LOAN.

Shipment of Gold Not Necessary For Payment of Obligations in America.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Great Britain's decision to restore the gold standard, as announced by Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill in his budget speech to the House of Commons Tuesday, was followed here by an advance of nearly three cents in sterling exchange to $4.84, the highest price in ten years, and by the announcement that the British Government had arranged for a $300,000,000 credit in the United States, $100,000,000 of which will be supplied, if necessary, by J. P. Morgan and Company, and $200,000,000 by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York in co-operation with other reserve banks throughout the country.

The rise in sterling here carried it around the so-called "gold point" below which, in a free gold market, gold would ordinarily move from London to New York. The immense credit available here will make it possible for Great Britain to retain her gold when exchange moves temporarily against her through the sale of sterling bills by forcing the rate high enough so that the shipment of gold will not be necessary.

Dutch guilders touched their parity of 40.20 cents late in the afternoon in reflection of the announcement that Holland would restore the gold standard, effective today. Sympathetic rallies also took place in all the other European currencies, French francs ruling about 3 1-2 cents higher around 5.21 1-2 cents.

British bonds, which are traded in on the New York stock exchange, advanced fractionally to new high levels for the year. The stock market, however, was not stimulated by the announcement, prices holding firm with trading in the smallest volume of any full session since election day.

HINDENBURG ON PRISONER LIST

French Foreign Office Retains Name of President as War Prisoner 237.

HIS OFFENCES.

PARIS, April 29 — So far as France is concerned the former Field Marshal, Paul Von Hindenburg, still is "war prisoner No. 237," the French Foreign Office pointed out in commenting on Hindenburg's victory in the German presidential election.

The Foreign Office said it "did not intend to take any action whatsoever," but that under the Versailles treaty Hindenburg still must remain as listed there.

Charges Listed

Here are the war criminal charges against Hindenburg, the foreign office brought out. They were given as follows:

Criminal deportation, abduction of women and children, armed looting; destruction by dynamite, incendiarism, criminal measures against civilians violation of graves in cemeteries, poisoning of water supply, destruction of forests and pillage of food supplies destined to interned civilian population.

The foreign office considers Hindenburg's election "reveals the real spirit of Germany and facilitates France's task" and that France "can now count on the aid of England and Amrica to carry out rigorous disarmament and other clauses of the Versailles treaty.

MONTREAL, April 24.—(Canadian Press).—Ferdinand Sauriol and Joseph Marineau, under 20 years of age, who held up and robbed Henri Belanger, butcher, early this month, were Tuesday sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary by Judge Monet. ARNPRIOR DROWNING.

School Boy Was Playing On Boom of Logs.

ARNPRIOR, Ont., April 29.—While playing on a small boom of logs beneath the Canadian National Railway bridge over the Madawaska River here last evening, Tommy, older son of Mrs. Margaret Rafter, fell into the icy water and was drowned before help could reach him. The boy who was eight years of age had gone down to the river after returning home from school with several companions and had evidently tried to run the logs with the fatal result.

EVACUATION OF COLOGNE MUST COME QUICKLY

Chancellor Luther, of Germany, Says They Do Not Wish For War.

NO POLICY CHANGE.

Viewpoint of Von Hindenburg is Same as That of Luther.

BERLIN, April 29. — (Canadian Press).—In order to bring about stable European conditions the question of the evacuation of the Cologne area by the Allies must be speedily settled, Dr. Hans Luther, German Chancellor, declared in a statement to-day.

"For more than three months," he said, "we have waited in vain for reasons held to justify non-evacuation."

Germany's foreign policy will not be changed, Dr. Luther stated emphatically. His declaration was made in an address before the annual congress of the League for German Industry and Commerce. It is understood to reflect also the view point of President-elect Von Hindenburg with whom the Chancellor conferred yesterday.

"The people of Europe desire the removal of uncertainty and lack of clearness," Dr. Luther said. "A policy having that end in view must naturally be governed by the law of continuity and cannot arbitrarily change its direction."

That Germany does not desire war was a further categorical declaration by the Chancellor, who laid great stress upon Germany's adherence to the security pact ideas.

"Germany desires to protect herself by the treaty," he observed, "and as I wish to emphasize at this time does not desire to conduct war."

With regard to the failure to settle the evacuation, Dr. Luther declared: "The whole European policy suffers from the delay on this question."

Reverting to the security problem, the Chancellor reiterated:

"It is self-evident that the standpoint adopted by the Government remains unchanged."

Barn Burned Near Chatham Stock and Machinery Lost

CHATHAM, Ont., April 29.—(Canadian Press).—Four valuable horses, two head of young cattle, six hogs and a number of pure-bred chickens were burned to death in the fire that destroyed the stable, barn, cattle shed and implement building on the farm of W. E. Pattypiece, Town Line, Harwich Township, early last evening. There were several tons of hay and straw, several hundred bushels of grain also destroyed, as well as a large quantity of farm implements. The loss will reach several thousand dollars, and is only partly covered by insurance.

The cause of the fire is a mystery, as no person had been in the building for several hours. Some believe it may have been started by chicken thieves.

WOMEN SHOULD ASSIST LEAGUE

Hon. Arthur Meighen Urges Their Support of Peace Society.

NOBLE AMBITION.

OTTAWA, April 29—A generous response to the appeal of Canadian women for funds to make effective the full measure of Canadian influence and support to the League of Nations, states Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Opposition leader, in a statement issued here today, will "materially assist in bringing about a better time when machine guns, mental anguish, sorrow and death shall give way to conference, sincerity and good-will in the settlement of international disputes.

"To replace war with its devastated lands, its desolated homes and its scarred and maimed humanity by international justice and moral right, and bring about the realization of the 1918 cry of thanksgiving and hope raised by an almost despairing civilization, is the aim of the League of Nations," the former premier says.

"Only by the active support of the nationals in all the League's members can this be brought about. The ideal of the League of Nations Society is to bring to the assistance of the League the full measure of Canadian influence and support—an ideal which has rightly commanded the aid of the women of this Dominion in the appeal to our people for funds to make effective this noble ambition."

HUGE BOND ISSUE FOR PULP COMPANY

$61,000,000 Purchase By American Financial Houses a Record.

CHICAGO, April 29.—What is believed to be the largest single issue of bonds ever brought out for the development of the pulp and paper industry, has been sold by the Minnesota and Ontario Paper Company, whose main offices are located at Minneapolis.

Halsey, Stuart and Company of Chicago, and the Minnesota Loan and Trust Company of Minneapolis announced Tuesday the purchase of $16,000,000 first mortgage six per cent. fund gold bonds of the paper company, which operates mills at International Falls, Minn., and Fort Frances and Kenora, Ontario.

Upon completion of additions which are provided for by this financing, the paper company and its subsidiaries will have an annual capacity of 200,000 tons of newsprint paper, 30,000 tons of sulphate pulp, 60,000,000 feet of insulated board and more than 125,000,000 feet of rough and finished lumber. The company also is adding 45,000 horsepower in hydro-electric facilities to its present capacity of more than 40,000 hydro-electric and hydraulic plants and a supplementary steam station of 7,000 horsepower.

TRAMP VESSELS AFFECT RATE IN GRAIN SHIPPING

Minimum Charge Set Every Day During the Season C.P.R. Agent Says.

AGAINST CONTROL.

Competition By Independents Would Be Countered by the Ship Conference.

OTTAWA, April 29. — (Canadian Press).—"I do not see how we can get along without a conference or some association," W. T. Marlow, general foreign freight agent of the C.P.R., told the special Parliamentary committee on ocean rates, Tuesday. Mr. Marlow was being examined by G. H. Montgomery, K.C., counsel for the steamship companies.

"We have frequently received representations from shippers that what they wanted to know was that they were getting the same rate as their competitors," Mr. Marlow continued. Stability of rate depended on the conference.

"You think the conference is an advantage?" queried H. J. Symington, K.C., Government counsel, in cross-examination.

"It is almost a necessity," was the reply.

"Do you object to competition by a line not a member of the conference?" pursued Mr. Symington.

Mr. Marlow replied that he would not say that there would be objection by conference lines.

"Wouldn't it be a measure of control?" Mr. Symington persisted.

Inject Competition.

Mr. Marlow admitted that the conference lines would probably meet the rate of the independent line. "They might even go below it," he said. He thought, however, that as soon as rates got down to "an unprofitable basis," conference lines would withdraw from the business.

"What would you think of a government body to control rates?" Sir Eugene Fiset, a member of the committee, asked.

Mr. Marlow said he would prefer not to express an opinion on that question. He was not authorized by the management of his company to do so.

U. S. Lines Fair.

"Have you ever felt any spirit of domination by American members of the North Atlantic Conference, operating against Canadian shippers?" Mr. Marlow was asked.

"No, we have never found that," he replied. "They have always been fair." He said there was nothing "sinister" about the fact that minutes of meetings of the North Atlantic Conference were marked "private and confidential." The majority of associations of business men did not throw open their deliberations to public inspection.

Tramps Affect Rate.

Mr. Marlow gave the committee some information in regard to the method of fixing rates on grain shipments during the grain shipping season. This minimum rate was set every day during the season. The maximum rate was controlled largely by the tramp steamers which were an important factor in the grain trade.

The witness said that at present the rate on grain from American ports was 6¼ cents a hundred pounds, and on flour 20 cents. This was from New York. From Montreal, the grain rate was 10 cents and the flour 20 cents.

Mr. Marlow admitted that minutes of meetings of the North Atlantic Conference and tariffs set by this conference were communicated to the South Atlantic and Gulf Conferences. This was the case in spite of the fact that these three conferences no longer met. He expressed the opinion that there would be a reunion of the three conferences and that they would, some time in the future, hold joint conferences.

PETITION FOR RAILWAY.

Western Deputation Asks For Outlet From Peace River.

OTTAWA, April 29 (Canadian Press).—A deputation, composed of Hon. John Oliver, premier of British Columbia; George Mills, M.L.A., Edmonton; W. T. Henry, M.L.A., Grand Prairie, and representatives of the boards of trade of Edmonton and Grand Prairie, waited upon Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals; Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, and Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, in camera, yesterday.

It was urged by the members of the delegation that a railway outlet be provided for the Peace River district; and a preference was shown towards the opening up of this territory by the Canadian National Railways.

The people of the Peace River District in Alberta, it was pointed out, were desirous of an early outlet to the West. Premier Oliver supported by Hon. Dr. King, suggested that the route to be chosen should assist in the development of British Columbia also.

No indication of a decision in this matter was given as a result of the conference, and it is understood that a further meeting will be held.

Wife Unconscious On Ice Where Husband Drowned

ROBERVAL, Que., April 29.—(Canadian Press).—According to a report received here, a farmer named Marceau, of St. Methode, was drowned in the Ticouabe River Monday while attempting to cross on the ice. Marceau's drowning was witnessed by his wife, who was accompanying him. Madame Marceau made frantic efforts to save her husband, but these were unsuccessful, and the man disappeared before her eyes.

The body was recovered later by neighbors, who, attracted by the cries of Madame Marceau, arrived on the scene. They found the woman stretched unconscious on the ice.

The dead man was 58 years of age, and was the father of a large family.

IMMIGRANTS TO CANADA 111,362

Total For Fiscal Year Ending March 31—Also 43,775 Canadians Returned.

MANY ON THE WAY.

OTTAWA, April 29. — (Canadian Press).—In March of this year immigration to Canada totalled 6,575, compared with 2,210 in February, an increase of 4,365. Of the 6,575, an official statement issued by the Department of Immigration and Colonization shows, that 3,273 were British, 1,297 from the United States and 2,005 from other countries. In the same month 2,731 Canadians, who had been in the United States six months or longer, returned to the Dominion.

For the fiscal year 1924-25, ended March 31st last, the total immigration was 111,362, made up of 53,178 from the British Isles, 15,818 from the United States and 42,366 from other countries. In the same period 43,775 Canadians returned from the United States, so that if this number is added to the general immigration total of 111,362, the combined count is 155,137.

Indications are that there will be considerable activity in immigratin during the next few months. With the opening of navigation on the St. Lawrence last week-end there was a big rush of new settlers from the British Isles and some of the European countries. There is also an increasing movement of the most desirable farm settlers from the United States.

MORE THIS WEEK.

MONTREAL, April 29.—(Canadian Press)—Considerable immigrant traffic is in prospect on the St. Lawrence over the week-end, there being no fewer than four Transatlantic liners arriving at Quebec and Montreal with heavy passenger lists. The Minnedosa will land 931 third-class passengers at Quebec on Friday, while on Saturday, the Marloch will arrive with 101 cabin and 598 third-class, the Letitia with 166 cabin and 711 third-class, and the Antonia with 166 cabin and 708 third-class passengers.

Additional to this, the Swedish-American liner Drottningholm, from Gothenburg, will land 84 passengers at Halifax, N.S.

ANTAGONISM AT LONDON SYNOD'S FINAL SESSION

Subscription of Missionary Allocation to Presbyterian Treasury Raised Several Squalls.

NO ACTION TAKEN.

Resolution and Amendment Withdrawn After Sharp Debate and Personalities.

LONDON, Ont., Apr. 29 — With Dr. W. R. McIntosh, newly elected Moderator in charge, the final meeting of the Hamilton-London Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, before the consummation of union afters the form of the church court, came to a close last night. Over the court hung the sense of impending change and the question of future status obtruded itself into almost every discussion. It was a stormy meeting, at times, when speakers rose with startling rapidity to demand justice for their factions. As a farewell party before the concurring and the non-concurring members go their different ways it will long be remembered.

The storm clouds gathered at the morning session when Dr. D. C. McGregor introduced a resolution urging that congregations be asked to forward that portion of their budget allocation to home and foreign missions which would be due at June 10 to the treasurer of the church. The storm blew over when the discussion was adjourned until the afternoon session when it burst forth again in all its natural glory.

Motion Withdrawn

The afternoon session opened peacefully, though a tense air of expectancy awaited the resumption of the discussion dealing with the budget. A resolution, introduced by H. Gilchrist, in connection with the report of the religious education committee to the effect that the Unionist members of the committee, considering the harmony which had always existed between concurring and non-concurring members, asked the Synod to seek the co-operation of the non-concurring members in this work, threatened for a time. The moderator doubted the competency of the court to deal with such a matter of policy. Objections launched from various parts of the floor of the house patently voiced the lack of unanimity and the motion was subsequently withdrawn by Mr. Gilchrist, who stated that he had no intention of dividing the synod on the question.

Speaker Reprimanded

The real simon pure pyrotechnical display came later in the afternoon after a reminiscent report of the historical committee had lulled the court into a false sense of security. As soon as the discussion on Dr. McGregor's motion was resumed, H. F. Larkin, Seaforth, introduced an amendment to the original motion that congregations be urged to forward such portion of their allocation due by June 10 to the Treasurer of the church, only in the event of satisfactory assurance being given that the unity and integrity of congregations be respected. Condemning the practices of the Union party in no uncertain terms, the speaker was subjected to a reprimand from the Moderator.

"Give him a chance," shouted Dr. S. Banks Nelson from the floor of the house. "We're saying good-bye any how. Let him have a chance to tell what we think of each other."

Rev. F. W. Gilmour, Atwood, seconding the amendment came prepared, he said, to talk money, but he touched on many things before he brought a turbulent speech to a close in which he charged discrimi-

BAPTIST MINISTER SAYS MINERS CANNOT AFFORD TO SURRENDER

"Will Stand Tight Until They Starve or There Will Be Bloodshed," Rev. Dr. McAvoy Tells Ottawa Relief Committee.

OTTAWA, April 29. — (Canadian Press).—"The men will stand tight until they starve, or there is going to be one of the bloodiest fights ever seen; the men will not recede from their position because they cannot afford to."

In these words, Rev. Dr. F. McAvoy, Baptist minister of Glace Bay, indicated the position with regard to the miners of Nova Scotia and Cape Breton and the British Empire Steel Corporation, in the course of an address to about 50 guests at a luncheon Tuesday under the auspices of the National Relief Committee.

Rev. Dr. McAvoy declared that he was engaged in the work of relief before the calling of the strike. The need was there before the strike came on. He made no attempt to fix the responsibility, but somebody had a great deal to answer for in the situation in Nova Scotia. The trouble had not grown up in a night like Jonah's gourd, he said. It had been growing for four years, said Rev. Dr. McAvoy. The hours of labor for the last three years put together would not make one full year's wages, he said.

Finest of Men.

Dr. McAvoy said he had been 20 years in public life, and he judged the men of Glace Bay to be of the finest. They have a fundamental grasp of things, he said. They are men who will not submit to see their wives and children starve, however. Had there been no relief organization when the supplies were cut off by the B.E.S. Co., Glace Bay would have been in the throes of revolution, he said. The relief workers pooled their resources to cope with the situation.

The speaker appealed to the workers from the humanitarian standpoint he said. The need of the women and children had cemented the community solid. A community spirit has developed such as never seen there before. There are 31,980 persons on relief, according to the latest figures, before he left Glace Bay. "It is a national fight, and the Dominion of Canada must needs stand by because it is a national issue," declared Rev. Dr. McAvoy.

Canada Is Practically On Gold Basis, Mr. Robb Says

OTTAWA, April 29.—(Canadian Press).—"Canada has been practically on a gold basis for some time," said Hon. L. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, in commenting on the budget announcement of Right Hon. Winston Churchill that Great Britain is returning to the gold basis.

"My understanding of the speech of the Chancellor of the Exchequer," continued Mr. Robb, "is that the Act prohibiting the export of gold from the United Kingdom, which expires on December 31, 1925, will not be renewed. Council has not considered the Canadian position, but, as already stated, Canada is now for all practical purposes on a gold basis."

NEED NATIONAL SPIRIT TOLMIE TELLS COMMONS

Canadians Should Celebrate July 1 as Thoroughly as Americans Recognize July 4th.

ADVISES MEMBERS.

Quebec Liberal Emphasizes Increase in Number of Woollen Industries in Canada.

OTTAWA, April 29. — (Canadian Press).—Hon. S. F. Tolmie (Conservative, Victoria), in his budget speech yesterday, said that the great est need in Canada was a national spirit. Canadians ought to celebrate the first of July as thoroughly as citizens of the United States celebrate the fourth. Members of Parliament should visit in other constituencies, and come to think nationally instead of Provincially.

The former Minister of Agriculture went at great length into agricultural conditions in Canada. He deplored the failure of the Government to put up a tariff on products of the farm equal to that of the Fordney tariff in the United States. For lack of this, he said Canada was being flooded with eggs from the United States, and from the Orient. The same applied to early vegetables. Dr. Tolmie thought Canada should capitalize the growing demand for northern grown seeds. The more rigorous climates had been found to produce the best seed, and this was a legitimate and potential industry for Canada to go into.

Discussion of sheep raising in Canada brought a number of questions. In answer to one of them, Dr. Tolmie admitted that dogs were sometimes reported missing shortly after they had been found in the sheep field. Sheep raisers in the West tolerated a sheep chasing dog only when its owner provided the sheep and a field to chase them in.

Railway Competition.

Dr. Tolmie said it would be very unfortunate if the Canadian National Railways succeeded in taking away from the C.P.R. sufficient business to make the former pay. It was not desirable that one road should progress at the expense of the other. The only solution for the Canadian National problem was an increase in land settlement, and consequently in railway traffic. He analyzed the immigration situation, and said that one reason for the falling off in immigration to Canada was the heavy fares from Europe. If a man in Europe nowadays had the $1,500 necessary to bring a family to Western Canada and establish a farm, he could do pretty well in his own country.

Dr. Tolmie believed that every encouragement should be given to new-comers to Canada. While it was advisable to develop the Prairie Provinces, he felt that in the distribution of immigrants, this country should be linked up from one end to the other and the vacant spaces along the Canadian National Railways filled. New Brunswick, Quebec, Northern Ontario and British Columbia offered opportunities for immigrants.

Infant Mortality.

Dr. Tolmie drew attention to the problem of infant mortality. Canada stood 11th in the world with 86.8 deaths per thousand living births. The Province of British Columbia, and the City of Victoria, had achieved remarkable records toward the elimination of infant deaths by careful scientific means, which might well be followed by the Dominion.

The tourist traffic in Canada should be developed. National parks brought tourists to Canada last year, who spent, it was estimated twenty-one million dollars, while the parks themselves cost but one and one-quarter million to maintain. He advocated an advertising campaign at the proper season to attract tourists, and the removal of regulations which would impede the tourist trade.

Sees Improvement.

P. F. Casgrain (Liberal, Charlevoix Montmorency) said that this year's tariff was what the Conservatives were asking for last year — stability.

Speaking on conditions, he said there were thirty per cent. more woollen industries in Canada to-day than in July last year. There was a world market for Canadian wool, while in the United States, cotton and woollen mills were closing their doors. In Montreal there was more building than ever before, and the Canadian dollar was at par with the American, while in that country there was less work than in Canada.

Freight rates were too high on agricultural products. Quebec had fewer miles of railway per capita than any province in Canada, yet it was impossible to get a branch line for that province. Mr. Casgrain advocated that the Government subsidize the port of Quebec and assist in the developing of tourist trade throughout Canada.

OPERATOR AND ENGINEER FACE COURT ENQUIRY

C.P.R. Employees Accused of Negligence in Fatal Wreck Near Perth.

TRAINS COLLIDED.

Operator Charged With Failure to Perform Duty at Glen Tay Switch.

PERTH, Ont., April 29.—(Canadian Press). — Criminal charges have been brought by the Crown against Arthur G. Snider and Walter Norris in connection with the recent death in Perth of C. P. R. Engineer David Bourne, whose death was caused from the injuries received when he jumped from a C.P.R. passenger train engine before it collided with a freight engine at Glen Tay on February 26 last. Snider was C.P.R. agent and operator at Glen Tay, and Norris was the engineer in charge of the passenger train engine on the day of the accident.

The charge against Snider is that on the 26th day of February, at the Township of Bathurst, he did cause grievous bodily injury to David Bourne by negligently omitting to perform his duty as the official in charge of a switch on the main line of the C.P.R. at Glen Tay contrary to Section 284 of the criminal code.

The charge against Norris is similar to the one above, with the exception of the word "switch," which reads "engine."

The defendants appeared before Lanark County Magistrate Dr. J. T. Kirkland of Almonte, in Perth, yesterday afternoon, and were remanded on bail until May 5th for preliminary inquiry. Both were released on $2,000 bail apiece.

MILLION DOLLAR SUIT.

Action Against Paper Company Over Oil Purchase.

BOSTON, April 29.—Trial of a suit involving $1,000,000 brought by the Beacon Oil Company of Everett against the International Paper Company of New York began Tuesday before Judge Morton and a jury in the United States district court.

The plaintiff company alleges that the paper company, which controls more than a score of mills in Canada and this country, in October, 1920, entered into a contract to purchase the following year 550,000 barrels of fuel oil at $3.50 a barrel. The purchaser, the bill states, took only 266,802 barrels, and the price in the meantime dropped to low levels, entailing heavy loss to the vendor firm. The defendant company declares that because of strikes and other unfavorable conditions, it was unable to carry out its terms.

SAGUENAY POWER PLAN.

Permission For Development Sought By Quebec Company.

QUEBEC, April 29. — (Canadian Press).—Permission to erect a dam, a power house, canals and other works for power development is sought by the Quebec Development Company. These works are to be erected at a point along the Saguenay River, near Chute-a-Caron, a short distance from the Shipshaw River. It is understood that work on the dam will start very shortly.

WEATHER

The temperature got down to the freezing point (32 degrees) by the thermometer, last night, but no sign of ice or frost was discernible, at least in my section. In valleys and lower lying places it was probably in evidence. When the night is calm the cold air, being heavier than the warmer air, naturally sinks in the lower places, like water seeking its lowest level. If a wind is blowing this colder air is dislodged and mixed with the warmer, and the temperature will then be the same on the top of a hill as in the valley, though no people would say that the higher place was much the colder. Judging by their feelings, it is, by the thermometer, it is not.—W.P.

SAFE BLOWERS VISIT TRENTON

DOOR STOOD SHOCK.

TRENTON, April 29 (Canadian Press).—Safe blowers visited Trenton during the night and made an unsuccessful attempt to open the safe in the store of A. W. Belleghem, undertaker and furniture dealer. A small charge of explosive failed to demolish the door.

TERRORIST KILLED.

Shot Official and Seven Policemen Before Being Bombed to Death.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 29 (Canadian Press)—The killing of another Terrorist suspect near here after a desperate struggle with the police is reported. Discovered carrying revolvers and bombs, concealed in two flower baskets the man killed an official who attempted to arrest him. Police traced him to a house, but he took refuge in a nearby canal from which, for six hours, he held the police at bay. He was finally bombed to death but only after seven policemen had been killed.

Money AT WORK

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

If you install a radio in your home be sure to notify your fire insurance company.

Most insurance companies will not increase the premium on a house which has a radio receiving set installed in it, but failure to notify the company of such a technical "risk" as the addition of a radio set may invalidate the policy.

A short letter to the insurance company stating the fact that a set has been installed is usually all the trouble it is necessary to take. Expert electricians have agreed that a receiving set in the house (crystal or tube) when properly installed and carrying a lightning arrester does not increase the fire risk. Insurance companies have accepted this opinion.

GRUESOME TRAGEDY.

Shoe and Eye Glasses Are Keys to Murder of Girl.

GARY Ind., April 29 — A pair of eyeglasses for a middle aged man and a woman's grey suede left shoe were the keys held to-day by the authorities investigating the death of an unidentified girl whose dismembered, burned and bullet-riddled body, was found on Sunday near Chesterton, Ind. The shoe was found by a police dog about three hundred feet from the spot where the body was found. The dog followed the trail to a small lake in the swamp and it is believed the missing legs and arms of the girl were thrown into the lake.

WHAT DOES MAY 1ST MEAN TO YOU?

Hundreds of city-dwellers have been waiting anxiously for the opening of the speckled-trout season—and now their dream of a happy outing is about to be realized.

In a hundred crystal streams—many of them but a short distance away—the speckled trout are snapping at the unwary insects Spring has brought. The first of May opens the season—now is the time to overhaul your tackle and get ready to enjoy that best of all outings—a fishing trip in the woods.

Forget dull care— leave life's every-day routine for a few days—go after the gamey "big fellows" that are lying under the reeds and in the ripples waiting for the tempting flies or succulent angle worms.

The famous trout regions are readily accessible—Canadian National Railways will take you to them by shortest routes and in utmost comfort.

Do you wonder where the fishing is at its best? Ask a Canadian National ticket agent—he will help you plan your trip, whether it be to some delightful woodland resort in the Rideau region, Kawartha Lakes, Haliburton Highlands, Algonquin Park, the Georgian Bay region, or a quiet country spot nearer home. 2d-25-29

CAMPBELLFORD MUSTERING MEN WITH PULL FOR TUG O' WAR TEAM

Townsmen Will Tussle With Township Heavyweights at Fair Board's Field Day.

MAYOR IS CAPTAIN.

Match Will Be One of Features of Victoria Day Celebration.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 29—Directors Henry Watters and Alex Hume of the Seymour Agricultrat Society, live in Percy and Seymour Township respectively, the townships that have tug of war teams that have been pitted against each other for years with the odds in favor of the Seymour representatives. It was these gentlemen who at the meeting the other night moved that Campbellford organize a team. Probably neither of them had in mind any plot to shift the championship from country to town but that is likely to be the result. Campbellford accepts the challenge and due notice has been given that something stronger than the inch rope ordinarily used will be required when the three teams try conclusions at the celebration to be held here on Victoria Day.

Mayor Meyers, an acknowledged leader of men, has already been settled upon as the captain and there is plenty of material from which to select a team that should prove all but invincible. Among those that the organizers have in mind are the following:

Charles H. Davidson, who can never turn a deaf ear when there comes an invitation to an athletic event. Mr. Davidson has the required weight, the enthusiasm to win and the stamina to stand the most strenuous struggle. He has had experience in this line of sport sufficient to prove his prowess.

Alex McDonald, blacksmith, has the "iron band" muscles that are particularly associated with that calling, and he has been put on the list of eligibles.

A. G. Watson when he lived on a farm in the Burnbrae district, was one of the most sturdy members of the champion team. Seven years of business life in town may have robbed Mr. Watson of some of his strength but it would not take him long to get into the pink of condition again.

Another former Burnbrae resident is J. S. Wallace, who weighs over 200 pounds and does not look it, a man who from his appearance is generaly underestimated in an athletic sense.

Other men who will be asked to take a place on the team are Thomas Sampson, Charles McCoy, Fred Bennett and D. A. McCook. It would be an easy matter to pick 10 men in Campbellford who would equal the champions or the Percy team in weight and who would be just as zealous as any of them in an attempt to capture the honor of the championship. It is proposed to have the Seymour and Percy teams settle their long standing rivalry on Victoria Day and then have the Campbellford men contest with the winner for the first prize.

T. L. Diamond has sold to Hilton White the residence and two acres of land near the station belonging to James Moore, who takes Mr. White's house and lot on Queen Street in part payment. Mr. Moore will move to the farm which he recently purcased from Fred McMullen.

nation against non-concurring students.

"Did the Home Mission Board refuse posts to student applicants?" he queried the Moderator.

"I don't know," the Moderator replied, "but I don't think that they would be a party to unfair practices of this nature."

Dr. McGregor rising to reply to this "unfair and disreputable" charge stated that although he had not been present at the meeting of the Home Mission Board he thought that the situation was due to the present state of the church.

"Where a student is known to be non-concurring he is given a non-concurring charge. That is the only fair way to do the thing," the doctor explained.

The Moderator deemed the introduction of such hearsay as irrelevant to the subject in hand.

"It is not hearsay," Dr. Nelson shot back; "it is evidence."

Mr. Gilmour objected to the use of the word "disreputable which Dr. McGregor withdrew, but he still maintained the charge was unfair.

"Get Golden Egg"

Dr. L. B. Gibson, Woodstock, thought the synod was expecting to get the golden egg when it was doing all in its power to strangle the hen.

"If the Unionists would stay out of our church we could get down to business and raise the budget," he stated.

Dr. Nelson drew a stinging rebuke from the Moderator when he stated that J. W. Woodside, Unionist leader, should have been put in jail six months ago.

"He's a disturber of the public peace," he shouted waving documentary evidence in the way of Unionist literature which had been circulated from Toronto.

Mr. Nelson subsequently withdrew his statement.

Mr. I. H. MacDonald, Kintore, caused not a little amusement when he was checked for using the words "more sanctimonious and pious" in connection with a certain element of his congregation. An objection sustained by loud applause came from the floor of the house.

"All right," returned the doctor, "they weren't sanctimonious and they weren't pious,"

In response to a plea from the Moderator that a cessation be made of the washing of all the dirty linen of both sides in public, Hugh Gilchrist suggested that both the resolution and the amendment be withdrawn. This was finally done shortly before the adjournment of the afternoon session.

"Let's go to California"

EVERY day some tired, prosperous or otherwise travel-inclined man says to his wife, "Let's go to California!" And such is the power of advertising that, although neither of them may ever have been there before, they know just how to go, approximately what it will cost, and where they will want to stay.

The same with anything you may need or want. You already know all about it, by whom it is made, what it costs, and where it is for sale. Advertising is the modern intelligencer. It keeps you informed, advises you of new things, suggests new uses for articles you already own, and prepares you to-day for wise and useful purchases to-morrow.

It does all this for you, almost unconsciously, during the half-hour or so you spend each day with your newspaper. Little by little—the best and surest way to learn—advertising makes you informed of what is going on in the world that is useful to you.

Read the advertisements. Get ready for to-morrow.

A BLOW TO AUSTRIA.

The tone of the Austrian comment on the election of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg as President of Germany conveys the impression that the Austrian people have no desire to join in any scheme of revenge that may be developing in the hearts of the Germans.

Throughout Austria it is stated that the newspapers of all parties are regarding the triumph of the former Commander-in-Chief of the German forces as a serious blow to the suggestion of an Austrian union with Germany, and as a misfortune to the German people themselves.

RACING MOTORISTS.

Complaints have reached the Examiner of reckless driving by motorists on George street north, where, it is declared, that racing is a common practice.

One incident reported almost ended in a fatality, a pair of racing automobiles forcing other traffic nearly off the road, with the result that a youngster on a kiddie car came within an ace of being run over.

Fast driving is bad enough at any time, but jail is the only place for drivers who are foolish enough to enter into a speed contest on a main artery of traffic, and the arrest of a few offenders might have a very beneficial effect.

This practice of racing is on a par with the other habit many drivers have of trying to beat a street car to a corner, a manoeuvre that often results in a dangerous menace to other traffic and to pedestrians.

Careful motorists who try alike to observe the law of the land and the Golden Rule are numerous, but their regard for others is negatived by the irresponsibles who look upon a paved road as a speedway laid down for them to display their prowess as racing drivers.

The only thing that will stop the latter class is to give the magistrate a chance to inspect some of the most flagrant offenders.

MADE-IN-PETERBORO.

Peterboro citizens will be glad to learn that the plans for the Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition in the Armouries in June in aid of the Peterboro Health Association are maturing, and that the event promises to be a most interesting success.

The Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition takes the place of the Motor Show, which for a number of years has supplied the Health Association with a large proportion of the funds necessary for the carrying on of the splendid activities of the organization.

The automotive dealers deserve a great deal of credit for the co-operation accorded the committe in making the Motor Show a success each year, and if the manufacturers of the city show a similar spirit, there need be no doubts about the Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition.

It can be made an outstanding community effort in which the importance of Peterboro as a manufacturing centre will be effectively demonstrated, and at the same time a substantial sum will be raised for the Health Association.

Peterboro's industries are numerous and varied, offering the possibilities of a most attractive showing of exhibits.

It is often complained that Peterboro people are not sufficiently careful about asking for Peterboro-made products when making purchases.

Perhaps that can be accounted for in the fact that many citizens have no idea of the many articles that are manufactured in their midst.

The Made-in-Peterboro Exhibition should remedy that condition of affairs—in other words, it should "sell" Peterboro products to Peterboro people.

THE DAYLIGHT SAVING BATTLE.

Canada is not the only country in which the believers in daylight saving find militant opposition. It has just happened that the Legislature of Pennsylvania has passed a law making it an offence to in any way change Eastern standard time within the State. The explanation of this rather extraordinary interference with local option is found in the fact that rural representatives in the State Legislature outnumber the urbanites; and over there, as here, the farmers who do not want daylight saving for themselves are bound that nobody else shall have it. They insist that it compels them to get up when the dew is still on the grass, and sends sleepy children off to school an hour earlier than under "God's time." Some of them may even believe with our own Mr. Black, M.P., that it produces lazy men.

Of course, the farmers are wrong. They can get up when they please, and as for the children it is sheer imagination that they are required to get up an hour earlier than usual. Daylight saving does not alter the fundamental fact that there are 24 hours in each day, and the division of those hours is unchanged by the innocent moving of the clock an hour ahead. The most discouraging thing is that our rural friends cannot see what is so obvious to nearly everybody else.

But the people in the cities of Pennsylvania, in common with the people of nearly all the other States, are determined to have daylight saving all the same. And no enactment of a Legislature can stop them. They propose to leave the clock alone, since the law forbids them to tamper with it, and to just act as if it had been moved an hour ahead. Exchanges, stores, restaurants, factories and business and industrial places of all kinds, will simply open an hour earlier between the first of May and the end of September, and close an hour earlier.

Few things could be more regrettable and senseless than the opposition of rural communities to what the cities wish to do in respect of daylight saving. If these crazy city people want to put up with all the discomforts and inconveniences which the farmers fancy attaches to daylight saving, why shouldn't they be allowed to do so? Why shouldn't our rural friends simply ignore the whole movement as a thing which does not concern them in any way whatever? They can't prevent it, no matter what they may do.—Ottawa Journal.

PLAYING POLITICS IN U.S.

It is easy to gather from a resume of opinion in the current issue of the Literary Digest that the tariff is the greatest talking point on earth. Quotations from twenty newspapers and a reproduction of the work of several cartoonists demonstrate that the Fordney-McCumber tariff, the highest United States has ever had, is, in turn, a curse to the nation, the bulwark of the land, and the friend and enemy of the consumer. It all depends whether the paper is Democrat or Republican, the former being for the most part low-tariff and the latter ardent exponents of a tariff as high as the Statue of Liberty.

It is impossible to make the tariff issue remain quiet in United States because the interests of the various sections in a position to impress their views on the Government are so unalterably opposed. It might be suspected that banking interests would be solidly behind the manufacturers in their efforts for more tariff protection, but the position of United States as a nation of great wealth, with large amounts owing in European countries, gives the bankers something else to think about beside tariff for the protection of the home market. American credits, loans and investments abroad amount to about $20,000,000,000, and the only hope of collecting this or realizing on the investment is that the nations where the money is loaned shall be busy buying and selling, trading and manufacturing, making profits on their activities, for it is by such measures that debts are paid.

That twenty billion is large enough to cause the American bankers some concern. The Louisville Courier-Journal gets close to the matter when it says: "Europe can't pay us except in goods; by means of our tariff we refuse to let her pay us in goods; and yet we insist she must pay." The bankers are also interested in the farmers, who are clamoring for a greater market. They want to sell to Europe, but Europe can't buy because Europe can't get her products into the United States market. United States, according to the Democratic press, has taken the position that she will trade with the world on the basis that she will do all the selling if the rest of the universe will do the buying.

Cotton manufacturers, backed by a powerful organization, are demanding more tariff; they point to mills that have been shut down, to others that are running a few hours a week at reduced wages. Concurrent with this movement comes the appeal from the Farmers' National Council for a lowering of the rates on "metals and manufactures thereof and on articles of cotton and wool." The industrial east tells President Coolidge if there is tinkering with the tariff, business will go to pieces; the agricultural west and part of the south warns him if he does not move toward lower tariff the same thing will happen.

The United States tariff as it stands today is a tremendous collector of revenue. When it was fashioned Fordney and McCumber figured it would turn out proceeds worth $450,000,000 per year. It has exceeded expectations, and produces $600,000,000 per year, which causes the Raleigh News and Observer, edited by Josephus Daniels, ex-Secretary of the Navy, to observe that this amount is far greater than the reductions made in income tax. That paper says: "It ought to be called propaganda to add by tariff taxation $5 for every $1 of reduction of taxes on incomes. The difference is, the benefits of tax reduction go to the 6,700,000 people who file income returns — the increase in tariff taxes reaches 110,000,000 people."

If one can sense the feeling from a perusal of all the divergent views expressed in the Digest's resume it is that pressure is being exerted by those who want the tariff left alone or made higher, and also from the farmers and many consumers who want it made lower. In this contest the high tariff people have the advantage because they are strongly organized, whereas the consuming population have no such organization and therefore cannot forcibly impress the powers at Washington.—London Advertiser.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, April 28. — There was a distinctly lower tone to the market today, with too many cattle offering for immediate requirements. This may be a temporary condition due to the heavy run, this as it is a little early for the usual easing off in prices as the spring grass cattle begin to arrive. These will hardly be in the market for a few weeks yet. The slightly easier market this week is more directly owing to the limited export demand, and the larger supplies. There was considerably over 2,000 cattle offering today, including a heavy hold over.

The export trade is not yet in full swing, as boats are not yet available for a large trade.

Rogers & Maybee took one or two loads of export stuff to-day, making their total buy for the two days about 700 cattle, heavy steers, stores, and a few bulls. Prices were a shade easier than last week, though individual lots sold up to $8.25 and $8.50. The average was from $7.75 to $8.00; choice store cattle from $7.00 to $8.00, and bulls from $4.50 to $5.00. There are quite a few export cattle left over.

The butchers trade was slow today, and prices generaly a shade easier.

Calves continue weak, and are 50c to $1.00 lower.

Sheep and lambs steady.

Hogs weak, and market unsettled, but looks like 25c lower at $11.75 f.o.b.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 28. — Reports that the British Government has arranged for $300,000,000 credit in the United States were largely responsible for a lively advance in grain prices today. The wheat market closed strong at the day's top figures, 3 3-4 to 5 1-2 cents a bushel net higher; May $1.49 1-2 to $1.49 3-4 and July $1.40 1-4 to $1.40 1-2, with corn 4 to 4 3-8 cents up, oats showing 1 1-8 to 1 1-4 to 1 3-8 cents gain and provisions ranging from 20 cents decline to a rise of 12c.

EGG PRICES

OTTAWA, April 28.—The egg market appears to be fairly well established for the present and fluctuations will be within very small range during the next week or two. The quality of arrivals is heavy. A large business is being done in Western eggs and in one day 5 cars were sold to Toronto at, extras 29, firsts 27, seconds 25 in new cases, f.o.b. Winnipeg. The freight on these to Toronto would cost about 3 cents per dozen.

Toronto and Montreal—Firm and unchanged.

Winnipeg—Jobbing, extras 29, firsts 27, seconds 25.

STERLING RATES

Sterling demand $4.83 1-8.

Sterling cables $4.83 1-2.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, April 28.— A moderate amount of business was worked in wheat, rye and oats in the Montreal market today with the United Kingdom and the Continent for May loading.

The demand for oats in the local market was good and sales of No. 2 feed were made at 51 1-8 cents per bushel, c.i.f., Montreal, and No. 1 feed sold at two cents per bushel under the Winnipeg May option, c.i.f., Bay Ports. Local prices were stronger at an advance of 1-2 cents per bushel.

The feature of the flour trade was the improved demand from United Kingdom and Continental buyers for Spring wheat grades and as the prices bid from the former source were in some cases in line with millers views here, quite a few of the orders were accepted and on the whole a moderate trade was done for May-June shipment. In sympathy with the strength that prevailed in the Winnipeg cash wheat situation, a firmer feeling was reported locally but prices did not show any change.

A steady feeling continues to prevail in the local egg market and prices were unchanged. A fairy good business was done in a wholesale jobbing way and the market was moderately active. The receipts were 4,976 cases, as against 5,772 for the same day last week, and 4,061 for the corresponding day a year ago.

The receipts of butter were 256 packages, as against 1,512 for the same day last week, and 1,046 for the corresponding day a year ago. There was no change in the condition of the market, prices for all grades being fairly well maintained which was due to the improved demand for supplies from both local and outside buyers and a moderate amount of business was done.

The receipts of cheese were 3,785 boxes, as compared with 2,457 for the same day last week, and 1,481 for the corresponding day a year ago. The tone of the market was about steady and prices showed no important change. There continues to be a moderate demand from English importers for supplies owing to the fact that their markets are practically bare of Canadian cheese. There was also some business done on spot and the market on the whole was rather more active with Western No. 1 white and colored quoted at 18 1-2 cents per lb., and No. 2 grades at 17 1-2 cents per lb, while Quebec 20-lb. cheese sold at 15 to 15 1-2 cents per lb. It was reported that further importations of New Zealand cheese have arrived.

On the local curb market today there were 1,000 boxes of cheese and 600 packages of creamery butter offered for which there was a steady demand, and the Quebec cheese sold at 17 1-4 cents per lb. and No. 1 creamery butter at 32 1-2 cents per lb., delivered here.

Beans changed hands at $2.70 per bushel.

Latex-treated Web Cord Means More Mileage

IN Dominion Royal Cord Tires, mileage is not limited by friction in the cords.

In Dominion Royal Cords the causes of internal friction are entirely removed by latex-treated web cord. That is why Dominion Royal Cords actually can, and do give more mileage.

Perfect insulation of every fibre of every cord is assured by saturation with rubber in its pure, natural liquid form (latex).

Absolute regularity of every cord is made possible by the elimination of cross-tie threads. After saturation the cords unite to form a perfectly flat even web. Every cord lies uniformly, bears even strains. No friction. No heat!

Dominion Royal Cords alone, in Canada, are made by this process which ensures greater mileage at no additional cost.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

The solution will appear in to-morrow's paper.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

THE STORY SO FAR.

GLORIA GORDON, twenty and pretty, marries DICK GREGORY, because she thinks he has money. Gloria's idea of marriage is plenty of fun and expensive clothes.....but no children.

When Dick tells Gloria she must do her own housework she has hysterics. So Dick borrows MAGGIE, his mother's maid, to teach Gloria to cook. Gloria refuses to learn.

STANLEY WAYBURN an actor whom Gloria once loves, calls on her. When Dick sees him leave the house Gloria tells her husband that he was only an interior decorator.

Dick is home ill for a few days. His secretary MISS BRIGGS, comes to work there with him. While they are busy Gloria makes plans for a house-warming. She invites Stanley Wayburn. Dick recognizes him as the man whom Gloria has told him was an interior decorator.

Glory becomes reckless and drinks too much when she sees Stanley kissing MYRA GAIL. She faints away while dancing with DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, whose wife, MAY, is in love with JIM CAREWE.

The party breaks up when LOLA HOUGH "bawls" out BILL, her husband, for "petting" with May. Maggie, disgusted, leaves the house. The next morning Dick asks Gloria if the man he saw leaving the house was Wayburn or not.

Glory struggled in Dick's arms. Her soft and yielding body had become a bundle of steel wire.

"You let me alone!" she panted.

"I won't!" Dick said stubbornly. "I won't, until you've told me whether the fellow you had in this house that day was Wayburn or not!"

"It wasn't Stan Wayburn!" Glory cried. "And you know it! Haven't I told you a dozen times that it was the man about the lampshades?"

Dick freed her.

Glory saw that he believed her lie.

"I'm sorry," he said slowly. "But I would have sworn it was Wayburn. . . . You'll have to forgive me, Glory. I'm so damnably jealous of you!"

Glory tied her head up in a towel. She began to lather her face with cold cream.

"I should say you are jealous!" she agreed. "If you're going to think that every interior decorator or bill collector who comes to this house is Stan Wayburn, we'd better separate right now!"

She walked into the bathroom.

"My bath water's all cold now," Glory grumbled. "I was ready to take my bath half an hour ago when you started this row! . . . I suppose I'll die of pneumonia if I bathe in this cold stuff. Then maybe you'll be sorry for the cat-and-dog life you've led me!"

She closed the door.

"Hey, give me a kiss before I go!" Dick called. He had put on his hat and picked up his brief-case.

But Glory had locked the door and turned the water on in the tub. . . . She pretended not to hear him.

* * *

As soon as she was dressed, Glory closed the door of her disordered house behind her and started out.

The employment agency on Charlotte street was kept by an efficient-looking young lady who said she was sure she knew the very housemaid for Glory.

"Her name is Ranghild Swanson," she said. "I'll call her on the phone and send her right up to your house to see you. I'm sure you'll like her, Mrs. Gregory."

On the way home Glory passed Lola Hough's shabby, rambling house.

The twins were on the front walk on their kiddie cars. The baby sat in his white buggy on the porch, watching them ride up and down. . . . Lola was probably drudging away in the house, as usual, Glory thought to herself.

"Where's your mother?" she asked suddenly of Billy, Junior.

"In vee house, makin' cookies!" said Billy, "and when dem is made, Betty and me is goin' to have one. . . . Go on in, maybe she'll give you one, too!"

"Come out in the kitchen," Lola Hough said when she opened the door "I'm doing my Saturday baking. . . . Smell the cookies in the oven?"

Gloria followed her through the clean rooms of the house. The carpets were threadbare and the furniture worn. But there were red geraniums blooming in all the windows; and the house, somehow, seemed a happy place.

"I have the time of my life on Saturdays," Lola remarked in her brisk way. "The laundry and mending and cleaning are all out of the way earlier in the week. . . . So Saturday's my day for baking and marketing. . . . Don't you enjoy going to market, Glory? I do."

She opened the oven door as she spoke. A rich spicy odor filled the sunlit kitchen.

Gloria stared at her. There were pink spots in Lola's face. Her blue eyes were alight. It was plain to be seen that she really was "having the time of her life" . . . baking cookies!

* * *

"Do I enjoy going to market?" Glory repeated slowly. "Are you trying to kid me, Lola? Why, I've never marketed in my life . . . and I never will so long as the grocer has a telephone!"

Lola deftly emptied a panful of crisp, hot cookies onto a tea towel.

"That's because you're new to your job of keeping house," she said. "After awhile, you'll become an artist at planning meals and keeping down expenses."

Gloria jumped up from her chair. This sort of talk bored her.

"Jiminy, it's three o'clock! I must go," she said. "I have a new maid coming. . . . Maggie quite her job last night after the party."

"Wait until I take these gingerbread boys out of the oven . . . and I'll go to the door with you," Lola said. There was a troubled frown on her face.

"Glory," she said after a long pause, "I'm terribly sorry for going to pieces last night the way I did. . . . It's not that I mind having said that I think drinking parties are dreadful. I do think it! . . . But I'm sorry I told you about Bill and his drinking . . . and his debts."

"O, I forgot about that as soon as you'd said it," Glory answered. "Besides, everybody knows all about Bill anyway."

"I know," Lola answered. "But I'm his wife . . . and no matter what he does, it's my job to stand up for him. And if I do I know that, in the end, everything will come out all right!"

"Lola," said Glory suddenly. "Are you ever sorry you married Bill?"

"Sorry I married Bill?" Lola repeated in a surprised tone. "Of course not! . . . Why, I'd rather be poor and be Bill's wife than . . . anything else on earth!"

Glory stared at her. She saw that Lola meant what she said. Overworked and neglected, she still was happy in making a home for a man who never was in it when there was any other place to go. She was a puzzle!

* * *

As Glory went up the street toward her own house she noticed a girl all in rusty black just ahead of her.

The girl turned in at the Gregorys' front walk. Glory hurried to catch up with her.

"You must be the maid from the employment agency . . . Ranghild Swanson?" she asked.

The girl turned and smiled. Glory liked her instantly. She hated people who were unpleasant to look at.

This girl with her corn-flower blue eyes and colored hair was.

Together they walked up the steps of the house.

"Tell me what you can do," Glory said when they were in the hall.

"I can do any kind of housework," Ranghild said simply. "And I'm a good, plain cook. And if you have a washing-machine I don't mind doing the laundry."

Glory considered. This sounded too good to be true!

"And how much would you want for doing all that work?" she asked.

"Eighteen dollars a week," Ranghild's voice was firm.

Eighteen dollars! Seventy-five a month! Glory wondered if Dick could afford to pay Ranghild that much money. . . . Oh, well, he'd just have to pay it!

. . . Other men could afford maids for their wives. There was no reason why Dick couldn't, too!

"All right," Glory said. "Can you start work tomorrow?"

Ranghild nodded. She said she'd be at the house in time to get breakfast. . . . That was a blessing!

* * *

But in the meantime there was the house to be cleaned up.

As soon as Ranghild had gone, Glory took off her hat and fur coat.

She hung them in the clothes-closet under the stairs. In the corner of it stood the vacuum cleaner.

Glory took it out. She attached it to a floor plug and ran it around the house.

Then she laid a newspaper on the floor. Into it she threw all the broken glasses and cigaret ashes she could find.

Someone had emptied a glass of gin-gingerale all over the Spanish shawl on the piano. The silk had stuck to the wood.

And when Gloria tried to pull it away, a large piece of the gaudy embroidery was torn out. Underneath, the wood was stained and marked.

. . . There was a big hole burned in the blue velvet davenport. Bill Hough had probably done that with his everlasting cigaret!

The inlaid wood of the dining room table was covered with white rings where sticky, wet glasses had been set down.

A curtain had been pulled from its pole. It lay on the floor.

The whole house was a wreck!

"Next time I give a party it'll be a barn-dance or a picnic in the woods!" Glory said to herself. "They certainly ruined my cute little house last night!"

She forgot her own part in the revelry.

* * *

The front door-bell rang. . . . Mother Gregory!

Gloria could see her through the net curtains on the door.

She made up her mind not to let her in.

Then the bell rang again . . . a short, commanding ring!

The girl flew to the door.

Without a word Mother Gregory stepped into the house.

She looked all around her. Then she turned her eagle eyes upon her beautiful daughter-in-law.

In her expensive dress of gray silk, Glory held a duster in one hand, and the torn shawl in the other.

"I like your working clothes," Mother Gregory said, scornfully. "Where's your apron?"

Then her voice became more gentle.

"Come in and sit down, Glory," she said quietly. "I want to talk to you. Maggie told me about the drunken party you had here last night. But I couldn't believe all she said until just now! . . . Gloria, do you think you're starting the right way in this marriage of yours and Dick's?"

"I don't know what you mean," the girl replied, stubbornly.

Mother Gregory leaned over and took her hand.

"You know Dick hasn't much money," she said, seriously. "You know he spent all his savings getting this house ready for you. His father gave Dick the money for your wedding trip, as a present. . . . Dick's a poor young lawyer, with his way to make. Are you helping him by giving these hundred-dollar parties? . . . Maggie said you paid thirty dollars for flowers alone, for it!"

"Well . . . and what else did Maggie say? What other tales did she carry to you?" asked Glory. Her tone was sarcasm itself.

Mother Gregory cleared her throat.

"She said that my son and Mrs. Hough were the only two sober people in this house last night . . . except herself!" Dick's mother answered. "She said that you had to be carried upstairs and put to bed . . . Gloria, Gloria, what kind of a woman has my boy married?"

ODDFELLOWS WENT TO GRACE CHURCH

MILLBROOK, April 29.—Grace Presbyterian church was well filled for the service on Sunday evening, the centre seats being reserved for Millbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 308, which had a large representation present, the parade from the lodge rooms being headed by the local band under the leadership of G. A. Duncan.

The choir had prepared special music for the occasion, the selections including an anthem, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace", with solo by Miss Kathleen Lancashire, and duet by Mrs. Gervan and Mrs. H. W. Johnston; and a quintette, "The Name of Jesus is so Sweet," by Mrs. Gervan, Miss C. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Mr. N. McDowell. Miss G. Clarry presided at the organ.

The pastor, Rev. G. S. Gervan, read the Scripture lesson from Luke the 10th chapter, using the story of the Good Samaritan as the foundation of his sermon.

Mr. Gervan prefaced his remarks by a reference to the fact that Sunday marked the 105th anniversary of Oddfellowship in Canada. There is no authentic account of the origin of this fraternal organization in the Old Country, but it has a history five years past the century mark in the Dominion. Oddfellows themselves will have the best understanding of the real reason why, when other fraternal societies have declined in membership, their Order is bigger and stronger than ever as it celebrates its birthday occasion.

Oddfellowship is founded on the Bible, and no man can be a true Oddfellow and neglect genuine religion, and the claims of the church. To put the Lodge first, or allow it to replace the church altogether, is a sad mistake, because it means putting the form in place of the substance. A separation of ideals is neither logical nor wise.

The story of the Good Samaritan, with its answer to the question, Who is my Neighbor? and the Master's word, "Go, and do thou likewise," is one of the foundation stones of Oddfellowship. Familiarity may blind one to its mingled beauty, and the moral obligation imposed, but there must be times when it causes serious thought. Jesus thought the question important enough to turn aside from the thread of His discourse to set this young man right in his thinking.

"The search for one's neighbor, to be ideal, must be constant, not spasmodic; it must be unconscious, showing that the life is trained that way; and it must not be confined to a certain class, or group. Keeping in touch with the Ideal Man, we cannot help but serve those in need. The middle link of the Lodge emblem, "Love", brings the substance of life into the other two, Friendship, and Truth", finding the source of its warmth in the heart of God."

CURLERS' DEATHS LOSS TO DISTRICT

George Little and Billy Meiklejohn Will Be Missed.

Curlers of this district, and especially of the Peterboro club, deeply regret the recent deaths of George Little of Lindsay and Billy Meikle-John of Campbellford. The famous Lindsay skip was perhaps the better known of the two in local curling, and was regarded here as a formidable foeman, and one of the smartest exponents of the ancient game.

To defeat a rink skipped by Geo. Little was itself an achievement, however went the fortunes of the competitions in which he was always a dominant figure at the Charlotte street rink. He had already become one of those traditional skips whose very name, like that of the "Black Douglas," was held in something akin to awe by his opponents, and in death he will often be recalled in hours of reminiscence at the Peterboro club, when the shades of the stalwarts of other days are called up by those who crossed brooms with them.

Billy Meiklejohn was a comparative newcomer, but during the last three years he had played here on Campbellford rinks, and had won among the curling fraternity a warm place in their affections. He was an enthusiastic curler, a genial bighearted chap, whose fine sense of sportsmanship did credit to himself and to the Campbellford club.

FARMERS ARE BUSY

Seeding Engages Their Attention—Other Norwood News of Interest.

NORWOOD, April 29—The farmers in this district are all busily engaged in seeding.

Miss Isobel Laughlin of Toronto sang very acceptably at both services in St. Andrew's church on Sunday last. In the morning the number she rendered was "Only a Little Way," and in the evening "Ashamed of Jesus." Everyone who heard Miss Laughlin were delighted with her singing.

Successful Entertainment.

The Mission Band of the Methodist (United) Church held a very successful entertainment in the Sunday school room on Friday evening last. The program consisted of choruses, instrumental and vocal numbers and recitations; also a Bible pantomime depicting incidents in the life of Samuel. This was acted by a number of the C.G.I.T. girls. The principal parts in the pantomime were taken by Miss Anna Brethen, who represented Eli, the high priest; Miss Lillian Greenbank as Hannah, the mother of Samuel, and Miss Maud Bongard, as the boy Samuel.

Miss E. L. Waters spent the week end in Peterborough with her sister, Mrs. R. Lees.

Mrs. R. G. Lawlor attended the reception given in Peterborough on Monday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Gordon Wright.

Mr. and Mrs John Weir spent the week end with friends in Trenton and Belleville.

Mrs. B. F. Sutton and Miss Barbara Foote motored to Madoc on Sunday and spent the day with the latter's parents, Mr and Mrs. Gordon Foote.

Mrs. R. G. Lawlor is spending the week in Toronto.

Mrs. John Riseborough was in Peterborough on Monday.

NOBILITY AT WORK.

FUNERAL OF FORMER CAMPBELLFORD MAN

Robert Riddell Died While Visiting Daughter in the Town.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 27. — The funeral of the late Robert Riddell was held yesterday afternoon from the residence of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Brady, and was largely attended by friends and relatives of the deceased. Rev. James Greer, who was supplying the pulpit of St. Andrew's church of which the late Mr. Riddell has been a member when he resided here 17 years ago, conducted religious services at the home, at 2.30, after which the remains were interred in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Among the mourners were two sons, who had come from a distance, George, from Plymouth, Mass., and Robert, accompanied by his wife and daughter from Paris. Mr. and Mrs. George Keller, the latter a daughter, were present from Brimley, Mich. Thomas Riddell, a brother, and his daughter came from their home in Port Dover.

The pallbearers all old friends of the deceased were: Fred Wood, J. P. Archer, Sanders Burleigh, James Massie, Henry Hill and Jas. Dunk.

The floral offerings included a pillow from the family, and wreaths from the spinning department of the Penman Company, of Paris, where the deceased was formerly employed; from Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Palliser, from George Mabelt Sons, Plymouth Works, the firm in which the son George is employed, and from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tanner, Paris.

A Former Resident.

The late Mr. Riddell was born in Scotland 73 years ago but came to Campbellford when five years old, residing here until 17 years ago. He was married to Miss Alice Pope and the couple were planning to celebrate their golden wedding in July. Mr. and Mrs. Riddell came here to visit their daughter, Mrs. Wesley Brady, a week ago. The husband took ill on the journey, and gradually grew worse until the end came.

PASSENGERS MAY SMOKE ON AIRSHIP

New British Airship Uses Heavy Oil and Has Smoking Room.

LONDON, April 29.—(Associated Press).—England's giant airship, the R-101, which is to ply between this country and India, is to be constructed of stainless steel, and is to have two separate decks and accommodation for 100 passengers. The use of stainless steel in the framework of the dirigible is considered by experts to be a decided advance in airship construction because of its strength.

Passengers and crew on the R-101 may smoke pipes, cigars or cigarettes during voyages, as the engines will not use gasoline as fuel, but a heavy gas oil instead, and by this system virtually all danger of fire while in the air will be eliminated. Provision for a smoking room has been made in the plans and this compartment will be built along the lines of those upon an ocean liner, only on a somewhat smaller scale, of course. The sleeping quarters will consist of two-bed cabins, also similar to steamship berths.

According to the present plans of the builders, who are working in conjunction with the Air Ministry, the keel of the ship will be laid down some time in July. The R-101 is to be 720 feet in length and 140 feet in diameter and is expected to begin its flights via the great eastern airway some time in 1926.

GOLD-TIPPED TOES.

PARIS, April 29.—Almost bare feet with toes tipped with deep pink or gold is the fashion predicted for smart Parisiennes this summer. The new shoe has only a sole, a heel and then the gold toe.

SURELY NOT THAT LONG.

LONDON, April 29.—In a thousand years, Dr. Fournier D'Albe says, there will be no domestic servants, and that a woman's frock will go into a vest pocket.

The total receipts of the club in 1924 were $338.75 and there is a balance on hand of $50.27. There are no liabilities.

S. H. Neale has been re-elected secretary-treasurer for 1925 and the executive committee will consist of the president, the secretary-treasurer and the chairmen of the two committees.

FABLES ON HEALTH.

Shallow breathing is a fault common to most people but it is more common among women than among men.

Often it is a habit. One grows accustomed to sitting standing or walking with the shoulders stooped and the lung capacity diminished.

The result is that the greater capacity of the lungs is not exercised, and the oxygen supply, which the blood demands, is lessened.

The lungs contain millions of small cavities. It is estimated that if the surface of these cavities were spread out they would cover an area of more than 1000 square feet.

That is there is 1000 square feet of air in the lungs, from which the blood may draw oxygen.

If all thees cavities were kept filled with fresh air tuberculosis would never be known.

Exercise causes one to breathe faster and deeper and thereby furnishes more oxygen for the blood.

Breathe deeply at all times and be healthy.

In this country are 33,600,000 children below the age of 15, or approximately 31 per cent. of the population.

75% of disease avoided through internal cleanliness

WHEN you are constipated, poisons are formed in the accumulated food waste, and reach all parts of the body. The first results, headaches, biliousness, a feeling of "heaviness", etc., serve as warnings of graver diseases to follow if this intestinal poisoning continues unchecked.

This is why intestinal specialists state that constipation is the primary cause of three-quarters of all illness, including the gravest diseases of life.

Physicians Advise Lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste, and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton

THE STORY SO FAR.

GLORIA GORDON, twenty and pretty, marries DICK GREGORY, because she thinks he has money. Gloria's idea of marriage is plenty of fun and expensive clothes.....but no children.

When Dick tells Gloria she must do her own housework she has hysterics. So Dick borrows MAGGIE, his mother's maid, to teach Gloria to cook. Gloria refuses to learn.

STANLEY WAYBURN an actor whom Gloria once loves, calls on her. When Dick sees him leave the house Gloria tells her husband that he was only an interior decorator.

Dick is home ill for a few days. His secretary MISS BRIGGS, comes to work there with him. While they are busy Gloria makes plans for a house-warming. She invites Stanley Wayburn. Dick recognizes him as the man whom Gloria has told him was an interior decorator.

Glory becomes reckless and drinks too much when she sees Stanley kissing MYRA GAIL. She faints away while dancing with DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, whose wife, MAY, is in love with JIM CAREWE.

The party breaks up when LOLA HOUGH "bawls" out BILL, her husband, for "petting" with May. Maggie, disgusted, leaves the house. The next morning Dick asks Gloria if the man he saw leaving the house was Wayburn or not.

Glory struggled in Dick's arms. Her soft and yielding body had become a bundle of steel wire.

"You let me alone!" she panted.

"I won't!" Dick said stubbornly. "I won't, until you've told me whether the fellow you had in this house that day was Wayburn or not!"

"It wasn't Stan Wayburn!" Glory cried. "And you know it! Haven't I told you a dozen times that it was the man about the lampshades?"

Dick freed her.

Glory saw that he believed her lie.

"I'm sorry," he said slowly. "But I would have sworn it was Wayburn. . . . You'll have to forgive me, Glory. I'm so damnably jealous of you!"

Glory tied her head up in a towel. She began to lather her face with cold cream.

"I should say you are jealous!" she agreed. "If you're going to think that every interior decorator or bill collector who comes to this house is Stan Wayburn, we'd better separate right now!"

She walked into the bathroom.

"My bath water's all cold now," Glory grumbled. "I was ready to take my bath half an hour ago when you started this row! . . . I suppose I'll die of pneumonia if I bathe in this cold stuff. Then maybe you'll be sorry for the cat-and-dog life you've led me!"

She closed the door.

"Hey, give me a kiss before I go!" Dick called. He had put on his hat and picked up his brief-case.

But Glory had locked the door and turned the water on in the tub. . . . She pretended not to hear him.

As soon as she was dressed, Glory closed the door of her disordered house behind her and started out.

"Where's your mother?" she asked suddenly of Billy, Junior.

"In vee house, makin' cookies!" said Billy, "and when dem is made, Betty and me is goin' to have one. . . . Go on in, maybe she'll give you one, too!"

"Come out in the kitchen," Lola Hough said when she opened the door "I'm doing my Saturday baking. . . . Smell the cookies in the oven?"

"That's because you're new to your job of keeping house," she said. "After awhile, you'll become an artist at planning meals and keeping down expenses."

Gloria jumped up from her chair. This sort of talk bored her.

"Jiminy, it's three o'clock! I must go," she said. "I have a new maid coming. . . . Maggie quite her job last night after the party."

"Wait until I take these gingerbread boys out of the oven . . . and I'll go to the door with you," Lola said. There was a troubled frown on her face.

"Lola," said Glory suddenly. "Are you ever sorry you married Bill?"

"Sorry I married Bill?" Lola repeated in a surprised tone. "Of course not! . . . Why, I'd rather be poor and be Bill's wife than . . . anything else on earth!"

Glory stared at her. She saw that Lola meant what she said. Overworked and neglected, she still was happy in making a home for a man who never was in it when there was any other place to go. She was a puzzle!

"Tell me what you can do," Glory said when they were in the hall.

"I can do any kind of housework," Ranghild said simply. "And I'm a good, plain cook. And if you have a washing-machine I don't mind doing the laundry."

Glory considered. This sounded too good to be true!

"And how much would you want for doing all that work?" she asked.

"Eighteen dollars a week," Ranghild's voice was firm.

Eighteen dollars! Seventy-five a month! Glory wondered if Dick could afford to pay Ranghild that much money. . . . Oh, well, he'd just have to pay it!

. . . Other men could afford maids for their wives. There was no reason why Dick couldn't, too!

"All right," Glory said. "Can you start work tomorrow?"

Ranghild nodded. She said she'd be at the house in time to get breakfast. . . . That was a blessing!

* * *

But in the meantime there was the house to be cleaned up.

As soon as Ranghild had gone, Glory took off her hat and fur coat.

She hung them in the clothes-closet under the stairs. In the corner of it stood the vacuum cleaner.

Glory took it out. She attached it to a floor plug and ran it around the house.

Then she laid a newspaper on the floor. Into it she threw all the broken glasses and cigaret ashes she could find.

Someone had emptied a glass of gin-gingerale all over the Spanish shawl on the piano. The silk had stuck to the wood.

And when Gloria tried to pull it away, a large piece of the gaudy embroidery was torn out. Underneath, the wood was stained and marked.

. . . There was a big hole burned in the blue velvet davenport. Bill Hough had probably done that with his everlasting cigaret!

The inlaid wood of the dining room table was covered with white rings where sticky, wet glasses had been set down.

A curtain had been pulled from its pole. It lay on the floor.

The whole house was a wreck!

"Next time I give a party it'll be a barn-dance or a picnic in the woods!" Glory said to herself. "They certainly ruined my cute little house last night!"

She forgot her own part in the revelry.

* * *

The front door-bell rang. . . . Mother Gregory!

Gloria could see her through the net curtains on the door.

She made up her mind not to let her in.

Then the bell rang again . . . a short, commanding ring!

The girl flew to the door.

Without a word Mother Gregory stepped into the house.

She looked all around her. Then she turned her eagle eyes upon her beautiful daughter-in-law.

In her expensive dress of gray silk, Glory held a duster in one hand, and the torn shawl in the other.

"I like your working clothes," Mother Gregory said, scornfully. "Where's your apron?"

Then her voice became more gentle.

"Come in and sit down, Glory," she said quietly. "I want to talk to you. Maggie told me about the drunken party you had here last night. But I couldn't believe all she said until just now! . . . Gloria, do you think you're starting the right way in this marriage of yours and Dick's?"

"I don't know what you mean," the girl replied, stubbornly.

Mother Gregory leaned over and took her hand.

"You know Dick hasn't much money," she said, seriously. "You know he spent all his savings getting this house ready for you. His father gave Dick the money for your wedding trip, as a present. . . . Dick's a poor young lawyer, with his way to make. Are you helping him by giving these hundred-dollar parties? . . . Maggie said you paid thirty dollars for flowers alone, for it!"

"Well . . . and what else did Maggie say? What other tales did she carry to you?" asked Glory. Her tone was sarcasm itself.

Mother Gregory cleared her throat.

"She said that my son and Mrs. Hough were the only two sober people in this house last night . . . except herself!" Dick's mother answered. "She said that you had to be carried upstairs and put to bed . . . Gloria, Gloria, what kind of a woman has my boy married?"

75% of disease avoided through internal cleanliness

WHEN you are constipated, poisons are formed in the accumulated food waste, and reach all parts of the body. The first results, headaches, biliousness, a feeling of "heaviness", etc., serve as warnings of graver diseases to follow if this intestinal poisoning continues unchecked.

This is why intestinal specialists state that constipation is the primary cause of three-quarters of all illness, including the gravest diseases of life.

Physicians Advise Lubrication for Internal Cleanliness

Medical science has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste, and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

CURLERS' DEATHS LOSS TO DISTRICT

George Little and Billy Meiklejohn Will Be Missed.

Curlers of this district, and especially of the Peterboro club, deeply regret the recent deaths of George Little of Lindsay and Billy Meikle-John of Campbellford. The famous Lindsay skip was perhaps the better known of the two in local curling, and was regarded here as a formidable foeman, and one of the smartest exponents of the ancient game.

To defeat a rink skipped by Geo. Little was itself an achievement, however went the fortunes of the competitions in which he was always a dominant figure at the Charlotte street rink. He had already become one of those traditional skips whose very name, like that of the "Black Douglas," was held in something akin to awe by his opponents, and in death he will often be recalled in hours of reminiscence at the Peterboro club, when the shades of the stalwarts of other days are called up by those who crossed brooms with them.

Billy Meiklejohn was a comparative newcomer, but during the last three years he had played here on Campbellford rinks, and had won among the curling fraternity a warm place in their affections. He was an enthusiastic curler, a genial big-hearted chap, whose fine sense of sportsmanship did credit to himself and to the Campbellford club.

ODDFELLOWS WENT TO GRACE CHURCH

MILLBROOK, April 29.—Grace Presbyterian church was well filled for the service on Sunday evening, the centre seats being reserved for Millbrook Lodge I.O.O.F. No. 308, which had a large representation present, the parade from the lodge rooms being headed by the local band under the leadership of G. A. Duncan.

The choir had prepared special music for the occasion, the selections including an anthem, "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace", with solo by Miss Kathleen Lancashire, and duet by Mrs. Gervan and Mrs. H. W. Johnston; and a quintette, "The Name of Jesus is so Sweet," by Mrs. Gervan, Miss C. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnston and Mr. N. McDowell. Miss G. Clarry presided at the organ.

The pastor, Rev. G. S. Gervan, read the Scripture lesson from Luke the 10th chapter, using the story of the Good Samaritan as the foundation of his sermon.

Mr. Gervan prefaced his remarks by a reference to the fact that Sunday marked the 105th anniversary of Oddfellowship in Canada. There is no authentic account of the origin of this fraternal organization in the Old Country, but it has a history five years past the century mark in the Dominion. Oddfellows themselves will have the best understanding of the real reason why, when other fraternal societies have declined in membership, their Order is bigger and stronger than ever as it celebrates its birthday occasion.

Oddfellowship is founded on the Bible, and no man can be a true Oddfellow and neglect genuine religion, and the claims of the church. To put the Lodge first, or allow it to replace the church altogether, is a sad mistake, because it means putting the form in place of the substance. A separation of ideals is neither logical nor wise.

The story of the Good Samaritan, with its answer to the question, Who is my Neighbor? and the Master's word, "Go, and do thou likewise," is one of the foundation stones of Oddfellowship. Familiarity may blind one to its mingled beauty, and the moral obligation imposed, but there must be times when it causes serious thought. Jesus thought the question important enough to turn aside from the thread of His discourse to set this young man right in his thinking.

"The search for one's neighbor, to be ideal, must be constant, not spasmodic; it must be unconscious, showing that the life is trained that way; and it must not be confined to a certain class, or group. Keeping in touch with the Ideal Man, we cannot help but serve those in need. The middle link of the Lodge emblem, "Love", brings the substance of life into the other two, Friendship, and Truth", finding the source of its warmth in the heart of God."

FUNERAL OF FORMER CAMPBELLFORD MAN

Robert Riddell Died While Visiting Daughter in the Town.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 27. — The funeral of the late Robert Riddell was held yesterday afternoon from the residence of his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Brady, and was largely attended by friends and relatives of the deceased. Rev. James Greer, who was supplying the pulpit of St. Andrew's church of which the late Mr. Riddell has been a member when he resided here 17 years ago, conducted religious services at the home, at 2.30, after which the remains were interred in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

Among the mourners were two sons, who had come from a distance, George, from Plymouth, Mass., and Robert, accompanied by his wife and daughter from Paris. Mr. and Mrs. George Keller, the latter a daughter, were present from Brimley, Mich. Thomas Riddell, a brother, and his daughter came from their home in Port Dover.

The pallbearers all old friends of the deceased were: Fred Wood, J. P. Archer, Sanders Burleigh, James Massie, Henry Hill and Jas. Dunk.

The floral offerings included a pillow from the family, and wreaths from the spinning department of the Penman Company, of Paris, where the deceased was formerly employed; from Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Palliser, from George Mabelt Sons, Plymouth Works, the firm in which the son George is employed, and from Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tanner, Paris.

A Former Resident.

The late Mr. Riddell was born in Scotland 73 years ago but came to Campbellford when five years old, residing here until 17 years ago. He was married to Miss Alice Pope and the couple were planning to celebrate their golden wedding in July. Mr. and Mrs. Riddell came here to visit their daughter, Mrs. Wesley Brady, a week ago. The husband took ill on the journey, and gradually grew worse until the end came.

PASSENGERS MAY SMOKE ON AIRSHIP

New British Airship Uses Heavy Oil and Has Smoking Room.

LONDON, April 29.—(Associated Press).—England's giant airship, the R-101, which is to ply between this country and India, is to be constructed of stainless steel, and is to have two separate decks and accommodation for 100 passengers. The use of stainless steel in the framework of the dirigible is considered by experts to be a decided advance in airship construction because of its strength.

Passengers and crew on the R-101 may smoke pipes, cigars or cigarettes during voyages, as the engines will not use gasoline as fuel but a heavy gas oil instead, and by this system virtually all danger of fire while in the air will be eliminated. Provision for a smoking room has been matie in the plans and this compartment will be built along the lines of those upon an ocean liner, only on a somewhat smaller scale, of course. The sleeping quarters will consist of two-bed cabins, also similar to steamship berths.

According to the present plans of the builders, who are working in conjunction with the Air Ministry, the keel of the ship will be laid down some time in July. The R-101 is to be 720 feet in length and 140 feet in diameter and is expected to begin its flights via the great eastern airway some time in 1926.

FABLES ON HEALTH.

Shallow breathing is a fault common to most people but it is more common among women than among men.

Often it is a habit. One grows accustomed to sitting standing or walking with the shoulders stooped and the lung capacity diminished.

The result is that the greater capacity of the lungs is not exercised, and the oxygen supply, which the blood demands, is lessened.

The lungs contain millions of small cavities. It is estimated that if the surface of these cavities were spread out they would cover an area of more than 1000 square feet.

That is there is 1000 square feet of air in the lungs, from which the blood may draw oxygen.

If all thees cavities were kept filled with fresh air tuberculosis would never be known.

Exercise causes one to breathe faster and deeper and thereby furnishes more oxygen for the blood.

Breathe deeply at all times and be healthy.

In this country are 33,600,000 children below the age of 16, or approximately 31 per cent. of the population.

ACCESSION TO UNION EXPECTED BY MILLBROOK PRESBYTERIANS FROM MEMBERS OF THEIR CHURCH

Invitation Extended to Those Who Now Find Themselves in Favor of Union.

COVENANT SIGNED.

MILLBROOK, April 28. — A meeting of the unionist members and adherents of Grace Presbyterian church was held on Monday evening, in the church, to discuss the future, and plan for the best interests of the United church.

The pastor, Rev. G. S. Gervan, by request, conducted the opening devotional exercises, reading the lesson from First Corinthians, 13th chapter, where Paul advises that "The Ministry Gifts must be governed by Love."

The attendance was satisfactory, though Mr. Gervan stated that the union forces were not limited to the number present, since illness and other unavoidable circumstances, had prevented several who had had signified their intention of being at the gathering, from attending.

On motion H. W. Johnston was elected chairman, and Dr. A. Jemison, secretary. The chairman, in his brief remarks, said that activity on the part of non-unionists had made it necessary for those in favor of union to also take some action. Questions would be welcomed, and answered as fully as possible, when the various resolutions were presented to the meeting. He had been privileged to attend service in some churches where union was already in active and successful operation, and had been confirmed in his belief that a like success would be experienced locally when the United Church becomes an established fact after June 10th.

"True to Mother Church."

The following resolutions were read and passed unanimously:

1. "Whereas, by a majority vote, taken under the Union Church of Canada Act, the congregation of Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, has declined to concur in the union of the Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian churches, we, the undersigned members and adherents, of the above named congregation and church, again declare our intention of remaining true to our Mother Church, the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and to enter with her into the United Church of Canada on June 10th."

2. "Believing that there are some members of our church who voted not to concur in the union, or who declined to vote, or who now find themselves in accord with the union movement, be it resolved that we invite all such to join with us, and enter with us into the United Church of Canada after June 10th."

Provide For Missionaries.

3. "Believing that the missionaries, and our mission fields, should not be allowed to suffer because of the unsettled state of our church, be it resolved that we appoint a missionary committee whose business it shall be to raise funds, and care for our missionary funds, after June 10th, and until such time as the missionary work and forces of the United Church are consolidated."

The missionary committee appointed included: Messrs. W. E. Ball, J. D. Hunter and Miss Nellie Finnimore.

Moved by J. D. Hunter, seconded by W. Pritchard, "that a committee be appointed to care for the interests of the unionist members and adherents of Grace Presbyterian church."

Union Covenant.

Mr. Gervan explained that a covenant has been issued (contained in Resolution No. 1), for the benefit of the union members in cases where a majority of the congregation voted against union, and this signed declaration will, if necessary, be accepted in lieu of their original church membership certificates. All such records will be carefully preserved in the church archieves, possibly at Queen's Theological Seminary, Kingston, though the exact place has not yet been decided upon, and will be available for use whenever called for. Part of the duty of this committee will be to see that all unionist members and adherents, sign this covenant, so the fullest possible record may be kept.

The committee will also be supplied with necessary information so that those favoring union may apply to the members when any question arises, in connection with the change to the United Church, upon which they require enlightenment.

On motion, the following were appointed: H. W. Johnston, chairman; Messrs. A. Coulter, W. Pritchard, W. Belch, Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Mrs. W. E. Ball, Mrs. J. D. Hunter, Miss Maud Finnimore.

On motion of J. D. Hunter, and Miss M. Finnimore, Dr. A. Jemison was appointed permanent secretary.

Invitation From Methodists.

A communication from the Quarterly Board of the Methodist church passed at the February meeting, was read by the secretary:

"Inasmuch as the Millbrook Circuit of the Methodist church in Canada enters without dissent into the United Church, by unanimous resolution of the Quartely Board, we cordially invite all unionists to join with us in constituting the United Church of Canada in Millbrook, and to share with us in all the work, interests, and resources of said church, that we may, in every way, make a larger contribution to the work of establishing the Kingdom of our Lord."

F. H. Howard, Pastor,
W. G. Hetherington,
Recording Secretary.

The chairman and others voiced the general appreciation of the invitation, and on motion of Dr. Jemison, seconded by Mr. W. Pritchard, it was accepted, and the thanks of the gathering extended to the official board of the sister church for the kindness expressed in the resolution.

Pastors Being Placed.

At the request of the chairman, Mr. Gervan made some explanation regarding how ministers, whose congregations have voted non-concurring leaving them without a charge, are being cared for. The idea, in some manner, has gone abroad that these ministers are being discriminated against by the Methodist church, and Mr. Gervan wished to state that this is a most erroneous impression. He had recently attended a meeting in Peterborough at which both Methodist and Presbyterian denominations were represented, and the information was gained that out of 176 ministers so far left without a charge, 78 have already been placed mostly in the Methodist church. Assurance was given that all will be provided for eventually.

Some Methodist ministers, without families, have offered to give up their charges and work at something else for a time, leaving the field open for a Presbyterian pastor, who has a family to provide for, to become the minister.

Associate Minister.

The largest charge in the gift of the Methodist church, the Metropolitan church, Toronto, will be ministered to by Rev. Dr. Sedgwick, of Hamilton, now a Presbyterian pastor, after he has served for one year at St. James' Methodist church, Montreal. In some cases circuits are being opened with two men in charge, and five preaching points. Cobourg and Port Hope are instances where two pastors are associated on an equal footing, and the arrangement is most satisfactroy.

Personally Mr. Gervan has had six opportunties in the last two months to take a pastorate, the difficulty, in his case, as in some others, being that he must be stationed where a High school is available.

"Ministers who suggested taking up some other line of work for a time, are being urged not to do so, as every possible effort is being made to have every man provided for. And those who are working hardest, and doing most, are our Methodist friends."

Mrs. Gervan added that they knew of more than one case where the Methodist minister and his wife had offered to share the parsonage with the Presbyterian pastor and his family, until other arrangements could be made.

The chairman, in commenting on the facts presented stated he thought they should be widely known that any misunderstanding of the real situation might be avoided.

After Mr. Gervan had dismissed the gathering with prayer, the majority of those present went forward and signed the covenant as presented in the first resolution read, and the committee in charge will see to it that other signatures are obtained in the intervening weeks between this and the 10th of June. Some arrangement will also be made as to the manner in which those who intend going to the United Church will take the initial step on the opening Sunday.

Forty Years' Experience

Etherington, former controller and prominent labor worker of Hamilton, to be inspector of permits for the sale of 4.4 per cent beer in the province. The appointment is a major one in connection with the handling of new beverage, the position being one newly created and designed to provide supervision which the Government promised over stronger trade.

His especial charge will be to see that the establishments selling 4.4 per cent beer are of a proper character and that they are consistently well conducted and maintained The appointee is well known in Hamilton where he served for many years as rector of St. Thomas Anglican church. SIX CYLINDERS ARE POPULAR

The trend toward 6-cylinder cars is becoming decidedly pronounced this year. Analysis of the cars that are selling best and study of purchasers' wants and the types of cars they are turning in on the cars they are buying, indicate that more than 95 p.c. of old owners are replacing their 6-cylinder cars with new cars of the same type; about 50 p.c. of 4-cylinder car owners are turning them in for 6-cylinder types and that a decided percentage of owners of higher-priced and more expensive 6-cylinder cars are turning to lighter type sizes.

This trend, it is evident, would be more pronounced were it not for the presence on the market of 14 different types of 8-in-line motors. Just how large a factor these constitute it is yet too early to determine.

Evening with Poets

Literary and Social night at the Young People's League on Monday evening might well be termed "an evening with the poets,' 'when the leader, Miss Violet McBain, read a paper which was interspersed at intervals with poems from Wordsworth, Keats and Shelley and were given by Misses Marion Rea and Elda Overholt and Morgan Rowland. A fitting climax to a plendid meeting was provided in a short contest answered by the names of authors which provided amusement and at the same time a wit brightener.

Funeral of Annie Hayes

The funeral of the late Miss Annie Hayes, which was held on Wednesday afternoon from the home of her brother, Mr. Robert Hayes was very largely attended. The service was conducted by the Rev. J. A. Black of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Omemee, and interment was made in the family plot at the Presbyterian cemetery near Mount Pleasant. Many beautiful flowers bore mute evidence of the love and esteem in which the deceased lady was held. Among those from a distance attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. H. Hayes, of Western Ontario, Mr. J. A. Anderson of Campbellford and son, Mr. Ernest Anderson, of Kingston.

Snaring Suckers

The suckers are up and the small boy, as well as many youths and grown ups are deriving much pleasure in hauling in large quantities of the finny specimen, either by snare or hooks. The boys find this an easy way of making pocket money as long as the buyers can be found, and so far many dozen have been disposed of at from 25c to 40c per dozen.

Friends of Mrs. Joseph Bradley will be pleased to know she is gradually improving after her recent illness.

Next Sunday being the first Sunday in May the Methodist Sunday School will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning and will continue so during the summer months with the church service at 11 o'clock. Communion will be held at the morning church service.

Mr. Jermyn Palmer has exchanged with Mr. C. Lindsay of Lindsay a team of light horses from his livery for a team of heavy ones, which weigh 3000 lbs. Mr. Palmer purposes using the new team for work on the County roads.

OPEN NIGHT AT CAMPBELLFORD BOWLING CLUB

General Public May Use the Green Every Wednesday Evening.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

L. B. Glover Succeeds Mayor Meyers as President—Finances Are Good.

CAMPBELLFORD, April 29.—The Campbellford Bowling Club will hold an open night every Wednesday during the season when the green will be free to the general public, who will be at liberty to bowl without charge. The only conditions imposed are that those availing themselves of this offer will wear the regulation style of footwear and will observe all the other rules of the club.

This innovation was agreed to at the annual meeting of the club, held in the public library last night, on the suggestion of the secretary-treasurer, S. H. Neale, who said it would be one of the best possible methods to arouse interest in the pastime and so secure new members.

Those Present.

Mayor Meyers presided and the following members were in attendance: Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Glover, J. P. Archer, Mr. and Mrs. George Nicol, Dr. H. J. Beattie, Dr. O. C. and Mrs. Watson, Mrs. J. A. Stewart, T. L. Diamond, R. Weston, Dr. A. and Mrs. Haig, W. S. and Mrs. Wiggins, R. J. Allan, Charles S. Gillespie, A. J. and Mrs. Meyers, T. S. Tait, Ed. Tait, Dr. G. A. Hay, A. L. Reindeau, A. J. and Mrs. Jenkins, J. R. Wilkinson, C. W. Wilson and S. H. Neale.

Outlook is Bright.

President Meyers said that this was the banner attendance since the organization of the club and that fact spoke well for the future. Last season had been a successful one, the club being about $185 better off than it was in 1923, even though $135 had been spent in completeing the club house. He thanked the members for the generous support they had given him, especially at the various tournaments, every one of which had been a success. Another good sign was that every dollar owing for fees had been collected last year.

Officers Elected.

Mayor Meyers has held the office of president for the past three years and the success of the club, the members say, has been largely due to his energetic administration. He was nominated again for the position last night, and would have been re-elected by acclamation but for the fact that he expressed a wish to retire.

L. B. Glover, the first vice-president, was accordingly advanced to the presidency. The other officers chosen were as follows:

Honorary presidents: T. S. Tait and C. S. Gillespie.

First Vice-President: A. L. Reindeau.

Second Vice-President: Dr. O. C. Watson.

Secretary-Treasurer: S. H. Neale.

Executive Committeed: George Nicol, J. P. Archer.

Dr. A. Haig and W. S. Wiggins.

On motion of Mrs. J. A. Stewart and Mrs. A. Haig it was resolved that the ladies' executive consist of Mesdames Glover, Nicol, Archer, Haig and Wiggins.

Financial Statement.

It was shown by the report of Secretary-treasurer Neale that the total receips for the year, including $397.37 in membership fees, was $970.57, and that the balance on hand was $13.27.

New President's Suggestion.

On taking the chair President Wiggins, after thanking the members for the honor that had been conferred upon him submitted several suggestions for their consideration. One of these was that sometime during the winter a meeting be held of representatives from all the bowling clubs in surrounding towns to arrange the dates for the various tournaments.

Another suggestion was that two tournaments, of one day each, be held during the season, instead of one of two days. Rink games could be played at one of these tournaments and doubles at the other.

Both suggestions met with the approval of the meeting and July 10th was set as the date for the rink games tournament, the date of the other not being fixed.

To Hold Garden Party.

It was announced that the ladies of the club propose holding a garden party during the summer, provided the lawn of Mr. McCoun's residence can be obtained for the purpose.

President Glover was in favor of a street fair as a novelty in the way of entertainments in Campbellford. This matte was referred to the ladies' executive committee.

Caretaker Appointed.

J. R. Wilkinson was reappointed caretaker of the green, a position he has held since the club was organized. The green has always been a favorite with visitors who attend the tournaments but this year Mr. Wilkinson says he will have it in better shape than ever. He has already done considerable work upon it this spring.

Mr. Wilkinson recommended that more singles be played as he believes that these contests are the best means of developing skill in the players.

Votes of Thanks.

On motion of Secretary Treasurer Neale a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mayor Meyers for his services as president for the past three years.

President Glover referred to the fact that Mayor Meyers and Walter S. Wiggins had last year donated cups to be played for.

Membership Fees.

The schedule of membership fees in force last year has been retained and is as follows: For a man and wife, $12.50; for a gentleman alone, $10; for a lady, $5; for a member living outside the town, $5.

'LEGS' AS SEEN ON THE AVENUE

Skirts Have Never Been So Short in History of Fashions.

KNEECAPS SHOWN

By HEDDA HOYT
(Fashion Editor of the United Press)
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 29. — (United Press).—Half a leg! Half a leg! Half a leg upwards!

Never in the history of fashions have skirts been so short as they are this spring on Fifth Avenue. Everyone is wearing them shorter and some women are going to extremes which have never before been dared.

It isn't the young girl who are showing their kneecaps. It's women in their thirties, women in their forties and fifties! Evidently they hope to attain the appearance of youth by displaying their knee dimples.

But alas! Not all of them have dimpled knees. Flo Ziegfield once said that it was difficult to find beautiful girls with beautiful legs, as most American girls were bow-legged. After witnessing Easter's fashion parade, we might add that American women are not only bow-legged, but many of them have ankles that sag inwards: ankles that bow outwards and knots on their knees. In spite of the prevelance of mismated and bandy legs, nearly every woman believes that her legs are beautiful. Just one word from Paris and up go the skirt lengths!

Looking in a Mirror.

Just a little word on the skirt question. Be sure your legs are lovely before thrusting them on the public! Take a look in a long mirror!

Perhaps the legs are all right, but do they conform with the breadth of your hips? In other words, do you look like a fat tadpole walking on slender stilts? If your cheeks are beginning to sag be content with skirts that extend to the calf of the leg at least! Somehow a kneecap that's shanely mismates with sagging jowls. Perhaps Mistinguet, who confesses to over fifty summers and to having the prettiest legs in Paris, is responsible for the leg-display by elderly women in America. Seen from footlights, Mistinguet's legs were lovely indeed, but many a little half-baked flapper has equally pretty legs and doesn't draw a fat salary on their account.

There's a certain attraction about beautiful legs, to be sure. But on the streets of New York one sees a lot of elderly flappers who are concealing their varicose veins under flesh-toned hosiery. I believe it was Benjamin Franklin who wrote that a woman's legs were the last of her attractions to age. Judging from some of the legs one sees, one would say that there are a good many centenarians running about.

To-day finds the 8-year-old wearing skirts about twelve inches from the ground. The 28-year-old woman wears her's two or three inches below the knees. And the 38-year-old wears knee-lengths. Of course, there are a few ladies left who believe that a leg is something to walk on—that a garter is something to be concealed. They know that oyster white, blond or fresh-toned hosiery is "loud" for streetwear and makes legs look more important than the person wearing them. Wood shades, tans, grays and shades that corresnond with the frock are far better hosiery colors than conspicuous ones.

Shoes and Hosiery.

The most refined women in New York are wearing black shoes with mouse-gray, light tan, cinnamon or light brown hosiery, or they are wearing light brown, tan or gray shoes with matching hosiery. With these colors one may display an extra inch or two of leg without drawing a crowd.

Plainer shapes prevail in shoes and often the simple pump is worn with an orange frock. Cut-out effects in shoes are chosen only by a few. Vamps might be called semi-short—they are neither long nor short, but rounded and medium. Heels are not extremely high, but are halfway between the Cuban and the French heel.

Blond shoes worn with blond hosiery are popular for dressy afternoon occasions. Some women wear them on the streets, but if worn so, they should conform with the frock and not add contrast. The blond shoe is distinctly a dress shoe. Suede or kid, however, in light shades, are suitable for street wear, when one prefers light colored shoes.

BACKUS WANTS FURTHER RIGHTS

Needs More Timber and Power to Develop Industry Required.

DEVELOP AT KENORA.

TORONTO, April 29 (Canadian Press) — Timber and water power concessions in North-western Ontario were sought from the Ontario Government yesterday by W. E. Backus, prominent lumber and paper magnate, who was a visitor at the parliament buildings. Certain requirements were laid upon Mr. Backus by the previous government when they yielded valuable timber and power rights to him. In order that he may fulfill them, Mr. Backus claims that still more timber and more power are necessary.

His case was promised consideration by the prime minister. The government's agreement with Mr. Backus requires that he develop a large paper industry and it was upon this condition that he was given the extensive pulp holdings which brought so much criticism upon the Drury regime. In his argument yesterday Mr. Backus stated that the reports of cruisers who had been measuring up timber on his holdings had been disappointing and that they must be augmented if he were to establish an industry of the magnitude which the government agreement calls for. He also declared that he would require an additional power site in order to operate the size of mill which the contract demanded.

EMIR MUST LIVE ON THE OCEAN - NOBODY WANTS HIM

By LARRY BOARDMAN.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—His Highness Seid Zerdecheno, "Prince of Egypt" and "Emir of Kurdistan," seems due for a life on the ocean waves and a home on the rolling deep—with the White Star steamship line footing the bill.

Ordered deported from America, his various other countries won't let him in.

He can't stay here—and he can't go anywhere else!

All of which is causing U. S. immigration authorities no concern at all, and neither does it appear to bother his highness.

But according to George C. Tolman, assistant commissioner general of immigration, it is something for the White Star line to worry about.

"They brought him here," said Tolman, "and they've got to take him away.

"We don't care what they do with him—but they'll have to keep on paying his expenses until they do it."

Deported to England.

The prince, emir, or something else, was deported to England about a month ago.

The British authorities sent him back.

Now he's waiting to be deported to France, where he lived at one time.

But French officials say the welcome will be erased from the doormat if an attempt is made to take him there.

After his trip to France, indications are his next voyage will be to Turkey, as he was born in Kurdistan, now a province of the Ottoman Empire.

The Turks, however, are evincing no signs of staging a Prodigal Son Return Celebration upon his arrival.

Instead, they have declared him an outlaw!

Zerdecheno came to this country several years ago and cut quite a swath with his various high-sounding titles.

As Emir of Kurdistan he was dined, wined and generally lionized by society.

He married, and for a time settled down in Kentucky, his wife's native state.

When the Princess Fatima, Sultana of Afghanistan, visited America, he accompanied her party as heir to the Egyptian throne.

He called at the White House, and also visited the State Department to establish his claim to royalty.

A Bad Move.

This last proved to be a false move. The State Department looked him up—and his courtly presence was soon gracing the District of Columbia jail!

Immigration authorities made the arrest at the Egyptian legation, where they found him further pressing his claim.

"He was a clever faker," said Tolman, "living off his self-manufactured titles.

"He had no money, and he wouldn't work. That made him a public charge, and we ordered him deported.

"According to law, the return expenses of an undesirable alien must be paid by the steamship company which brought him over.

"That puts it up to the White Star line.

"All we're concerned with is that he doesn't stay here—and we'll see to it he doesn't do that!"

And in the meanwhile, Zerdecheno, assured of free meals and a place to sleep, is placidly preparing for an indefinite period of ocean travel.

SAM CLARKE MAKING GOOD RECOVERY

Northumberland Member is Recovering Following Serious Operations.

COBOURG, April 29.—Mr. Sam Clarke, M.P.P., who had a second operation at Cobourg General Hospital on Friday afternoon is reported to be holding his own, which is highly gratifying to his family and to his many friends throughout the province. Mr. Clarke's children, including Mrs. Gray, Peterborough, are all here, because of their father's illness.

Church Services.

There was little of special character in connection with the church services Sunday in Cobourg. Rev. Dr. Boyle is becoming very popular with the congregation at St. Peter's church. The Parish Guild of that church, put on Booth Tarrington's "Clarence" as a play on Thursday and Friday evening, staging it in the Town Hall. There were large crowds in attendance and the play was a great credit to amateur performers, a number of whom showed real histronic talent.

Rev. Butcher said that a great number of young men graduated nowadays with the object of going forth preaching their own ideas and opinions, hence the uprising of socialists, aethists, etc ,, but he said the great theme of preaching was when Jesus Christ was taken as the theme and centre.

Artists Of Malmesburg Page The King's Barber

MALMESBURG, Wiltshire, Eng., April 29.—The authorities of this city have set themselves the task of ascertaining the color an the cut of the whiskers worn by Old King Athlestan, who died in 925. They have looked through ancient books, studied statutes and pored over archives, but up to the present time with no success. They are not discouraged, however, and the search is still going on.

A fund has been subscribed for the erection of a stained glass portrait to King Athlestan in the local town hall. It seems Athlestan drove out the Danes 1,000 years ago and the people of Malmesburg want to commemorate his act. Hence they want to know what he looked like in order that his portrait may do him honor.

Why Men Crack

When on the Highway to Success

"Sleeplessness," Doctor Kennedy tells us, "is one of the commonest signs of nervousness. Another is physical unrest. You are showing signs of nervousness when you cannot keep from twitching your eyebrows, shrugging your shoulders, swinging one foot when your legs are crossed; or when you cannot sit at a desk or table without continually tapping with the fingers."

THE warning symptoms, as outlined above, are well worth careful study because with this knowledge you can detect the indications of failing nervous energy while yet there is time to prevent serious results.

Your digestive system has failed to supply proper nourishment to the nervous system.

On this account outside help is necessary, such as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, before you can get back your strength and vigor.

You will not be using this restorative treatment long before you are sleeping, and resting better, appetite and digestion will improve and you find yourself well on the way to health and happiness.

AFTERNOON TEA AT ST. ANDREW'S

Splendid Attendance at Ladies' Aid Society Affair Yesterday Afternoon.

FINE PROGRAMME.

The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Andrew's Church were hostesses at a particularly attractive afternoon tea held in the Sunday School auditorium yesterday afternoon. There was a splendid attendance of over two hundred ladies, and the decorations were effectively carried out with a different color scheme for each of the seven tables used. Flowers, consisting principally of roses, and candles were of varying shades, the effect of the interior being very dainty.

The guests were received by the president of the society, Mrs. F. L. Robinson, and the hostesses at the different tables. Those in charge of the different tables were as follows: Mrs. Carleton Perry, assisted by Mrs. H. Wightman, Mrs. J. S. McDonald, Mrs. T. Glover and Mrs. R. A. Carmen; Mrs. James Gordon, assisted by Mrs. A. Moir, Mrs. G. W. Gilman and Mrs. Hugh Nevin; Mrs. V. Foster, assisted by Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge, Mrs. R. McWilliams and Mrs. A. MacNab; Mrs. C. R. As earphones must be handled carefully why not put a small screw eye or hook on the side of the radio table so you can hang up the phones when through with them for the night?

In summer, when the range of the set is limited, use an indoor aerial, suspended and insulated from the picture molding in a room.

VOTE ON PRINCE'S GIFT.

BERLIN, April 2.9—More than 4,000 towns may take a plebiscite to determine whether the former Crown Prince Wilhelm should receive a magnificent set of silver dishes promised him as a wedding present 20 years ago. It required so long for the silversmiths to make the dishes that they were not completed when the war began. The treasure then was placed in the Reichsbank, which hesitates to deliver them because the crown prince's status has been changed.

TRAINING YOUR DOG

This is the fifth of a series telling how to train dogs to do tricks.

Today's new trick is called the stretch. You will have difficulty in teaching the dog this trick as he will have trouble keeping his feet where you place them.

Place the dog in a sitting position on you rright hand. Extend your left hand so that his front feet can be placed in the centre of your left hand.

Now have him rise to a natural standing position. From this position slowly spread your arms, keeping them level with each other, until the dog is stretched out.

You must realize that this trick requires strength on the part of the dog. It must be done slowly so as not to strain his back and cause him to fall.

To complete the trick bring his front feet back slowly toward his hind feet and raise his front quarters until he occupies a sitting position on your right hand.

HINDENBURG IS REPORTED AS A KINDLY OLD MAN

Would Prefer to Stay Quietly at Home Instead of Being President.

LOVED BY ORPHANS.

Will Bring Favorite Armchair and Furniture to Berlin Palace.

(Copyright by United Press Association).

BERLIN, April 29—A black Prince Albert coat with grey stripes have been chosen by President-elect Hindenburg as his inauguration attire.

The new President will eschew all medals or uniform save when he is presiding at military reviews at Hanover.

When he goes to the Wilhelms Strasse Palace, Hindenburg will take along some comfortable furniture from his villa, including his favorite arm chair, and it is probable that his son and daughter-in-law will live at the Palace with him.

Those who know him best say the Field Marshal certainly would have preferred the seclusion at Gross Schwuelper to coming to Berlin as President.

At his villa at Hanover the old General loved to meet and chat with his cronies and play the national game, "state."

Hitherto Hindenburg read few newspapers. Once he bragged that he had not read any books save military treatises since he was a cadet.

The President-elect has been accustomed to getting daily exercises romping with "Rolf," his huge police hound, a true comrade since war days.

Despite his restrained—even forbidding — appearance, Hindenburg loves children. He was a frequent and ever popular visitor at the Orphans' Home near Hanover.

An early riser, the General was often the first one out on the streets of Hanover, and was known to the night police, with whom he would chat on his morning walks.

Hindenburgh may draw from retirement, his former right hand man, General Ludendorff, to be a sort of "Colonel House" in the new administration.

Most of the Nationalist leaders believe, however, that the Field Marshal will decide to have his former colleague stay in Munich.

It is assumed that Hindenburg will have several close advisors constantly with him, including his son-in-law, Colonel Kuegelgen, his personal adjutant, Captain Schmidt, and probably former Minister Scholz as private secretary.

BELFAST, April 29.—(Canadian Press).—Joseph Devlin and Thomas McAllister took seats in the Ulster Parliament yesterday, being the first Nationalist representatives to do so. They were warmly greeted by Premier Sir James Craig.

LITTLE LOSS ANYHOW.

Premier Says Ontario's Loss on Rouyn Project Will Be Small.

TORONTO, April 29 (Canadian Press) — Even if Quebec province does not relent in its apparent determination to keep the T. and N. O. from tapping the Rouyn Mineral Area—and Premier Ferguson has confidence that matters will yet be satisfactorily arranged—Ontario will sustain little, if any, loss by reason of having shipped supplies into the proposed building zone, the premier stated last night.

"The fact is," said the Premier, "that, in wages, supplies, and all kinds of things we have not spent $200,000 and only a small part of that is on perishables which were situated at the rail head and can be transhipped immediately and used in other places. The rest is steel rails and ties and heavy material, and we can find plenty of use for all of it."

CLOSER RELATIONS.

Sir Esme Howard Thinks No Danger in Friendship With the U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 29 (Canadian Press)—Eloquent addresses delivered by Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, and United States Secretary of Labor Davis at the Canadian Club banquet last night emphasized the ernest desire of British and American statesmen to advance the cordial relations so long existing between Canada and United States.

Sir Esme Howard showed no sympathy with those who feared that closer relations between this country and the Dominion would be prejudicial to the British Empire.

CLERK DECLINES TO LEAVE OFFICE

Montreal Presbytery Will Take Steps to Obtain Records From Him.

MONTREAL, April 29.—(Canadian Press).—Rev. A. S. Reid, clerk of the Montreal Presbytery, was relieved of office, and overtures will be made to the General Assembly to remove Rev. Dr. D. J. Fraser, Principal of the Presbyterian Theological College, and any other professors of the College opposed to Church Union, according to decisions reached yesterday at the final general meeting of the Montreal Presbytery prior to entry into the United Church in June.

Tenseness charged the atmosphere when Rev. A. S. Reid declined to vacate his office or to hand over the papers and document of the office to Rev. Wm. Munroe, who was appointed the new clerk.

A committee was appointed to take such steps as were deemed necessary to secure possession of the records.

Forget the nasty tasting, stomach upsetting cod liver oil and give the thin, puny, undeveloped children McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets if you want to give them a good appetite and put pounds of good, healthy flesh on their bones.

Doctors know all about them and so does Warne Drug Co., McDermid & Jury, James Lynch and all good pharmacists all over America, for they are in great demand, because they are not laggards but show results in a few days.

They are not expensive either—60 tablets—60 cents and children take them like candy.

CABINET WILL STAY IN OFFICE

Nothing in German Constitution Requires Them to Resign.

KAISER IS HAPPY.

BERLIN, April 29 (Canadian Press).—The German cabinet held a meeting last night and after listening to a report by Chancellor Luther on his conference with President-elect von Hindenburg, agreed unanimously to remain in office. This decision was arrived at on the ground that there was nothing in the German constitution which required the resignation of a cabinet on the occasion of the election of a new president.

The Kaiser Satisfied.

DOORN, Holland, April 29 (Canadian Press).—It has been learned that the former kaiser, at his chateau here last night, expounded the significance and importance of Hindenburg's election as related to the restoration of the monarcy and the Hohenzollern dynasty. Wilhelm, who seemed in excellent spirits, spoke for about ninety minutes.

The servants were treated to a generous allowance of wine to celebrate the occasion.

Despite this celebration, it is said by well-informed persons that Hindenbrug's victory is less likely to affect the ex-kaiser personally than it is the former crown prince, whose activity and influence in military quarters have been increasing.

Guard Hindenburg.

(By Carl D. Groat, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BERLIN, April 29—Police guards were increased today around General von Hindenburg's villa at Hanover, giving rumors of an attempt to assassinate the field marshal.

Emphatic denial of knowledge of any plot was made at police headquarters, where it was said that the additional guards were to assist in keeping off an enthusiastic demonstration.

YOUR GARDEN

THE SMALL FRONT LAWN

Owing to its small size the area in front of the house close to the street (15 to 25 ft.) is very difficult to treat with any degree of individualty. Unfortunately the problem seems to get the better of most people and they succumb to the inevitable planting of two blue spruces or two shrubs one on either side of the walk somewhere or worse still two or more pairs placed along the walk in the same way. This idea is stereotyped, set and lacks freedom of treatment.

The successful and easily kept front lawn should in the first place have a well kept open lawn and naturally arranged planting about the foundation. If space permits additional shrubs may planted along the boundaries. Even groups of shrubs placed in the corners of the junction of walks are of doubtful beauty and value on the small lawn round beds, or beds of any description are taboo in the lawn of any size but are especially bad in a confined area. The clear open lawn with boundary plantings is not only more restful but much more easily cared for.

The shrubs to be planted should be chosen carefully and of medium to small size. The largest shrubs as lilacs Honeysuckles, Wayfaring Tree, etc., take up too much room. Choose rather the smaller Spiraeas (Anthony Water, Arguta, Van Houtes, billardi, sorbifolia, etc.) the low growing Mock Orange (Lemoinii, Avalanche, Candelabre, etc.) the Symphoricarpos (Snowberry and Coralberry) the ever present Japaneses Barberry, Deutzias (in warm sections only) the Oregon Grape and the Shrubby Cinquefoil. Evergreens ,especially of dwarf character may be used most effectively. Beware, however, of planting evergreen trees which will soon grow to too large a size for the area. Plant all these as outlined in a previous article on "the house foundation planting."

The shrub planting can very well be supplemented by window and verandah boxes, tubs and vases. In a good many cases, in fact, these will be the sole embellishment possible and the most should be made of them. General directions for planting such boxes will be found in another article. For the small front lawn especial care should be exercised in the placing of the boxes, in the choice of size, shape and cooler and the material of which they are made as they will be conspicuous features. Too many would spoil the effect and yet the area should be adequately furnished.

Tubs and vases should be reduced to a pair in the average case, set fairly close to the steps on either side of the walk. In certain cases they will look very well on either the top or bottom step. Do not attempt a row, nor yet place them in the centre of the lawn or more than 6 or 8 inches from the walk. Simple well-designed tubs either white or painted green are best. Do not use any old lard tube or nail keg in such a conspicuous spot. Elaborate cast iron vases are also out of place on the small front lawn as are monstrosities such as old boilers, kettles, etc., mounted in various ways.

Last but not least, the area should be kept absolutely tidy. The edges should be clean cut, the dead blooms and leaves removed frequently and everything should look spic and span.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Maker of 51 Golf Champions. "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans

Except when I specify otherwise, the golfer should understand that in these daily discussions I always refer to the upright swing and its mechanics. The upright swing is the standard. Methods differ slightly when the flat swing is employed but they need not differ when the medium upright swing is used. A very heavy player should use a flat swing, but I maintain that all others, regardless of age, should use the upright or some modification of it. The planes of the flat and the upright swing are entirely different. In the flat swing the club is swung around directly in back of the body. The flat swinger needs a space no higher than the top of his head for his swing. In the upright swing the club is elevated until it lies across the shoulders slightly higher than the head.

ONE OF HOCKEY STARS.

Frank Frederickson, of the Victoria Cougars, is Called "Ty Cobb of Game."

VICTORIA, B. C. April 29. - Frank Frederickson of the Victoria Cougars, world profesional hockey champions, has set a mark for succeeding generations of hockey players to aim at.

FRANK FREDERICKSON.

When his club won the Stanley cup this year by defeating the Canadiens of Montreal, Frederickson gained the distinction of having participated in the three greatest hockey series in the world.

After returning from the world war, in which he served as a pilot in the Royal Air Force, Frederickson signed with the Falcons of Winnipeg. In 1920 the Falcons won the Allan Cup, emblematic of the amateur championship of Canada. The Falcons were ordered to represent Canada at the Olympic games in Antwerp and they won the championship by defeating the United States in the finals. Frederickson starred in both series for his club.

On returning to Canada Frederickson was immediately signed by Lester Patrick, manager of the Victoria Cougars. As a professional he became known throughout Canada as one of the greatest players in the game. He had to plog along for four years before he appeared in a world series.

This year, due in a great measure to his efforts, Victoria won the Western Canada Hockey League championship and then met the Canadiens, eastern champions, here. Victoria won the series in four games, 3 to 1.

Frederickson scored two games in the final tilt and played such a marvellous game that he was acclaimed one of the world's finest players.

CAUGHT ON THE FLY!

The City League will meet tomorrow night in the Chamber of Commerce office. In other places the teams are out to practice and it is nearly time the teams were organized. It is only a couple of weeks to the usual opening date, the nights are getting long enough for twilight games and action must be taken at once. Everybody interested in baseball should attend tomorrow night.

Why the Oshawa Telegram should speak of animal acts, elephants, an such like in the same breath with the Belleville baseball team we don't know, but they do. This quotation is a faithful reproduction of their paragraph on the subject.

Belleville will have the old team of last year intact, Keon, Ouellet, Jeffery, Harry Mills, Meagher, Weir, Williams, Ross, Cesey, Hagerman, Wm. Mills, with the addition of a couple of outfielders who come well recommended and an infielder who hails from Quebec Province. One of the outfielders pastimed in the Inter-County last season and hit above the 3300 mark and pulled them down in the garden with satisfactory regularity.

As Josh Craig says, they may be a little "rusty" but that lineup looks to have some kick in it and although no predictions are being made, all the teams in the circuit will have to dispose of Belleville before they can lay any claim to the championship.

"The public seems to prefer acts in which animals seem to take an interested part. Acts in which dogs, seals, horses and elephants take part are especially popular. We shall have plenty of this type of act."

Probably they refer to the Mills brothers as the elephants and Meagher does sometimes dive around like a seal but whom do they call either dogs or horses?

CHESINGTON, Eng., April 00. — Rev. J. F. Scarlet has caused quite a storm of criticism by going into the saloons with members of his church. "I have made many friends over a glass of beer, and although it has not been my practice to thrust religion down the throats of customers, a good few of them attend my church," he says.

Mr. Otis P. Sapp publicly resolved not to attend another ball following the admission by certain members of the White Sox that they had sold out to gamblers in in the world series of 1919.

"I can stand for a lot of things, including a mixed foursome on a free golf course," declared Mr. Sapp, "but when players like Weaver, Cicotte and Jackson sell out I'm positively through.

Likely as not Mr. Sapp, who is a strong-willed, high-minded man about town, meant every syllable that dropped from his fevered lips Those who saw him standing in line to buy tickets for the opening game the following spring put it down simply as one of his little odd mannerisms.

* The years rolled on and Mr. Sapp continued his patronage at various ball parks of the land, burning candles at the image of Swifty McKurk, strike-out wizard.

Nobody could take the name of the Great National Pastime in vain in Mr. Sapp's presence and the popular shriek that the sport was being crowded into the background by golf never failed to move the old gent to sulphuric denials.

And then came the blow-up of 1924 when Messers. Dolan and O'Connel collided unexpectedly with an honest person of Heinie Sand. who spurned a proffered bribe of 500 smackers to help McGraw win another title.

This was a terrific blow to Mr. Sapp's reborn faith in mankind and the story is told of how a night-watchman appeared just in time to dissuade him against jumping off the dock, his neck heavily freighted with a two-ton anvil.

"This is more than I can stand," murmured the grief-stricken Mr. Sapp. Whereupon the understanding watchman stepped forward and removed the anvil. "It is a size too large, sir," he explained.

And, of course, Mr. Sapp resolved anew to stay away from the ball parks. And this time he really meant it. Yet it is undeniably true that the Mr. Sapp. who was ejected from the New York stands on opening day for throwing a hot water bottle filled with carbolic acid at umpire, is the same individual mentioned above—the one and only Otis P.

Billy Evans Says

VETERAN STAFF

Manager Stanley Harris of the world champs will be minus one worry this year that is going to handicap a lot of the other major league leaders.

It is this: When Harris makes his pitching selection he knows the athlete delegated to do the hurling knows what it is all about.

In many quarters the "kid manager" of the Nationals has been taken to task for his refusal to waive on a number of veteran pitchers.

Harris is pinning his faith on several twirlers who are known to have passed the peak of their game.

Of course Harris has a bunch of reasons for clinging to such a system relative to his pitching staff.

BIG ATTRACTION

It means much financially for a world champion club to be up in the race. Such a team is always an attraction if it is playing good ball.

While he no doubt realizes that very shortly he must start to rebuild the Nationals, the pitching staff in particular, he is content to gamble with the veterans for this season.

Harris is well aware of the part that pitching plays in baseball. It is also obvious to him that several of his pitchers haven't the staff of five years ago.

Even though they are lacking some of the old-time stuff, they know how to pitch; they are crafty workmen.

When Harris assigns one of his veteran pitchers to work, it is a certainty that the game will be well pitched from the angle of craftiness.

WISE PITCHERS

Young twirlers, with far more natural ability than fading veterans, soon realize there is much more to pitching than the mere throwing of the ball over the plate. An ounce of brains is of far more value than a pound of brawn in extricating a pitcher from a ticklish situation.

Rival teams always take keen pleasure in beating world champions. Washington finds itself in that position this year. Last season it was the underdog.

The road of the Washington club is sure to be filled with many more obstacles this year than last. No one realizes that fact more than Stanley Harris.

That is why I am certain he is putting the burden of success up to a veteran pitching staff of known value, rather than youthful stars who are untried in the pinch.

It explains why he added the veteran stars, Coveleskie, Reuther and Gregg, to Walter Johnson, George Mogridge and Tom Zachary, making an even half dozen old-timers on his staff.

TOUGH BREAK

That youth and inexperience is ordinarily prone to falter quicker than the veteran, was recently illustrated in the case of Outfielder Herschel Bennet of the St. Louis Browns.

I regard Bennett as a great prospect. I didn't see a better looking youngster in the southern training camps among the rookie outfielders I looked over.

Dropped into the lineup to take the place of Bill Jacobson, who had a big season of it in 1924 and is holding out, Bennett faltered three times.

It was a tough break. However, I am sure before the season is over Bennett will win the plaudits of the fans who jeered him opening day at St. Louis. He's too courageous to let one bad day affect his play.

DOUBLE CROSS

Looks very much as if the old double cross is being slipped some one in the heavyweight wrestling class.

When Wayne Munn, "unknown busher," won the championship by defeating that veteran war horse, Ed. "Strangler" Lewis, the sport world was shocked.

However, the rise of a new champion, who didn't appear to capture it as per schedule, was hailed everywhere as a good thing for the wrestling game, which has been much mussed up of late.

Shortly after the title match, Munn defeated Stanislaus Zbyszko, ex-champion and leading contender. That made him look like a real champion.

A former collegian, a noted football player at Nebraska, Munn stood out as a colorful figure in the wrestling game.

Then just as the sport world was acclaiming Munn, Zbyszko threw him twice at Philadelphia before most of the assembly was comfortably seated.

On the surface it certainly looks as if there was still something wrong somewhere in the gentle art of wrestling.

PRAISES MEUSEL

"When he wants to be, Bob Meusel is the greatest out-fielder baseball has ever produced," says Joe Bush, veteran star pitcher, formerly with the Yankees, now with St. Louis Browns.

"When I say this, I am not unmindful of Cobb, the wonder player; the great Speaker, and the brilliant Eddie Roush, as well as other stars I haven't seen in action.

"Very fast, using a long stride that has him going at full speed after taking a few steps, Meusel is without a peer in covering ground

"In addition to his ground-covering ability, his judgement of distance is uncanny, and he has the greatest throwing arm in baseball.

"One must play on the same club as Meusel to really appreciate him He has saved dozens of ball games for me by seemingly impossible catches or marvelous throws.

"If Bob was aggressive, had more spirit, he would be more talked about than Cobb, Roush or Speaker as outfielders."

Meusel's only drawback, as Bush says, is lack of initiative—the fighting spirit. Bob is contented to take too much for granted."

CITIES SPENDING ON PLAYGROUNDS

Over 300,000 Spent by Fifteen Cities for Recreation.

NEW YORK, April 29 (Canadian Press).—Canadian cities invested $317,994.29 in public recreation during 1924, according to the Playground and Recreation Association of America, which has just issued its Year Book of Recreation statistics. This sum, reported by fifteen cities in eight provinces, is three times as much as the expenditure reported for this purpose by Canadian cities ten years ago. Reasons for increasing municipal investment in recreation are its returns in child saftey, character building, public health and more liveable cities, staets the Year Book.

The total number of Canadian playgrounds and recreation centers open under leadership was was reported as 281. Six hundred ninety-four trained leaders were employed to direct public play activities during the year.

Seven cities of Canada are maintaining municipal golf courses, according to their reports, opening opportunity for the health-giving game to all their citizens. Seventy-six athletic fields and 167 tennis courts are also among the public recreation facilities listed.

The Canadian cities sending reports for the Year Book were Lethbridge, Vancouver, Winnipeg, St. John, Sydney, Hamilton, London, Ottawa, Peterborough, Stratford Toronto, Windsor Montreal, Quebec and Regina. Among the recreatoin activities they are providing under leadership are winter sports, community music, dramatics and pageantry, craftsmanship, industrial, athletics and hiking.

The people of Sydney, N.S. last year enjoyed a large park, donated for playground purposes by the British Empire Steel Co. Lethbridge has a park of several acres, located outside the city and containing an artificial lake and bathing beach, a municipal golf course, a baseball diamond, a camp for automobile tourists and a children's playground.

Quebec reported an aggregate attendance at its six playgrounds during the summer of 1924 of 75,000 children and parents. The Playgrounds Committee of Quebec has recently had translated into French for its use among French citizens a number of the slogans and epigrams prepared by the Playground and Recreatoin Association of America. In their English form these slogans have been used extensively by cities of the United States to further popular education as to the need for public recreation.

The total 1924 expenditure for public recreation in the United States and Canada was $20,052,558, according to the reports of 711 cities. This exceeded the total 1923 expenditures by more than six million dollars.

LOCAL POWER DEVELOPMENT DISCUSSED BY R. R. HALL, K.C.

Tells Chamber of Commerce Solution is at Dams Four and Five.

INCREASE LIKELY.

Proposal Opposed By Robert Hicks, Chairman of Utilities Commission.

In speaking last night to the Chamber of Commerce on the local power situation, R. R. Hall, K.C., said that in such a discussion it is important to consider the facts and abandon all preconceived ideas and prejudices. He said that the first part of the address was taken from the Gregory report which was very often subjected to criticism and from the reports of the Hydro Electric Power Commission. One of the members of the Gregory Commission was R. A. Ross, a former resident of Peterborough and an electrical engineer of prominence.

The report from the Commission divides the Central Ontario System into three parts. This system was bought from the Ontario Power Company in 1916 and a number of contracts had to be taken over. The system belongs to the province and has never come under the Power Commission Act, said Mr. Hall, because of the appendages such as gas works street railways and waterworks which could not be cleaned off. The first division of the system consists of a number of muncipalities and private companies who have contracts at a fixed rate for a number of years.

The second division consists of nine municipalities, of which Peterborough is one, who have contracts for the purchase of power at cost. The third consists of 15 municipalities where the commission retails the power. Belleville Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg and Lindsay are among these towns. The other city of the system, Kingston comes in the first group, having a fixed rate of $25.00 per horsepower until 1936. The report shows that in 1921 the loss on the first two groups was $60,000 and the profit on the third division was over $80,000. It is only natural to expect, said Mr. Hall, that the municipalities which pay more for their power and show a profit will sooner or later make a protest against the rates and demand a readjustment.

Agitation has been raised by some people that the province bought the system for the municipalities and should be relieved of the burden as it was not fair to the rest of the province to carry this syystem, with its load of losing enterprises. There is, said Mr. Hall, no sinking fund, and the loss is borne by the government, and the municipalities are not legally bound to purchase the system. The present situation cannot continue and there is bound to be a showdown and the favorable contract the city has should not prevent it from taking action right now.

Develop Own Power

The solution offered by Mr. Hall is the development of the power at dams 4 and 5, and at Burleigh Falls. By building a reach of the canal from number 4 to 5 it would be possible to have mostly dry land construction and a head of 26 feet besides saving the building of one dam and the maintenance of one lock. At Burleigh the dam is high enough to drown out Lovesick lock and the head would be about the same. Mr. Hall calculated from reports of the flow of the river that the development of each of these projects would produce about 3000 horsepower at all times. The cost of the two he estimated at $600,000 or a capital cost of $100 per h.p. At the price paid for the Central Ontario System Peterborough's share he figured as $200 a h.p.

On the basis of $22.50 a share, which is the sum paid the Hydro now, the gross income would be $135,000 and the profit would be $50,000 which would provide a nice sinking fund, said Mr. Hall. Whereas on the present consumption an increase of $50,000 is probable in the near future, the city would have instead a profit of the same amount.

Unity Is Necessary

To obtain this result, said Mr. Hall, unity is necessary. The city council the Chamber of Commerce, the local members in the two houses must all do their part. The council should apply for a lease of the power rights. The federal member should induce the government to grant them and build the dams, pointing out to them that this development would save $400,000 now spent in the United States for coal. The Provincial member would point out to the Hydro that they are losing money on the city's contract and offer to release them from it if the Provincial government would authorize the borrowing of the necessary money.

In conclusion Mr. Hall urged the council to investigate the possibilities of the plan, saying that no one would complain of a small expenditure to get first hand information from competent engineers. He submitted that the results would be beneficial to the city.

Mr. Hicks.

The second speaker of the evening, Robert Hicks, chairman of the Peterboro Utilities Commission, called attention to the fact that the commission has always paid is way, and had effected a great saving to the citizens of Peterboro in the supply of electrical energy.

He said that it would not be wise to go ahead with Mr. Hall's project. There would not be enough power at the two places for the use of the city if any growth occurred, and breaking away from the H.E.P.C. would mean putting a limit around the city. He also said that the co-ordination of so many municipalities, having peak loads at different times of the year, permitted the sale of more energy than was developed, and allowed for lower rates. By working together some stations can be operated, while others are permitting their storage basins to fill up at the time of their greatest load.

Would Cost Too Much.

The scheme proposed by Mr. Hall, he said, could not be carried out for the sum he mentioned and it was more likely to cost $180 per horsepower than $100. The Hydro is developing the waterpowers of the system in order, those of the lowest capital cost first, and they would shortly develop the powers mentioned by Mr. Hall.

At the present time, said Mr. Hicks Peterboro is the best situated of all the municipalities of the system. He also spoke of the proposed flat rate, and urged the local member and the city council to watch and guard against its introduction.

Resigning Chairmanship.

In conclusion Mr. Hicks announced that it was his intention to resign the chairmanship of the commission, although he would still be a member. Business pressure, he said, was too great for him to give the position the attention it needed.

Replying to Mr. Hicks' statements Mr. Hall said that all he wanted was an investigation by a competent engineer, who would make an impartial inquiry into the facts. When this was done he wished the council to consider the report and then act on it. He didn't intend that they should cut loose from the Hydro, but make an agreement for the exchange of power as it was available. The diversity of opinion, he said, showed the necessity of an inquiry.

Interview Hydro.

W. H. Bradburn, M.L.A., suggested that before any other steps were taken an interview should be arranged with the Hydro Commission, and offered to make an appointment for such a meeting. Messrs C. R. Banks and R. S. Cotton said that the Hydro knew the possibilities of these water powers and the city should use their findings. Mayor Turner expressed regret at the resignation of Mr. Hicks from his office.

A hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Hall and Mr. Hicks was moved by J. J. Hartley and seconded by F. D. Kerr, K.C.

A report was made by the secretary, Leon Frazer about the formation of the Ontario Tourists' Association. The question of the membership campaign for the League of Nations Society was brought up by C. H. Ackerman.

A SPLENDID RECORD.

Elwood McBrien of Peterborough, Gains Honors and Degree.

The results of the fourth year's examinations, School of Practical Science, Toronto University, were published yesterday. In the list of successful students appeared the name of Elwood McBrien, McDonnel St., Peterborough, who obtained honours in the department of Mechanical Engineering. When about five years of age, the after effects of a fever left Elwood stone deaf. In spite of this handicap he has during the past four years attended lectures at Toronto University in the Faculty of Applied Science, passed all the examinations in the four years without a single failure, and now graduates with honours. Congratulations are certainly due to Elwood McBrien, B.Sc.

NEW ORCHESTRA MADE ITS DEBUT

Stringed Instruments Compose Fine Organization, Led by F. G. Mann.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

A string orchestra, under the leadership of F. G. Mann (organist and choirmaster of St. John's Anglican Church), made its first appearance before a Peterboro audience last night in St. John's Parish Hall. The hall was filled almost to capacity, and marked interest was shown in the varied programme.

The orchestra, which at present has a membership of about 25, was very evenly balanced, and is composed very largely of several of Peterboro's younger musicians. From their performance one may expect good things for the future, particularly as there is plenty of room for an association or society of this kind in the city, and great credit reflects on those who are behind this movement, and on whom rested the responsibility of instruction and direction.

They played four numbers, and showed excellent tempo in each, but more particularly in their first and last numbers, which seemed to be the better known by the audience, and were thus more appreciated on this account.

Careful bow work was noted on the part of the violinists, who incidentally are in many instances pupils of Mrs. M. B. Hoyland, also a member of the orchestra.

Many Solos.

The programme was largely augmented by instrumental solos and trios and vocal solos, the latter being given by some of Mr. Mann's pupils.

The singing of the two boy treble soloists was of excellent quality, both with exceptionally clear enunciation and showing splendid clarity of tone.

The violin solo numbers rendered by the youthful Robert Wyllie and William Gaskin were very well played, and the same can also be said of Miss M. Fine's and Miss C. Taylor's contributions. These young ladies, although "just in their 'teens," demonstrated splendid ability and possess all the earmarks of being future skilful exponents of the instrument which they play. They reflect great credit on their teacher, Mrs. Hoyland, who is giving them an excellent foundation on which to build up their musical career.

The vocal numbers of the Misses Evans and Quartermaine were very nicely rendered and blended harmoniously with the rest of the programme, likewise the two numbers sung by D. G. Melton. Particular praise should be given the trio, composed of Mrs. M. B. Hoyland (violin), R. Farthing ('cello), and F. G. Mann (piano). Their three numbers were played with splendid rhythm and delicate precision. Each of their numbers merited an encore, but the length of the programme seemingly would not warrant one.

Splendid Accompaniments.

The pianoforte accompaniments were very ably played by Miss M. Turner, who assisted the orchestra, and Mrs. G. Evans and F. G. Mann, who assisted the vocalists.

The following is the programme in order given, and the names of musicians comprising the orchestra:

PLAY SETS NEW STANDARD

Vaughn Moody's Masterpiece Was Hailed as the Great American Drama.

The great American play—the most popular stage production of the last twenty years—translated to the screen in a production on which no time nor expense were spared to make it a film even greater than the original, "The Great Divide" comes to the Capitol Theatre tomorrow. It is a Metro-Goldwyn picture, presented by Louis B. Mayer.

The story is of the West of today; of a woman, cultured, educated and with the repression of the East, living amoung the hardships of the Western country.

Critics and public alike have declared it the "great American play."

William Vaughn Moody, who wrote it, originally called it "The Sabine Woman," and, indeed, it is said he based his story on the historic seizure of the Sabines.

Directed by Reginald Barker.

Reginald Barker directed "The Great Divide" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. It has been done on an elaborate scale and the entire company spent more than six weeks on the desert of Arizona getting exterior scenes.

It is an epic of the West; a powerfully dramatic story of the elemental clash of a woman, typical of the repressed culture of the East, and a man typical of the fiery defiant, lawless spirit of the West.

Alice Terry and Conway Tearle have the two leading roles with supporting cast which includes Wallace Beery, ZaSu Pitts, Huntly Gordon, Allan Forrest, Ford Sterling and William Orlamond.

AT THE ROYAL

AMATEUR NIGHT AT ROYAL. THURSDAY.

This week promises to be the best of the series of amateur nights held at the Royal. The embryo stars for to-morrow night include:

Annie Fletcher. She's only six years old, but oh hy!

Dorothy Collet, songs.

Ilene Bowler, a lullaby.

George and Harold Coleman, Gallagher and Sheehan.

Dorothy Cooney, My Best Girl.

MIDNIGHT MOLLY LEAVES TO-NIGHT.

"Midnight Molly," the stirring crook melodrama which has been alternately thrilling and chilling big audiences at the Royal Theatre, will be shown for the last time at this house to-day. Evelyn Brent, who takes the title role, is even more delightful than in her previous successes, and the story is one of the most exciting which has been shown locally in many months.

Tense dramatic situations are interspersed with sensational action in which two automobile accidents are but incidental. The theme involves two women who look almost exactly alike; one, the frivolous and unfaithful wife of a candidate for governor, and the other a girl whose bad environment in life has started off as a crook ,but who is forced to pretend she is the future governor's wife.

"BAREE SON OF KAZAN" AT ROYAL THURSDAY

James Oliver Curwood never wrote a better story than "Baree." The Examiner was fortunate in getting permission to use it as a serial and now that the picture version has been made a ready made audience awaits it at the Royal tomorrow where it gets the first Canadian presentation.

Added interest owing to the fact that the story is of our own Canadian North-west and the dog "Wolf" who plays the part of "Baree" is the only animal ever personally decorated with the Croix de Guerre by a French Marshall.

This dog was in the German army, wounded and captured under fire. He takes commands in English, French or German.

HOW DAVID W. GRIFFITH CAME TO MAKE "LOVE AND SACRIFICE"

Desirous of Giving Fellow Countrymen a Real Worthwhile Picture—Story of Beginning of Country Spurred Him On.

The romance of one hundred and ten million people—that is the story of "Love and Sacrifice," starting tonight, which many critics now declare is greater than Mr. Griffith's earlier picture, "The Birth of a Nation."

Several years ago, Mr. Griffith began planning an elaborate and accurate film story of the American Revolution; but at that time, so-called costume plays were not popular. His research staff had harvested many unusual and whimsical facts long shadowed as trifles, but vividly revealing the life of that day.

In May, 1923, the Daughters of the American Revolution addressed a letter to the motion picture industry, inquiring why a film of the Revolutionary War had not been undertaken, and suggesting it should not be delayed.

Mr. Will Hays received the letter and asked Mr. Griffith to undertake the work.

Before doing it, he made a secret trip to Boston, visiting all the shrines of patriotism in that vicinity. He went to the Old North Church, motored along the ride that Paul Revere made, crossed the bridge at Concord and lay on the bank in the hot spring sun for more than an hour directly where "the shot heard round the world" was fired.

That night he decided to make the film ,not to show in chronological detail the incidents of the war, but to portray the spirti of sacrifice which encouraged the little band of Americans untrained in war, to defy and conquer the hosts of the invading.

He believed it would be of moral value as well as passing entertainment for the American people to see against the bravery and unbreakable will that their forefathers presented against the agonizing woes and the hostile scourges through a cold, ill-dressed and hungry warfare, without adequate arms or disciplined leaders.

He first took the ride of Paul Revere, a brief incident in the story but one that required three weeks to film. The engine in horseflesh selected as the mount defeated nine riders before Harry O'Neill was found to handle him. His playful preliminary to work one morning at the filming, was to leap over the hood of a big motor truck. This horse is one of the most famous jumpers in the world, but too uncontroiled for show or competitive purposes.

The only time it was ever quiet enough to handle with ease came when it became sea-sick taking the boat ride from the Mamaroneck studio to Lexington, for the cross-country scenes. Remember this throughout the picture . . .that every historic scene shown in the film was photographed in part on the actual ground where the historic action occurred.

L.O.B.A. SOCIAL.

Jolly Evening Engineered by Star of Bethlehem.

The Victoria Hall was the scene of a very jolly affair on Tuesday evening when the member of the Star of Bethlehem L.O.B.A. number 650, held a basket social and dance.

Fifty baskets were auctioned off, $4.00 being the highest offer for the basket belonging to Miss Brown.

The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, the Blue Bird Orchestra providing the music. During the evening Miss Harrison contributed a vocal solo.

Much credit is due the Worthy Mistress, Mrs. Burnham, who had charge of all arrangements, and to Mr. Wiggs, who was convenor of the Music committee and who also acted as a very efficient auctioneer.

MORE MANUFACTURERS TELL BUSINESS IS ON UP-GRADE

No Reason For Excessive Optimism, But No Cause For Despair.

MANY OPINIONS.

Most Peterborough Men Say Sounder Times Are Coming This Year.

Continuing the probe into business conditions of the day in Peterboro, it was further established today that while there is no justification for excessive satisfaction with the present state of affairs, neither is their cause for the aspect of morbid despair which many evidence in predicting black ruin as the ultimate fate of all industry.

The majority of the managements visited appeared well satisfied with present conditions and reported that business was as profitable as could be expected when all was considered.

Work on Increase.

J. R. MacDonald, manager of the MacDonald Lumber Company, finds that there is a steady flow of work which shows a considerable improvement over that of last year. Mr. MacDonald said that the past winter was extremely favorable for the lumbering industry as the men were out of the woods about two weeks earlier than last year.

Mr. MacDonald believes that work for the ensuing year will continue more favorable than it has heretofore, as it is at present on the increase and appears to be on a sounder basis.

Prospect Not Good.

C. H. Thompson, manager of sales for the Brinton Carpet Co., states that due to a lack of prohibitive tariff, and because of consequent foreign competition, his factory is unable to operate on a lucrative scale. Mr. Thompson reports that only 50 per cent of his employees are working 5 days per week. He says that there is no immediate prospect of relief in sight.

William Hartley, manager of the Colonial Weaving Co., states that business is not as good as that of last year. The orders, he says, are small and there are no indications of improvement.

Slow but Firm.

H. M. Niven, manager of the Peterboro Paper Box Co. Ltd., says that 90 per cent. of his product is sold to other manufacturers, and hence his industry could be used as indicative of the times.

Mr. Niven states that the development this year has been slower but appears to be on a firmer basis. Local business, he says, is especially good.

Patronize Ontario.

R. J. Kidd manager of the R. Neil Shoe Co., believes that there is no reason to complain of conditions. "It is true," he says, "that the earlier part of the year was below average, but business is now showing a considerable improvement. In buying shoes," he continued, "it is our custom now to patronize Ontario manufacturers. We have no imports from the States and very few from Europe."

Mr. Kidd expects that business will continue to show a gradual improvement and says that no tremendous boom should be expected.

Make up Deficit.

T. O. Donaldson, managing director of the J. Walter Green Mfg. Co., finds that conditions are slowly improving, which, he states, is to be expected at this time of year; however there is no reason for any great degree of optimism. While business to date was slightly below that of last year, still if it continued as at present, the deficit would be quickly made up.

TAX ON POWER.

Delegation Asks Exemption on 60,000 Horse Power Exported.

OTTAWA, April 29 (Canadian Press).—"In placing anexport tax on electrical power," Hon. G. P. Graham, Minister of Railways, and Hon. J. A. Robb, Acting Minister of Finance, both informed a large delegation from the Ontario Hydro-Electric municipalities, "the Government had a double object, to secure revenue in order to meet expenditure and to discourage the export of power."

The delegation urged that 60,000 horespower exported annually by the Hydro-Electric Commission under contract with Niagara, Lockport and Ontario Power Company should be exempted from the new tax on exported power. On behalf of the delegation, it was represented that the contract had been made in 1904 and would not expire till 1950. When the contract was entered into, there was no contemplation of an export tax. The result would be that the yearly tax on power would amount to $110,000 in this case, and would have to be borne by Ontario consumers.

No definite reply to the representations in this regard was made by the Government. Mr. Graham, who presided, observed that he, as an Ontario member, was deeply interested in Hydro development. He was glad to see that the members of the delegation had regarded the levying of an export tax on power as a good thing, in that it would discourage the export of power. If the export of pulpwood could be discouraged by an export tax, why not the export of power?

TITLED RUM RUNNER LOST EVERYTHING

Half of Cargo Seized By the United States, and Balance Unsold.

LONDON, April 29 (Canadian Press)—The Daily Mail which recently told of Sir Brodrick Hartwell's misadventure in whiskey running off the United States coast, now says he has circularized his supporters to the effect that he lost everything in the debacle.

Of 61,000 cases in the shipment, United States authorities are declared to have seized more than 32,000. About 6000 were sold, and the proceeds spent on vessels, coal and other things. Thirty-two thousand cases remain available for sale, the circular says, but it is problematic whether they can be disposed of, the risk of seizures being very great.

Facts About OPTOMETRY

Young Eyes Are Not Always Good Eyes

By no means. A lot of people think they are. If you are a parent, and have children going to school, and you imagine their eyes do not need attention because they are young, you may be making a serious mistake. Young eyes are in thousands of cases abnormal and no one knows anything about it. Think what a handicap that means to a child. Children's cases are given our closest attention.
